TEACHERS' BILL PASSED BY SENATE

White Compromise Measure in Place of McCarren Equalization Bill.

ONE VOTE AGAINST IT

Senator Fuller Declares That It Tends to Abrogate Teachers' Agreement with Education Board.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—With a vote of 45 to 1 the so-called White compromise bill introduced by the Senate Cities Committee, and providing for the equalization of salaries of male and female teachers in the public schools of New York City, passed the upper house at to-night's session.

The negative vote was cast by Senator Fuller (Ind. Dem.) of Brooklyn. He offered an amendment, the object of which he declared to be the protection of the annual increase of male teachers in the high schools.

"These teachers," said Senator Fuller, "have taken up teaching as their life work and have prepared themselves for it by lengthy study in college and normal school. They begin at a salary of $1,300, and under their present agreement are guaranteed an annual increase of $110, until the maximum of $2,400 has been reached.

"Under this expectation, they have gone ahead and made their arrangements, and in many cases contracted obligations. If this bill becomes law, there is nothing to prevent the Board of Education from abrogating the agreement."

The Fuller amendment was defeated by a vote of 42 to 2, Senator Cohelan (Dem.) of New York voting with Fuller for the amendment.

Senators White, McGovern, and Grady, who was in his seat to-night for the first time in two weeks, spoke in favor of the bill. Senator Grady became vehement, and accused Senator Fuller of bad faith. He said the White bill was only in a slight manner repairing the wrongs leveled against the women teachers in earlier legislation.

Senator McCarren spoke in the same vein, and opposed the Fuller amendment on the ground that it would add some $13,000,000 a year to the Department of Education to the city's budget.

The White compromise bill took the place of the McCarren Equalization bill. It establishes a minimum salary of $720 for teachers in the New York City schools.

It further provides that men and women teachers doing the same class of work shall receive the same salary, and makes $150 a year the maximum difference in salary between instructors of boys' and girls' classes. The bill provides that the tax rate shall be raised from 3 mills to 4 mills to meet the increased expenditures.

New Tenement House Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—A General Tenement House bill was introduced to-night by Senator McCall and Assemblyman Dobbs. It is the measure containing the ideas and recommendations of Tenement House Commissioner Butler of New York.

In a statement issued in his behalf Commissioner Butler says that the main purpose of the bill is to embody in the statute the various rulings and interpretations of the law that have been in vogue in the Tenement House Department since its inception.

87th Street Station Bill Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Because of objections of property owners around Columbus Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street, Young of New York caused his Eighty-seventh Street Elevated Station bill to be sent back to the Railroad Commission for hearing. He stated that he expected the bill would be acclaimed throughout the district as a benefit, and was somewhat surprised at the opposition.

For Official Ballot at Primaries.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Assemblyman Prentice of New York introduced a bill in the Assembly to-night, which provides that an official ballot shall be used at primaries. It is similar in form to the ballot used election day.

Automobile Insurance Bill Passed.

ALBANY, April 15.—Senator Saxe's bill to amend the insurance law so as to permit insurance against loss or damage to an automobile resulting from a collision, was passed by the Assembly to-night.

Queens Record Commissioner Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—The De Groot bill creating the office of Commissioner of Records for Queens County was passed in the Assembly to-night by a party vote.

LOOKS DARK FOR KELSEY.

ALBANY, April 15.—Printed copies of the testimony taken in the case of Supt. Kelsey at the hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee were placed on the desk of every Senator to-night. The announcement was also made that the Judiciary Committee would take up the Kelsey case in executive session on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The friends of Supt. Kelsey on the committee, under the leadership of Senator Raines, will fight for submitting the evidence to the full Senate without any recommendations, while the Governor's friends propose that the Judiciary Committee should render a report in the case to submit to the Senate. This would leave the adoption or rejection of the report as the Senate's sole function, and would save time.

While it is likely that the friends of Kelsey will be able to check any such plan in committee, even those most opposed to the Governor's plan of removing Kelsey are not sanguine. The Governor's friends assert that at least thirty votes in the upper house will be for Kelsey's removal.

SPEAK FOR PASTEURIZATION.

Arguments Favoring It Advanced Before Medical Association.

The milk supply of New York was discussed last night before the Medical Association of this city at the Academy of Medicine. Doctors, practical milkmen, and Professors of Agricultural Science spoke and laid the burden of reform on the dairy farmer, the consumer, and the transportation companies in equal measure.

Prof. H. W. Conn of the State Board of Health of Connecticut said that the bacilli are the sole causes of the success of the buttermaker and the cheese producer. If the lactic acid bacilli were eliminated there could be neither of the products of milk.

Prof. Conn supported the use of Pasteurization on the ground that, whatever might be said against it, it was the only guarantee by which it was certain that the germs of tuberculosis and typhoid would be destroyed. But he pointed out that it was very important that the milk thus treated should be consumed at the earliest possible moment after it had gone through the process.

Dr. George W. Goler, Health Officer of Rochester, N. Y., asserted that half the cows in the United States are kept at a loss, and only about a quarter yield any profit.

"Milk is a perishable commodity," he said, "and people forget that milkmen have done more for reforms without demanding extra pay than any other class of men."

He recommended the establishment of model dairies in the public parks and the conversion of disused farm buildings by the State into dairies on the best model in order to show farmers how cheaply it can be done.

INDICTED FOR BRIBERY.

Private Detectives Accused in the Peonage Cases.

William J. Smith, law clerk and private detective, and Stanley Bagg, also a detective, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday on bench warrants charging the attempted bribery of a Government official. The two were held in $1,500 bail each for trial, which they furnished.

The indictments grew out of the recent peonage cases. The men were arrested a few days ago in company with Michael Taglisch. They are accused of attempting to bribe Julius Kron, a special employe of the Department of Justice, detailed to assist in the investigation of the peonage suits. It is charged that Smith and Bagg endeavored to induce Kron to divulge the names of the witnesses before the Federal Grand Jury which indicted a dozen proprietors of employment agencies in this city. Taglisch was not indicted.

OPEN HOSPITAL AT CONEY.

City Officials Attend Ceremony at the Resort—To be Open All the Year.

The formal opening of the Coney Island Reception Hospital yesterday was attended by Controller Metz, Charities Commissioner McEnerney, and other city officials.

The hospital was first opened in 1901 for emergency cases, and has only been kept open during the Summer months. It will now be kept open the year around until the completion of a new and larger structure, now contemplated, which will be located in Surf Avenue near Fifth Street.

The hospital has eight beds and additional accommodations for emergency domands.

Dog Poisoner at Patchogue, L. I.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., April 15.—The poisoning of several valuable dogs here recently has aroused public indignation. The similarity of the methods employed in each case seem to point to its being the work of one person, and rewards have been offered for his arrest. Spite is supposed to be the only motive.

COL. HARVEY IS ON WHITE HOUSE LIST

PRESIDENT'S FRIENDS FEAR

Cry of the "Rich Men's Plot," So Effective at First, May Be Made Tiresome, They Think.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Another chapter in the revelations of the "rich men's conspiracy" was unfolded at the White House to-day, and another name added to the fatal list. This time Col. George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly and The North American Review, is the guilty man. The cause of his denunciation is the speech he delivered at the Jefferson dinner in New York on Saturday night, in which he preached a sermon against one-man power and severely criticised President Roosevelt.

In due form and with all proper solemnity this speech was pointed out at the White House this morning as evidence that Col. Harvey had joined the conspiracy to prevent the nomination of a man of the Roosevelt type for the Presidency next year. It required a little ingenuity to make the connection, but ingenuity in politics is not lacking at the White House, where, according to official declaration, they "are not novices."

In this case Col. Harvey was connected with the rich conspirators through his relations with J. Pierpont Morgan. It was not very long ago that Mr. Morgan was regarded at the Executive Mansion with feelings which would not have justified the calling of any man a conspirator just for being associated with him. But since the revelations about Harriman, who once was and now is far from being a friend(to be consulted about messages to Congress and other important governmental affairs, there has developed a decided tendency to examine with great care all the sayings and doings of any man who may have ever crossed the path of one of those Wall Street millionaires.

Reason Given for Animus.

In somewhat indefinite manner it was recalled to-day that during the peace negotiations at Portsmouth in the Fall of 1905, Col. Harvey issued invitations to M. Witte and some other members of the Russian delegation for a dinner. M. Witte did not accept this invitation, as the story of to-day goes, and the reason intimated was that on making investigation as to who Col. Harvey was, he found out that his would-be host was in fact "the representative and mouthpiece" of J. Pierpont Morgan. From what was said the inference was drawn that it was through officials of this Government that M. Witte derived this information on which he declined the honor of dining with Col. Harvey. At any rate, ever since that invitation was refused, Col. Harvey has held the Administration, and particularly Mr. Roosevelt, responsible for his discomfiture, and has acted accordingly. That, on the solemn authority for this whole story, is the real reason for the bitter shafts which Col. Harvey has been launching at the President recently.

It is becoming more and more apparent that no opportunity is to be lost to arraign the rich men of the Republican Party as conspirators against the continuation of the Roosevelt policies. It was pointed out as soon as the remarkable disclosures were first made at the White House that they would have the effect of lining up the sheep and the goats. Now it appears that lest there should be any failure to effect that lining up, each man who delivers himself of anything unfriendly to the Roosevelt regime is to be branded at once as a conspirator. The interview with H. H. Rogers, which was printed the other day, promptly received this sort of attention at the White House, and Col. Harvey's utterance is not allowed to get by the first business morning after its delivery without being duly catalogued.

Question of Political Wisdom.

There is much comment in Washington about this action of the White House experts. Men known to be genuinely friendly to the President and desirous of securing the continuation of his programme of trust prosecution and anti-trust legislation are beginning to express their doubts about the political wisdom of this wholesale accusation. There was no doubt in their minds that the first general assault hit the mark it was intended for, and the Roosevelt followers throughout the country accept with joyous acclaim the old cry of the Populists, "Rich men's conspiracy," now advanced by the Republican President.

But they began to fear that, just as the Populists made themselves tiresome by the iteration and reiteration of their accusation, this new clamor against rich men generally will soon exhaust itself and leave the real friends of the programme which the President has carried along successfully so far worse off than if the conspirators had been permitted to work unheeded.

Mr. Roosevelt has been accused many times of having stolen Democratic thunder and carried away plank after plank from the Democratic platforms. But this new cry, it is pointed out, goes further than any Democrat ever went, and takes him squarely into the old Populist camp. The greatest rallying cry of the Populists was their denunciation of the rich, and that is the very thing that the President is now counting on to carry him and his friends through the campaign for control of the Republican National Convention next year.

H. W. TAFT SUPPORTS HUGHES.

Secretary's Brother Also Says the President Favors His Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Henry W. Taft of New York, brother of the Secretary of War, had a long interview with President Roosevelt to-day. When he left the White House he refused to discuss his brother's Presidential candidacy or any other feature of the Presidential situation. He made this statement regarding matters in New York:

"Public opinion approves the main features of Gov. Hughes's policies. The Republican Party in the State stands for the policies of President Roosevelt, and the President supports Gov. Hughes because they work on similar lines and have the same purposes.

"Some of the leaders of the Republican organization seem to be put in the attitude of opposition to Gov. Hughes. This cannot continue if the State is to be kept in the Republican ranks, and I believe that what must be found is some way by which Gov. Hughes may be given the sympathetic support of the organization.

"I feel sure that the President believes that Gov. Hughes's policies are good and should, with such changes as a friendly consideration may suggest, be put into effect. The Republican organization should have the advantage of the support of the public opinion which Gov. Hughes is leading, and he should have the support of a political organization which will aid him to carry his views into practical effect."

Philadelphia Board of Trade Takes Up Defense of Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—Alarmed by the attacks on corporate interests and fearing further legislation inimical to railroads, the Board of Trade adopted resolutions to-day in opposition to the principles of President Roosevelt and his whole administration and took up a defense of capital.

Frank D. La Lanne, a member of the Executive Council and President of the National Board of Trade, declared that the whole agitation against railroads was the work of thoughtless operators and others who made it a fad, thinking that by thus doing they were up to date.

The report of the committee says:

"It is to be regretted that the criticism of railroads and the large amount of suggested and enacted legislation, much of it hostile, should have produced the alarm among investors which seriously curtails the ability of railroads to make absolutely necessary improvements. At no time in the history of the country has there been such requirement for an immediate and large increase of our transportation facilities. This is emphasized by the widespread demand of merchants and shippers for relief from the freight congestion crippling the industries of all sections.

"It is also to be regretted that at the very time of this urgent and legitimate demand for increased efficiency in railroad service, the public should have come to regard with disfavor investments in railway securities. This disposition checks the necessary development of our vast railway system, and thus curtails all branches of industrial life and seriously restricts commerce. While the questionable financial methods of some railroad managers have invoked merited criticism, yet there is no justification for a continuing policy prompting antagonism merely for retaliation either by the Government or the people, as the universal railway system of the country must now be regarded as the great public carrier and necessary for the general prosperity.

"Confidence is the foundation stone of all business prosperity, and the loss of it tends to destruction. Rightly or wrongly, popular confidence is easily shaken. Nothing tends to destroy confidence more than uncertainty for the future. The complex and varying business operations of the country are so interwoven with one another that the prosperity of one, to a large extent, is the prosperity of all."

ELKINS MISSES ROOSEVELT.

Senator Feels Sure a Good Man Will Be Elected President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Senator Elkins, who has not yet received his official card of admission to the conspirators' band, and who seems determined not to get it, called at the White House to-day to see the President. Mr. Roosevelt was out horseback riding. An industrious effort was made to get Mr. Elkins to discuss Presidential policies, but he seemed to see a conspiracy indictment in the offing and declined.

"I am sure of one thing," he said, "and that is that a good man will be elected President next time, even if it should happen to be Bryan."

PISTOL OUT IN MOUQUIN'S.

Guest Threatens a Waiter Who Wouldn't Serve Him.

When a waiter in Mouquin's restaurant, at Twenty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, last night failed to attend him, Ernest Perhan, a civil engineer, of Edgeville, N. J., thought that by drawing a revolver and whirling it about in the air he might persuade the waiter to take his order.

According to the waiter, the men were so bolsterous that he refused to serve them. When the waiter drew near the table again, it is said, Perhan drew a revolver and is alleged to have said:

"Don't you think that I could persuade you to serve us?"

The waiter yelled and ran from the room and those sitting near by also hurried out.

LAWYERS' CONSPIRACY SUIT.

The suit of Peter R. Gatens, attorney for R. G. Dun & Co., against the International Mercantile Agency, Charles H. Henderson, Patrick F. Gargan, and John F. Tinker, the two latter being Central Office men, to recover $10,000 damages for false arrest and malicious persecution, was brought to trial before Supreme Court Justice Dayton and a jury yesterday. At the same time a similar suit, brought by Francis L. Minton, another lawyer, for R. G. Dun & Co. was tried.

The plaintiffs declare that on Feb. 21, 1903, the defendant Henderson caused Gargan and Tinker to arrest them on a charge of conspiracy. They were taken to the Central Office, where they were required to give bail for their appearance the next day before Magistrate Pool. After an examination of the complaint the Magistrate discharged them.

The attorney for the two plaintiffs told the jury that the managers of R. G. Dun & Co. became aware that the International Mercantile Agency was copying from their rating directory. In the Dun directory, he said, there are certain fictitious names and ratings placed to enable the Dun people to detect the unauthorized use of the information gathered by them, and in the International's book these fictitious names appear.

The two plaintiffs, it was declared, visited a place where they were to meet a young man who had promised to give them information as to how the International people got out their book, and they were there arrested.

The suit will be continued to-day.

RETRYING POWER CO. SUIT.

Hoadley, Leiter, and Judson Again Defendants on Stock Deal.

A suit instituted by Franklin, Scott & Co., brokers, against Joseph W. Hoadley, President of the International Power Company; Joseph Leiter of Chicago, and Cyrus Field Judson to recover $55,000 with interest, balance due in a deal in the stock of the International Power Company, was brought to trial for a second time before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich and a jury yesterday. The shares in litigation were bought at 198 on the day of the crash in International Power stock.

The suit was tried first before Supreme Court Justice Amend, and a verdict was entered against the three defendants, who are declared by the plaintiff to have formed a pool to manipulate the stock. The judgment, costs, and interest amounted to $81,000. A like suit by the firm of Willard H. Jones & Co. was tried before Justice Amend and a verdict was found against Judson, but Hoadley and Leiter were exonerated.

The Appellate Division reversed the verdicts in both cases on the ground that evidence had been wrongfully admitted, and sent them back for retrial.

Although Cyrus Field Judson is named as a defendant, he has been a witness for the plaintiffs in both cases. The suit will be continued to-day.

NEWARK POLICE HEAD TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Chief Adams Shoots Himself Following Police Graft Exposures.

FOUND DEAD IN A PARK

He and Others Had Been Indicted and Mental Strain Was Too Much for Him.

Worried over possible suspension and laboring under a mental strain due to the police revelations of the last nine months, John H. Adams, Chief of Police of Newark, N. J., committed suicide by shooting himself in the head while sitting on a bench in Branch Brook Park, Newark, yesterday.

Chief Adams left his home, 286 Clifton Avenue, after bidding his wife an affectionate good-bye, and, going to the north end of the park nearest his home, walked to a point nearly a mile distant, where he sat down on a bench near the canal. Half an hour later E. C. Lauterman, an engineer employed by the Essex County Park Commission, who was passing through the park, heard two pistol shots and discovered the body lying in a pool of blood on the ground. The body was soon identified and removed to the dead Chief's home.

The fact that the act was premeditated is shown by the existence of two letters, one of which was addressed to his wife and the other to Sheriff Sommer. The latter message was found in one of the dead man's pockets, and its contents have not been revealed. The letter to the Chief's wife was found on a table at his home. It read:

Dear Wife: Forgive me, as I hope God will, for I am a victim of misplaced confidence. Tell our dear daughter Emma to pray for her old father. This strain is making me lose my mind, and I would rather be dead than live as I have lived for the past year.

I have not got the money to fight this case, and if I am called away it will be better for you. The men in the department know I am honest, and so do you. I see by the morning papers they are going to suspend me, and that means dismissal, and what will become of you and me?

I cannot expect anything from an anti-administration.

I have been hounded to death ever since I came in the office. Good-bye, and God bless you and help you.

Dear sisters, forgive me, your distracted brother.

Mrs. Adams heard of her husband's suicide under distressed circumstances. The Chief left her at Bloomfield and Clifton Avenues shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Adams intending to go to the Centre Market to do some shopping. When she arrived at the office of the market clerk, William R. Swan, who is an intimate friend of the family, the latter was notified by telephone of the suicide. The clerk was overcome with emotion, but refrained from telling Mrs. Adams, but he led her to believe that something was wrong, and going home she found her husband's note. It developed that after bidding his wife good-bye the Chief entered the house again and wrote the message.

Chief Adams had been subject to a constant mental strain ever since Sheriff Frank N. Sommer began his anti-vice crusade early last Summer. The Sheriff raided a number of places of questionable character over the heads of the police. Charges of neglect of duty were made again several police officers, including three of the Captains, but when the Police Commissioners failed to find them guilty the Sheriff laid the evidence before the Essex County Grand Jury, with the result that three of the Commissioners, Chief Adams, and two Captains and several minor officers were indicted for nonfeasance in office. Since that time charges had been made in the Newark newspapers intimating the existence of graft in the department. The resignations of all but one of the Police Commissioners followed, and the suspension of the accused police officials was imminent. The dread of being removed no doubt preyed upon Chief Adams's mind until he became despondent.

The most intimate friends of the Chief have never doubted the honesty of his administration, and expressions of sorrow for his act were profuse in Newark yesterday. The dead Chief was born in Brooklyn Dec. 13, 1848, and had been connected with the Police Department for over twenty-seven years. He was made Chief about two years ago. A widow and adopted daughter survive.

UNITED COPPER HOLDINGS.

Firm's Treasurer a Witness in the Hodgens Suit.

The hearing of the suit of Thomas M. Hodgens against the United Copper Company to compel that company to open its books for inspection was continued yesterday before the Commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court of New Jersey in the office of Cary & Robinson at 59 Wall Street.

The chief witness before the Commissioner yesterday was Stanley Gifford, Secretary and Treasurer of the United Copper Company. He told about the several subsidiary companies that had been purchased by the United Copper Company. He was asked to name the companies which the United Copper Company controlled, but he declined to do so, saying that the United Copper Company expected to purchase other companies, and to disclose its holdings now might interfere with its plans.

Frederick Eckstein, the cashier of the United Copper Company, was the next witness. He testified that between May 20, 1902, and December, 1906, the United Copper Company had gross earnings of $10,000,000, and had paid dividends of $4,900,000. He said that the Montana Ore Purchasing Company one of the subsidiary companies of the United Copper Company, had paid dividends, but he was not asked to name the amount.

EX-PASTOR HUNT QUITS.

The Rev. E. Lawrence Hunt, who resigned the pastorate of the Noble Street Presbyterian Church, Greenpoint, after being named as a co-respondent in the Bassett divorce case, and later was ordered out of his parsonage, moved to Manhattan yesterday before the three days in which the congregation requested him to go had elapsed. He says he is going to devote his time to writing a book called "The Minister and the Judge." His mother will remain in the parsonage until he finds another home for her.

LID SHUT ON MINING SHOW.

The North American Mines Exhibition opened last night at the Grand Central Palace with all kinds of mining stocks on sale for the ambitious investor, and for the youngster with only 10 cents in his pocket a chance for investment, too—in wheels of fortune and ring-the-sticks games that held out as an allurement one large silver dollar for the lucky ten-cent investor.

The mining stocks will continue to be on sale, but the 10-cent investor lost his only chance early on the opening night. Police Capt. Lantry, on hearing about the wheels of fortune and kindred devices not of the stock variety, put his official foot down on the dime gambling. The Captain had an interview with the management and henceforth the exhibition will go on without that feature. No arrests were made.

The centre of one room in the exhibition is taken up by a large stock quotation board, on which the rises and falls in Western mining securities are carefully noted. On both sides of this room are the booths of companies having stock with which they can be persuaded to part. In front of each booth is an impressive exhibition of glinting ore. The prize on exhibit bears a legend which says there is 80 per cent. of gold in the ore in that mine.

Puffs and prospectuses of mines, heaps and heaps of them, are there to be given away, and if you didn't want to buy stock last night they were perfectly willing to take your name and address and either see or write to you after you'd had an opportunity to think it over.

In other rooms were "cowgirls"—young women in sombreros, flannel shirts, short buckskin skirts, leather leggins, and high heeled slippers, sample layouts of Western gambling apparatus—roulette wheel, bee-hive, crap cloth, faro box and cloth, stud poker, and Klondike—an imitation of a Coney Island midway, fortune tellers, air-gun shooting galleries, palmists, taffy men, and the ring-the-stick and wheel of fortune games.

The wheels did a rushing business till Capt. Lantry had interviewed the management. Then on that part of the show the lid was shut down quickly. The management said that the gambling had been introduced without their knowledge.

NEW MOTION IN EDDY SUIT.

CONCORD, N. H., April 15.—Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan, and Josiah E. Fernald, trustees of the estate of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, filed a motion in the Superior Court this afternoon, asking that the "next friends" of Mrs. Eddy, plaintiffs in the original suit, be ordered forthwith to show cause why the motion of the trustees for leave to intervene and be substituted as plaintiffs in place of the original plaintiffs should not be granted.

The new motion was an answer to a petition filed recently in connection with the suit brought by George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., a son of Mrs. Eddy; his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and George W. Baker of Bangor, Me., Mrs. Eddy's nephew, to obtain an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property.

$8,000 VERDICT FOR SLANDER.

Miss Raymond Wins in Suit Against Wealthy Mrs. Ring.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 15.—Instead of being settled to-day, when a jury in the Supreme Court here awarded $8,000 damages to Miss Grace Raymond, the suit for slander brought by the former Sunday school teacher against Mrs. Naomie Duncombe Ring has apparently only just begun. Mrs. Ring declared after hearing the verdict that she would carry the case to the last court, while Miss Raymond smilingly said she would never cease her fight to collect the judgment. The verdict is said to be the largest ever given in this State for slander where only spoken words figured in the complaint.

"All I sought," said Miss Raymond, "was vindication, and this I have obtained. The verdict of the jury completely exonerates me of wrongdoing and proves that the charges against my character and my name were unfounded. I am greatly pleased with the decision."

Mrs. Ring, whose fortune is estimated as high as $2,000,000, termed the entire proceeding a conspiracy between Miss Raymond and Mr. Ring.

"I never slandered Miss Raymond," she stated emphatically, "nor did I strike her as she charges."

ROUGH TRIP OF THE CEDRIC.

The steamship Cedric of the White Star Line got in yesterday from Liverpool after a rough trip. There were all kinds of weather, from sunshine and a calm sea to rains, hail, sleet, and gales, all to the accompaniment of tremendously high seas. At noon on Saturday one monster wave climbed aboard, sending spray as high as the sun deck. Some of this flood poured into the smoking room through the port lights, but did no damage. In spite of this the vessel came through without damage. Among those who arrived were:

James N. Alsop, Miss Harold Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Cushman, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. George Davies, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Galt, George L. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ketcham, Dr. J. H. Laidley, Charles MacVeagh, H. P. McKean, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Phipps, Charles Brooks Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson, Major and Mrs. Archer Shee, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Turnbull, Mrs. T. Carlos Van Bergen, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Walker, W. R. Warren, J. Edward Whitford, and D. W. Williams.

W. F. Alexander, Robert Allan, W. H. C. Brown, Miss Edith Cunningham, C. D. Millie, Mrs. S. A. Munsell, Mrs. Nora Perkins, W. S. Rowe, W. Shaw Fairplay, Mrs. W. T. Steward, G. H. Thompson, J. P. Tocher, and J. W. Weyka.

Among those who will sail to-day on the North German Lloyd liner Breslau for Bremen are Miss Marie Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Dunnwald, Mrs. Bertha Egener, Paul Hinnes, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leonhardt, Adolf Preiss, Louis Thiel, and Carl Weber.

CREDITORS TO NULLIFY SALE.

Haupt Bros., manufacturers of infants' wear at 100 Wooster Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on March 26, sold their stock in bulk on March 22 to Samuel Schachter, assigned their accounts to him and disappeared.

From investigation made by James, Schell & Elkus, attorneys for creditors, it was learned that Schacter paid Haupt Bros. $4,950 for the stock and accounts. Part of the money he borrowed from the firm of Schacter & Son, composed of his father and brother. He repaid the loan by giving them part of the stock purchased from Haupt Bros.

Judge Hough granted a motion yesterday against the Schacters for the receiver to take possession of the goods and accounts pending a suit by James, Schell & Elkus to set aside the sale. The judge said: "The remedy here asked for is confessedly a most drastic one, and it should never be used except in the clearest case, and to prevent loss through equally obvious fraud."

The judge is of the opinion that the transaction is void, as against creditors.

TO DRAIN OLD SUBWAY CREEK.

Water Gains on Pumps and a New Scheme Is to be Tried.

Of late the water which has been bubbling up in the Lenox Avenue Subway, between 115th and 116th Streets, supposedly from the underground refuge of the old Harlem Creek, has been gaining on the two electric pumps, which have been keeping it below the level of the northbound track, which has been affected. A third pump has been installed, but the Subway officials have determined to attack the matter in a different way. Yesterday morning the northbound track was closed to traffic between 2:30 and 5:30 while a large hole was dug underneath it.

The purpose is to build a large concrete drain which will bridge the gap between two portions of the stream. General Manager Frank Hadley said last night that undoubtedly the present natural level of the stream was the bed of the subway. Its course is diagonally across the tracks. The drain will carry the water beneath the tracks from west to east.

Until such time as the drain is completed only the southbound track will be employed between 2:30 and 5:30 A. M. Between these hours trains will be run on this track alternately north and south.

The water has entered at several points from the roadbed, and yesterday in digging the men encountered what appeared to be another spring.

BRYAN HERE; NO POLITICS.

Attending Peace Conference and to Talk in Brooklyn To-night.

William J. Bryan came to town yesterday to attend the Peace Conferences and a few dinners, at which he has been invited to make addresses. Mr. Bryan declined to talk politics, but commended the objects for which the Peace Conference is assembled.

At noon to-day Mr. Bryan will address the Publicity League at the Hotel Victoria, and to-night will speak before the Kings County Democratic Club in Brooklyn. There he may break his rule about talking politics.

Speaking of the opportunities in the Orient, Mr. Bryan remarked that more Americans would establish scholarships in educational institutions there if they were better acquainted with the country. Then he added that during his trip through the East he had established eight scholarships. He remarked that he intended to keep them up if financial conditions remained as they now were.

BRONX WRECK INQUIRY.

New York Central Officials Tell of Safeguards Taken Since the Disaster.

State Railroad Commissioners Frank M. Baker and George W. Aldridge met in their offices in the Metropolitan Life Building yesterday to take further testimony relative to the wreck of the Brewster express on the New York Central Railroad on Feb. 16. Vice President Willgus of the New York Central and William B. Potter, Chief Engineer of the General Electric Company, testified concerning tests made of the track. Mr. Potter testified that after the tests he came to the belief that the accident was due to the condition of the rail and the speed of the train.

Vice President M. C. Brown of the railroad testified that since the accident a reliable man had been put in charge of the maintenance of the tracks within the electric zone.

Chief Engineer George W. Kittridge testified that the rails throughout the electric division of the road had been materially strengthened since the accident. He could not express any opinion as to the cause of the disaster.

SANITOL FACE CREAM

The Oxygen Face Cream

After years of experiment and test, our chemist has at last perfected the most remarkable emollient for the complexion ever made.

What Sanitol Face Cream Is

This cream is pure white, smooth and delightfully perfumed, containing in combination certain ingredients which have a decidedly beneficial effect on the skin, cleansing, softening and beautifying.

The unique OXIDIZING and other properties contained in it are indorsed by those who know about skin health.

Sanitol Face Cream is a wonderful beautifier and beauty developer. It is something new in face creams, decidedly different and better.

How Sanitol Face Cream Acts

This cream is absorbed instantly into the pores of the skin. It antiseptically cleanses the pores by OXYGEN. All impurities are neutralized and the blood vessels are stimulated by the nourishment it supplies.

You will be surprised at the delightful glow on your skin after using it. For chapped hands and for all conditions of wind and weather, this face cream has no equal. Its beneficial effect is immediate.

Sanitol Face Cream will remove the glossy and shiny appearance of the skin. It frees the skin from all rough and disagreeable conditions. It provides lasting benefits and brings that perfect skin cleanliness which shows on a beautiful woman's transparent complexion.

SANITOL FACE CREAM

A Beauty Maker

You will be astonished to find how readily your skin will yield to its treatment.

There is no toilet article that has ever been presented, that is so perfect in all its details as a toilet requisite, as Sanitol Face Cream. Thousands of ladies of St. Louis are using this cream to-day. Ask them what they think of it?

This cream is not a grease cream. It positively will not promote the growth of the hair on the face. There is nothing in it that will injure the skin in any way and is absolutely free from foreign substances that tend to injure the texture of the skin.

If your druggist is out of Sanitol Face Cream secure from us a small size sample, which is had for the asking, so that you can demonstrate for yourself how good Sanitol Face Cream really is.

GLORIFIER WINS $10,000 HANDICAP

BIG CROWD SAW THE RACE

With the luck of racing all in his favor, James H. McCormick's horse Glorifier won the $10,000 Carter Handicap, the feature event of the opening of the New York racing season at the Aqueduct race course yesterday. With the luck of racing all against him, David C. Johnson's Roseben, winner of the same fixture a year ago, was second, a length and a half behind the victor, though it remains to be thrashed out in horsemen's arguments as to how far the great sprinter should have won. August Belmont's Don Diego, on a fairly meritorious performance, was third, as something of a consolation for the fact that horses of Mr. Belmont's breeding have twice won the big fixture after passing out of his hands.

The race was all that had been anticipated for it in its spectacular features, and marked the height of the big occasion of the first day of racing on a metropolitan track after the long Winter rest from the sport for New Yorkers, a crowd estimated at 15,000 visitors witnessing the running from grand and field stands and clubhouse.

The weather conditions were about the most favorable that ever attended the contesting of a Carter Handicap, and the single drawback was an ocean breeze that was chilling in spite of the sunshine. The track was dry and fast, and barring only the misfortune that befell Roseben, the race was fairly run under circumstances that offered every chance for swift running.

On the time test, the result was as far from convincing as it was in the defeat of Roseben, but it made a splendid contest, nevertheless, and gave a full share of satisfaction to the crowd in general, regardless of the ill-fortune of Roseben and the defeat of the betting favorite De Mund.

The race for the Carter had the chief place in the attention of the holiday gathering at the Queens County Jockey Club course by force of custom, but the big thing, in fact, was the opening of the new turf season, which brought a full attendance of the notable racing men of the racing world, and with them the most representative patronage of the general public that ever assembled at the Aqueduct track.

Following the general plan in force last season to withhold the news of the racing as long as possible to prevent its dissemination by the agents of the poolrooms, the withdrawals from the races were not announced until just before each race, and the betting element then remained in doubt as to the make-up of the field for the $10,000 prize until barely fifteen minutes before post time.

The crowd remained practically convinced that Roseben would not be a runner for the race until the horse's number was displayed as a starter, with the apprentice jockey Beckman as his rider, substitute for "Jack" Martin, the jockey under contract to the stable in which Roseben is trained. The substitution practically was decided on by Roseben's owner in the morning, though the stable made renewed efforts early in the afternoon to induce The Jockey Club officials to grant a temporary riding license to Martin, pending the submission of statements which it is said will clear him from the charges in connection with his riding in New Orleans last Winter.

Four horses of the nineteen named for the Carter—Pretension, Brookdale Nymph, Rivaslip, and Okenite—were withdrawn, while Shackle was added as a starter, bringing the field up to sixteen, with De Mund, the colt for which Paul J. Rainey was credited with paying $45,000 when the horse was a two-year-old, last Spring, always the favorite, and Glorifier, coupled in the betting with Tiling as K. H. McCormick's entry, the second choice. Roseben went back in the betting from 6 to 1 up to 10 to 1 at one stage of the speculation, while Dc Mund was backed down and started as a hot favorite at 13 to 5, Glorifier and Tiling at 4 to 1, and Juggler the third choice at 8 to 1.

Roseben was the first horse of the Carter field to warm up, and a cheer rose from the grand stand when the record-holding sprinter swept past in his preliminary gallop, with all four legs swathed in bandages, but the enthusiasm was for the horse's past fame and not from belief in his chance to win yesterday's race. De Mund, on the other hand, won the approval of the horsemen, and trainers by the style of his move, while the rejuvenated Glorifier also came in for a large share of attention.

The horses were sent to the post at 4 o'clock, parading in the order of the weights, with Roseben, under his 135 pounds and midget jockey, in the lead, followed by Glorifier, while Shackle brought up the rear. There was but a brief delay at the post, with Malacca on the rail, the favorite, De Mund, next to him, on the inside, Glorifier third, Ampedo fourth, and Roseben fifth, while Shackle, Comedienne, and Avaunteer were in the outside positions, ranging out in that order.

The barrier was lifted to a fair start, the horses breaking close together and in good order, with De Mund, Glorifier, Marster, Don Diego, and Roseben the quickest to move. De Mund, of the number, breaking off with such sped that he flashed out clear in front in the first half dozen strides. Avaunteer moved into second place as the horses settled into motion, Glorifier then third, with Rye, Don Diego, Colonel Jack, and Roseben close together in the second division, and in that order they went almost abreast the first furlong pole, where the light boy Notter, riding Colonel Jack, pulling over to the rail, rode Roseben over to the rail, and knocked the big sprinter out of his stride, Roseben promptly dropping back to within two places of last before Beckman could steady him again.

Then Beckman was forced to pull out and go around the field just as they came to the far turn, the top weight at that point looking hopelessly out of the race, while De Mund, carrying a stiff pace, stole away in front, leading by a length around the turn and into the stretch, Rye and Oxford being his closest competitors to that point, with Glorifier and Don Diego close up.

On the turn into the stretch Rye dropped back beaten and Oxford made his challenge to the favorite, Oxford closing steadily on De Mund into the last quarter, where both De Mund and Oxford began to tire. Oxford still hung on gamely and showed in front for a few strides, just outside the last furlong pole, where Glorifier, coming through on the rail, shot out for the lead, and, just as De Mund gave it up, heaten, showed in front.

Don Diego moved forward, picking up Oxford and De Mund at the same time, these seeming to have the race to themselves until just within the final furlong, when Roseben's backers were electrified by the sight of the great sprinter plowing his way through from the rear, and on the outside of the contenders, overhauling the leaders in magnificent style.

Little Beckman, after his mishap in being interfered with, had galloped all around the field, and closing ground while Roseben was running around the turn, had re-entered the contest on the stretch. The lightweight was not strong enough to be of any help at all to the record holder, but simply rode out on his horse's courage, and into the last strides was gaining rapidly on the leaders.

The distance to the winning post was too short to permit him to overcome the ground lost earlier in the race, however, and Glorifier, shaking off the other contenders after passing the final furlong pole, came on and won in clover style, hustled a bit at the end at that, a length and a half in front of Roseben, which, maintaining his last splendid rush to the end, caught Don Diego close on the post and beat him a neck for second place, while two lengths further back De Mund, Oxford, Avaunteer, and Orbicular finished heads apart in the order named.

Glorifier, like Beldame, winner of the Carter Handicap in 1904, is a product of August Belmont's Nursery Farm, in Kentucky, and is by Hastings-Glory, by Thistle. Glorifier, as a two-year-old, was one of the best of his age in 1904, and gave great promise when racing in the colors of L. V. Bell, but went amiss the next season, and never verified his early promise until the past Winter while racing at New Orleans, where he was regarded as the best handicap horse at the meeting. The horse is owned and trained by James H. McCormick, who trained him for Mr. Bell, when Hermis carried the Bell colors, and who also trained the Suburban winner of 1901, Alcedo.

WINNERS OF OTHER RACES.

Favorites Were Beaten in Five of Six Events at Aqueduct.

The betting patrons of racing made a disastrous beginning, at the opening of the New York turf season, at the Aqueduct track yesterday, when, in six races, only one post favorite was successful. The single success was delayed until the last event of the afternoon, when the Virginia three-year-old Orphan Lad, at odds on, racing well up most of the distance, and ridden by the popular jockey, Miller, won rather easily from a poor field, the race also being the only one of the day in which Miller had a winning mount.

In the four and a half furlongs sprint for selling class two-year-olds, the first "good thing" victory of the season was achieved by H. T. Griffin's colt, Thomas Calhoun, Griffin losing his horse, which was bid up to $1,700, and bought by Jules Garson. As the winner was backed from 10 to 1 down to 4 to 1, however, the Griffin stable took full payment for the colt from the betting ring.

In the first race of the day and year another long-chance horse, Athlete, at 12 to 1, was victorious, but Athlete ran practically unbacked and beat a hot favorite in Keator after a smart finish. Jimmy Lane led throughout the two-mile steeplechase, jumping in fine style and galloping in well off before Dulcian, his only real opponent. In a selling race at seven furlongs, P. H. McCarren's Bellsnicker romped away with the purse, with Sir Toddington, the odds-on favorite, unplaced. Summaries:

ROSEBEN'S OWNER HARD HIT.

The failure of D. C. Johnson's horse Roseben to win the Carter Handicap at the Aqueduct race track yesterday marked another turn in the fortunes of the owner, long known as a daring turf gambler and plunger. Immediately following the decision of the race, Johnson in the paddock inspecting his horse to see if he had been injured in the contest, encountered Fred Burlew, owner of Juggler, another runner in the race, and was reminded of a wager the two owners had made as to how their horses would finish.

Johnson accepted payment of the wager, and tucked the money into his pocket with the remark that it constituted his entire capital. He had backed Roseben to win, and win alone, and had wagered $6,400 on the horse at odds of 10 to 1. Aside from the value of the ten-thousand-dollar stakes, the result made a difference to the plunger of nearly $70,000. Last season, when Roseben was at about the height of his success, Johnson was credited with having won more than $150,000 on that horse alone.

Three thousand shivering baseball rooters braved the chilling winds at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and were rewarded for their loyalty by witnessing the Giants turn the tables on Philadelphia in a close and exciting game by the score of 6 to 5.

The scoring began in the opening inning of the game. Thomas got a life when Devlin fumbled his slow grounder, and a moment later reached second on Gleason's safe bunt. Ames was then unable to locate the plate for Titus, and the bases were filled as a result. Courtney and Doolin also went to first on called balls, forcing in Thomas and Gleason.

The Giants tied the score in their half of the inning. Shannon and Brown were both "walked" by Duggleby, and they each moved up a base on Devlin's sacrifice. Bresnahan hit a single between first and second which sent Shannon and Brown home with the two tying runs.

New York gathered in two more runs in the fourth inning on a base on balls to Bresnahan, followed by Dahlen's sacrifice and Corcoran's single. The Phillies, however, evened up matters in their half of the fifth, when Thomas again reached first on a fumble by Dahlen, and went to second on Gleason's single. Titus hit Gleason with a batted ball. Thomas had reached third and Titus was safe on first as a result of the play. This was followed by a base on balls to McGee, and with the bases full, Bransfield singled, scoring Thomas and Titus.

There was no more scoring until the seventh inning when with two out, Courtney received a base on balls from Ames. Doolin followed with a long fly to right, which Brown muffed, and Courtney reached third. Beckitsch hit a slow grounder to Dahlen, but Corcoran was slow in covering second to catch Doolin. Courtney was able to score.

Doolin retired from the game at the end of the seventh inning, Sentelle taking his place at short. Ames also retired, Taylor taking his place in the box.

The Giants won out in the eighth with a batting rally. Seymour led off with a single to centre, Bresnahan following with a double to left, Seymour going to third on the hite. Dahlen singled between first and second, scoring Seymour and Bresnahan. Score:

Washington Makes Batting Rally and Defeats Yankees, 9 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—By bunching five hits off Clarkson in the seventh inning, Washington captured the last game of the series from the Yankees today by 9 to 4. New York got a good lead at the start, but in the sixth inning Washington tied the score. Griffith sent Clarkson in to relieve Keefe, and the locals hammered this former Harvard Captain to all parts of the lot, getting two doubles and two singles, which, together with two bases on balls, netted the five runs which won the game.

Hal Chase, who joined the Yankees here yesterday, played first base, and, despite his long ride from the coast, showed up well, getting two hits out of three times up and handling his ten chances faultlessly. Score:

PEACE ON EARTH.

When VON MOLTKE said that universal peace is a dream, and not even a beautiful dream, he expressed one view, the extreme view, upon a question of great weight and moment, as to which the opposing, and, it may be, also, the extreme view is expressed among others now thinking and talking a great deal upon this subject, by Mr. BARTHOLDT, for instance, when he says that "war is a flagrant violation of every tenet of religion." Curiously enough, the Rev. Dr. DIX takes his position beside VON MOLTKE, but, naturally and not unexpectedly, Bishop POTTER appears as the convinced advocate of peace. The impertinences of Mr. STEAD call for no notice.

To these augmenting diversities and to the discussions of the Peace Congress President ROOSEVELT contributes a warning and yet a sympathetic word, reinforced and added to as it is by the practical yet highly valuable counsels of Mr. ROOT. The President tells the Peace Congress that "though normally peace is the handmaid of righteousness, yet, if they are ever at odds, it is righteousness whose cause we must espouse." The volume of human activity is undiminished—it perpetually increases. We have the authority of GOETHE and of all experience to teach us that so long as he strives man is prone to err. Error is, of course, not righteous, and if righteousness cannot correct it the President reasons that another handmaid should be summoned—force. But we must stand for righteousness all the time, whether she be served by one or the other handmaid. Mr. ROOSEVELT points out another reason why our hopes of universal peace should not be set too high. "The peoples of the world have advanced unequally along the road that leads to justice and fair dealing one with another," he says, "and the road stretches far ahead even of the most advanced." It is obviously true, therefore, that "in the parliament of man, the federation of the world," we should come together not merely with differing minds but markedly unequal in our ethical dispositions. We should not even be agreed upon the primary virtues. So the President thinks it will be well for us to listen with composed and wary minds to impassioned orations about peace which include demands for the impossible; and Mr. ROOT dwells with great wisdom upon the perplexities of "the practical administrator distressed by the urgency of the theorist who, ignorant of real conditions, urges him to a course of action which he knows cannot possibly be taken, or, if it were taken, under existing conditions would result only in evil."

At seedtime no sower is sure of his harvest, but he knows that he is doing the right thing, and that it is the order and intent of nature that his reward should come. Peace conferences, as anybody can see, are bodies of persuasion, not of action. They sow the seed, they implant the ideas of peace in millions of minds. They picture forth its advantages, so perfectly obvious that the simplest understanding cannot fail to seize them, and so incontrovertible that the most gifted may not argue them away. Every peace conference makes war seem a little more hideous, a little less necessary. And so the work goes on—not without solid encouragement. Not so very many years ago these discussions turned upon such matters as the putting to death of prisoners captured in war, the poisoning of wells or of bullets, and the retention or the abatement of other fiendish cruelties practiced from the earliest times without any very definite idea that they were bad, infrahuman, and ought to be done away with. Mr. ROOT points out that the conception of individual charity and humanity "has slowly impressed itself upon the conception of national duty and responsibility." Deeds that are condemned as selfish and cruel between individuals have been put under the ban in the relation of nations. A study of present usages of war compared with old usages would suffice to put heart into any earnest advocate of peace. That so much has been done is warrant for the belief that more may be done.

And encouragement comes not from this source alone. In the creation of an international tribunal and the holding of conferences at The Hague, we may measure actual progress, if not toward the abolition of war, at least toward making it much less frequent. The civilized nations have set up a substitute for armed quarrels—peaceable settlement by arbitration. The machinery of arbitration will work better and will be made vastly more effective if we could get rid of the false notion spoken of as a stumbling block by Mr. ROOT in his address, the false notion, that is, that an arbitration is a diplomatic contest rather than a judicial proceeding. A member of a court of arbitration who acts upon the assumption that there is a victory to be won is to that extent ill qualified for his task. The true aim, of course, is to reach a just decision, and that may involve, inevitably will involve, either the loss of a cause or some abatement of pretensions for one of the nations in controversy. A partisan arbitrator is a living contradiction of terms.

The propaganda of peace will be vitalized and immensely reinforced when business men and the representatives of material interests take a hand in it. That view was somewhat prominently brought forward at the Washington conference two years ago, and was exemplified by the presence and participation of representatives of capital and great industrial systems. They have immense interests at stake. Their proverbial "timidity" inclines them to be the natural opponents of war. So it is not merely the altruist, the humanitarians, the students, thinkers, teachers, and philosophers who are the natural expounders of the ideal of peace; men who are hardly in any sense idealists have solid reasons for joining in the work. But whoever joins or holds aloof, so long as peace conferences are held that evoke speech and get the thing talked about, so long will men ponder the arguments and think for themselves about the merit and the soundness of the idea. That is gain, that is progress, for in that way all the world's great reforms have come about.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

THE TIMES'S Monday Financial Review estimated the reductions of expenditures in railway improvements at $400,000,000, with additions possibly carrying the sum to a half billion. Simultaneously the trade papers contain advertisements giving notice that the usual Spring auctions by first-hand producers will not be held, the goods being sold or salable otherwise. Moreover, the railway gross earnings are the largest for any March, pointing to unequaled domestic trade, while the March foreign trade statistics also are the largest on record. These contrasts suggest one or two questions.

Why is the railway industry alone depressed? Is it because it is the only one which is under the beneficent protection of the big stick, and if so, what would be the result of extending the same policy to all corporations instead of to railway corporations alone? Also, how much longer can the activity in distribution continue if the railways are unable to extend their accommodations, through the impairment of their credit, just as the need is at the maximum? And if the distribution of commodities is crippled by the anti-railway policy, which will suffer more, the railways or the producers whose goods cannot reach consumers?

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

It is a remark of Archbishop WHATELY'S that men practically engaged in a business are apt to be the best judges of proposed changes of detail in its conduct, but that they are apt to be the very worst of sweeping and radical reforms. That remark may occur to some minds on observing that, in the opinion of Mr. DE LANCEY NICOLL, formerly District Attorney, the result of the Thaw trial does not indicate anything wrong with our system of criminal procedure. When a trial which has lasted some eleven weeks and cost many thousands of dollars to each side ends in a mistrial, which is on any theory a failure of justice, the "man in the street" will be apt to differ with the learned ex-District Attorney. To the man in the street the result seems a public scandal. And so it seems to foreign lawyers as well as to foreign laymen, including the practitioners of the English law, from which our own criminal procedure is derived. They point to the case of RAYNER, which in some aspects is curiously parallel to the case of THAW, which took one day to try, and resulted in a verdict. With such a showing it certainly appears to the plain man that our system is in need of a thorough overhauling. For observe that the rules of evidence are practically the same in the two countries, and the requirement of the unanimity of the jury precisely the same.

One point which seems to need special attention is the matter of expert testimony. When MOLINEUX was convicted Judge NOAH DAVIS said that it was a scandal that a man should be found guilty of murder on "hired testimony." The experts in that case were experts in handwriting. In this case they were alienists. But the principle is the same. Leaving out the presumption that in a certain proportion of instances expert witnesses may, quite unconsciously to themselves, be swayed by their retainers, it is plain that a rich culprit in a case which depends upon expert testimony has the advantage over a poor culprit which the one weight and the one measure of absolute justice would deny to him. The fact is a clear arraignment of our procedure. Dr. HAMILTON'S suggestion, as we understand it, is that experts, like the "jury of matrons" under the old common law, should be ministers and officers of the court, paid by the public but by neither "side." A corollary to this proposition would probably be that when the defense of insanity is raised the investigation of that defense should be left to the special jury of disinterested experts, and that if they declare it to be unfounded it should not be pleaded on the trial. Some such system as this would prevent any such forensic impudence as the putting forward of the defense of "justifiable insanity," or of "Dementia Americana," which has in this case been allowed to be put in. And assuredly the progress and the result or no-result of this trial do not tend to show that everything is for the best under the best of all possible systems of criminal procedure.

THE BUILDING INDUSTRY.

The American Contractor's building statistics contain suggestions of more than local interest, although the local facts are among the most striking of the National exhibit. The National total of constructions projected shows a decrease of 8 per cent. It could hardly be more satisfactory if made to order. It is just enough to indicate a beneficial reaction from extreme activity. The country would not suffer from a 3 per cent. reduction in the demand for labor, for supplies, and for financial accommodation. On the other hand, the local figures are almost sensational, and deserve citation as given, the figures representing estimated cost of new construction ordered in March:

	Cost—March, 1907.	Cost—March, 1906.	Per Cent.—Gain.	Per Cent.—Loss.
Manhattan	9,310,329	14,262,950	..	34

Truly the Cinderella of Greater New York seems coming into her own when, at a time of general reaction, Brooklyn makes such gains at the cost of sister boroughs. Happily they are strong enough to stand the loss, especially when the loss is kept in the family. It would be different if the loss were to New Jersey, and perhaps that experience lies ahead. Unless Greater New York enables itself to grow where it can grow it will see itself robbed of population by residential regions made accessible by facilities rivaling even the splendid improvements under way by municipal and railway enterprise.

It may be remarked that New York City's loss of over $5,000,000 in the March orders is more than double the loss of the entire country. In other words, the loss of 3 per cent is the resultant of the offsetting of large losses here by greater gains elsewhere. Salt Lake City, for instance, gained 316 per cent., Topeka 153 per cent., Mobile 225 per cent., Birmingham 186 per cent. The boom in the West and South seems far from over.

"RESTORING" LATIN.

Whenever a new movement for a new "universal language" has been begun there has been a new revival of the pertinent question, "Why not Latin?" Down to and past the middle of the seventeenth century Latin was really internationalized and was the common medium of Europe not only for literary but for diplomatic purposes. Nay, after the middle of the eighteenth century, Dr. JOHNSON insisted on talking Latin in Paris, on the ground, as he put it, that "there is no sense in giving a Frenchman an advantage over you every time you open your mouth." There is already a society and a periodical devoted to making Latin the common medium for commercial purposes. Its eligibility consists in the fact that many modern languages are Latin grammatically, and that all of them are more or less Latin in their vocabulary. Also, when you are learning the Latin language you are also learning a literature, which is not the case when you are learning a new language fabricated or compiled "ad hoc."

One obstacle to the restoration of Latin to the position which it held when BACON translated his "Essays" into it as into "the universal language" is the modern varieties of pronunciation. It is said that at the last Ecumenical Council, where presumably all the ecclesiastical dignitaries spoke good Latin, they were, according to their several nationalities, mutually unintelligible orally, though all of them would have been perfectly understood on paper. It is true that even if a common standard of pronunciation had been agreed upon beforehand, the Council might still have been a Babel, by the different intonations and inflections which constitute the "accents" of different languages. But the adoption of a common standard of pronunciation would have done much to mitigate this incompatibility.

England is doubtless the chief anomaly in this respect. The "English" pronunciation of Latin is simply the pronunciation of Latin like English. There are differences among the Continental pronunciations, but they are not so great that they do not pretend to defer to a common standard. In all American colleges this standard is theoretically observed. In England itself it seems it is making its way, in so much that there is a "Classical Association Pronunciation Committee," of which the Honorary Secretary has contributed two interesting columns to The London Times, accompanied with another column of editorial comment. Mr. WINBOLT, the official in question, calls the pronunciation which he advocates "restored." But that will not carry him very far. There is really no way of knowing how CICERO pronounced his orations. It seems more to the purpose to argue that there is a pronunciation which is accepted everywhere but in the British Islands, and that for that reason it ought to be accepted there also. There really seems to be some hope that the "weewida weese animee," which is Mr. WINBOLT'S "classical example" of the "restored" pronunciation, or the "wekisshim—by turns" which excited the mirth of an Anglican prelate in a girls' school may come to sound familiar in the most conservative British classrooms. It is certain that the mountain will not come to MOHAMMED, and it seems reasonable that MOHAMMED should in that case go to the mountain. It is the endeavor for a common standard that is desirable. One of the chief grievances that old-fashioned spellers have against our own spelling reformers is that, so far as they succeed, they will succeed only in distinguishing American spelling still further from British, instead, by united international action, of establishing an international standard. That is what the British reformers or "restorers" are trying to do with Latin pronunciation. Everybody will wish more power to them, except the Bourbons of the old "English pronunciation."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Pretty Plan, But Not Workable.

While we cannot see even a trace of practicability in the suggestion of a Jersey genius that State, county, or municipality should pay the necessary and legitimate campaign expenses of all regularly nominated candidates for public office, and that the candidates themselves be not allowed to spend anything at all for such purposes, yet we confess that there is something distinctly attractive in the idea, and it seems to us that a good many things could be said in its favor.

In the first place, the present system, though not as bad as it used to be in the days when "assessments" were laid on candidates as inevitably and as sternly by party committees and machine representatives as by the tax collector, is still open to many and grave abuses—abuses which because they are taking new forms are not on that account to be ignored. It is certainly against public policy either that men not rich should be excluded from office through inability to make the incidental expenditures, or that the very wealthy should by a lavish use of money attain a political prominence for which they have no other qualifications. And it could easily enough be argued that the proper presentation before the people of the policies and personalities of candidates is a part, and an essential part, of every election, and that therefore the State or other political division could as well afford to pay campaign expenses as it can afford to pay the cost of registration and balloting.

But there would be terrible difficulties in the way. Who, for instance, would select the speakers for this and that candidate, and what candidate would consider his claims well presented by orators of other than his own selection? And how would the State get its board of campaign speakers? By advertising for so many Democratic and so many Republican sons of Demosthenes and then accepting the lowest bidders? This would soon bring the whole matter into the domain of comic opera—and a very funny comic opera it would be, too, so we advise the librettists to get to work on it, for we will not copyright the idea.

Fortunately there is no real necessity for adopting the Jersey statesman's plan. The one now in vogue will work well enough as soon as we get a publicity law that forces both the candidates and the party committees really to give the information which now, for the most part, they only pretend to give. When it is a matter of open record, clear and complete, just how much, whose, and how campaign money is spent, the poor candidate will not be placed on an equality, indeed, with the rich one, but most of the present dangers and scandals will be removed and the remainder will be made as small as can reasonably be expected in a world constructed like ours.

Of the many "lessons" of the Thaw trial, that which seemed most important to Mr. BREARLEY, the juror whose remarkable articles in the Saturday and Sunday issues of THE TIMES so conclusively proved that intelligence can find its way into the jury box, despite a somewhat general impression to the contrary, is the condition of the theatre as regards the many young girls it employs, chiefly in exploitation of their beauty of face and form. While many will disagree with Mr. BREARLEY as to the relative importance of this point, nobody at all serious-minded will deny that it deserves serious consideration.

Being a sensible man, he admitted that the moral atmosphere of the stage, even in its lower developments, is by no means necessarily fatal either to virtue or to respectability, but, also because he is a sensible man, he recognized clearly that the danger to the young girls whom the stage utilizes as animated scenery is very great, and he regretted that no well-devised and carefully executed plan for their protection from the incidental perils of their trade as yet exists. He appealed to the older, the wiser, and the more fortunate members of the theatrical profession to take the matter up, believing that in them more than elsewhere rests the power to free the stage from what, despite the eloquence of its defenders, is undoubtedly a reproach of long standing, and as great now as it ever was.

One who looked even deeper into this subject than Mr. BREARLEY did would probably end in being less hopeful than he. It is not for nothing, and it is not simply because of fanaticism and narrow-mindedness, that the theatre has always been viewed askance by the moralists of every age and country. For some curious reason or other, there is always moral peril in making a business out of amusement. Professional sport reveals an invincible tendency to become corrupt and corrupting, and the people of the stage are professional amusers. Even the best of them rarely escape all the regrettable consequences of the constant forcing and revealing of emotion, and for the weak, the ignorant, and the unprotected the dangers are great. Of course they are not invincible, but about all that can be expected is to reduce to a minimum the number of their victims.

Russia and Her Clocks.

When one recalls how extremely busy the statesmen and politicians of Russia are just now, and reflects upon the number and the size of the problems that confront them with rather energetic demands for immediate solution, it is—well, a little surprising, not to say discouraging, to learn that they are giving serious thought to a proposition to reform the faces of their clocks!

Unquestionably strong arguments can be made in support of the contention that the hours of the day should run straight along from 1 to 24, instead of running from 1 to 12, and then starting over from 1 to 12 again. Assorted conveniences would be served by such a change, and nobody denies their reality, but involved in it there are inconveniences and confusions without end, and, even though the chances are that these troubles would not last long, the period of transition would be pretty terrible, and much attention would be distracted from other matters.

Not all reforms are worth making, and even for such as are worth making there is a choice of times and seasons. Russia could get along well enough for some years to come with her clocks as they are, and for her at present to discuss the superiority of a 24-hour day over a day of twice 12 hours is little less than madness.

THE ROUMANIAN REVOLT.

Originally an Anti-Semitic Outbreak, Agrarian Outrages Followed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to demur to the analysis of "The Roumanian Revolt" in your issue of April 8. It is based on an entirely erroneous premise. The Roumanian uprising is not "essentially agrarian, only incidentally anti-Semitic."

Its inception was entirely and absolutely anti-Semitic. Driven forward by the impetus of its early success, it became agrarian—that is, the rioters not being checked while they pillaged property and took Jewish lives, enlarged the scope of their excesses. The Roumanian Government merely went through the motions of suppression so long as the violence was visited only upon the Jews. As soon, however, as Gentile land owners were disturbed the Government adopted real and effective measures.

The troubles in Roumania date back to last December, and at that time they were frankly and avowedly anti-Semitic. Consider these facts:

On Dec. 15 a concert for charitable purposes, which had been arranged by the Jewish Ladies' Society of Bucharest, had to be abandoned, the Prefect of Police having stated that he would be unable to restrain a hostile mob. On Dec. 23 a mob invaded a joint meeting of the Jewish societies, "Har Zion" and "Mizmor," at Craiova. The mob, which consisted of about 200 or 300 students, and was led by Mill Demetrescu, editor of the anti-Semitic paper, Apararea Nationala, mercilessly beat the assembled men, women, and children, and a number of persons were seriously injured. The police did not interfere, though upon the arrival of the Inspector and Prefect of Police the mob withdrew, forming a procession which marched through the streets, shouting, "Death to the Jews!" and smashing the windows of the local synagogue and of every house inhabited by Jews; it destroyed some of the Jewish shops and beat every Jew it met on the streets. On the following day the mob reassembled, set fire to one Jewish shop, and wrecked over a dozen others.

The situation became so serious that 200 Jews, residents of Roumania, but Austrian subjects, protested to the Austrian Consul. Another protest was filed with the Premier by Emanuel David, the head of the Jewish community. Then the soldiery was ordered out. It developed at the time that the Faculties of the secondary schools, the Lyceum, the Gymnasium, and the Commercial High Schools, created anti-Semitic sentiment among the students, and that many of the members of these Faculties had directly instigated the riots. An investigation ordered by the Government "whitewashed" the students with the statement that they had "carried out only a peaceful demonstration." A formal reprimand was administered to the students of the schools named by the Faculties. The moral force of this reprimand is quite evident.

Other disturbances of a similar character occurred at the same time, but the incidents mentioned suffice, I submit, to reveal the origin and the character of the Roumanian revolt. The agrarian phase of the disturbances has been "played up" by the Roumanian Government to "save its face," the terms of the Berlin Treaty explicitly requiring it to protect its Jewish subjects. The late John Hay once availed himself of the terms of that document to rebuke Roumania before the whole world for its shameful treatment of its Jewish subjects, and Roumania might have heard from Washington again, but for the fact that propelled by its own unchecked momentum the "uprising," essentially anti-Semitic, became incidentally agrarian.

Magonigle's Design Not Criticised.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Friday, the 12th inst., under the caption "Magonigle's Design Faulty" is the statement that at the meeting of the Trustees of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held the day previous, there was criticism of the design for drinking fountains devised by Mr. H. Van Buren Magonigle, for which he received a prize and which was approved by the Municipal Art Commission.

The Committee on Fountains did not report to the meeting, nor has any adverse expression of opinion ever been made before the Trustees of the very beautiful design submitted. In addition to this design were two others by Mr. John S. Humphreys and by Mr. William Sanger, all three designs being illustrated in a folder recently issued by the society, soliciting subscriptions for building them and giving their prices, ranging from $350 to $965.

In casual conversation with a representative of the press after the meeting I expressed my individual regret that there had not been submitted a fourth design of greater simplicity without the upper portion for use in the districts where there is heavy trucking, fearing that this upper portion might be marred by being struck by heavy wagon poles.

At a time when the society is asking for subscriptions for building fountains it is unfortunate that I should have made a criticism that was reported as quoted.

Not Rejected by the Academy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the issue of to-day's TIMES I read that at the last meeting of the National Academy of Design my name was among those of candidates rejected for membership. I protest against this error, and kindly ask you to rectify it.

My name was proposed by some well-meaning friend or friends, and upon my hearing of it I immediately wrote in protest, declining the honor, and requesting my name to be withdrawn. It was, however, printed upon the list of candidates to be acted upon, and although the President, Mr. Dielman, announced at the meeting, so I am informed, that I had withdrawn for my own reasons, it was nevertheless given out to the press, as above stated, and suggesting, as it does, a very material change of my views, I wish to have that impression corrected through your columns.

A Problem in Mathematics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following problem is submitted for a solution—perhaps it may be related to the arithmetical "Rule of Three":

If the united efforts of "twenty well-known firms and corporations" added to the pleadings of banks and Exchanges, and also the powerful help given by the Standard Oil Company, are required to influence Park Commissioner Herrman to remove one "fruit stand" from Bowling Green Park, how large must a similar petition be presented to obtain a like result in regard to the removal of all the "stands" which obtain an illegal occupancy in other—say, City Hall Park, for an example? The relative area of the two parks above considered, which must be taken into account in figuring out the answer, might be had from those who receive or share in the "graft" from such privilege.

COMING ART SALES.

American Art Galleries are showing in the large lower room a small but choice collection of paintings and water colors by modern Dutch masters, the private collection of Mrs. Anna N. Kendall of Lamoille, Ill., which will be sold by unrestricted auction in the upper galleries on the evening of Friday, April 19.

All but one of these twenty-nine pictures are by living or recently living Netherlanders; the exception is Fritz Thaulow, the Norwegian painter, lately deceased in France. "Bridge at Verona" is a view upstream, including bits of the old town, but chiefly the old bridge, near to the town-end of which the tourist is called upon to inspect the "tomb of Juliet." Thaulow gives very well the rush of water and the colors of the time-worn structure spanning it. The arches are of stone, the parapet of red brick; everything is done to bring out whatever there is of antiquity about the bridge.

Jakob Maris is seen in a characteristic canal and townscape called "Barges, Ville-Girerre," painted in few tints, but rich in color impressions nevertheless; and again in a small figure piece, "In a Garden," where the young woman reading her paper under an arbor is not well relieved from the background. The composition and touch are individual enough, but it is not a happy example of this member of the Maris family. One oil and four water colors by Josef Israels include "First Steps," a pleasing composition, the uncertain gait of the infant being particularly well described. "The Young Mother," "The Bashful Suitor"—who walks a little ahead of his lady-love and dares not look at her—"Far Away"—a peasant woman with back turned and baby in arms, looking out over a misty plain—and "Returning from Work," another single figure of a woman, have each their own charm. Blommers appears with a water color exactly the same in composition as, but smaller than, a very happy oil painting of "Children on the Beach." They are sailing toy boats in shoal lagoons in the sand, or tumbling naked in the edge of the sea. "The New Baby" is a group of three peasant women in oils. "The Simple Life," water color, shows a Dutch family lounging on the shore.

Neuhuys has a Dutch peasant interior with women and children in water color, and there are four small water colors by Anton Mauve, and five oils and water colors by T. de Bock. Church interiors by Bosboom and landscapes by Willem Maris and J. H. Weissenbruch add to the interest. Nine belonged to the Staats Forbes collection.

On the afternoons of Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20, the same galleries will dispose of a large collection of ivory carvings and porcelains from China and Japan, made by the late Henry T. Cox. The ivories are elaborate, many consisting of groups of figures, human and supernatural; dragons, birds, fish, tortoises, tigers, and other animals being often added to the composition. A large signed piece represents a creggy spot swarming with little Onis or hobgoblins, who are being exorcised by Shoki, the foe of demons. The latter carries a magic devil-ouster in one hand; the imps sprawl about as if struck by lightning. The porcelains are large and small vases, bowls, ginger jars, and snuff bottles; there are also a few bronzes. The collection offers a good chance to pick up bargains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am sincerely sorry for some remarks attributed to me in to-day's NEW YORK TIMES. My meaning was entirely misunderstood. What I did say was:

"I regret that our choirs are frequently composed of non-Jewish elements and our hymns borrowed from non-Jewish sources, when we possess such original, varied, and beautiful ancient melodies ourselves to be proud of."

I would never dream of accusing the uptown cantors of ignorance of Jewish music. All I said was that under present conditions they have no opportunity to display their great talents in that direction.

A Car Seen In Seventh Avenue!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Those interested in the improvement of the street car service will be glad to learn that a Seventh Avenue car has gone down Seventh Avenue! This phenomenon was seen at 5:14 at Seventh Avenue and Twenty-third Street on April 11 by several eyewitnesses.

The return of the car is looked for on Tuesday next. "TWENTY-THIRD STREET."

Why D'Annunzio Refused.

La Tribuna di Roma throws some light upon the recent information cabled to this country that Signor d'Annunzio, the Italian poet and playwright, had refused a "tempting" offer to lecture in America. It seems that some time ago Signor d'Annunzio manifested a desire to Commendatore Riccardi to give a course of lectures in America. Signor Bonetti, the impresario, was informed, and at once offered to pay all expenses and $2,000 each for a series of eight lectures, or $16,000 in all. On this offer being received by the poet, the following reply was made:

"I was disposed to cross the Atlantic, but not for a packet of cigarettes. Thanks all the same. (Signed) 'GABRIELE.'"

Since the receipt of this message Signor Bonetti, who has all the enterprise of a Yankee press agent, has sought to discover the address of d'Annunzio's tobacconist—but in vain.

A SUGGESTION TO THE KAISER.

"Kaiser William is reported to have said that he would like to visit the United States, but, he added, "Who will take my place during my absence?"—Daily Paper.

Most Mighty Kaiser, Teuton Lord,
Belted with helmet and with sword,
Fail not to come across the sea
To where we all are waiting thee
With welcome rare, and loud acclaim,
For one of such exalted fame.

Who'll take thy place upon the throne
The while you visit this, our zone?
Let not this question make thee ill—
We've plenty here who'll fill the bill,
Although tho Bill is built like thee,
Most Mighty Lord of Germany.

There's Bryan from Nebraska's realm,
Whilst thou art here he'll take the helm,
And steer the German Ship of State,
With eye aflame and heart elate,
And give your Empire quite a throb—
We hear he's looking for a job.

Or if not Bryan, possibly
We'll send our only Taft to thee.
He's quite the biggest Bill we've got,
And used to situations hot.
He's sat on numerous thrones of late—
Almost a sitting syndicate.

And if not Taft, then, best of all
The notions just now at our call,
Thy very second self might he
The man t' assume thy Majesty.
At home with pomp, with strength of wrist
Quite equal to the mailed fist.

A man so like thee few would note
That thou hadst doffed th' Imperial coat,
And taken passage o'er the main
To visit this fair land of gain.
In short, O mighty Emperor,
Why not swap thrones with Theodore?

EQUITABLE REPORT SHOWS ECONOMIES

Saving of $3,179,910 from Fund Set Aside for Expenses in 1906.

FIRST TEST OF NEW LAW

Legal Expenses Cut from $204,019 in 1904 to $85,489 Last Year—Other Reductions.

Schedules filed by the Equitable Life Assurance Society with the State Insurance Department showing the operations of the society for 1906, and its financial condition on Dec. 31 last, afford some interesting comparisons with the figures reported by the Equitable for 1904, which was the last full year of operation under the old management. The year 1905, when the insurance scandals were uncovered and the Armstrong Committee's investigation held, was in effect an interregnum between the old régime and the new, although the administration of Paul Morton went into office in June, 1905. The balance of that year was devoted to a general cleaning-up, making 1906 the first full year of operation under the new conditions.

The figures of 1904, used for comparison, are taken from the report of the society to the Wisconsin Insurance Department, which for some years has required statements from insurance companies in something like the detail that has been prescribed in this State since the Armstrong laws took effect. The story of the year's economies is told by the items of the gain and loss statement in the most concrete form, although it is shown in part by a comparison of some specific items of expenditure in 1904 and 1906. Underlying all these comparisons, however, comes that between the amount of business written before and after the insurance agitation, which should be taken into account first in reviewing the general operations.

In 1904 the Equitable wrote $303,378,677 in new business, or approximately twice the amount which companies of its size are allowed to write under the new law. Its death losses and matured endowments in 1904 were $21,053,064 as against $22,767,962 in 1906. In the former year it had a premium income of $62,643,836, and a total income of $79,076,695. The reduction in the volume of new business brought the premium income for 1906 down to $57,285,250, while the total income was $76,854,694. In 1904 $34,309,929 of insurance in force was surrendered, and $71,336,364 lapsed, upon all of which $8,353,739 was allowed to policyholders in surrender values of various kinds. In 1906 $63,365,203 of insurance in force was surrendered, and $65,485,700 lapsed, a total of $13,315,088 being allowed to policyholders in surrender values on this insurance.

In 1904 dividends to policyholders in cash were $5,191,941, and in additional insurance $890,960. In 1906 the cash dividends to policyholders were $6,209,678, and the dividends in additional insurance were $1,080,056. The gain in surplus in 1904 was $6,365,146, of which amount $4,437,934 was a gain in market value of securities held. In 1906 there was a decrease in the market value of securities acquired prior to that year of $7,549,478, but an accompanying gain of surplus, after the payment of dividends, of $1,586,356 for the year.

The Economies Reported.

Some of the specific economies of the year are indicated. Commissions and bonuses to agents were $7,490,371 in 1904 and $5,226,853 in 1906, this saving being, of course, due primarily to the decrease in the amount of business written. Similarly medical fees decreased from $883,523 in 1904 to $308,846 in 1906, the saving in this case, however, being much larger proportionately than the reduction in new business. Home office salaries were reduced from $1,177,601 in 1904 to $549,119 in 1906. Advertising expenses were reduced from $325,847 in 1904 to $21,914 in 1906. A very large part of the saving in advertising came by cutting out of the advertising lists of the Equitable the raft of insurance publications which were a parasitic growth of the insurance business in the old days.

Printing and stationery account was reduced from $275,060 in 1904 to $88,999 in 1906, while postage account was reduced from $171,738 in 1904 to $95,008 in 1906. Legal expenses of the Equitable were $204,019 in 1904 and $85,489 in 1906. Of this latter amount, according to the schedules filed, $29,176 represented expenses of the society before legislative bodies and in connection with legislation, and out of the figure last mentioned $20,000 was a fee paid in 1906 to ex-Gov. Frank S. Black for services rendered during the investigation of the Armstrong Committee.

Gains and Losses.

The various economies of 1906 find their residual expression in the statement showing the insurance gains and losses for the year. In the Equitable the loading, being that part of the first year's premium set aside to cover expenses, was in 1906 $12,206,921. The insurance expenses amounted to $9,027,011, leaving a gain from loading of $3,179,910, as against a gain from this source of $1,465,438 in 1904. The interest earned by the Equitable in 1906 was $18,254,253, equivalent to 4.34 per cent. on its mean invested assets. The net income from investments, after deducting investment expenses, was $16,989,253, and the interest required to maintain the reserve was $12,661,317, making a gain from interest of $4,327,936, as against a gain from this source of $3,174,782 in 1904. The gains from mortality, representing the amount by which the expected mortality exceeded the actual mortality, was $5,161,993 in 1906, and $3,142,974 in 1904. The gain from the reserves released on lapsed and surrendered policies over the surrender values allowed was $3,274,930 in 1906, and $1,175,275 in 1904.

The Equitable carried bank balances ranging from nine million to fifteen million dollars in 1904, as compared with balances of thirty millions and over under the old regime. It had loans on collateral at the end of 1906 of $9,350,000, at interest rates ranging from 5 to 6 per cent.

CAN'T OUST NEW YORK LIFE.

Suit Brought in Ohio Is Dismissed on a Technical Point.

AKRON, Ohio, April 15.—The ouster suit brought by Prosecuting Atty. H. M. Hagelbarger and Frank S. Monnett, against the New York Life Insurance Company was dismissed in the Circuit Court to-day.

It was held that the franchise under which the company was operating in Ohio when the suit was begun had expired, and a new franchise had been granted.

DIDN'T MEET THE GOVERNOR.

Ellison Will Go to Albany Later to Talk Over City Investigation.

The conference between Gov. Hughes and Corporation Counsel Ellison on the plan to investigate every department in the city Government did not take place yesterday. The Governor waited for Mr. Ellison at the Hotel Astor and Mr. Ellison waited for the Governor at the Hall of Records. They exchanged explanations over the telephone about noon and Mr. Ellison announced that he would confer with the Governor in Albany on Thursday.

When they heard of the situation politicians in the City Hall were inclined to question the propriety of expecting the Governor to call on a city official to confer on a public question. They also expressed the opinion that Mayor McClellan was not so anxious for a sweeping investigation of city departments as he was some weeks ago.

It was the intention of the Corporation Counsel to ask the Governor to send a special message to the Legislature, requesting the appointment of an investigating committee. It is probable that he will do so on Thursday.

HUGUENOTS DINE AT DELMONICO'S

Loving Cups Passed According to the Society's Ancient Ritual.

MUSIC BY CHOIR BOYS

The Huguenot Society had a dinner at Delmonico's last night, the first one in three years. Among the 175 guests at the banquet were Ex-Mayor Seth Low, John Wormer, and the Rev. Donald Sage Mackay.

Preceding the toasts and speeches the ceremony of the loving cup was observed. Two members carried the cups, and in the procession were flagbearers carrying the colors of the Huguenots, the Dutch, the French, the English, the German, and also the Stars and Stripes.

In response to the President's query: "What do these cups contain?" the Secretary, Mrs. James M. Lawton, responded: "The choicest wine of France, commemorating our Huguenot ancestors, fortified with spirit, the spirit of admiration for their faith and courage, and sympathy with the poor and aged among their descendants."

Following the President's address of welcome, Seth Low spoke of "Our City and Its Huguenot Founders." "Union of the Dutch and French" was the subject of John Van Wormer's toast. The Rev. Donald S. Mackay then spoke of "The Huguenot and the Covenanter," and "Our Guests" was the toast of Howland Pell.

Among the guests present were Prince Henri de Croy, Prince del Drago, Ashton de Peyster, Henry de Peyster, the Misses Augusta, Emily, Frances, and Helen de Peyster, Mr. and Mrs. Alfrd Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin, Loyall Farragut, Mrs. Marcellus Hartley, the Rev. and Mrs. Anson P. Atterbury, Ripley Hitchcock, Henry B. Dominick, Henry B. Deminick, Jr., Miss Sarah Dominick, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Durant.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Livingston, Mrs. Seth Low, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, Gen. and Mrs. Ripley, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius B. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. C. Alexander Rieman, Gen. and Mrs. Charles F. Roe, Mrs. William F. Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, Prof. Samuel Macauley, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Johnstona, Paul De Blois Leighton, Walton Livingston Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Porter.

Prof. and Mrs. James Robinson, Miss Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sturgis, Samuel Thayer, William B. Parsons, Miss Florence Y. Parsons, Moncure Robinson, Mrs. Jonathan Thorne, Mrs. I. W. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Van Courtland, Henry Sayer Van Duzen, Edgar B. Van Winkle, Jr., Miss Van Winkle, Mr. and Mrs. Boudinot Keith, C. H. Hamilton, and Miss Julia Whiting.

Music was furnished by the choir boys of Grace Church.

ELOPEMENT IN SOCIETY.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Wilson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Wilson of East Seventy-first Street, and Edmund Putnam, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Putnam, was announced yesterday. Mr. Putnam and his bride were married several months ago by the Rev. Dr. Henry Marsh Warren at his home in West Ninety-fourth Street, but the fact was not divulged to their respective parents until about a week ago, when the couple decided to take a wedding trip.

Announcement cards were being engraved to be sent out to their various friends when the news got to the newspapers. The young couple are now spending their honeymoon at the country place of the Putnams in New Hampshire.

Mr. Putnam and his bride had been engaged for some time before their elopement, and the engagement met with the approbation of both the Wilson and Putnam families, but owing to the bride's youth, she being about 18, their parents wished them to wait two years.

Mr. Putnam is one of the sons of George P. Putnam, the publisher, and Miss Wilson's father, Henry R. Wilson, is President of the Lincoln Trust Company.

PETER VREDENBURGH TO WED.

Miss Virginia Cabell Baker to be the Bride of a Broker.

Special to The New York Times.

WINCHESTER, Va., April 15.—Announcement was made here to-day of the engagement of Miss Virginia Cabell Baker, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Baker of Winchester to Peter Vredenburgh, Second, a member of the New York Stock Exchange. The wedding will take place on June 1 at Christ Episcopal Church, Winchester.

Miss Baker is known to society in Richmond, New York, and Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, and other cities. Mr. Vredenburgh is the floor member of the brokerage firm of Lewis & Vredenburgh of New York.

VOGEL—BEAR.

Miss Florence Bear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Bear of the Hotel Netherland, was married at 12:30 o'clock yesterday to Harry William Vogel in the Hotel St. Regis, the Rev. Dr. Mendes officiating.

The wedding took place in a bower of roses and lilies. The bride wore a white chiffon gown, with pearl and silver trimmings, and a veil of point applique. The bride's only attendant was Miss Rena Weinberg. Bernard Vogel was the best man, and the ushers were Jerome Banzig, Guy Millus, Albert Cahn, Beno Vogel, Howard Vogel, and Martin Vogel.

Mr. and Mrs. Vogel left yesterday for an automobile trip through the Berkshires. They will sail for Europe on April 30 on the Deutschland.

HOPE—DUNSMUIR.

LONDON, April 15.—Elizabeth Dunsmuir, daughter of ex-Lieut. Gov. Dunsmuir of British Columbia, was married at St. Mark's Church here to-day to John Hope. The Canadian Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, gave the bride away. Many representatives of the nobility were present at the ceremony.

MOORE—RUTTER.

ATHENS, April 15.—Beatrice Baird Rutter, a niece of John B. Jackson, the United States Minister to Greece, and Thomas Ewing Moore, Secretary of the American Legation at Peking, were married at the American Legation here to-day.

Chattanooga Girl a Countess.

FLORENCE, April 15.—Miss Mildred Montague of Chattanooga, Tenn., was married here to-day to Count Pasolini.

An Engagement Announced.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Warner Groom Morton announce the engagement of their daughter, Lucretia, to Thomas E. Bancroft of New York, son of Major Eugene A. Bancroft, U. S. A., retired.

Social Notes.

The chief social event of to-day, aside from the weddings, of which the three most important are the house weddings of Miss Turnhull and Miss Kerr and the wedding in Grace Church chantry of Miss Bliss, is the production of the comic operetta by society girls, "Bonds and Balloons," at the Carnegie Lyceum.

The wedding of Miss Marjory R. Turnbull, daughter of the late Lieut. Frank Turnbull, to Charles De Loosey Oelrichs will take place at three o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Archbishop Farley. Following the ceremony, a reception will be held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. Appleton Hopkins, 51 West Eleventh Street. Miss Grace Chapin will be the maid of honor and Albert Zabriskie Gray will be best man.

Another wedding of to-day will be that of Miss Ruth Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Dudley Kerr, who will marry Charles Henschel. It will be celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, 12 West Forty-eighth Street. Miss Jeanne Kerr, a sister of the bride, is to be the maid of honor. The best man will be José Victor Onativia. The Rev. William M. Grosvenor of the Church of the Incarnation will perform the ceremony.

C. Ledyard Blair and a number of his men friends have sailed on his yacht Diana for a cruise around the Bermudas. Among the guests are Erskine Hewitt, James Barnes, William Manice, Junius S. Morgan, Thomas Robins, and Thomas Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Jennings and Mr. anad Mrs. Nathaniel F. Moore are at the Virginia Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Putnam of West Seventieth Street, who leased their home for the Winter, going to the Hotel Willard, in West Seventy-sixth Street, went to Lakewood two weeks ago for an indefinite stay.

The progressive euchre party given on Thursday for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Home netted some $250. The Hotel Latham, where it took place, gave the use of the parlor and dining room and also the refreshments.

Their guests were the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Metcalf, the Danish Minister, the Swiss Minister, Dr. Leo Vogel, Constantine Bruno, Mrs. Earney, Mrs. Hunt Slater, Count and Countess Seckendorff, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, Dr. McKim, Mrs. Granville Sharpe, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Addison.

The Misses Shonts accompanied their father, Theodore P. Shonts, to New York yesterday to spend the week there househunting. They will be chaperoned by Mrs. Philip, widow of Rear Admiral Philip.

Capt. and Mrs. Charles Lyman, stationed at Porto Rico, are the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Robert Hinckley, who entertained in their honor yesterday.

FIRE ALARM FOR WALL PAPER.

It Was a Vivid Red, and Poker Party's Cigars Supplied the Smoke.

When Louis Meryash built his new row of apartment houses in 156th Street, at Broadway, a few months ago, he imported a nephew from Iowa, by name A. E. Press, to act as manager of the buildings, which were to shelter 140 families. Mr. Press has an eye for color. He picked out a vivid shade of red wall paper for the 140 dining rooms on the row, and everybody seemed to like it, for critical housewives selected it on snap judgment.

But early yesterday morning the red wall paper awoke the whole neighborhood, and brought out the Fire Department.

It happened about 1:30 o'clock. Perhaps fifty persons poured out of the 157th Street Subway exit into a deserted street. Then some one looked up toward the Meryash row, and promptly shouted: "Fire!"

Through an open dining-room window on the fifth floor came smoke, and back of it could be seen red flames, apparently enveloping the room. The crowd shouted for the police and started around the corner toward the building. Two men ran up to Amsterdam Avenue and turned in an alarm.

In response to the shouts Policeman Alexander hove into view on the double quick, rapping for assistance as he ran.

"What's the trouble?" he panted, as he overtook some of the stragglers.

"Fire, can't you see it up there?" was the response.

Alexander saw and warmed up again to a creditable clip, reaching the front doors of the apartment building with the vanguard. The doors were locked, so he rang for the janitor. The latter, already aroused in the basement by the clamor outside, appeared in trousers and slippers.

The policeman got inside, rang the tenants' bells all over the house, and headed up the stairs. Up four flights he dashed, followed by a dozen men, all of them shouting the fire warning at the top of their lungs. In quicker time than Alexander could reach the top of the building, the halls were filled with excited white-robed figures.

On the third floor live four school teachers of Public School 46, at 156th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. They blocked the path of the rescue party and demanded the cold facts in the case.

When they were assured it was a matter of fire they asked whether they would have time to pack up their belongings. They were told they wouldn't. They'd better get out in a hurry.

"Myra, we must save your new dimity," said one, and they were soon packing suit cases and dressing in a frenzy.

Two men who were playing poker on the top flor came to the corridor and saw a woman dash by in her bare feet, carrying a kimono over one arm, a new Spring milliner's confection under her other arm, and a canary bird in its cage in her hand. She disappeared down stairs two steps at a time, almost knocking Alexander down in her flight. She was stopped at the front door by the firemen, who told her she need not leave the building until they had investigated.

When the police and their followers reached the fifth floor landing the two poker players were standing there, rather expectantly, to learn the news.

"Where's the fire?" asked Alexander.

"Don't know a thing about a fire."

"Do you mean to tell me your flat isn't afire? Let me look," said the policeman, pushing into the apartment.

"We've been here all night, and we ought to know whether there'e any fire," said one poker expert, who seemed annoyed, "but you're welcome to look."

The only evidence of fire in the apartment was a cloud of cigar smoke. The wall paper had supplied the red that looked like flame.

Stricken Dead on a Visit to Town.

Mrs. Mary Jaycox, 68 years old, of Monmouth Beach, N. J., came to town yesterday with her daughter Anita, to visit her daughter, Mrs. Samuel J. Fredericks, who lives at 101 West Ninety-third Street. While the two were passing through Beekman Street just before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. Jaycox suddenly reeled and fell in the street. She died in Hudson Street Hospital without recovering consciousness.

DETECTIVES TO GUARD FORT MONROE GUNS

Ten Will Keep Watchful Eyes on Foreign Visitors at the Jamestown Fair.

GEN. GRANT SUGGESTED IT

Private Watchers Never Before Authorized in This Country for Work of This Nature.

The War Department, following out a recommendation of Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the Division of the Atlantic, has authorized Col. George E. F. Harrison of the Artillery Corps, the commanding officer of Fort Monroe, Virginia, to employ, during the existence of the Jamestown Exposition, ten private detectives, whose duty it shall be to see that no unauthorized persons get within the new fortifications guarding the entrance to Hampton Roads. Fort Monroe is not far from Jamestown and the site of the Exposition.

These detectives, who will be supplied by an agency whose name is withheld, will be put on guard because of the great number of foreigners who will visit Norfolk and vicinity in the six months the Exposition will be open. As perhaps a large number of these visitors will be military and naval men, who would naturally have some curiosity to know the strength of the fortifications guarding Hampton Roads, which is one of the four most important coast artillery posts in this country, Gen. Grant regarded it as a wise precaution to guard against any of our military secrets becoming known to any of the visitors. His recommendation that the detectives be employed was at once acted on favorably by the War Department.

Gen. Grant was much surprised when he learned that the intention of the Government to employ private detectives for the purpose stated had become public. He admitted the truth of the report, however, and said the recommendation had gone through his office, as the commanding General of the department.

Col. Harrison, the commander at Fort Monroe, will have entire charge of the detectives, who will see to it that only authorized persons get within the fortifications. After any visitor, no matter who he be, gets within, the regular artillerymen will see to it that he does not get a look at any piece of ordnance the design of which the Government desires to keep secret, even from American citizens.

This is the first time in the history of the country, it is said, that private detectives have been authorized for this work. The military authorities realized that the regular soldiers could be depended upon to preserve the rules and regulations governing visits within the fortifications, but they also realized that there is always friction when soldiers attempt to enforce the military regulations outside of the post limits. Hence the determination to place the outside police work in the hands of competent civilians.

The regulation, which is a recent one, under which the War Department acted is as follows:

> Commanding officers of posts at which are located lake or coast defense are charged with the responsibility of preventing, as far as practicable, visitors from obtaining information relative to such defenses which would be communicated to a foreign power, and to this end may prescribe and enforce appropriate regulations governing visitors to these posts. American citizens whose loyalty to their Government is unquestioned may be permitted to visit such portions of the defenses as the commanding officer deems proper.

The new Fort Monroe is one of the most modern in equipment on the Atlantic seaboard. Its armament is the most modern, the main batteries consisting of new guns of the highest calibre, fitted with every device for controlling of their fire. There are eight full companies of Coast Artillery stationed in the fortifications, these companies being the Sixth, Thirteenth, Thirty-fifth, Forty-first, Fifty-eighth, Sixty-ninth, Seventy-third, and 118th Companies of Coast Artillery.

"An American Geisha" Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 15.—"An American Geisha," a four-act play by Will A. Page of New York, based upon incidents in "A Japanese Prince," a war novel by the late Archibald Clavering Gunter, was produced here to-night by the Malcolm Williams stock company. The play pleased a large house. Miss Florence Reed, daughter of the late Roland Reed, created the title rôle. She will probably be starred in the play.

Last Week of Opera at the Manhattan

The last week of the opera season at the Manhattan Opera House began last evening with a performance of "Rigoletto." The cast included Mmes. Pinkert and Ciaconia, and Messrs. Bonci and Sammarco. Mr. Romolo appeared in a minor rôle, and Mr. Reschiglian sang Monterone, which has formerly been done by Mr. Mugnoz or Mr. Gilibert. Mr. Campanini conducted.

"The Prince Chap" at the Majestic.

Cyril Scott was seen once more in "The Prince Chap" at the Majestic Theatre last night. The company was the same as that seen when the play was formerly done at the Madison Square and Weber's Theatre. This is the last time the original company will ever be seen here.

"The Road to Yesterday" Back Again.

"The Road to Yesterday," after an absence of a week, returned to town yesterday, and was presented last night at the Lryic Theatre, followed the engagement of Ermete Novelli. The cast has not been changed and the leading rôle is still played by Minnie Dupree. Its engagement is for an indefinite period.

New Play by Miss Crothers.

After a preliminary season of "The Three of Us" at the Madison Square Theatre next Autumn, following the Summer engagement of the play in Chicago, Walter N. Lawrence will produce at that house a new piece entitled "The Coming of Mrs. Patrick." This play is also by Rachel Crothers, author of "The Three of Us."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Toby Lyons replacsd Gus Wineburg in the cast of "The Land of Nod" at the New York Theatre last night. Mr. Wineburg continues to appear in "The Song Birds" as heretofore.

Gov. Edwin Warfield of Maryland occupied a box at the Empire Theatre last night to see Ethel Barrymore in "His Excellency the Governor." He was accompanied by ex-Gov. Frank Brown, Secretary of State Tilghan, and ex-Congressman William W. McIntire, Maryland delegates to the Peace Conference.

Dwight Allen, who last appeared here in support of Virginia Harned in "The Love Letter," has been engaged as the character comedian for the Keith & Proctor Fifth Avenue stock company. He will make his first appearance with the company on April 22, in "The Jungle."

Charles Frohman will present Henry Arthur Jones's play, "The Hypocrites," at the Grand Opera House next week with the same cast which appeared for more than six months at the Hudson Theatre.

The Spooner stock company at the Bijou Theatre, Brooklyn, presented yesterday for the first time on any stage a Western play in four acts by Anthony E. Wills, entitled "General Faulkner's Daughter."

MISS GEORGE IN "DIVORCONS."

Wins a Positive Success in the Old Sardou Comedy.

M. Henri des Prunelles.....Frank Worthing
M. Adhemar de Gratinac....Robert T. Haines
M. Clavynac .....A. H. Stuart
M. Bafourlin .....Charles Stanley
Bastien, servant to des Prunelles.....Edward Fielding
Joseph, waiter.....Max Freeman
Jamarot, officer .....Richard Wilson
Cyprienne, Mme. des Prunelles....Grace George
Josepha, maid to Cyprienne....Laura Lammers
Mme. de Brionne, a young widow.....Ruth Benson
Mlle. de Lusigan.....Justine Cutting
Mme. de Valfontaine....Evelyn C. Carrington

It was impossible to mistake the favorable verdict of the audience that went to Wallack's Theatre last night to see Grace George in that famous old Sardou comedy, "Divorcons." The play went with a spirit much to the credit of the company and the star; and as much to the credit of a comedy satire that seems to lose none of its brilliancy and acting quality with the passage of time.

The applause that greeted Miss George, who was much at home in the character of that vacillating but altogether charming woman, Cyprienne, was genuine beyond a doubt. The programme stated that William A. Brady presented in this play Grace George, Frank Worthing, and Robert T. Haines; and the latter two names were justly included.

"Divorcons," as old theatregoers know, is the story of a young woman who has married a man older than herself, and who fancies that her life has been one continual bore. To relieve the monotony she convinces herself that she is in love with a cousin of her husband, a young officer of military presence bearing the romantic name of Adhemar De Gratinac. And the young officer, not to be outdone, convinces himself that he is enamored of his cousin's wife. A new divorce law is before the Assembly, and they look to its passage as the solution of all their difficulties.

The husband disvovers that Adhemar has been making love unawares. At the crucial moment, when Adhemar sends a false report that the divorce law has been passed for the purpose of inducing Cyprienne to visit him in his rooms, the husband hits on a clever idea. He pretends that he, too, is glad of the divorce and the solution that it affords. Then Madame begins to make sober comparisons, from which even the question of income cannot be excluded.

Then she waxes jealous at the idea of a successor. When the husband finally takes his wife out to dine at a restaurant of the demi-monde positions are practically reversed. He in the position of lover; and the lover in the position of husband—or husband to be. The conclusion is obvious, and the complications leading to the conclusion are matters of stage history and perennial laughter.

Frank Worthing appeared as the sagacious husband in a manner that delighted the audience. Mr. Haines was the captivating lover, described by Cyprienne with such diverse feeling in the first and last acts. Max Freeman made a distinct hit as the waiter in the last restaurant scene. Miss George's performance was much appreciated. She delivered the audacious lines with charming vivacity.

"LA BOHEME" SUIT SETTLED.

Hammerstein Consents to Injunction Against Further Productions.

The "La Bohème" suit was settled yesterday in the United States Circuit Court, when an injunction was granted against Oscar Hammerstein restraining him from further presentations of the opera. The order was obtained at the instance of ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, attorney for Riccordi & Co. and the Metropolitan Opera House, and was signed by Judge Lacombe, only, however, as the result of a consenting stipulation signed by Mr. Hammerstein.

He announced several weeks ago that, having produced the opera as he had promised, he did not think of giving it again. The injunction is sweeping in character, and enjoins Mr. Hammerstein from producing the opera either personally or through agents.

When Mr. Hammerstein announced last Fall that be intended to give this Puccini opera, the Riccordi firm owning the productive rights asked for an injunction on the ground that Mr. Conried held the American rights. Mr. Hammerstein asserted that he had a verbal contract with the Riccordi's New York agent, and the Federal court at the time refused to grant the injunction. Mr. Hammerstein gave the opera four times at the Manhattan.

"THE ROUND-UP" PRODUCED.

CHICAGO, April 15.—"The Round-Up," a four-act drama by Edmund Day, had its first production at McVicker's Theatre to-night. The scenes are laid in Arizona and New Mexico.

The opening scene shows the grounds and house of the Allens at Sweetwater, Arizona, where a wedding ceremony is performed. The second act takes the couple to their new home at Sweetwater Ranch, while the third act shifts the scene to the Apache Indian Reservation in New Mexico. The final act gives a glimpse of the plains at an annual "round-up" at Sweetwater Ranch.

In the company are several persons who have been identified with dramas dealing with Western life, including Macklyn Arbuckle, Orme Caldara, Wright Kramer, H. S. Northrup, Florence Rockwell, Julia Dean, and Marie Taylor.

WARNER TO WED MRS. HAMLIN

Actor Announces His Engagement to Manager's Widow.

H. B. Warner, who is leading man with Eleanor Robson at the Liberty Theatre, announced his engagement yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Fred Hamlin, widow of the late well-known theatrical producer. Mr. Warner is the son of Charles Warner, the noted English actor, whose performance of "Drink" is widely known, and who has recently appeared here in vaudeville with the dramatic sketch, "Heard at the Telephone." H. B. Warner first came to this country a year ago and played with Miss Robson for a season on the road. He has played the leading male rôles with all her productions at the Liberty Theatre this season under the management of Liebler & Co.

The wedding will take place at the end of the theatrical season, and the couple will spend the Summer abroad. Mr. Warner expects to return to America and continue playing in the Fall.

When asked why the report of the engagement had been denied a few weeks ago Mr. Warner replied that the report was premature. "It was not a fact then, but it is now," he said.

DEBT PAID, CHURCH BURNED.

Pastor of Hackensack Edifice Had Just Closed Its Mortgage.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 15.—The Second Reformed Church, which was fifty years old a few months ago, when the pastor, the Rev. Arthur Johnson, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his incumbency, was destroyed by fire early to-day. A carpenter's shop and five barns between Main and State Streets were also burned. The fire started in the carpenter's shop.

At the time of its fiftieth anniveresary the church was redecorated throughout. At the services yesterday it was announced that the last dollar of the congregation's indebtedness had been wiped out.

ART FAKIRS READY FOR THE LEMONFEST

REAL FRIED-EGG SUNRISE

What the Art Students' League calls "The Sixteenth Annual Lemonfest of the Society of American Fakirs" will be opened to the public this afternoon at the Fine Arts Building, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street. It will continue on Wednesday and Thursday, both afternoon and evening. The posters and caricatures of pictures by famous artists will be auctioned off on Thursday night for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund. The grand costumo ball and dance of the nations will take place on Friday night.

The visitors to the show will find the main entrance and halls decorated with paint pots in imitation of Chinese lanterns, old clothes as draperies, and milk bottles, tomato cans, and old shoes and hats as ornaments.

In addition to the Fakirs' picture exhibition there will be a "Midway," where girl art students will attend the various booths, spinning the wheel of fortune, selling unique postal cards, and peddling frankfurter sausages, popcorn, molasses taffy, etc. Here, also, will be found the merry-go-round, strength-testing machines, and a new invention for turning out oil paintings without the aid of an artist.

Prominent artists will appear as barkers for the "Edam Musee," a side show. Here many "strange and curious objects from all parts of the world" will be exhibited. One of the most remarkable of these is a monster tooth-shaped limestone, labeled "tooth from the mouth of the Hudson River." Then there is the man with the lobster head; Benny, the Texas giant; Laura, the young disappearing girl; Sandow, the strong man; Itchi Itchi, the Japanese juggler; Hoboken Harry, described as an amphibious, carnivorous, man-eating Bovilipus. An instructive lecture will be delivered daily on "The Influence of the Plumb Line on Modern Art."

In the tea garden this evening Scotty, Crusoe, May-be, and Calves will give a "brain storm" concert with the aid of the bass drummers of the Fakirs' Society. In addition to this two bands of musicians, real artists, will play popular airs under the lemon tree.

The official journal of the show is named The Lemon, and in it Thomas Hunt, the President, is referred to as the Main Squeeze. The press committee is composed of "Al Smith, a bucket of red paint, and J. P. Burnham." The advertising committee consists of "Pierson Radcliffe and Dog, Chairman, and their corpses."

The Lemon, it is announced, is "published by permission of the Society for the Prevention of Ice." Here are a few of the drops from The Lemon:

> Lost—From an Eighth Avenue cigar store, two wooden Indians. When last seen they were in the N. A. D. galleries giving the mirror signal.
> March 18—Book season opens. The league is closed in honor of the event.

> The Rev. Dr. Brueghan begs to announce his series of lectures for next year on the Influence of Esthetics on the Sub-Conscious Soul; or, Who is responsible for the Decay of House Painting.

> Q.—How old should a girl be before entering the league? A.—We prefer them 16, and we might add, sweet.
>
> Q.—Where in New York can I live on 25 cents a day? A.—Select a sheltered spot in the park and eat grass.
> Q.—How long will it take me to become an artist? A.—Multiply your age by six, divide by one, reduce to years.

The Lemon contains many clever illustrations, but none so god as the Fakirs' pictures exhibited in the main hall. First there is a burlesque on Hugo Vallin's "Three Ages," two nudes and a semi-draped figure. The Fake shows a picnic scene with the figure of youth biting a real ear of corn that has been fastened to the painting. Two linen napkins serve as skirts for the other figures, and the remnants of a picnic feast, in sardine boxes and bread crusts, are pasted to the painted grass.

In many of the other fake pictures the members of the league have built up painted backgrounds by glueing genuine articles to them. A portrait of Julia Marlowe has genuine hair from a hair mattress. In a caricature of Sergt. Kendall's picture "The Interlude," the woman's knot of golden hair is seen by a close inspection to be a genuine doughnut.

In "A Morning Omelette at Venus," a fried egg is glued to the canvas. William M. Chase has not been forgotten for a student has painted a background of ocean on which he has glued two real mackerel and a smoked herring.

The annual cash prizes presented by Samuel T. Shaw for the three best fakes, and the prizes for the worst fake, consisting of a mince pie and 3 cents, will be awarded at the end of the show.

HANNA'S SISTER DIES HERE.

Mrs. Salome Hanna Jones Was Once a Social Leader of Cleveland.

Mrs. Salome Hanna Jonee, sister of the late Senator M. A. Hanna, died in Roosevelt Hospital in this city on Sunday night at the age of 64. Mrs. Jones was a social leader in Cleveland before her second marriage. She wae then Mrs. George Chapin, and lived in Franklin Avenue, near the residence of Mr. Hanna, who at that time had not been elected to the United States Senate.

After her second marriage Mrs. Jones lived in Thomasville, Ga., where the members of the Hanna family were frequent visitors. She was also a leader in the society in her Southern home.

She leaves two sisters and two brothers who are well known in Cleveland. They are Leonard Hanna, Melvin Hanna, Mrs. S. Prentiss Baldwin, and Mrs. J. Morse. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mrs. Jones's mother, Mrs. S. M. Hanna, died on April 16, 1897.

G. W. ROOSEVELT DEAD.

BRUSSELS, April 15.—George W. Roosevelt, the American Consul General here, is dead. His end came rather unexpectedly. He was under treatment early in February for intestinal trouble and his condition was then serious. He recovered, however, and on Feb. 14 his condition had so improved that hopes for his complete restoration to health were entertained.

George Washington Roosevelt, who was a cousin of the President, was born at Chester, Penn., on Feb. 14, 1844. He received his early education in the public schools of Chester. His first position was that of a clerk in a store, which he held until 1861, when he enlisted in the army. In the civil war he gained distinction and rose from the ranks until he obtained a Captain's commission. At the battle of Gettysburg he lost his left leg.

In 1874 he was appointed Consul at Auckland, New Zealand. In 1878 he was appointed Consul at St. Helena. He also served as Consul in several cities in Europe.

In March, 1905, he was appointed Consul General at Brussels.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

David Crane Tiebout.

David Crane Tiebout, a retired banker, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 468 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born in the old Seventh Ward of Manhattan in 1825. In 1862 he became connected with the National Citizens' Bank of New York, now the Citizens' Central National Bank, of which he was at various times cashier, Treasurer, and Vice President.

As a young man he was a member of the old Volunteer Hose Company No. 36. In 1863 he moved to Brooklyn, and two years later he married Mary A. Morrison. He was connected with many philanthropic and religious organizations. He was Vice President and Director of the Mercantile Library Association, and for twelve years Treasurer of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn.

He was a charter member of the Congregational Club of Brooklyn and a member of the Brooklyn Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

He leaves a widow, two sons, and three daughters. The funeral takes place from his home to-morrow night at 8 o'clock.

Alfred C. Burton.

Alfred C. Burton, who was well known in newspaper circles of Manhattan and Brooklyn, died at his home, 529 Fifth Street, in the latter borough, yesterday. He was born forty-five years ago in Yorkshire, England, and after coming to this country became an office boy in the office of the old Sunday Sun.

Later he became a member of the staff of The Brooklyn Eagle, with which paper he held a number of important positions, including that of city editor. Mr. Burton spent twenty-three years with The Eagle and then became editor of the tri-weekly edition of The World. He married a daughter of the late Thomas Kinsella, who was one of the proprietors of The Eagle.

John H. Durbin.

DENVER, April 15.—John H. Durbin, who made millions in mining and cattle raising, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was 57 years old. Mr. Durbin once owned the famous Homestake mine of Deadwood, S. D., now the property of the Hearst estate. Although Mr. Durbin had lost the bulk of his fortune, he died wealthy.

Obituary Notes.

ADAM J. BARTHOLME, a wholesale confectioner, died at his home, 170 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, on Saturday. He was 57 years old and a native of Baden, Germany. He leaves a widow, four sons, and a daughter.

Mrs. JANE McBRIDE LAPHAM, widow of United States Senator E. G. Lapham, died on Sunday at Glengarry, on Canandaigua Lake, N. Y., where she had lived for a number of years. She was born at Utica, Jan. 10, 1823.

J. C. APPERSON, prominent in Mathews County, Va., where he had served as a magistrate for thirty-two years, died yesterday in Portsmouth, Va., where he was recently assaulted and robbed by a highwayman. He was 70 years old.

LOUIS GODE, one of the best-known residents of the East New York section of Brooklyn, died at his home, 120 Jamaica Avenue, on Sunday. He was born in Germany in 1832, and for many years was in business in East New York as a dealer in grain, hay, and groceries. He leaves a son and three daughters.

CORNELIUS A. CALLAHAN, a telegrapher, died yesterday morning at his home, 125 Lincoln Avenue, Orange, N. J., after a long illness. He had been in the Adirondacks for several months in an endeavor to recover his health, but the change did him no good. Mr. Callahan was connected with the Postal Telegraph Company in Orange for a long time, and was popular with the patrons of the company. He had been a paralytic for several years.

DR. HENRY DE WITT JOY died suddenly yesterday at his home, 50 Davis Avenue, West New Brighton, S. I. Dr. Joy was born in this city in 1841, educated here, and in 1866 graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He then moved to Sag Harbor and practiced his profession there for seventeen years. For the last five years Dr. Joy had practiced only as a consulting physician. He leaves a son. The funsral will take place tomorrow from his late home.

FRANK C. MARKHAM, a retired banker and former mamber of the New York Stock Exchange, died at the Hotel Latham yesterday of heart disease. He was born in Auburn, N. Y., in 1838. As a young man he was in business in Detroit, and in 1880 he came to New York and became a member of the Gold Board. He leaves a widow and three daughters. Funeral services will be held at St. Agnes's Chapel, in West Ninety-second Street on Thursday morning and the burial will be at Woodlawn.

JOHN A. VAN BUSKIRK, an old volunteer fireman of this city, and one of the original members of the Harry Howard Hose Company, died at his home, 214 Ashland Avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., yesterday morning after an illness of several years, at the age of 78. For the last twenty years he had lived in Bloomfield. Mr. Van Buskirk was for many years engaged in the real estate business in New York. He was a grandson of Isaac Kip, the first Chancellor of New York, and his mother was a cousin of Bishop Kip of California. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

SHEPPARD GANDY, formerly a broker in William Street, died on last Sunday at his home, 358 Lexington Avenue, at the age of 83. Until his retirement several years ago he was connected with many commercial enterprises. He was a Director of the Associates Land Company, the Central Crosstown Railroad, the Christopher & Tenth Street Railroad, the Quicksilver Mining Company, and the Woodlawn Cemetery Corporation. He was a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Union Club. He leaves three daughters. The funeral will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from Trinity Chapel, in West Twenty-fifth Street.

AUTOISTS DISCUSS TOURING CAR RULES

A. A. A. Technical Committee Will Meet Engineers This Week in Indianapolis.

TO TRAIN NATIVE DRIVERS

Word was received from Indianapolis yesterday by the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association that the meeting of automobile engineers which had been scheduled for last Saturday to discuss the rules and plans for the American touring car race over the Long Island Motor Parkway had been postponed until Thursday. There was, however, an informal conference between H. O. Smith and Edgar Apperson, who were the originators of the idea; Secretary Frederick H. Elliott of the A. A. A., and half a dozen other engineers and representatives of the National organization. As a result of this conference it was decided that no attempt should be made to suggest or formulate rules for the contest without the co-operation of the Technical Committee of the A. A. A. Racing Board.

Invitations, therefore, have been extended to the three members of the board in this country, E. R. Thomas of Buffalo, Henry Ford of Detroit, and A. L. Riker of Bridgeport. Mr. Ford has discussed the plan informally with several of those interested in the event. He has expressed entire approval of the race, and has consented to enter two cars. Mr. Thomas recently returned from Florida, and he has promised to be present at this week's meeting, but up to yesterday no word had been received from Mr. Riker.

Besides affording an excellent test of the reliability of American touring cars, both Mr. Smith and Mr. Apperson believe that the contest will do more than any previous motor race in America to educate American drivers in the expert handling of high-powered cars for long-distance events. If the Vanderbilt Cup race is to be held here another year American manufacturers recognize the fact that it is absolutely essential for success to have their cars in charge of well-trained men who have had considerable experience in long-distance competitions. In Europe this year there are nearly a dozen big events for both racing machines and touring cars, and in a majority of these all of the best automobile drivers on the Continent will take part. In this country the Vanderbilt Cup race has been the only one which has offered any opportunity to native chauffeurs to acquire much-needed racing experience.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC GAMES.

Public Schools Athletic League Exhibition of Dancing, Games, and Basket Ball.

An exhibition of National dances, contests, and games, winding up with a basket ball match, provided entertainment yesterday afternoon for a party of distinguished guests interested in the work of the Girls' Branch of the Public Schools Athletic League. Several hundred children participated in the dances and games, which were held in the gymnasium of the De Witt Clinton High School, Fifty-ninth Street and Tenth Avenue.

The older girls took part in the Swedish, Norwegian, and Russian dancee. Very small girls, holding wisps of skirts in their hands, danced the "Baby Polka," a German adaptation, and other small tots an Irish "Ilit." For gamee there were a shuttle relay race and the prize game of "balloon goal."

Two teams of the Wadleigh High School competed in the basket ball match. It was a close contest, the girls of Class C, 4, defeating the girls of Class C, 2, by the score of 8 points to 4.

Among the guests were Mrs. Clarence Mackay, Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Edgerton Winthrop, Mrs. Chester Griswold, Mrs. Dick Irwin, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Miss Dominick, and Miss Leverich. President of the Girls' Branch of the league; the Rev. Robert Collier, Principal McAndrew of the Girls' Manual Training School, Dr. Lyon of the Brooklyn Manual Training School, and many other school representatives.

TWO NAVY CREWS ON HUDSON.

Middies Want to Enter Eight in Freshman Race as Well.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 15.—The Naval Academy expects to take full crews of eight men with substitutes to the Hudson for the race of May 26, but will not be represented by a four. There is no four-oared shell at the Naval Academy, and no crew of the kind will be developed. The navy will ask permission to enter its second crew in the freshman race. Although its members do not belong to the lowest class, it is a junior crew, and has had freshmen crews as its competitors. The main reason for the sending of two crews is, however, in order that the first crew may have a boat to row against, and that there shall be plenty of good substitutes in the event of a shake-up in the first crew.

The crew men are agitated by the statement that Yale's second crew will row the Midshipmen at Annapolis on May 4, asserting that all communications with Manager Dixon of the Yale crew indicated that the race was to be between the first crews of the institutions.

COLUMBIA'S TRACK MEETS.

Manager Laye Announces Six Events, Beginning Next Saturday.

There are six meets on the schedule for the Columbia track team, issued yesterday by F. Lage, 1907, the manager. The season will begin next Saturday on South Field with the inter-class championship meet for the trophy recently given by Dr. Hammond. There are dual meets with Pennsylvania and Princeton. A team will be entered in the relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania on May 4, and in the intercollegiate games at Cambridge on May 31 and June 1. Besides these are the newly instituted interscholastic games on May 11 at South Field.

Yale-Columbia Freshmen Race Off.

It was announced yesterday at Columbia that the crew management had canceled the annual race between the Yale and Columbia freshman crew at Lake Whitney, New Haven, on account of the Harvard and Columbia 'Varsity race falling on the same day. The management is trying to arrange a race for the freshmen with some near-by crew, and they will be entered in the junior eight-oared race in the Harlem regatta on Decoration Day.

Yale Begins Football Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 15.—Capt. Bigelow of the Yale football eleven mustered about twenty-five candidates at the opening Spring drill this afternoon. The squad embraced all the 'Varsity and freshman players of last Fall's teams, including the members who will be graduated in June. Practically all of to-day's work was punting directed by Paul Veeder, half back last year.

Harvard's Southern Lacrosse Trip.

The Harvard lacrosse team, which plays Stevens Institute on Friday and the Crescent Athletic Club twelve at Bay Ridge on CSaturday, has five games schedule dfor the week. To-day it plays the Mount Washington team at Baltimore, meets Swarthmore College at Swarthmore to-morrow, and contests against Lehigh at Bethlehem on Thursday.

SMALL FAILURE ON 'CHANGE

Prices broke with some violence at the opening of yesterday's stock market, apparently in anticipation of the failure of the Stock Exchange house of W. L. Stow & Co., recovered these losses, and arose vigorously, only to fall back again in the afternoon, and to end the day with substantial declines in all the leading issues. The failure noted was by no means of sufficient importance to explain the final course of stocks. The house involved went under in the bad market of 1903, and since that time has played only an inconspicuous part in the affairs of the Street. Efforts were also made to explain the day's movement by the bank return of Saturday, with its showing of an increase of over $37,000,000 in loans, but this expansion, which was very clearly due to the withdrawal of interior banks from the money market, owing to the lower interest rates now prevailing, together with the syndicate operations of the week, including the payment of four installments in lump sum upon new Great Northern stock, did not in the least affect money rates yesterday, while the money market itself was directly benefited by further heavy disbursements from the Sub-Treasury to the banks. The true explanation of the day's market seems to be that which held through the sagging sessions of last week, here is practically no buying on the part of the public, for reasons which have often been set forth in these columns, and in the professional trading, which makes up markets shunned by the public; even small speculative campaigns possess controlling influence over prices. There was evidence yesterday of such speculative operations, and, in addition to this, although it may have been a part of the professional programme, London was again a heavy seller of American shares.

As a result of routine transactions with the Government the banks have gained some $2,000,000 since Friday of last week, and this addition to resources was reflected in the continued ease in both call and time money. There were likewise indications of easing conditions in the European money markets. hTe Paris check of London fell 2 centimes, and is now about 10 centimes below the point at which it ruled a month ago, when the possibility of losses of gold to London helped the Bank of France to a decision to raise its discount rate. The Bank of Netherlands, which advanced its rate to 6 per cent. last month, upon learning that gold had been engaged in Amsterdam for American account, reduced its rate to . per cent. yesterday. In London discount rates eased again, and in all these developments there is apparently the promise of better money markets abroad. The foreign trade statement for the month of March, published yesterday, reflected the continuation of the tendencies characterizing foreign trade for several months past. Exports increased $17,000,000 and imports almost $20,000,000 over the same items in March, 1906. The excess of exports was again very narrow, being $2,546,000 less than a year ago. While the excess for the nine months of the completed fiscal year is now $44,500,000 less than that for the same nine months of the last fiscal year, it is still $80,000,000 above the nine months' excess of 1905.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—United Gas Improvement stock hroks 4 points, selling as low as 85. The price rallying to 88⅝, but later it again receded, and last sales were made at 87¾. Cambria Steel, Lehigh Navigation trust certificates, and Union Traction were lower, but the remainder of the list held well, especially the Tonopah stocks and Philadelphia Rapid Transit, the latter advancing fractionally. Reading was heavily dealt in, and United States Steel was also active. Total sales, 46,461 shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

There are certain traditions in the financial district which are firmly rooted in the minds of old-time traders and habitués of the Street. One in particular, which was confirmed by the failure of Stow & Co., is that every panic in the market is followed by a sharp recovery, after which there is an irregular lethargic market, and finally prices recede below the low figures of the panic days. The vagaries of the present market give zest and emphasis to the old-timers' reminiscences. Croakings, the more optimistically inclined call it, but there is, after all, a logical side to the theory. Every panic leaves it quota of crippies, big and little, and their efforts to adjust their affairs make for a sagging market.

***

Many persons have been aware that there were weak spots left after the panic. One very good customer of a weakened house has been right on the market. He transacted most of his business by telephone, and seldom went to the office. The house itself and its other customers had been wrong, and had, in fact, reached the point where help had been extended to them. The wise man's winnings went to keep the game going. Finally he discovered the situation, but his dilemma was as bad as that of the house itself. If he demanded his money he precipitated a failure. If he stood pat he might lose anyway, but then there was a chance that the house might be tided over. His proolem at present is not any nearer solution than it was a week or so ago, and the result will be watched with a great deal of intcrest.

***

According to the best-posted brokers, there is no sign of really good buying in the market. They say that buying power is not apparent in any quarter of the market, and this accounts for the ease with which stocks break on the slightest provocation. There is no disposition apparent in banking circles to advise purchases of stocks by their friends. Their advice is cautious, and this in itself is an influence that operates against speculative enthusiasm. One house which is very often used as a distributing centre for big orders in one of the important industrial stocks, has taken for two months at least a consistently bullish view of this pet security of the firm. Needless to say, it has been persistently wrong, so much so that it has engendered scepticism of the honesty of its opinion. There should be no doubt of its honesty, for members of the firm, according to the best information, have contributed very largely to the profits of the bear crowd.

***

"This market makes me tired," remarked a trader in a brokerage office yesterday. "If there is such a thing as a bull crowd in this market I should like to know its complexion. We get a rally in stocks here, coming apparently from short covering, and the chances seem to favor a better market. Somebody reports that the wheat crop in Southwestern Texas is suffering from drought, and the bullish gentlemen take to their heels. I have been in Texas, and I find the principal products raised in that section to be alkali and devilfry. This illustrates merely the stamina of our so-called bullish crowd."

***

Consolidated Gas is one of the most difficult stocks on the board for the trader to gauge. The fluctuations at times are very wide, and it is often certain to act absolutely contrary to the general trend. For example, yesterday it was the one stock on the list scoring a substantial gain, and the total trading was less than 3,500 shares. It may be said that many of the interests who were short of gas on the big decline have kept their hands off from a speculative point of view ever since. One man in particular, who was always a holder of this security, has not had a share of stock for either speculative or investment account for months. He says he prefers to wait for an adjustment of political and business conditions.

***

An analysis of the trading shows the limited interest in the market from the point of view of individual stocks. For example, six stocks in yesterday's market were traded in very heavily, while three or four others showed a fair amount of activity. The balance of the list was comparatively inactive. A few of the non-active stocks showed comparatively wide fluctuations. Clip trading is not so much in evidence and so-called "crowds," such as the "Waldorf crowd" and the "Hoffman House crowd," are reduced to mere names nowadays. For that matter, these particular names of late have meant nothing.

***

Two banks in the financial district lend $150,000,000 of out-of-town money. This is an enormous amount and it gives a very valuable clientele to these banks. Of course they get a very substantial commission, usually one-half of 1 per cent., for their trouble in the matter. Recently trust companies, or at least a few of them, have been going into the business actively of lending money for out-of-town institutions and individuals, and they have been soliciting business through the medium of circulars. It has been profitable to some of them. This kind of brokerage business does not help the broker in the Street, inasmuch as the trust companies are able to place this money effectively without the mediation of an outside broker.

Several of the more or less speculative bonds showed weakness in the early trading yesterday. Among examples which might be cited were Central Leatber 5s, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 4s, and Distillers' 5s. These bonds reacted more than a point without very evident pressure. In contrast to them was the fair degree of strength in the 4½ per cent. bonds of the Interborough.

***

One of the big professionals who is usually active on the floor of the Exchange has taken to mining stocks for a diversion, and, incidentally, to see whether he can break the hoodoo which seems to have followed him for the last three or four months. He has become interested in half a dozen mining stocks, and his commitments in each are very large. Ordinarily, he is a factor to be reckoned with in the stock market, but for the present he is occupied with his new toys. He does oot seem to realize that the present game is pretty nearly as dangerous as the old ono, but while his enthusiasm lasts he will keep it going lively. Incidentally, he is a part owner in the Nevada Gold Mine, which was converted temporarily into a mineral spring, and of which an original mining engineer suggested that the water might be converted into money to pay a first dividend on the stock.

Within a few days a member of a well-known brokerage house wrote to one of the officers of a prominent railroad in this section of the country, telling him that he had purchased a house along one of his lines, and calling attention to the condition of the station at that point as a detriment, in his estimation, to the town. He suggested that it be repaired and put in presentable order. The railroad officer answered courteously, but pointed out that railroads nowadays were having so much trouble in getting money with which to buy even locomotives and cars that it was difficult to say whether the proposed repairs could be accomplished when so many economies were necessary. The letter was exceedingly frank, and exceedingly positive on the point of compulsory retrenchment. The petitioner in this case expects to wait for the rehabilitation of that station.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 15.—The supplies of money were abundant in the market today, and rates were easy. Discounts were weak. The Bank of England secured the bulk of the $3,000,000 in gold in the open market.

On the Stock Exchange a confident tone prevailed, owing to the abundance of money and the prospects of an early reduction of the Bank of England's rate of discount, but public buying was very meagre, and the transactions, therefore, were small. Prices were inclined to sag, except consols and home rails, which were fractionally harder.

Americans went below parity in the forenoon on the disappointing New York bank statement and the weakness of Copper, which were the chief influences in the selling movement. The decline continued until New York bid up various favorites, and then the fluctuations became uncertain and fairly wide, and the market closed irregular, but above the lowest quotations of the day.

Foreigners were easy, owing to the indifference of Paris. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101¼.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 11; Lisbon, 2.75.

Bar silver steady at 30½d per ounce.

Money, 2@2½ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅝@3½ per cent.

Bullion amounting to £19,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

PARIS, April 15.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was inactive, and prices were unsteady, with an upward tendency. Russian imperial 4s closed at 73.00 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 492.

Discount rates: Short bills, 4½ per cent.; three months' bills, 4⅝ per cent.

BERLIN, April 15.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were dull. Americans were neglected.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 55c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 22c for checks.

BETHLEHEM STEEL DIVIDEND.

Directors May Pass It Altogether at Meeting To-day.

The Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation meet to-day to act on the quarterly dividend. Many of the holders of the preferred stock, on which the dividends were reduced in August last from the regular rate of 1¾ to ¾ of 1 per cent., have been expecting that at this meeting the dividend will be passed altogether.

Just before the annual meeting, on April 1, President Charles M. Schwab, referring to the movement in progress at that time for the formation of a protective committee by the minority stockholders, said he would prefer to see the dividend passed altogether should it appear that the company would impair its position by paying out further dividends at this time.

This minority movement flattened out at the annual meeting, when Samuel Untermyer, who had been expected to ally himself with the minority committee, took the ground that the earnings reported by the company made it clear that no other recourse had been left to the Directors than the reduction in dividends, which was decided upon last Summer.

It has been asserted by some of the preferred stockholders that at least a scrip dividend of 7 per cent. should be declared, but no intimation has been had of the probable attitude of the management toward this form of compromise.

Receiver for a Loan Association.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 15.—Vice Chancellor Learning to-day granted an order, returnable April 30, to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the State Mutual Building and Loan Association of New Jersey. Prior to the court proceedings the Directors announced that at the annual meeting on April 25, the 27,000 shareholders will be asked to vote on a resolution to dissolve the association. The assets at one time amounted to $2,500,000, but in recent years the withdrawals have exceeded the receipts. The assets are now said to be $1,200,000, principally in realty and mortgages.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

STANDARD OIL SUFFERS

News of Chicago Verdict by Which Company May Be Fined Millions Causes Loss of 15 Points.

Curb trading yesterday was in better volume after the improved tone on the Stock Exchange which followed the announcement of the suspension of W. L. Stow & Co., became manifest. With the increasing activity prices hardened, though fluctuations were confined within narrow limits and the net gains for the day were fractional. In the industrial list some interest was taken in Standard Oil, which under small offerings sagged off 15 points in response to the unfavorable verdict handed down in Chicago, by which the company may have to pay fines aggregating over $29,000,000. The outside brokers were not worried about the opening of the Produce Exchange's stock department yesterday as soon as it was seen that the trading on the new Exchange would be in light volume. In the mining list fractional gains were common, though a number of these issues closed below the opening.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

COAL FIELDS ROAD BUILDING.

Denial of Report That Work on Pittsburg Extension Has Been Suspended.

Representatives of the Pittsburg, Binghamton & Eastern, the new line projected from the Pennsylvania coal fields at Clearfield to Binghamton, N. Y., denied yesterday that there was any basis for the report that work on the construction of the road had been "practically suspended." They said that while the number of men at work was smaller than last Summer, more work was being done this month than last, and that the project had in no sense been suspended.

In reference to the report that F. P. Sawyer had resigned as President of the company, it was pointed out that he had left the Presidency of the road at the annual meeting of the stockholders on Jan. 15 last. The Pittsburg, Binghamton & Eastern, its representatives state, remains an independent project, denial being given to the report that the line has been brought under the control of the Vanderbilt lines or any other of the railroads in its territory.

BEAR MARKET BREAKS W. L. STOW & CO.

Brokers' Firm Was Long in the March Smash and Suffered Heavily.

CUSTOMERS GAVE AID

Clubman Who Won $300,000 Lent Profits to Firm—Failure Not a Big One.

The suspension of the Stock Exchange house of W. L. Stow & Co. of 111 Broadway was announced shortly after the opening of the market yesterday, and had the immediate effect of checking a sharp downward movement in prices, which was being helped along by busy rumors of a big house in trouble. The assets were said to be considerably in excess of the liabilities, and the failure was not counted as of any great importance.

W. L. Stow & Co. was organized in 1899 and failed in 1903, during the period of depression in that year. Up to that time the firm had been a market factor of considerable importance, and was credited with managing the pool in Mexican Central stock, the failure of which to fulfill expectations was said at the time to have been the cause of the house's difficulties. Since 1903, although all liabilities were met within a few months after the suspension in that year, W. L. Stow & Co. have conducted business in a smaller way.

The partners are W. L. Stow, who has been a member of the Exchange since Nov. 29, 1882, and Henry Coolidge, who has been a member since June 11, 1884. It had been rumored in Wall Street for some weeks that the firm was having a hard time to keep above water, and the announcement of the suspension yesterday was not unexpected.

Although the members of the house refused to give any specific reason for the announcement of yesterday morning, it is known that the firm was committed to the bull side of the market during the decline since the 1st of January, and was caught long in the March smash.

It was said yesterday on very good authority that the suspension might have been precipitated several weeks ago if it had not been for the leniency of some of the firm's customers and friends on the Stock Exchange. One young client of the house, a well-known clubman, who has been mentioned as one of the heavy winners on the bear side of the market in the slumps of March 15 and 25, is said to have helped the partners, his friends, out by leaving his winnings, which have been put at some $300,000, in the firm's hands. He will now have to take his chances with the other creditors.

Among the assets of the house are two Stock Exchange seats, which would go entirely to secure the creditors, since it is announced that Stow & Co. have no outstanding obligations with their fellow-members of the Exchange.

One of the partners said yesterday that the suspension would be only temporary, and it was hoped to resume business in the near future. He denied a rumor, current in the afternoon, that the firm's difficulties might be largely attributed to heavy selling of privileges.

NEW CLEARING HOUSE RULES.

Advantages Obtained by Non-Members to be Corrected at Next Meeting.

The increasing dissatisfaction of a number of the larger Clearing House banks with the present regulations of the association which, they think, give non-member banks some undue advantages, is likely to result in a radical change in the Clearing House rules. It was learned yesterday that two resolutions have been framed, to be voted on at the next regular meeting of the Clearing House Association, which, in the first instance, will cut off the accommodation now enjoyed by non-member banks, especially those out of town, in the matter of collecting foreign checks. The second resolution carries the fight still further by imposing such conditions on institutions clearing through members of the association as to make it cheaper for these non-member banks to join the Clearing House Association than to continue their present arrangements.

While officials of the Clearing House Association refused yesterday to discuss these resolutions, it was learned that they are in effect as follows:

Foreign checks—that is, checks drawn on banks which are not members of the Clearing House, and which are now printed as payable at various New York Clearing House banks—will hereafter have to be certified at the bank from which they emanate.

The second resolution makes it obligatory on any institution clearing through the New York Clearing House to maintain a 25 per cent. cash reserve on its net deposits. The first resolution hits at an abuse which has been growing steadily since the Clearing House rules adopted rules compelling its members and all institutions clearing through them to charge collection fees of one-tenth of 1 per cent. on checks of all banks east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio Valley States, and one-quarter of 1 per cent. on checks coming from beyond these limits.

It has been found that this provision has been worked to the disadvantage of Clearing House members by reason of out-of-town banks being able to avoid the payment of a collection fee by turning their business over to non-member banks which have these checks cleared.

Velvet-Covered Articles Taxed 45 Per Cent.—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Marion De Vries the Board of United States General Appraisers overruled yesterday a claim filed by D. Frohman of New York, it being held that writing pads, blotters, boxes, picture frames, and other articles, made of paper and covered with cotton velvet, are properly assessed at the rate of 45 per cent. under the provision in the tariff for "manufactures of cotton."

The importer alleged that the articles should be admitted at 35 per cent., the rate applicable to paper manufactures. Other claims are made, but the board sees no occasion to disturb the classification imposed by the Collector.

In a decision by Charles P. McClelland it was held that crimped hair, curled hair, and bleached and curled hair, reported by C. D. Stone & Co. is not dutiable at 35 per cent. as a "manufacture of hair." On the contrary, the board finds it should have been classified under the provision for "human hair," with duty at 20 per cent. The decision of the Collector is reversed.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Active and Irregular—Closes Unchanged to 4 Points Higher.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The Federal Weather Bureau issued the following forecast for the cotton States for Tuesday and Wednesday:

North Carolina—Fair and warmer Tuesday, followed by showers in western portions in the afternoon; Wednesday showers, colder in western portion; fresh southerly winds.

Eastern Florida—Fair and warmer Tuesday and Wednesday; light, variable winds.

Western Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi—Showers Tuesday. Wednesday, partly cloudy and colder; fresh southerly, shifting to northwesterly winds.

Louisiana—Showers Tuesday. Wednesday, fair and colder; fresh northwesterly winds.

Eastern Texas—Scattered showers in the interior, colder in northern portion Tuesday. Wednesday, partly cloudy; showers on the coast; fresh, southerly winds, becoming northerly.

Western Texas—Fair in southern, showers and colder in northern portion Tuesday. Wednesday, fair.

Oklahoma, Indian Territory, and Arkansas—Showers and colder Tuesday. Wednesday, fair.

Tennessee—Showers Tuesday. Wednesday, fair and colder.

The cotton market was more active yesterday, and trading was more general. Sales for the day were about 175,000 halee. Fluctuations were somewhat irregular, but the market showed a steady tone, and the close was steady, net unchanged to 4 points higher. The opening was steady, at a net decline of 3 to 6 points in response to lower cables, but the market immediately rallied on the reports of cold weather and smaller receipts. May seemed to be in considerable demand from house which have been selling that position against purchases of July, in anticipation of a widening of the differences. There was no aggressive selling. Exports for the day were about five times the port receipts.

The range of contract prices in the local market were as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Saturday's Close.
April	..	..	9.54@ 9.56	9.59
May	9.75	9.61	9.69@ 9.70	9.65

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 5 points higher, at 11.15 for middling upland, and 11.40 for middling Gulf. No sales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Savannah—Steady, ⅛c higher, at 10⅜c; sales, 1,887 bales. Norfolk—Firm, ⅛c higher, at 11⅛c; sales, 201 bales. Augusta—Steady, unchanged, at 11¼c; sales, 346 bales. Memphis—Steady, unchanged, at 10¾c; sales, 1,950 bales. Houston—Steady, unchanged, at 11c; sales, 1,239 bales. Galveston—Steady, unchanged, at 11c; sales, 324 bales. New Orleans—Quiet and steady, unchanged, at 10¾c; sales, 1,159 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Conflicting crop end weather news from the Southwest made wheat somewhat irregular yesterday, and at times prompted considerable selling for long account. Right after the opening there was a sharp upturn on reports of insect damage and predictions for dry weather in Oklahoma and Kansas, but such active selling resulted that advances quickly disappeared, and at midday the decression was increased by a gain of 1,520,000 bushels in the visible supply, compared with a decrease last year of 357,000 bushels. Advances of 3d at Liverpool, 1 to 1 mark at Berlin and ½ franc at Budapest were shown. Receipts in the Northwest were double those of last year, and at Winnipeg were 193 cars, compared with 70 cars a year ago. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, 83¾c elevator and 84¾c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 92¼c, and No. 2 hard Winter, 83¼c, free on board afloat, opening navigation.

CORN.—The market showed steadiness during the forenoon, but had a rather quiet close. Small receipts at Chicago, with the decrease of 1,200,000 bushels in world's shipments for the week and an advance of ¼d to ½d at Liverpool, exhibited the early strength. The visible supply decreased 778,000 bushels, and cash corn in New York closed firm, as follows: No. 2 corn, 57¼c elevator and 54½c free on board afloat; No. 2 white, 57c, and No. 2 yellow, 54¼c free on board afloat.

GOOD PROFITS FOR 3 ROADS.

Three subsidiary lines of the New York Central system issued annual reports yesterday. The New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad shows earnings for 1906 of $9,992,209, an increase of $793,479 over the previous year. The total expenses increased $463,798, to $6,946,808, leaving net earnings of $2,955,401, or $329,681 greater than in 1905. Dividends paid during the year on the second preferred stock increased from $330,000 to $440,000, owing to an increase in the rate from 3 to 4 per cent. The final surplus, after appropriations for new construction, bond redemption, &c., was $44,075, which brings the profit and loss surplus up to $511,626.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway shows gross earnings for the year of $24,594,915, a gain of $2,077,152 over 1905. The expenses of operation were $18,432,713, an increase of $1,563,367. The net earnings were $6,162,202 and other income $208,568. While the net earnings increased $523,784 over 1905, the other income showed a decrease of $32,907, due principally to decreased interest earned from notes and deposits. The net income for the year was $2,004,731, out of which were paid the usual dividends, leaving a surplus for the year of $53,052.

The Peoria & Eastern Railway Company shows gross earnings for 1906 of $3,059,281, against $2,960,726 for 1905. Total expenses increased $44,530, to $2,199,396, leaving net earnings of $859,885, which with other income, brought the gross income to $868,660. Net income was $332,800.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT,
Third Judicial District,
Ulster County.
ASHOKAN RESERVOIR.
Section No. 4.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS OF APPRAISAL.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. Such application will be made at a Special Term of the Supreme Court to be held in and for the Third Judicial District, AT THE COURT HOUSE, IN THE CITY OF KINGSTON, ULSTER COUNTY, N. Y., ON MAY 15TH, 1907, AT 10 O'CLOCK in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard. The object of such application is to obtain an order of the court appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders, one of whom shall reside in the County of New York, and at least one of whom shall reside in the county where the real estate hereinafter described is situated, to act as Commissioners of Appraisal under said act, and discharge all the duties conferred by the said law and the acts amendatory thereof, upon such Commissioners of Appraisal, for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York.

The real estate to be acquired herein is situated in the Town of Olive, and is to be acquired in fee for the purpose of furnishing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water to the City of New York.

The following is a statement of the boundaries of the lands to be acquired herein, with a reference to the date and place of filing of the map.

All the parcels herein described are to be acquired in fee and are colored pink on the map hereinafter referred to.

All those certain pieces or parcels of real estate situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, shown on a map entitled "Reservoir Department, Section No. 4, Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, Map of real estate, situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, to be acquired by The City of New York under the provisions of Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended, for the construction of Ashokan Reservoir and appurtenances," in the vicinity of Olive City and Brodhead," which map was filed in the office of the County Clerk of the County of Ulster, at Kingston, New York, on the 4th day of March, 1907, and is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the junction of the centre lines of the Tongore and Samsonville Roads, said point being the southeast corner of parcel No. 145, and running thence along the centre line of the said Samsonville Road and the southerly line of said parcel No. 145, S. 67° W. 195.4 feet to the southeast corner of parcel No. 146; Two Attractive Offerings.

will buy a parcel that offers immediate opportunities for a quick profit. This parcel is situated on the west side and improvements now under way by the city will assure of a holding that will enhance its value on completion of the present work. It can be bought on very favorable terms, and by disposing of it at retail a good profit is assured. Will consider propositions to syndicate the transaction if agreeable. Particulars to principals only, on application.

will buy a Madison Avenue Corner Apartment House which will return about 9% net annually on the above amount. The first mortgage has just been renewed for 3 years at 4½%. The second mortgage has 3 years to run at 5%, making the combined average rate of interest on both mortgages under 5%. This parcel should commend itself to investors who desire to buy where there is an assurance of an increase in the value of their holding. The vicinity of this property has a very bright future, and its location, together with the fact that it is a corner, makes it an attractive proposition.

I have other parcels in various locations, the particulars of which can be had on application.

If You Want to Buy or Sell Real Estate

in Manhattan Borough I believe you will find it to your interest to place your business in the hands of an office where your wants will receive consideration, where the particulars will be truthfully stated, and where the desire to make a satisfied client is paramount to that of making a commission resulting from misrepresentation.

By having the exclusive handling of your business, the Broker is not handicapped and is able to proceed on more intelligent lines and very often obtain better and quicker results than could be had otherwise.

I am asking for your business on the above lines and if you are interested I would be glad to hear from you.

"HOW THEY PROFIT"

Here is a typical letter:

"Vanderveer Crossings, Inc.:

"Gentlemen—On Nov. 14, 1906, I sold for a client one of your lots, 20x100 ft. 2 in for $3,500 spot cash, to Peter Olsen of 37th St. and Fort Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn, who has since put a store and apartments for two families on the plot and sold it for $15,500, making a clear profit of $2,500 in 30 days. Yours sincerely, A. J. MURPHY, Real Estate Broker, 164 Montague Street, Brooklyn."

It is interesting to add that the above 20-foot front lot, recently sold for $3,500, was sold by us to Mr. Murphy's client only a few years ago for the ridiculous sum of $450.

From $450 to $3,500 in a few years, with no trouble and trivial expense (which can remain as a charge to account) is a little better than 4 per cent. per annum in a bank.

Send your name and address and let us show you what you can do for as little as $60 or $70 down and $12 or $15 monthly.

CEDARHURST PARK

LONG ISLAND.

The most desirable natural residence site anywhere near New York. A country home with all city advantages.

Commanding a magnificent view of Ocean and Bay, with fine fishing and boating within five minutes' walk. SCHOOLS equal to those anywhere. Pure air. Purest water in the world.

Water, Gas and Electric Mains are now being run to the property. Streets are rolled hard—some exquisitely parked—cement sidewalks throughout—shade trees, etc., etc.

A costly and pretentious Clubhouse for residents is to be erected; a plaza with a magnificent fountain likewise, and flower beds have been placed at many points on the property.

Sale on premises every day and Sundays.

of happiness is centered by the home, be it humble or grand. The more attractive the happier it will be. Compare a cramped, stuffy apartment to the freedom and healthfulness of a home among the trees and flowers, with sunshine and invigorating breezes. It is such a home as this, complete with all city conveniences and yet ONLY TWENTY MINUTES FROM NEW YORK, that we offer you for no more than the high class flat. A partial description of such a house is as follows:

Nine rooms, bath, steam heat, double hardwood floors on first floor. Hardwood trim throughout—Oak, first floor; Red Hazel on second and third floors. Cemented cellars. Decorations, fixtures, mantels, etc., selected to please the most critical.

All improvements in the street—Water, gas, sewer, cement sidewalks, curb and gutters; shade trees. Price, $9,500, on terms to suit purchaser.

Moderate taxes, good schools, the highly restricted character of the property insuring only most desirable neighbors, make this and other larger and smaller houses at

MURDER CLUE LEADS TO SHORT, STOUT MAN

Police Seek Him in an Apartment Next to Schanbacher's, but Too Late.

DISPOSSESSED BY VICTIM

The police discovered last night a clue which they think may bring them close to the murderer of George J. Schanbacher, but when two detectives searched the supposed home of an Italian whom they suspected of knowledge of the crime, he had vanished. At midnight they were still trying to take up the trail where it seemed to lead from the back room of 307 East Forty-fourth Street, in which the wealthy real estate dealer was shot to death on Sunday morning by a supposed burglar, who entered and escaped through an open window.

The man the police are seeking to throw some light upon the crime answers in appearance in some degree to the description of the murderer given by the dying man.

"He was short and stout and dark—very dark," were the words of Mr. Schanbacher when his family found him standing in his night-clothes, looking blankly at the open window through which the murderer had apparently just disappeared.

The Italian from whom the detectives want to hear and whom they expected to find last night in an apartment in the house adjoining the Schanbacher home, is also short, stout, and dark.

Detectives Cummings and Tobin of the East Fifty-first Street Station learned early yesterday that a short, stout Italian who is known to have sometimes carried a .38-calibre revolver, was on the second floor of No. 305 East Forty-fourth Street late on Saturday night. It was supposed that he boarded there with the family of Tony Morello. He had boarded with Morello at 314 East Forty-fourth Street prior to a few days ago, but had moved with the Morello family when they were ordered out of that apartment house by Mr. Schanbacher, who for years had rented the place and sub-let it in apartments.

In the room vacated by the short, dark Italian at No. 314 was found a .38 calibre revolver cartridge. A .38 calibre bullet killed Mr. Schanbacher. It was also learned by the detectives that the fire escape, on which opens the kitchen window of the Schanbacher apartments, runs along the rear of the house at No. 305, and that a man by crawling through a window on the second floor of No. 305 would have been only a few feet from the window through which the murderer entered the Schanbacher kitchen.

There were finger marks on the top of this window, and the paint was smeared as though a man in his stocking feet had crawled through. The detectives also learned that a shot was fired, apparently through this same window, about 9 o'clock on Saturday night, just a little more than five hours before the murder. Several men and women in the houses near by heard the shot, and one woman, Mrs. Cole of No. 305, saw the flash.

The detectives believe that the murderer may then have been testing his revolver to make sure it would shoot when needed. Only two families use the room into which this window opens. One of these families, the detectives say, gave a party on Saturday night, and several friends, all men, were there.

After learning all this the two detectives decided to take the short, stout, dark Italian into custody on suspicion.

Last night at 9:30 o'clock Cummings and Tobin, accompanied by an Italian interpreter, went to the second floor of No. 305 and rapped at the Morello door. The family was preparing for bed. Morello came to a little latticed window which opens upon the hallway and through this talked to his visitors. He said that the short, stout Italian was not there and he knew nothing of him. Such a man had boarded with him, but does not now.

This man, he said, worked in a wrecking crew at the New York Central yards. The detectives will visit the New York Central yards this morning and try to find the man they want. Other Italians in the neighborhood were questioned, but none were inclined to talk of the short, stout man.

"I have always been suspicious of the short, stout fellow who lived with Morello," said Mrs. Cahill yesterday afternoon. "His face scared me, and I was glad when they got out of here. It was a short, stout man in a sweater who threw the bomb in Forty-second Street. This man wore a sweater, too."

One of those who heard the shot fired from the window at 9 o'clock on Saturday night was Freda Schanbacher. She was in the bathroom of her home when this shot was heard. She screamed and ran into the dining room, where her father and mother were. They also had heard the shot, and wondered who could be firing a pistol at such a time.

Mrs. Schanbacher, in recalling this yesterday, said that the noise was like the shot which killed her husband.

"It was just as loud," she said, "as the one I heard after my husband's yell. I sprang out of bed and ran to the back room, where my husband was standing, in his night clothes, pointing to the open window."

Plans had previously been made for the arrest of the short, stout man early in the afternoon. The detectives watched for him to come home from work, but he did not come.

Morello and his boarders lived for about five years at 314 East Forty-fourth Street. There was never ill-feeling between him and his landlady until Friday two weeks ago.

On that day Mr. C. Schanbacher notified the Morellos that they would have to vacate immediately, as he wanted to make some repairs to the apartment. The Italians packed up at once and moved across the street to 305. Although there were no harsh words, the neighbors say that the Italians evidently thought they had been treated badly.

After they left 314 Mrs. Johanna Cahill, the janitress, and her son, Johnnie, went to clean up the Morello apartment.

It was then that Johnnie found the .38 calibre cartridge on the mantel of the room which had been occupied by the short, stout man. Johnnie kept the cartridge. Yesterday when the detectives called on Mrs. Cahill she remembered it. Johnnie fished it out from a drawer and gave it to Detective Cummings.

Mrs. Cahill says that the inmates of the Morello apartment had at least three revolvers while they were living at No. 314.

Many flowers arrived at the Schanbacher home yesterday. They came from the friends and relatives of the murdered man and his wife. In the front room of the apartments the body was laid out. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon. Herman Schanbacher, a brother of the dead man, is on his way from Springfield, Ill., and will arrive to-day. He is an artist of some note in the West, and has painted mural scenes for public buildings in Illinois, according to the story of his nephew, Herman, oldest son of the murdered man.

Herman, the artist, came to this country with his brother George about twenty-five years ago, and after living a while in New York went West to seek his fortune. The brothers were devoted to each other.

COMPANION BADLY INJURED

Trouble in Third Avenue Elevated Car Followed by a Mortal Encounter —Police Make an Arrest.

Two young men who had resented the actions of a party of roystering Italians on a Third Avenue elevated train in the Bronx early yesterday morning were stabbed by two of the Italians after they had left the train. One of them, Ernest Hardman, a machinist of 315 West Twenty-fifth Street, died several hours later in Lebanon Hospital of a stiletto wound in his right lung, while the other, Jacob Theiss, of 418 Willis Avenue, was still in a critical condition last night as the result of a similar wound in the groin.

Hardman and Theiss were on the train going north to the latter's home in the Bronx, where Hardman had been living for several days, when a number of Italians, who had been spending the night in "Little Italy," got into their car at Seventy-sixth Street. For a time they hung on straps and amused themselves by swinging violently into other strap-hangers about them each time the train started and stopped. Then when people left the train some of the Italians would slip into the vacated seats before any of the women who were standing had a chance to get places. The train had crossed the Harlem River when at a station a young woman with a baby, followed by an older woman, got aboard. They saw two empty seats and were making their way toward them when one of the Italians pushed them out of the way, getting the places for himself and a companion.

At this there was much complaint among the women in the car.

"None of these men seem to have any spunk about them," said one woman. "I believe that they'd let their own mothers and wives be insulted by those Dagoes."

The train stopped with a jerk just then and the Italians bumped into Theiss and Hardman, who had seemed about to act on the woman's complaint.

"You'll have to quit this and behave yourself," Hardman told the Italians.

"That's right," agreed Theiss.

The Italians swore in their own tongue and added something in English. For a time it looked as though there would be a fierce fight in the car. The Italians, gesticulating, crowded about the two, who in turn raised their fists.

At 135th Street two of the most quarrelsome left the car. One of them was a man with one arm.

"You'll be all right now," said a guard, who had interfered in the incipient fight, to the two friends.

"We get off here anyway," Hardman told the guard as the train stopped at 143d Street. Two of the Italians, however, followed them down the stairway to the street. As they, glancing back over their shoulders, reached the bottom of the stairway they saw two more who resembled the two who had gotten out at 138th Street, one of them being short in stature and the other having but one arm.

As Hardman and Theiss got to the street the two who were waiting for them moved off a little, so that they got to the sidewalk. Then the two Italians with drawn stilettoes rushed toward them. Before Hardman could guard himself in any way one of the two assailants had thrust a stiletto into his side. He struggled for a moment and then fell to the pavement.

Theiss then found himself engaged with the pair. For a moment he used his fists to good effect, though the one-armed man succeeded in inflicting several small cuts. A final blow settled this assailant, who scuttled off down the avenue.

As the other Italian was about to strike, Theiss knocked him over with a blow. He thought the fight was over, as the man on the ground made no movement for a moment. But when Theiss stepped closer to him the fellow suddenly got partly to his feet and in this position buried his stiletto in Theiss's groin.

As Theiss fell, Policeman Otto Schmuck of the Alexander Avenue Station, who had heard the sounds of the fight further up the avenue, came up. The fleeing Italian was soon overtaken and knocked down by a blow from his nightstick.

Theiss and Hardman were sent at once to the hospital. When the policeman got his prisoner to the station house the Italian said he was Antonio Di Genoza, 20 years old, of 1,451 Robbins Avenue. The patrol wagon with a number of policemen was sent to the Italian tenement at that address and six others were arrested.

The seven were taken to the hospital, where Hardman was now unconscious. Theiss, however, picked out Di Genoza from the line formed before his cot. Later Di Genoza was held without bail by Coroner McDonald. At 3 A. M. Hardman died.

Complaints of rowdyism on the Third Avenue line, especially on Sunday nights, have been frequent. The disorder has embraced everything from baseball games in the cars to rough and tumble fights. The police have frequently been called upon to make arrests in such cases, while not a few have been dealt with by the train crews.

PEDDLERS PROTEST TO METZ.

Parade to Controller's Office to Object to License Fee.

Under the guidance of a professional stimulator of east side news a crowd of Jewish peddlers invaded the Controler's office yesterday afternoon. They marched from the impromptu pushcart marketplace under the Williamsburg Bridge, across Delancey Street, along the Bowery, and thence across Chambers Street to the Stewart Building. In the crowd were men and women, young and old.

Sigmund Schwartz, President of the United Citizen Peddlers' Association of Greater New York, had been "tipped off" that there was something loing, and he was at the head of the procession with the news tipster. No one else in the crowd jostling along behind seemed to know whither they were going or why.

When they passed the market for peddlers that Joe Marcus is building at Delancey and Orchard Streets, the tipster waved his hat and yelled, "Hoo-ray." And the mob behind raised its collective hat and echoed, "Hoo-ray."

At Chambers Street a camera man from a morning newspaper was waiting, and the procession posed in a picturesque group on the steps of the County Court House. But before the camera man could snap the shutter an unsympathetic policeman shooed them all away.

Then Schwartz and his companion went up to arrange an audience with the Controller. They were met at the door of the Controller's room by Sergt. Shavlin.

"The Controller is away, but Deputy Controller John McCooey is here," said the Sergeant. "He'll see you, all right."

So the crowd was herded into the Stewart Building, up one flight of stairs, and along the hallway to the entrance of the Controller's office. There they gathered and stayed till Deputy McCooey appeared.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he nurriedly, "if you will submit your grievances in writing, the Controller will give them earnest consideration."

But Schwartz and the other leaders, with a flow of words and gesticulations, protested that delay would mean ruin. Deputy McCooey, as a compromise, suggested that they "appoint a committee of five, and that the five come around and talk it over to-morrow."

This suggestion was accepted and the leaders told the indignant citizens to go home. They went, the tipster staying behind to tell the reporters all about it. According to his story, two market inspectors, reinforced by a squad of policemen, had appeared in the market under the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday morning and demanded a daily license fee of 25 cents from each peddler. The resultant indignation gradually crystallized into the march on the Controller's office.

Last night a delegation of twenty peddlers presented to Police Inspector Nally a gold framed set of resolutions,

AHEARN DECIDES TO IGNORE INQUIRY

Not Properly Notified of Its Scope, Says Borough President.

HIS REQUESTS REFUSED

Corporation Counsel Talks of Making Charges to the Governor—May Appeal to Court.

On the ground that he had not been properly informed of the scope of the intended inquiry into the workings of his department, Borough President Ahearn refused yesterday, through his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, to appear before the Commissioners of Accounts, Hertle and Von Skal, who are to conduct the investigation, and served notice on them that he did not recognize their right to require him to testify. Mr. Ahearn did not attend the meeting of the Commissioners.

Corporation Counsel Ellison asked the Commissioners to adjourn the examination of Mr. Ahearn for two weeks and to take evidence on Thursday from persons who are to testify against the Borough President. The Commissioners accepted this suggestion. The Corporation Counsel announced later that he would appeal to the Supreme Court for a writ requiring Mr. Ahearn to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt.

When the Commissioners met the Citizens' Union, whose bureau of city betterment made the adverse report which caused Mr. Ahearn to ask for an inquiry, had William M. Ivins present to help the investigation. Corporation Counsel Ellison, representing the city, announced that he was ready to proceed. Mr. Littleton asked for an adjournment to give his client opportunity to learn the intended extent of the investigation.

"I asked that my client be apprised of the facts along the lines of which the investigation was to be conducted," said Mr. Littleton. "The Corporation Counsel agreed to my request. I received a note from J. P. Mitchell, special counsel for the Corporation Counsel, to the effect that there was to be a general inquiry into the conduct of Mr. Ahearn's department. I do not consider that notice definite enough. I think it nothing but fair that the Borough President be furnished with a full account of the scope of the investigation."

Mr. Ellison opposed the request for an adjournment, declaring that the purpose of the investigation was to determine whether charges should be made before the proper tribunal.

"If the investigation shows the need," he added, "charges will be made to the Governor, and Mr. Ahearn will be brought to trial. At present there are no charges."

Mr. Littleton replied that he had not supposed that Mr. Ahearn was to be charged before the Governor, and demanded again that his client, for this additional reason, should know the subject matter of the investigation. After reading from the Mayor's letter of Dec. 28, ordering the investigation, he continued:

"There are charges against Mr. Ahearn of extravagance and waste in the Bureau of Highways and other departments. These charges are made by an outside organization not responsible to the law. The charges have not been presented to the Board of Aldermen, as the charter provides. You are making an effort to try Mr. Ahearn on charges preferred by no responsible parties, and now you propose to make this the basis of charges to the Governor. I submit that such a course is beyond your jurisdiction.

"I will join with the Mayor in a common investigation, and then we will have the proper information. Under such conditions we will welcome an investigation, but I protest against this so-called investigation, which is inspired wholly by a hostile, bitter, and splenetic feeling on the part of one man for President Ahearn. My client does not wish to submit himself to such a cause of hostile action."

"The President of the borough is as safe in your hands, Messrs. Commissioners, as in the hands of a State Committee," said Mr. Ellison.

Mr. Littleton renewed his request for an adjournment, which the Commissioners refused to grant.

"In that case," retorted Mr. Littleton, "I shall stand on my legal rights and decline to recognize the notice to appear here as binding on my client."

Mr. Ellison then asked for the adjournment of two weeks "to test the powers of the Commissioners." His request was granted.

"The Commissioners can do what they have already done, examine the records of the department," said Mr. Littleton later. "But they cannot serve a subpoena and conduct a judicial investigation. The admission that the investigation was to be the prelude to charges before the Governor was just what I wanted. It is worth $5,000 to us. I have been trying to get that admission."

FACTORY GIRLS IN COURT.

Supt. Taylor Accused of Violating Child Labor Law in Employing Them.

The State Department of Labor is waging a crusade against the employment of young girls in factories. No child under 14 is permitted to work in a factory, and children between the ages of 14 and 16 must file certificates with the employers from the Health Board, certifying to their physical condition.

Miss Lillian Foster, an agent of the Department of Labor, summoned Supt. Taylor of the Kursheedt Manufacturing Company, 356 West Broadway, to Jefferson Market Court yesterday on a charge of employing Sarah Spector without a certificate of her age. She was born in Russia, and beyond the statement of the girl's mother, there is no record to prove the age of the child. Mrs. Spector said her daughter would be 16 on July 6. Magistrate Whitman held Taylor in $300 bail for trial.

The cases of three other girls were continued. They were Rose Glickman, 15; Concetta La Castro, 15, and Florence De Flora, all employed by the same firm. The Superintendent said he did not know that the girls were under age or had not filed proper certificates.

Falls Forty Feet and Lives.

DEMOCRATS HAIL BRYAN AS LEADER

FIND ABLEST MAN, HE SAYS

"Don't Care So Much About Being the Candidate Myself"—Great Enthusiasm for Him.

When William J. Bryan appeared last night at the annual dinner of the Brooklyn Democratic Club, held in the Assembly dining hall, he was hailed enthusiastically as the man to lead the Democratic Party in 1908.

There was some difference of opinion among the speakers as to whether Mr. Bryan was to be the candidate or chief general of the forces in the next Presidential election. Some with great enthusiasm, which was responded to liberally by the diners, declared that he would be the next President. Others, while declaring that he would be nominated by the Democratic Party at its next National convention, did not hazard any decided opinion as to the outcome of the campaign.

The general opinion seemed to be that Mr. Bryan would be the leader to whom the party must look for guidance during the next campaign. References were made to President Roosevelt as having stolen Bryan's thunder.

Great Cheering for Him.

Mr. Bryan did not hear many of these expressions of faith in him. Shortly after the serving of the dinner began, Mr. Bryan rose from his place at the guest table and left the dining hall. He hurried away to the Baptist Temple at Third Avenue and Schermerhorn Street, where he delivered a lecture on "The Old World and Its Way," to a large audience. On this occasion he forbore any discussion of politics. Mr. Bryan returned after the dinner, when half the speeches had been delivered.

When his tall form appeared in the rear of the hall the diners rose to their feet and started a wild demonstration. Keyed up to a high pitch of excitement by the forceful remarks of the speakers, who had already addressed them, the diners showed their sentiments by ringing shouts, in which the unmistakable cry "Our next President" was predominant. Mr. Bryan walked smilingly back to the guest table and took the seat he had occupied in the early part of the evening.

Says He's Not Anxious to Run.

Responding to the toast "Thomas Jefferson," Mr. Bryan talked politics long enough to say that he did not care so much about being a candidate himself as of finding the strongest candidate. Then he launched into a discussion of the social and economic conditions of the country, during which he criticised the rich who are slaves to instead of masters of their money, and of the scholars who do not educate the people, but prefer to live buried in their monuments to learning.

"I do not care so much about being a candidate myself," said Mr. Bryan. "I favor the policy of finding the strongest candidate, who can raise the greatest vote, and of working hard for his election. When I realize how much I enjoy seeing a few Democratic principles set forth by a Republican President, I understand how greatly I should rejoice to see these principles set forth by a Democratic President.

"No one is more fortunate than I am. It would require all my life to get even for all the favors which I have received already from the people of the United States. I want to give you a few words of encouragement. A Democrat should work for the Democratic ideas, without any ideae of success, and yet Democrats are human enough to ask for encouragement. What day is better for this purpose than the birthday of the greatest Democrat in all history, of the greatest constitutional statesman who ever lived?

"Thomas Jefferson was the founder of the Democratic Party. He knew the human heart, its strength and its weakness. Thomas Jefferson believed in the people. He believed not only that they had the right to self-government, but that they were capable of self-government. Thomas Jefferson is the finest example to people living under the conditions of to-day.

"One of the chief difficulties of to-day is that the rich do not sympathize with the poor. Thomas Jefferson had money, but still he was the servant of the people. His money was his servant. The trouble at present is that so many people who have money are the servants of their money. I have been asked sometimes how much money a man could have and yet remain a Democrat. I have replied that if a man makes money honestly, it makes no difference, and that he must be master and the money must be servant.

"Another difficulty is that the people of education seem to look down upon the ordinary men. It has been said that the people make history and scholars write it. Let the scholars take part in public life. Thomas Jefferson had the learning of the school, and yet he had a heart in the interests of the people. We can respect every man, who with a great brain has yet a heart unshriveled by prejudice.

"To the enduring men of to-day I present that Thomas Jefferson was heart and mind for the common weal. We must admire him as an exponent of the principles of Government that have found their way around the world. At the Republican banquets we hear much of Alexander Hamilton. Jefferson says that in every country there are naturally two parties; the Democratic Party trusts the people, the aristocratic party does not trust the people. Go where you will you will find two parties."

Then Mr. Bryan gave a sketch of Hamilton's ideas in favor of electing a President and Senators for life. He suggested that the measure of Hamilton's statesmanship was in this plan put forth by him.

"Take this first proposition," said he—"a President for life. Who would be in favor of that? Would not all we younger people have a personal objection? The President is only two years older than I, and in perfect health. If he were President for life what chance would we younger men have? [Laughter and cheers.] If any Republican says that he believes in Hamilton, ask him what

Pistol Fight for a Yacht Ends in a Justice's Trial for Assault.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, April 16.—William Whyard, for eighteen years Justice of the Peace of this town, was on trial here to-day before Justice Platt and a jury on the charge of assault, the charge being that he with a constable and four longshoremen on April 15 attacked Edward H. Leubbers, Secretary of the Volunteer Life Saving Corps of New York City, who was sailing for New York in a yacht which he had contracted for in Nyack. After overtaking him in the middle of the Hudson River, it was charged, the parties had an encounter, during which the alleged assault is supposed to have taken place.

According to the testimony, the battle was fought near Tappan Zee. Leubbers bought a yacht from W. C. Johnson, then doing business under the name of the Clyde Launch and Motor Company, but before it was completed the firm went to the wall and attachments were issued against the property.

Leubbers claims that he had paid for the yacht, and, to avoid complications, he employed a New York pilot with a launch and three longshoremen to get the yacht.

They were getting under way when Constable McNichol stopped Leubbers and took him to Justice Whyard's office.

Leubbers, according to the testimony, went to the Justice's office. There was a washstand there and he suggested to the constable that he wash his hands. The constable went to get a towel, and when he returned Leubbers had fled.

The constable went in pursuit and was joined by Justice Whyard. They engaged the launch Chorus Girl, and, with some longshoremen, started after Leubbers, who was by this time far down the river in the launch, towing the yacht. The Justice and his crew overhauled the launch, and, according to the testimony, drew their pistols and called upon Leubbers and his crew to surrender.

According to Leubbers both the Justice and Constable flourished five shooters and demanded that he put back with the yacht. When he again refused to surrender he alleges they threw him down in the hold and then cut the tow line and made the yacht fast to the Chorus Girl. Subsequently Leubbers was released and on his producing certain papers he got his yacht.

Justice Whynrd denies that he drew a pistol or assaulted Leubbers. On the contrary, he says their greeting aboard the yacht was so cordial that they shook hands. The pistol was drawn, he alleges, by Constable McNichol. The case will be continued to-morrow.

TO LET CLEVELANDERS WALK.

Company in 3-Cent Fare Fight Will Tear Up Tracks.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, April 16.—As a result of the long-standing street railway war in this city, a large proportion of the population soon may have to seek other means of transportation, or even walk.

Some time ago the Supreme Court decided that the Cleveland Electric Railway Company had no right to the lines in Central and Quincy Avenues, but pending negotiations for a lease of the Cleveland Electric's propery by the new Three-Cent Fare Company, the old company continued to run cars on these two lines at a straight three-cent fare. A few days ago all peace negotiations were called off. The first move of the Cleveland Electric was to stop selling seven tickets for a quarter, and to-day a sensation was caused by the statement sent to the Council that within eight days the tracks on the Central and Quincy lines would be torn up, as the company could not make money at three-cent fares.

Mayor Johnson is thus placed in rather a tight hole, and it will be up to him to provide transportation for the thousands who live along these five miles of tracks.

CHICAGO POLICE SCANDAL.

Campaign Contributions Long Exacted from the Force.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Revelations regarding the systematic exaction of campaign contributions from members of the Chicago police force during the last decade in the interests of both political parties, particularly by the retiring administration during the last campaign, will furnish the basis for prosecution of high police officials, and possibly well-known politicians, now contemplated by the State's Attorney's office.

The revelations referred to have been wrung from commanding officers of the police force by the Civil Service Commission, and the testimony of these witnesses was given to-day to State's Attorney Healy for presentation to the Grand Jury, which convenes next Monday.

ALTON CONVICTION UPHELD.

Federal Appeals Court Decides on a Terminal Rebate Case.

CHICAGO, April 16.—The United States Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the conviction in the District Court of the Chicago & Alton Railroad and John M. Faithorn and Fred A. Wann, former officials of the line, for granting rebates. The company and the two officials were found guilty last year, and an aggregate fine of $60,000 was imposed, $40,000 on the railroad and $10,000 each on the two officials.

JUSTICE'S SALARY ATTACHED.

Controller Ordered to Give Part of Fitzgerald's Pay to a Creditor.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas of Brooklyn granted an order yesterday directing Controller Metz to pay over 10 per cent. of the salary of Special Sessions Justice Thomas W. Fitzgerald to George B. Fountain, who recently obtained a judgment of $1,336.16 against the Justice. The order was opposed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Docherty, who said the judgment creditor had a remedy in an action at law against the Controller.

Justice Fitzgerald was declared in contempt of court last Fall for failing to pay a tailor's bill when ordered to do so. He was out of the State at the time, and did not return until January, when he paid the bill and the costs of the action. As a result of Justice Fitzgerald's long absence from the bench the Grievance Committee of the Brooklyn Bar Association has taken up the case and is expected to submit a report at the May meeting of the association.

SECOND POLICE RAID ON ARMED ITALIANS

Bingham's Dragnet Reaches Out Again and Prisoners Now Number 214.

TOMBS PRISON JAMMED

Magistrates Impose Heavy Sentences—Tip Got Out Ahead of Raiders and Hundreds Escaped.

The Italian detective squad attached to Inspector McLaughlin's Central Office bureau stretched the police dragnet last night as it had done on the previous night, and landed another big batch of Italian prisoners on whom they found all sorts of concealed weapons. More than a hundred of the men arrested on Monday night were held for examination in the police courts yesterday. In the majority of cases the bail was fixed at $2,000 and they were sent to the Tombs.

As the City Magistrates have agreed to work in harmony with the police in arresting men found with concealed weapons, it is believed that the habit now so prevalent among the Italians of New York of carrying revolvers, dirks, knives, and stilettos will soon be wiped out. It was on information furnished by men in the employ of the Central Office bureau that the arrests were made yesterday and last night. Many of those caught vowed they would kill the men who had informed on them when they got out.

Both of the policemen who were shot on Sunday are now dead, Alfred Selleck having died yesterday morning in St. Vincent's Hospital.

The murders of these two policemen have aroused the wrath of every policeman in the department, and every man on the force seemed to consider it his duty yesterday to get into the hunt for men carrying concealed weapons. The total number of arrests in the last two days up to last night was 214.

Last Night's Raids in Bronx.

Detectives acting under orders of Acting Captain Price of the Bronx Detective Bureau had two fights with gangs of Italians last night whom they were gathering into the police net for carrying concealed weapons. They got fourteen prisoners.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Detectives Gilde, Abusser, Farrell, Tierney, and Tantredi, under Acting Captain Price, went to "Frog Hollow." They stationed themselves on Morris Avenue near 150th Street, and every Italian who passed was stopped and searched. If he had a revolver or knife he was placed in a doorway and guarded by two of the sleuths, while the others waited for the next catch.

Suddenly a gang of Italians under the leadership of a big Italian came running down the street calling in Italian upon the men in the hallway to break away. Acting Capt. Price sprang into the street, and with one blow of a nightstick sent the Italian to his knees. The others broke and fled. Price dragged the man he had hit into the doorway. He said he was Vincenzo Marro of 150th Street and Morris Avenue. The five prisoners were locked up.

Detectives Connolly, Cabianssco, and McCarton, under Detective Sergeant Wines, stationed themselves in front of the saloon kept by an Italian named Mascio, at Arthur Avenue and 152d Street. As men left the saloon and entered it they were held up and searched. In a short time the detectives had six prisoners. After the arrests three cousins, named Calacchi, dashed upon the scene with drawn revolvers. The three shouted in Italian for all "good men of Italy" to join them and to rescue their fellow-countrymen.

Detectives McCarton and Connolly pushed the six prisoners into a corner and held them at the point of revolvers, while the others closed in upon the attacking party.

The three Calacchis were soon rolling in the gutter and a little later they were in cells.

Bushels of Weapons Seized.

Groups of from ten to twenty were arraigned in every police court in Manhattan yesterday. They offered all sorts of excuses, some explaining that the long dirks they carried were simply bread knives, which they needed at luncheon time, while others tried to get off by saying that the knives belonged to friends. All sorts of knives were brought to view. Two patrol wagons were used to collect the pistols, daggers, stilettos, and dirks after the proceedings at the various courts, and all of the weapons were taken to Police Headquarters, where 180 revolvers of all shapes and makes were counted out on a table. There was a whole barrelful of stilettos, a bushel basket full of knives with double-edged blades, another basket of short, wide-bladed daggers, and a box filled with leaden bludgeons, pieces of gaspipe, and brass knuckles, which had been taken from the men who were arrested yesterday and the night before.

Those on whom loaded pistols were found will all be sentenced to the penitentiary, while the prisoners who were caught with bludgeons, stilettos, and other knives will be dealt with more severely. It is a felony to carry a concealed weapon, which means a weapon such as a bludgeon or brass knuckles, or a long-bladed knife of any sort. The carrying of a revolver, however, is simply a misdemeanor. For the latter offense the extreme penalty is a year in the penitentiary and $500 fine. As there is no special penalty provided for the carrying of concealed weapons, it lies with the Magistrate to impose a seven years' term if he feels so disposed, for the reason that there is a section of the code which says that in case no special penalty is provided for a felony the penalty shall be not more than seven years. The Judges of all branches of General Sessions Court have expressed the opinion that the men found with deadly weapons concealed upon their persons should get the extreme penalty.

Italians from all parts of Manhattan gathered early yesterday morning in the Tombs Police Court for the purpose of making an effort to get relatives or friends out of jail. They said the concealed weapon raids would not have panned out so well if their countrymen had known it was against the law to carry a knife or a dagger. A representative from the District Attorney's office told Magistrate House that every Italian in town was perfectly familiar with the

HUGHES SIGNS POLICE BILL.

Inspectors Planning to Fight the New Law in the Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—Gov. Hughes late to-day signed the Bingham Police bill, which thus becomes law, having before received the approval of Mayor McClellan.

The Tammany members of both houses declare that the bill is unconstitutional. It was learned that it was the intention of several of the Inspectors to resist any action under the law in the courts.

It is freely admitted here that the victory of the Bingham Police bill was due entirely to activity of the Commissioner himself and the favorable impression he created at his various appearances before the committees and the crusade and revelations made in the New York papers regarding police conditions.

Police Commissioner Bingham said last night that he would not make known his policy under the new police law until he had received a copy of it as signed by the Governor.

CHAMBERLAIN VERY ILL.

BOSTON, April 16.—Having received word that the illness of her son-in-law, the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the distinguished English statesman, continues serious, Mrs. W. C. Endicott, widow of the ex-Secretary of War, accompanied by her son, William C. Endicott, and his wife, sailed for Liverpool to-day on the steamer Saxonia.

Mr. Chamberlain last July celebrated his seventieth birthday, apparently in fair health. At the beginning of this year his health gave way, and a statement concerning him was given out late in February. While this did not confirm the worst reports, it showed that Mr. Chamberlain was completely broken down physically, while mentally alert.

Recently, when Mr. Chamberlain left England for the Continent, he was unable to walk unassisted.

PRESIDENT CHOOSES WIGHT.

Offers Post of Internal Revenue Commissioner to Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Roosevelt has tendered the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, made vacant by the resignation of John W. Yerkes, to Pearl Wight, the Republican National Committeeman of Louisiana. Mr. Wight, who is now in Washington, has the offer under consideration, but it was impossible to-night to obtain from him a definite statement as to its acceptance. No white Republican from any of the Southern States now holds an important Federal position in this city. Mr. Wight is one of the big business men in the South, and is said to be wealthy.

The firm of Woodward & Wight, ship chandlers, of New Orleans, owns several plantations in Cuba and Louisiana, and is interested in a number of banks. Mr. Wight has paid little attention to politics, and, although voting the Republican ticket in National elections, frequently supports the Democratic ticket in local and State elections.

SHERIFF CHANLER'S HUNT.

He Searches Philadelphia for a Fugitive Wanted in Dutchess.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Following a futile exploration of the Italian quarters for a fugitive from justice, R. W. Chanler, Sheriff of Dutchess County, New York, returned home to-night. Sheriff Chanler was accompanied by two City Hall detectives and two Italian patrolmen in plain clothes. They searched for a man who was charged with a murderous assault in Dutchess County.

To Superintendent Taylor, the Sheriff said he had accepted office in a determination to rid his home county of the stigma of murder and murderous assaults that had attached to it by reason of the many affrays among the alien population.

CORNELL OUTDOES OXFORD.

So Dr. P. Chalmers Mitchell Assures Students at Ithaca.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 16.—In a commentary on the difference between Oxford and Cornell, Dr. P. Chalmers Mitchell, Secretary of the Royal Zoological Society of London, said to-day that the ordinary man turned out at Cornell was much better fitted to face the world than the average pass man at Oxford. In the latter institution the doctor thought that a man could be too much "dry nursed." A soft man might leave it even worse than when he entered, so much of his work being done by his tutors and his college. Being thrown on one's own resources, as at Cornell, was of tremendous value. Dr. Mitchell stoutly insisted, however, that the Oxford honor man was the best equipped in the world.

He declared that no English university could compare with Cornell in site. He also said that Oxford differed from Cornell in that everything at Ithaca was so tremendously comfortable. Cornell, too, in Dr. Mitchell's opinion, was much more "alive" than Oxford.

HARRIMAN IN WASHINGTON.

He Is the Guest of Honor at Dinner to Scientists.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—E. H. Harriman came to Washington to-night in his private car and was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the home of Charles D. Walcott, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to the members of the National Academy of Sciences in session in the city.

Mr. Walcott said the guests included only men interested in scientific work. Secretary of the Interior Garfield and other prominent Government officials were present. Mr. Harriman left for New York on a late train.

Boy Killed by Live Wire.

Howard Linstrom, 11 years old, was burned to death in the coils of a fallen electric wire at Far Rockaway last night. The boy was a son of the caretaker of Oscar Steiner's cottage at Far Rockaway. He was out alone not far from his home when he became entangled in the wire, which had broken from a pole. Dr. Hill of St. Joseph's Hospital was called, but could do nothing for the boy.

TO TRY 17 CADETS FOR LENDING COATS

PRESIDENT GETS REPORT

Col. Howze Upheld by Washington Authorities for Ordering Visitors to Give Up Garments.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 16.—Seventeen cadets at the Military Academy here are to be put on trial for violation of the rules of the institution in lending overcoats to girl friends. These trials will be the outcome of the incident of Sunday, April 7, when Col. Howze, Commandant of cadets, at dress parade ordered that various girl visitors be deprived of gray coats that had been loaned by cadets to protect their visitors from the wind at dress parade. The court before which the young men will appear will soon be appointed from among the army officers at the Academy by Col. Scott, Superintendent of the Academy.

There is no longer any doubt that Col. Howze is upheld in the action he took by the military authorities, both in Washington and at West Point. In consequence of the protest made by the cadets and the wide publicity given to the incident a report of the whole affair was sent to Gen. Ainesworth, the Military Secretary of the General Staff. It was communicated by him to the War Department and to the President. It can be stated that the President and officers of the department are thoroughly in sympathy with Col. Howze. The order to place the cadets on trial is the direct outcome of comments received from Washington.

Five Young Women Disappeared.

Of the twenty-two young women who appeared on the parade grounds wearing cadet overcoats, five got away before the authorities learned the names of the cadets who owned the coats. These five cadets will escape the ordeal. The other seventeen who will have to face a court are:

A. H. Acher, Pennsylvania, L. D. oBoth, Mississippi, D. H. Crissy, Michigan, R. Donovan, Kentucky, J. C. Drain, Pennsylvania, E. B. Garey, Maryland, C. C. Gee, Idaho, H. Geiger, New Jersey, L. V. Greer, Texas, E. F. Harding, Ohio, F. C. Harrington, Virginia, P. J. Horton, Georgia, E. E. Lewis, South Dakota, G. M. Morrow, Jr., Alabama, H. Pfeil, Maryland, C. J. Taylor, Kansas.

It is known that the punishment of the young men will not be severe, the general impression being that it will be a few demerits, the number to be determined by Col. Scott.

The cadets are still worked up over the affair, but they realize that Col. Howze is determined that regulations of the academy shall be rigidly enforced. Some of the cadets said to-day that they would do the same thing again should any of their girl friends visit West Point on a cold day. Most of them understand, however, that any offender would forthwith be brought up on charges of violating Section 133 of the regulations prohibiting cadets from selling or loaning their clothing.

Too Many Coats Loaned.

It was explained to-day that only the presence of an unusual number of young women at the dress parade wearing the regulation overcoat caused Col. Howze to act. Had there been only a few he probably would have permitted the incident to pass unnoticed. Col. Howze was with Col. Scott, the Superintendent, when he noticed first five young women among the crowd watching the parade who were wearing coats. He winked at that. A few minutes later he saw seventeen more girls similarly clad. Some even had cadet caps. Then he called a Sergeant of the guard and told him to request the young women to take off the coats.

"In as courteous a way as possible," Col. Howze said to the Sergeant. "Inform those young ladies that the owners of the coats they are wearing violated the regulations when they loaned them. Then present my compliments and ask the young women to remove them."

This the Sergeant did, and most of the young women obeyed. Others objected. One young woman, who was accompanied by a civilian, thought the action of the commandant presumptuous, and refused to take her coat off. The Sergeant said he was sorry, but that he must stand by until the order of Col. Howze was obeyed. Five of the girls had wisdom enough to realize that if the owners of the coats became known they would get into trouble, and they quickly left the parade grounds. No attempt was made to follow them. In the other cases the names of the cadets were ascertained.

Col. Howze Sent Regrets.

After the parade Col. Howze asked the seventeen cadets to communicate to him the names of the girls, and to each he wrote a note expressing his regrets that his duty had made necessary the action he had taken. When a committee of the cadets waited on him and made a sort of formal protest against the order he explained what he had done.

"Col. Howze," said an officer at West Point to-day, "knew all along that what he did would be upheld both by the Academy authorities and by those in Washington. It is true that the regulations forbidding the loaning of coats has long been a dead letter here, but Col. Howze believes that there should be no dead-letter regulations, and those who know him are not a bit surprised at the action he took. He is one of the officers who forgets all about things social when they interfere with his administration of the military laws. So there's the explanation of the whole affair."

Col. Howze said to-day that he did not want to discuss the case. The cadets would be punished, he added, "but not severely."

Mexicans Arrest American Engineer.

NOGALES, Arizona, April 16.—On the arrival of Train No. 1 from Guaymas this morning, Philip Clarke, the engineer, was arrested on the Mexican side on telegraphed instructions from Judge Huacaja at Hermosillo. Clarke is charged with rebellion. Clarke's fireman, Martinez, was also arrested, but released later. American Consul Hickwood is investigating the case.

BANDIT GOT $25,000.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 16.—A bandit held up the Northern Express Company's Union depot office to-night and compelled the clerk to open the safe and give him a package containing $25,000.

The robber escaped.

COUNTESS A SUICIDE.

Russian Noblewoman Grieved Over Her Husband's Arrest.

PARIS, April 16.—The Countess de Jotemps committed suicide by shooting with a revolver in this city to-day. The Countess was a Russian, 27 years old, and a woman of considerable beauty. She was married two years ago against the wishes of her parents to the Count de Jotemps. The couple were continually in financial straits.

Last Summer the Count was arrested on a charge of pawning certain jewels that had been sent him on approval by a Paris dealer, and was held in custody for two months. Upon his release the Countess went to Russia, presumably with the object of appealing to her parents for aid.

On her return to Paris she appeared most despondent, and made no attempt to conceal her desperate situation. The fact that her husband, after his arrest, was ostracized by society added greatly to her anguish, and it is believed helped to unhinge her mind.

$200,000 FROM ROCKEFELLER.

BOSTON, April 16.—Announcement was made to-day that the American Baptist Missionary Union has just been assured by John D. Rockefeller that this year his contribution to the needs of the Union will be $200,000. The first installment of $125,000 has already been paid. Of the entire sum $125,000 is for general missionary work, and $75,000 is for buildings.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 16.—It was learned here to-night that a registered package containing $10,000 sent by the Atlantic National Bank of Wilmington to the Chemical National Bank of New York in the last few days was not in the registered pouch when opened in the New York Post Office. No arrests have been made.

A voice answering the general telephone at the Post Office last night said the Superintendent of the registry department should be consulted about such matters. Another voice on that department's telephone said that the possessor of it was only an assistant, and that he could give no more information about such matters than he could about Adam. "Anyhow," he went on, soothingly, "that is a matter for the Department of Depredations, and those people don't work at night at all."

3D-TERM IDEA DISTASTEFUL.

Jacob A. Riis Explains the President's Attitude on It.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Jacob A. Riis, intimate friend and confidante of President Rosevelt, said to-day that the idea of a third term was distasteful to the President, but that he was determined that his successor should be a man who would continue the policies of his Administration.

"If the matter rested with the people of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt would be elected for a third term," said Mr. Riis. "The only thing that stands in the path of a third term is Mr. Roosevelt's decision not to accept it. However, the people will insist upon having his policies continued, and he will see to it that they get what they want."

HONOR FOR DR. ADLER.

Chosen Roosevelt Professor at Berlin University for 1908-9.

In the course of a speech at the Peace Conference last night President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University announced that Dr. Felix Adler had been selected as Roosevelt professor at the University of Berlin for the years 1908-9. The chair is now occupied by Prof. Burgess.

Dr. Butler's announcement was the first public statement of the choosing of Dr. Adler.

The Prussian Minister of Education has most to do with the selection of the Roosevelt professor.

MAX SPITZNER LOSES AN ARM.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 16.—Max Spitzner, who won the National gymnastic championship in several events in the contests at the Madison Square Garden last year, to-day lost his left arm.

It was torn away by machinery in a camera factory in which he was employed. Spitzner was the champion gymnast of Connecticut.

BABY AND MOTHER LOCKED UP

Young Woman Accused of Robbing Another at Bridge Entrance.

Mrs. J. B. Roberts of 110 Ashland Place, Brooklyn, shouted to Policeman Ryan on the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge last night to arrest a young woman whom she had caught. Mrs. Roberts said her prisoner had opened her bag and taken out a five-dollar bill. The woman was taken to the Oak Street Station, where Mrs. Roberts made a charge of grand larceny. Only $2.20 was found on the young woman.

The prisoner said she was Ida Morningstein of 275½ Madison Street. She had a nursing baby at home, she told Sergt. McCarthy. She wished that it might be brought to her. Her husband, a musician, brought to the station a two-months-old baby. It was locked up with the mother.

PEACE CONFERENCE NOT ALL HARMONY

Dutch Delegate Arouses Storm by His Advocacy of Preparedness for War.

STEAD CENTRE OF UPROAR

His Speech at Children's Meeting Cut Off and He Has Lively Tilt with East Siders.

The shouting of nearly 5,000 school children for peace among all nations and an end to war was probably the most pleasing feature of the Peace Congress yesterday, though the lack of harmony among the delegates cropped out even this meeting. Carnegie Hall could scarcely hold the youngsters, who listened patiently for hours to speeches sometimes dry and uninteresting, but rose and clapped as loudly in the late hours as they did in the beginning for the cause that has brought together in this city so many wise men.

Yesterday was the busiest one so far for the delegates. It was a round of sessions from early morn till late at night, with receptions, conferences, and luncheons interlarded, so that the task of attending even a fair part of the ceremonies constituted a forced march in the "war on war" as the peace movement sometimes is called.

Harmony reigned in the women's meeting at Carnegie Hall in the morning. Not so, however, at the first meeting of the afternoon, that held in the great ballroom of the Hotel Astor. Here James W. Van Cleve uttered sentiments that were not at all to the liking of his auditors, and they were not slow to show their disapproval, nor was the speaker backward in resenting interruptions. His defence of the theory of preparation for war as a guarantee of peace caused the trouble. He left the hall before the proceedings ended.

Then at the children's meeting, held in Carnegie Hall at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, came another discordant note. The programme had been long; too long for children. William T. Stead was the last speaker. He began his pilgrimage talk and was in the act of asking the girls and boys to aid him with contributions, when City Superintendent Maxwell interrupted him with "Your time is up."

"I must go on," said Stead, and there was a short wrangle. Finally Mr. Maxwell accorded Mr. Stead 2 minutes, and thus quite spoiled the appeal he was making. When the children called for "Mr. Stead" and applauded, Mr. Maxwell motioned them to desist.

There were two evening sessions; one at Carnegie Hall and the other at Cooper Union. The former was a University meeting, and was attended by a vast crowd, making necessary the holding of an overflow meeting at Calvary Church. Nicholas Murray Butler, who presided, took exception to a statement made by Prof. Munsterberg the night before, and Dr. Felix Adler made an allusion to men perpetuating their names in their gifts, which was regarded by some as a hit at Mr. Carnegie.

The labor meeting at Cooper Union was attended by a great crowd and was addressed by labor leaders, the Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey and William T. Stead. It was one of the most enthusiastic meetings held during the Congress.

Mr. Stead, at this meeting, caused excitement by taking exception to what Mr. Gompers and Dr. Crapsey had said, and by trying to answer all the questions put to him by the audience. Socialists and labor men opposed to Gompers assailed him, and there was quite an uproar. Finally the janitor complained that he wanted to put the lights out, and the crowd was sent home.

VAN CLEVE SOUNDS WAR NOTE.

Dutch Delegate Promptly Interrupted at Hotel Astor Meeting.

The first session in the afternoon was held at the Hotel Astor, and of the audience of 800 three-fourths were women. Those who spoke were Baron d'Estournelles, James W. Van Cleve, Nabum J. Bachelder, and Oscar S. Straus, Secretary of Commerce and Labor. Marcus M. Marks of the National Association of Clothiers presided, and "Commercial and Industrial Aspects of Peace" were discussed.

Baron d'Estournelles told the audience that the question of commerce was the great question of peace, for commerce and peace were inseparable. He said there had always been a lack of interest in Europe in the peace movement, as there had been in The Hague Tribunal until President Roosevelt sent that court its first case, and afterward insisted that another dispute be submitted to it instead of to him personally. He spoke in great praise of the President and of Mr. Carnegie, who had given a "home" to the Tribunal, and closed by urging everyone present to join the International Conciliation League, of which he is the French President.

Mr. Straus spoke briefly, as did most of the others, repeating in part the sentiments he had expressed previously. Mr. Van Cleve, the delegate from Holland, however, had a long speech prepared. He spoke directly to the point, going into details of the money invested in mills and the terrible effect that war had on commerce. He went on to say that arbitration must, at el. hazards, be based on justice. He continued:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace." These were the words of a man who was first in peace as well as first in war. They were the words of a lover of the entire human race—George Washington. And, happily, they are just as applicable to the America of to-day as they were to the America to which they were directed.

To the great surprise of the speaker, there were cries of "No, no," from all over the room, and one man in the rear of the hall rose and shouted in no uncertain tones, "No, no; you're wrong."

"What's the matter?" asked Mr. Van Cleve, turning to Mr. Marks.

"I guess they don't agree with your sentiments," replied the Chairman.

Very red of face, Mr. Van Cleve stuck to his text, however, and a minute later he said:

But suppose that, even with the right on our side, justice is denied to us. What then? Then we must accept Davy Crockett's doctrine.

Being sure that we are right, we must go ahead.

Then he added, loudly: "Just as Dewey said at Manila, I will say that for the benefit of my interupters."

There were murmurs of dissent at this, and several people got up and left. When Mr. Van Cleve sat down, Mr. Marks tried to explain.

"You have listened to a very warlike talk for a peace conference," he said, "but you must remember that we must have patience at a meeting such as this and listen carefully to the opinions of every one."

Mr. Van Cleve was plainly disconcerted by the incident, and left the room at the earliest opportunity.

CHILDREN CHEER FOR PEACE.

W. T. Stead's Appeal to Them Cut Short—Greet Roosevelt Children.

Carnegie Hall, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, was a glorious sight. Orchestra, balcony, gallery, and platform were packed full of young Americans, the girls with their best bonnets and the boys with their hair neatly brushed. The boxes had been reserved for the pupils of private schools, and all the rest of the vast hall was given over to public school children. There were a great number of teachers present, of course, but they were scarcely noticeable amid so many children.

Some of the speeches that had been prepared were hardly suitable for the children, but they were apparently interested, and cheered lustily whenever the peace movement was mentioned. Among the speakers were Nathan C. Schaeffer, Dr. James J. Walsh, Prof. Henry Turner Bailey, and Rabbi Stephen Wise. City Supt. Maxwell presided and made a brief opening address.

The children seemed to take great delight in the address of the Baron d'Estournelles, who hurried up from the Hotel Astor to talk to them. He commenced to speak in French, to the amazement of the youngsters. In his own language he asked them a question, and waited for an answer. It was not forthcoming, of course. With a shrug the Baron asked them to answer; then wanted to know if he should speak in English, to which there were cries of "Oui!" which amused the speaker greatly.

He said he thought it was selfish of the children to make him speak in English, and pointed a moral from the difference in languages, declaring that misunderstandings were often brought about by small things, and wars resulted. He completely won the children before he had been speaking two minutes.

He told the boys and girls that he had met the President's children and had found them "good." Of course they played tricks.

"One of them," he said, "offered me some sweets out of a box that was quite empty, and the other put in my pocket his guinea pig."

Then of the President he said:

"I have known more than the President of the United States; I have known the man Roosevelt; one of the best and greatest of men, and one of the most respected."

If the assemblage had been a convention of Republicans the applause could not have been more deafening.

There was a remarkable drill by thirty boys dressed in white on the stage after that, and a salute to the flags of the city, State, and Nation. During the proceedings, too, a child's chorus on the platform sang specially arranged peace songs to well-known airs, and every boy and girl in the house took the oath of allegiance to the flag. At Baron d'Estournelles's suggestion a telegram was sent to the children of President Roosevelt:

"The children of New York send a message of congratulation to the children of President Roosevelt, who has done so much for peace."

The story of the placing of a statue of Christ at the highest point on the road between Chile and Argentina in commemoration of the peace between those two nations was told the children by Carolina Huidobro, and then Mr. Stead spoke. It was after 5 o'clock when he began.

Mr. Stead told the boys and girls that Great Britain owed a debt of gratitude to George Washington for having licked George III. He said that he had been talking to an old man about his project of a pilgrimage to The Hague Conference, but that the old man shook his head. Then he explained that his idea was to take twelve men from America to the capitals of Europe and to the conference, to insist on a practical programme being adopted, and the possibility of sudden war being forever destroyed.

"But," he said with emphasis, "Oh, that damnable word 'But'."

At this Mr. Maxwell showed signs of impatience.

Then Mr. Stead said he had found the older people in this country liked his plan, but did not see how he could carry it out. The people who had means to help him had not the time, though they had the time to go to Europe every year. He sometimes thought that the older Americans' hearts had dried up until there was nothing left but the clinking of a dollar. They seemed to him to represent all that was worst in the country cankered by too much prosperity.

"Time's up," said Mr. Maxwell.

"I must go on," said Mr. Stead, and on he went.

He explained how his twelve pilgrims would go to the President and to Secretary Root, and then to all the rulers of Europe, and get the necessary indorsement of their programme, and then go to The Hague.

"You really must stop," said Mr. Maxwell.

"I must go on; I must go on," exclaimed Mr. Stead, warm with eloquence.

"I say you must not go on," said Mr. Maxwell. "Some of these children have two hours to go before they get home."

"But it is late now."

"I will yield to the Chair in two minutes."

"You may have two minutes, but no longer."

"Why do you ask me to come here and make an appeal and then not give me the chance to make—" began Mr. Stead.

"I said you only had two minutes, Mr. Stead," said Mr. Maxwell.

All this time the children had been applauding vigorously. There were cries of "Go on," and "Mr. Stead, Mr. Stead." Mr. Maxwell raised his hand for silence, and the children near him obeyed.

Mr. Stead finished his appeal very quickly. He told the boys and girls that they could help him carry out the plan, and that if it was God's will he had no doubt they would do so. He sat down evidently very much annoyed.

Then Mr. Maxwell made a brief closing speech and told the children how they were to file out of the building.

THE NIGHT SESSIONS.

University Leaders Talk of Peace—A Hit at Carnegie.

Speeches on the attitude of university men toward the peace movement, punctuated with college glees of an incongruous character, were the feature of the evening session at Carnegie Hall. At the conclusion of a peroration by Dr. Felix Adler, for instance, the Yale Glee Club sang, to the great delight of the audience, "Oh, Where, oh, Where, Can My Little Dog Be?"

The meeting was termed a university meeting, and was presided over by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia. The presence of a great many college men, including a delegation from the Military Academy at West Point, had presumably brought out a multitude of sweethearts and mothers, as well as fathers, for the hall was more crowded than at any previous session.

In his opening speech President Butler took exception to one of the speeches made on the evening previous. After declaring that the universities stood first and foremost as representative of the ideals of the people he said:

Last night on this platform poor use was made of a noble sentiment. "Infamous the nation which does not sacrifice everything for her moral integrity," said the speaker, and he interpreted this as an excuse and foundation for expressions in favor of wanton militarism. He misinterpreted the real feeling of the people for whom he presumed to speak. It is a full generation since the nations of Western Europe have stained their hands with war against each other. At no time in history has economic and industrial progress been so rapid as during this era of peace.

Believe me, the moral integrity of a nation is shown not by surrender to militarism, but by stern resistance to it. Defense against assault is the privilege and duty of a nation, as it is the privilege and duty of an individual. Defensive armaments are not evidences of militarism. Exaggerated armaments which, by their very existence, are an invitation to offensive use, are an evidence of militarism. Infamous indeed is the nation which will not sacrifice everything for its moral integrity; but it will find its moral integrity in following the teachings of ethics and the exhortations of reason, and to these teachings and exhortations the universities give constant and emphatic voice.

His speech was taken as referring to the remarks of Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard, whose utterances had also been made a point at issue by Mr. Carnegie. Prof. Munsterberg was present on the platform when President Butler spoke.

After Mr. Butler, the first speaker was Dr. John Rhys of Oxford, who spoke of how war robbed countries of their learned men. He mentioned also the Rhodes scholarships, which sent American scholars to Oxford every year, and wished that Englishmen might attend American colleges, though he feared they would never come back. He said the university he represented had contributed somewhat toward the peace movement and thoroughly appreciated the steps in the direction of peace taken by this country.

Dr. Rhys was followed by the Rev. E. S. Roberts, Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, who made the suggestion that the setting aside of one Sunday in the year in all countries to be devoted to the discussion of universal peace would accomplish much for the peace movement, as it would cause the minds of men to dwell on the subject at least for a time, and the very fact that on the same day every people of the world were thinking of the same thing would aid the cause greatly.

Dr. Felix Adler of the Ethical Culture Society followed, speaking to the point that the university men could do much by contributing to public reason, as against public sentiment. The "sober second thought" of the university men, he believed, would do much for peace in times of excitement. Then, having said that men perpetuate their names by various means and by "having their names emblazoned over the doors of philanthropical institutions they had founded," he added that "there is something higher and more spiritual than this, and that is anonymity; the desire to let the work stand and the name be forgotten." By some of those in the audience it was thought that Dr. Adler was making an indirect reference to Mr. Carnegie.

The other speakers at the meeting were Miss Jane Addams, who said that newspapers were an important factor in the peace movement, as they brought people nearer together; John H. Finlay, who recalled that an arbitration scheme was devised 600 years ago, and had not yet been adopted, and Edwin D. Mead, who spoke in praise of the world's peacemakers, Kant, Grotius, Sumner, and many others.

Unfortunately, neither President Eliot of Harvard nor President James of the University of Illinois were present, though they had been expected. President Eliot will be present at to-day's session.

Eighteen hundred people, mostly from the lower east side, gathered in Cooper Union last night to listen to discussions on "Organized Labor in Relation to the Peace Movement." Joseph R. Buchanan presided. Among those who spoke were Frank K. Foster, Dennis A. Haynes, James J. Murphy, James O'Connell, and John F. Tobin, all of whom represent labor unions.

The burden of the speeches was that the laborers were more interested in universal peace than any one else, because war meant greater hardship for the workingman than for any other class; his was the body that stopped the bullets, his the family left bereft.

Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, said in part:

We in labor have been fighting for years for some part of that which we feel to be due to labor. We have had to fight as well as contend for the right, not that we had hearts in nor loved contest, but because justice we found could not be secured otherwise.

But the one who has borne the brunt of battle will seek some way to maintain independence and honor without the necessity of battle. Nor as workers will we permit ourselves to be shot down in order to conquer the markets of barbarians and savages. [Applause.] I know of no gathering of labor in the last twenty-five years which did not declare itself unequivocally for international brotherhood and peace.

Miss Leonore O'Reilly of the Woman's Trades' League referred to the sermon preached by the Rev. Dr. Dix, in which he expressed thanks for a standing army.

"I read these words with horror," she said. "To think that one who calls himself a follower of the Gentle One should say such words."

This was received with great applause.

Mr. Stead, when he rose to talk, was greeted with "You're all right, Bill."

"But you are not all right," began the Englishman; and he then told the audience that he was very much dissatisfied with them for agreeing with the sentiments of Mr. Gompers and Dr. Crapsey, which were directly opposed on the question of disarmament. He was loudly applauded.

"And now you applaud me for telling you your faults," he said. Then he explained his pilgrimage idea at length, and was interupted by a Socialist, who declared that "all this peace talk is a lot of nonsense," and dragged in "the exploitation of the laboring classes." This interrupter also said that Gompers and Powderly, whom Mr. Stead proposed taking to Europe, were not real labor leaders.

"We usually get back at our speakers down here," shouted one man, "but there was so many of youse to-night we had to be polite."

Everybody started talking at once, and there was quite an uproar. Then Mr. Buchanan announced that the janitor wanted to close up and sent the crowd away, still wrangling among themselves.

WOMEN DECLARE FOR PEACE.

Their Share in the Present Movement Discussed at Carnegie Hall.

What proved to be the most harmonious session of the Peace Congress thus far was the women's meeting yesterday morning in Carnegie Hall, when the "Relation of Women to the Peace Movement" was discussed. Women from all parts of the country, and from many foreign countries as well, were present. On the platform were women representatives of every State. A few men were present, and one spoke.

Music by the St. Cecilia Society and the Wednesday Morning Singing Club added to the attractiveness of the programme. The soloist was Miss Jeanette MacClenahan and the musical programme was under the direction of Victor Harris. Mrs. Anna G. Spencer presided.

The first speaker was Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of Boston, who reviewed at length "The History of the Peace Movement." She traced the movement from the time of Grtius down to the Czar's manifesto in 1898, through the first Hague Conference, and concluded:

The Second Hague Conference, which this time includes not merely twenty-six nations, but all the forty-six nations of the globe, offers the greatest opportunity in human history to lessen the world's poverty and misery. Let every teacher tell her pupils of it. Let every woman who believes in prayer pray for it. Let every mother, wife, and daughter speak words of wisdom about it in their households. Let not the women of America be childish and inert when such stupendous issues hang in the balance.

Mrs. Ellen M. Henrotin of the Woman's Industrial Trades Union League spoke on "The Home and the Economic Waste of War." She said that while woman had played no active part in the wars of the past, for the most part, she had suffered none the less, through the laying waste of her home and the killing of those on whom she depended for support.

Miss Mary E. Wooley, President of Mount Holyoke College for Women, spoke on "The Relation of Educated Women to the Peace Movement." After saying that women's opportunity extended into every walk of life and the union of the intellectual and the emotional gave woman a peculiar fitness for any uplifting work, she concluded:

The peace movement places the emphasis upon the man who can think, rather than upon the one who can fight; it would make right stronger than might; subordinate selfish interests to the common good; allay passion, promote self-control, and give to individual, nation and race the opportunity to "set the noblest free."

Mrs. Frederick Nathan, President of the Consumers' League, spoke of the commercial advantages of peace and declared that war was too unbusinesslike for a businesslike nation to indulge in because of the enormous expense of hostilities.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, made an earnest appeal to the women present to make peace as attractive to the men as war was; to make it as spectacular and give it an appeal to the imagination that was totally lacking. If this was done, she said, there would be no more war, but the trouble was that women had little imagination and development of what she did possess was necessary.

The last speaker at the meeting was William Archer, the dramatic critic of The London Times, who appealed for a "United States of Europe." He pointed to this country as the leading spirit in peace, and ascribed this to the love of country and of flag. The peace that prevailed here, he said, between the States was a very different thing from the Pax Romana or the Pax Britannica of India, and he emphasized the fact that the United States was free from the rancors, jealousies, and cupidities which kept Europe continually under arms. He concluded as follows:

I am sure artist, ladies and gentlemen, nor have I had time to take counsel with designers. But I suggest that, in the form of the flag, the analogy with the Stars and Stripes should be emphasized. The star, as it is the most wonderful of all visible things, is the most beautiful of all symbols; and I have floating in my mind a vision of a Star of Stars—a star-cluster grouped so as to form a single star—which I think might perhaps serve the purpose. To that star we and our children might quickly learn to look up with pride, with hope, with reverence. Under the guidance of that star we should march forward to a world, freed from the awful burden, the pitiful stupidity, of war; for it would indeed be a star of sweet influence, radiating, in very truth, the spirit of peace on earth and good will toward men.

Sir Edward Elgar, who was to have spoken, was unavoidably detained, and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was to be guest of honor, was unable to be present.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

Conference to End with Two Dinners This Evening.

What may prove to be the most important meeting of the delegates to the Peace Congress will be held at Carnegie Hall at 10:30 o'clock this morning. This will be a general conference of delegates for the purpose of submitting and considering resolutions. Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood will preside, and it is expected, owing to the differences of opinion that have been expressed, that there will be some argument on what resolutions shall be passed.

In the afternoon there will be a regular session in Carnegie Hall at 3 o'clock, at which William J. Bryan will be one of the speakers. Seth Low will preside, and the other speakers will be Richard Bartholdt, William W. Morrow, Senator James B. McCreary, John W. Foster, and Diego Mendoza.

There will also be a conference of peace workers at the Broadway Tabernacle at 9:30 o'clock, at which Mrs. Lucia A. Mead will preside, and in the evening the delegates will wind up their session with two dinners, one at the Hotel Astor and the other at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Carnegie will preside at the Astor and Mr. Low at the Waldorf. The speakers, as far as possible, will be heard at both places. The list includes James Bryce, the British Ambassador; Earl Grey, Governor of Canada; Dr. Edward Everett Hale, President Eliot of Harvard, Archbishop Ireland, Dr. Lyman Abbott, and Samuel Gompers.

KING TALKING A HAND.

British Ruler Believed to be Interested in Hague Conference.

NAPLES, April 16.—Orders have been given that as soon as the royal yacht bearing King Edward arrives here she is to be put in direct telegraphic communication with London.

From this the conclusion is drawn that King Edward has certain diplomatic matters, probably The Hague Peace Conference, under advisement during his cruise in the Mediterranean.

The Municipality of Gaeta, at a meeting held to-day, adopted a resolution to ask King Edward to visit the tomb of Cicero, which was recently found at Formia, on the Gulf of Gaeta, where the celebrated Roman philosopher was assassinated on Dec. 7, 43 B. C.

ROME, April 16.—The proposition of the Italian Foreign Minister, Signor Tittoni, that a concrete proposal for the limitation of armaments be communicated to all the powers before the meeting of The Hague Peace Conference, with the understanding that the powers can either reject the proposition or recommend it for consideration after the adjournment of the conference, was communicated only to France, Great Britain, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, and America, and to none of the minor powers.

The answer of the United States to this proposal is not known.

SPAIN TO INCREASE NAVY.

Programme Provides for Expenditure of $16,000,000 More a Year.

MADRID, April 16.—The Minister of Marine in an interview to-day declared that the naval programme to be presented at the opening of the Cortes provided for fresh expenditures amounting to $16,000,000 annually and lasting for several years.

The propositions approved by the Naval Consultative Committee include the construction of a defensive squadron, the improvement of the coast defenses, and the reorganization of the arsenals.

It is understood in well-informed circles that the total of the appropriations demanded amounts to $64,000,000.

Lord Grey to Speak Here To-day.

OLD GUARD'S NEW OFFICERS.

Major Charles A. Stadler, Commandant of the Old Guard, has announced these appointments to the staff, with the rank of Captain: George H. Wyatt, Adjutant; John Parr, Aide de Camp; Belden J. Rogers, Quartermaster; Frederick W. Seybel, Commissary; Rastus S. Ransom, Judge Advocate; Homer W. Warner, Surgeon; Charles A. Dubois, Inspector of Rifle Practice; Frank H. Clement, Captain of Engineers; Herman A. Metz, Inspector; William F. Coxford, Ordnance Officer; Frank B. Whitney, Paymaster, and the Rev. James B. Wasson, Chaplain.

The battalion will parade in full dress uniform next Monday to celebrate its eighty-first anniversary. After the installation at the armory by Adjt. Gen. Henry, the command will march to St. Thomas's Church, in Fifth Avenue, where the memorial services are to be held. The annual dinner will be held at the Hotel Astor the same night.

concealed weapon section of the code. He added that the majority of Italians in New York City knew that members of the Black Hand band recognized each other by producing two knives, a long and a short one. This means of identification accounted for the large number of knives rounded up in the raids.

Got Tip that Raid Was Coming.

Detective Sergeant Joseph Petrosini, who was in command of the raiders, told Magistrate House that his squad had been divided up and sent to the various Italian colonies about Manhattan, and, entering saloons and other public places, had no trouble in picking out what he termed the "lazzione," or bad men. The detectives had been at work only fifteen minutes when the tip was telephoned all over town. Otherwise Petrosini said his men would have rounded up at least one thousand offenders. Each place that got the tip notified its patrons, and in many instances Italians with knives and revolvers dropped or hid them in saloons just before the arrival of the detectives. In one saloon that Petrosini entered he found sixteen stilettos and twelve revolvers hidden in a glass-washing tank of water, where the weapons had been hurriedly deposited.

While the complaints were being drawn up in the Tombs Court, Sergt. Gorman, acting under instructions from Police Headquarters, ordered the doors closed, and then with a squad of uniformed policemen began a systematic search of the clothing of every man in the courtroom, or, in other words, of the friends and relatives of the men who were about to be arraigned. Although seventy Italians were searched, not a knife or a pistol was found, the Italian interpreter explaining that the men had left their weapons at home for fear of being subjected to just such a search.

The police next tackled the Italians who were waiting out in the corridors of the Criminal Court Building, with like result.

As one man after another was committed to the Tombs, the Warden of the prison began to get alarmed. He already had 596 prisoners to care for, and had little room for any more. He telephoned to Correction Commissioner Coggey, asking what should be done with the extra prisoners brought in, and the Commissioner ordered that as many as three or four be placed in one cell.

Coroner Peter B. Acritelli, who was in court, said that he intended to start a movement for the passage of a law that would deport Italians caught carrying concealed weapons. The better element of Italians in this city, he said, had been annoyed and worried for many months by Black Hand murders and threatening letters from bands of blackmailers, so he intended to interest the leading Italians of the city in his movement to crush out the weapon-carrying habit. Coroner Acritelli said that two-thirds of the crimes perpetrated in New York were committed by his countrymen—Italians—but when it came to arresting them there were no witnesses willing to testify against them.

In the Court of Special Sessions, Justice Wyatt imposed sentences ranging from one month to six months, and a fine on prisoners who were found with loaded revolvers. Two American-born citizens told the Justice that they carried the weapons for the purpose of defending themselves from the Harlem Black Hand band. This excuse did not go, however, and the men were committed to the Tombs. The crush of prisoners in the Tombs became so great that Warden Flynn was again compelled to telephone the Correction Commissioner, telling him that the Tombs was now so badly crowded that at least a hundred prisoners there had no cots to sleep on.

Commissioner Coggey sent 100 cots to the Tombs later in the day, and these were placed in the exercise room on the top floor of the prison building, where many of the concealed weapon prisoners were huddled together for the night with extra keepers from the workhouse to guard them. Many of the prisoners were desperate-looking fellows, whom Petrosino identified as old offenders, and some of them may be shipped back to Italy if their records of crime can be produced by the detectives.

By 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Tombs had become so crowded that Commissioner Coggey had to send out notices to the keepers of the district prisons not to ship any more prisoners downtown.

Magistrate Barlow, in the Jefferson Market Court; Magistrate Cornell, in Harlem, and Magistrate Finn, in the Essex Market Court, held large batches of the Italians yesterday. The Magistrates said they would support the police to the limit of the law.

Judge O'Sullivan of the Court of General Sessions, who has been imposing limit sentences on Italians convicted of carrying concealed weapons, said that if the police kept up the good work New York would soon be rid of the Black Hand men and fewer murders would be recorded.

Some May Get Seven Years.

Judge Rosalsky of the General Sessions said: "I gave one of the stiletto men a limit sentence on Friday last. He was a Black Hander, and pleaded guilty to attempted extortion and to carrying concealed weapons. After sentencing him to two and a half years in prison on one indictment, I found a way of adding seven years more for the reason that the code provides no particular penalty for the particular crime of carrying concealed weapons, but has a clause which provides a seven-year limit for felonies for which no particular penalty is prescribed."

Police Commissioner Bingham yesterday said he intended to keep up the stiletto raids until he had the town cleared of Black Hand men and pistol carriers. He said that the police would soon succeed in making New York a very safe place to live in if the Magistrates and Judges of the Sessions would back him up. As they had agreed to do this, the work would go along smoothly. Commissioner Bingham said a stop ought to be put to the promiscuous sale of revolvers. The weapons confiscated by the police, he said, ought to be destroyed, and not sold at public auction, as is now the case, the proceeds of the annual sale being turned over to the Police Pension Fund.

Won't Sell Weapons at Auction.

"We have now at Headquarters about 2,000 pistols," said the Commissioner, "and I don't feel like selling them at public auction for 25 or 50 cents each. They should be destroyed, and I am not going to sell them."

Justice Wyatt of the Special Sessions said that in view of the alarming facts resulting from the stiletto raids, the Justices of the Special Sessions Court would in the future impose the maximum penalty on all foreigners who were found guilty of carrying revolvers. This would be a year in the penitentiary and $500 fine, or 500 additional days in prison.

John J. Hamburger, a Director of the Kings County Democratic Club, went to Albany last night to have introduced in the Legislature a bill making it a felony to carry firearms without a permit. His bill provides a punishment of six months in prison without the alternative of a fine. In the case of a second offense the penalty is to be two years in prison or a fine of $500.

DEMOCRATS HAIL BRYAN AS LEADER

chance Republicans would have had and point out that Cleveland is still alive.

"What about Senators holding office for life? I can understand that in New York you might be in favor of it, [great laughter,] but the worst objection is that the Senate would be too Hamiltonian in methods. The most popular institution of to-day is the election of United States Senators.

"The most popular reform to-day is the proposal to elect United States Senators by direct vote. The people have studied it. Sixteen years ago I had it in my platform when I stood for Congressman. I have seen five Congresses act upon it. I have seen nearly two-thirds of the States favor it. I have seen two National Conventions adopt it. Can I not say that I have seen the Jeffersonian idea grow in the estimation of the country?

Plea for the Referendum.

"One thing is coming and nothing can defeat it—the initiative and the referendum. We put that in the Democratic platform in Nebraska ten years ago last Summer. It seemed rather advanced, and I remember at the time that one Republican paper suggested that it was a new kind of Democratic drink. Since then Republican State after Republican State has adopted this Democratic drink.

"No one will deny the value of the initiative and the referendum unless you deny the capacity for government of the people. You may differ with me on other points, but if you do not believe in the right of the people to govern themselves you will drive yourselves out of the Democratic party, and if the Democratic party does not believe in the rule of the people, you will have no trouble in driving me out of the Democratic Party. (Cheers and yells.)

"The faults of government do not lie in the people, but in the people they elect, for they betray their trust and turn to private advantage the power that has been handed over to them. The initiative would put it in the power of the people to act as they would wish to act. The referendum gives the people the right to pass upon anything which the Legislature has already adopted. Already you give to your Governor the right to veto any legislative measure. Who will say that the majority of the people have not also the right to veto?

"Not only are these ideas of Jefferson gaining ground in the country, but throughout the whole civilized world. If everywhere you find your ideas are gaining ground does not that increase your faith in them? I believe it is the destiny of our Nation to shake every throne upon etarth, not by force, but by showing the strength of a Government which rests upon the people.

"It is said that I have raised myself. It is, rather, true to say that I have attached myself to principles which have risen and have raised me with them. In my home city I have reminded them that they have buried me several times. I have asked them why they have found it so difficult to keep me under ground. I have told them that it was not genius, but they could not destroy my faith in the principles for which I stood. I have invented nothing. What I have preached has been called in derision 'Bryanism.' But I have not made these things. They have made me. [Shouts and cheers.]

"I only want to show my gratitude to the country for what it has done for me. A man may serve his party best by serving his country best. And so I have praised the President when he has acted in a Democratic manner, as I would have expected, if I had been President, praise from Republicans when I put Republican principles into practice. And why should I not?

"The President has no popularity to-day except when he puts in practice what the Democrats have advocated before him. He has proved the popularity of Democratic ideas. He has proved, by going against Democratic ideas at times, the unpopularity of Republican ideas."

Then Mr. Bryan quoted the ship subsidies as an example of the unpopularity of Republican ideas; also the elastic currency, with the banks holding both ends of the elastic; also the attempt to interfere with the school system of California. He pointed out that as soon as the President meddled with that he aroused a strong State's rights sentiment throughout the Pacific slope.

Bryan's Prophecy.

Mr. Bryan concluded with this prophecy: "In 1908 we shall not only win a victory, but shall be in power for generations, and it shall fall to our lot to carry out all the reforms for which the people are clamoring."

Mr. Bryan was wildly cheered as he sat down.

President Moynahan spoke a few words of welcome for the noted Nebraskan, but to Edward M. Shepard, the father of the club, was intrusted the real task of welcoming the guest of the evening. Mr. Shepard hailed Mr. Bryan as the leader of the Democratic Party. After telling the principles for which the Brooklyn Democratic Club stood and for which it has labored since its organization in 1880, Mr. Shepard said in part:

During the last ten years the intelligence and the sound emotions of Americans have been stirred to a hatred of oppressive and greedy monopolies and of corrupt and dangerous abuses of financial and organized power—stirred as never before, except during the year when Jefferson gave the dominant inspiration to this Republic, or when in the fifties and the early sixties the battle was on against human slavery. The work of wholesome, even if disturbing, public upheaval has now gone far; the prompt and practical leverage of public opinion has now been efficiently and even wonderfully strengthened.

Responding to the toast "The Mother of Presidents," Mr. Tyler of Virginia recounted the accomplishments of the sons of "the proud old Commonwealth, the mother of States and statesmen" in all life's callings. Declaring that the opportunity of the Democracy was at hand, Mr. Tyler continued:

"I have been asked to say a word as to what the people of the South think of William Jennings Bryan. The mention of his name down there is as potent in flashing a magic spell of enthusiasm as it was in 1896. This is indisputably true with the great masses of the people.

Other speakers were Augustus Thomas on "Democracy"; Ollie James of Kentucky, "Democracy in the South"; Gov. Warfield, "A United Party"; Controller Metz, "New York City"; John W. Tomlinson of Alabama, "Law and Public Opinion"; W. S. Jackson, "New York State"; William Sulzer, "Congress," and George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, "Government Control of Railroads."

The Men at the Dinner.

The dinner was undoubtedly the largest and the most representative that has been held in Brooklyn in many years. There were 500 members and friends of members of the club present, and it was said that 1,500 more were unable to obtain seats.

At the guest table sat Daniel Moynahan, President of the club; Gov. Warfield of Maryland, Gov. Tyler of Virginia, Lewis Nixon, and Edward M. Shepard. Other guests included Perry Belmont, Bird S. Coler, Robert Davis, A. H. Eastmond, William J. Gaynor, William S. Jackson, Ollie M. James, Jefferson M. Levy, Patrick F. McGowan, Herman A. Metz, Charles F. Murphy, Josiah Quincy, Augustus Thomas, John W. Tomlinson, Augustus Van Wyck, and George Fred Williams.

There were also delegations from neighboring States present. From New Jersey came E. A. Van Nest, President of the Bergen County Democracy, and George Hamill and ex-Mayor Hoos of Jersey City, with many followers. Robert Davis of Hudson County and Luther Campbell of Hackensack also brought some constituents. From Massachusetts came Josiah Quincy and George Frederick Williams, with delegations.

NEED CRIMINAL LAW IN ELECTIONS---BRYAN

Corrupt Givers of Big Political Funds, He Says, Should Go to Prison.

BOTH PARTIES GUILTY

Hints at Publicity Bill Hearing That White House Disclaimer Was Insincere.

W. J. Bryan appeared before the National Publicity bill organization yesterday noon at the Hotel Victoria, and outlined what kind of bill calling for public statements of campaign contributions he thought best. Perry Belmont, in introducing Mr. Bryan, said that the Nebraskan could be depended upon, if he should be nominated for the Presidency again, to insist that the Democratic National and Congressional Campaign Committees make public their receipts and expenditures, even if he were not elected.

"I am not prepared to say what part I shall take in the next campaign, or what part I shall desire to take," began Mr. Brynn, modestly. "But I am interested in this movement, and I want to lend whatever influence I have to carrying out what it represents.

"This movement rests on the idea that there should be honesty in politics. There is not as much enthusiasm for honesty in politics as there should be. It is not honest politics to formulate and adopt a platform and nominate a ticket on that platform if there is a secret understanding that the platform policy will not be carried out in case of election."

Corporations the Givers, Says Bryan.

Mr. Bryan said that such legislation was made necessary primarily by corporations. He didn't think that one person would, except in rare instances, have sufficient interest in directing legislation and executive action to give the large contributions that corrupt. It was the corporations, he said, who induced public servants to betray their constituents.

"This evil is not confined to one party," went on Mr. Bryan. "In an examination of Mr. Havemeyer, the head of the Sugar Trust, he said he had contributed to the Democratic fund in New York, to the Republican fund in Massachusets, and he admitted that something had been given out in New Jersey. 'To what party there?' he was asked. 'Oh, I'll have to look at the books on that,' he answered, 'that's a doubtful State.' If the race was close, it is a safe bet, at even 16 to 1, that he gave to both sides."

Mr. Bryan's idea of a proper publicity bill was that all contributions above a set minimum amount should be made public. He thought one statement of receipts and expenditures should be made about thirty days before the election, a supplemental statement about ten days before election, and still another after the shouting was over.

"I won't mention any names," continued Mr. Bryan, "but we have known of candidates who vowed before election that they were not receiving any money from corporations, whereas after-election developments proved that huge bundles of corporation money had gone toward their election. They decry the set of men who received such money, but passionately declare that when they next run for office only righteous men will have charge of that branch of the campaign work. And finally they can run in the original set of men again, possibly on the ground that time has purged their hearts of all evil."

Criminal Law the Only Cure.

The speaker said he thought that nothing short of the criminal law would serve to purify our elections. The publicity bill to be finally adopted by Congress, he went on, should make it a penal offense for the person making a contribution, and the committe receiving it not to make public a statement of the amount, and the purpose for which it had been spent.

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor claimed for the labor political organization the honor of being the first in this country to actually make public all their receipts and expenditures. That was done by the American Federation after the last election in a report that showed the names of the contributors, the amount of the contribution, and the purpose for which the money was expended. Speaking for organized labor, he pledged the Federation's support to the movement.

In his speech Mr. Belmont said that he had written letters to the Chairmen of the Democratic and Republican Congressional Committees after last election, suggesting that they follow the good example of the American Federation of Labor in making a public report of contributions and expenditures. The Democratic Chairman, while saying that he could not, "with propriety," publish the names of contributors, could say that none of the contributions had come from corporations, so far as he knew.

Sherman a Dodger, Says Belmont.

But no sort of satisfactory answer had ever been received from James Sherman, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, Mr. Belmont said. He read a letter from Mr. Sherman's secretary, dated last October, which said that the writer would call the attention of Mr. Sherman to the matter when he should recover from his illness. Mr. Belmont continued sarcastically that he had noticed that Mr. Sherman had been able to attend the sessions of Congress and then to go to Panama, but that his indisposition had not lifted enough to allow him to answer his letter as to making public the contributions to his committee during the last election.

Tennessee House Says He Is the Logical Democratic Candidate.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—The Tennessee House, before sine die adjournment last night, adopted a resolution declaring William J. Bryan the logical candidate of the Democratic Party for President in 1908.

There was some opposition to the resolution, but the majority on final vote was large.

MRS. HOLMAN TELLS OF EVELYN'S CAREER

COULD NOT CONTROL GIRL

Would Have Killed White If She Had Known of Her Daughter's Experience—Trip Abroad a Nightmare.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 16.—Mrs. Evelyn Florence Nesbit Holman, the mother of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, to-day broke the silence she has kept strictly since the murder of Stanford White. In a statement, which is published in The Pittsburg Leader, she defends her attitude toward her daughter, and declares that she kept silent at the young woman's request, that she did not aid District Attorney Jerome, and that her home always will be open to her daughter. The statement begins:

"Two days after the night upon which Hary Thaw shot Stanford White, at Madison Square Garden, we received this telegram:

It is most important for you to say absolutely nothing. FLORENCE.

"I did say nothing. I remained silent. I have remained silent until now, and I would have kept silence had it not been for attacks made upon me by Mr. Delmas in his closing address to the Thaw jury. I made no statement to District Attorney Jerome or to any of his representatives.

Resents Utterance of Delmas.

"One of the sentences from Mr. Delmas's speech referred to me as 'A mother who manifested that character of frivolity and extravagance which were later to bear such deplorable consequences.' At the death of my first husband I was thrown entirely upon my own resources to support my daughter and son, both small children, and myself. When the estate was settled and all debts paid I found myself with exactly $113.33 and a house filled with furniture."

Mrs. Holman thon details her struggle to raise her children. Her daughter first posed for an artist named Storm of Philadelphia, who met her at a Summer resort, when she was a little girl.

"Florence," she says, "was in love with the stage. I did everything in my power to discourage her, but I confess that I possessed neither the resolution nor the discipline to cope with the situation. Florence had threatened to run away unless she was permitted to go on the stage, and I found that I could not help myself, as she was very determined."

Warned by Stanford White.

Of her daughter's life she says:

"The story of her first encounter with Mr. White has been told several times, including once by herself on the witness stand. Her account was substantially correct. It was Edna Goodrich, who was in the 'Florodora' company, who introduced them. Soon after this Mr. White sent a request for me to see him in his office. I went. I was greatly impressed with his manner and what he told me. Among other things he said:

"'Mrs. Nesbit, do you know you have a remarkably beautiful daughter? She shouldn't be on the stage or going around to studios. She is too good for that sort of thing. You must be careful of her. Watch her closely. Watch her associates, especially the men she goes with. You cannot take too many pains. New York is a very dangerous and wicked city and it is full of dangers for a young girl.'

"Mr. White warned me specifically against several young men with whom Florence had become acquainted. Of one of them he said:

"'Don't, for heaven's sake, let her have anything to do with that fellow. He is one of the worst little rats in New York. Your daughter is not safe in his company.'

Thought White Was Noble.

"If ever a woman reposed implicit confidence in a man I did in Stanford White. His manner, his words, his actions, were the personification of whole-hearted, disinterested generosity. He was the first man with whom I had come in contact in New York who seemed disinterested; who seemed to be doing what he did without expectation of return.

"After our first conversation I went away from his office in tears, it seemed so grateful, so comforting to know that at last I had found a friend upon whom I could depend, who interested himself in my children, to assist us and ask nothing in return; who did it simply for the pleasure of giving of his abundance to those who needed it. I thought that Stanford White was one of the noblest men on earth.

"I never went away from New York and committed my daughter to the care of White. The time when I came to Pittsburg and Florence remained in New York, was after we had gone to the Audubon, when friendly relations had scarcely been established between Mr. White, Florence, and myself.

"Howard was on a farm near Tarentum, owned by clients of his father. He wrote me that he was ill. Florence I left in charge of the maid who looked after our room at the Audubon, and I went to Tarentum. The last injunction I gave the maid was: 'Take care of my baby.'

Would Have Killed White.

"When I returned, to all appearances Florence was well and happy. There was nothing to indicate that anything out of the ordinary had occurred. If she underwent the experience that is said to have befallen her, she did not take me into her confidence. Had she told me what she told the Thaw jury, it would not have been necessary for Thaw to kill Stanford White. I would have done it myself."

Mrs. Holman then tells of the meeting with Thaw. She denies that White ever said a word to her against Thaw. Every story which came to her ears concerning Thaw, she declares, was told her by Ethel Barrymore. She tells of the trip abroad with Thaw.

"Every detail of the trip was and is a nightmare to me. Mr. Thaw joined us in Paris. Florence and I shared the same apartments. Mr. Thaw had apartments by himself. There was no pleasure in the tour for me. The things which appealed to Florence and Mr. Thaw in Paris did not appeal to me. Florence testified that we quarreled frequently while in Paris—in fact, continually. The disagreements were caused by my protests at her visits to various restaurants.

"Florence said that I asked for money continually. I did. I begged them to give me passage money and let me return to New York. I was sick and disgusted at the whole proceedings.

Deserted in London, Fainted.

"The climax came one afternoon when Mr. Craig Wadsworth of the American Embassy had an engagement to take us out sailing. I was very ill when he called. We were at Claridge's Hotel. The servant showed him in, and I explained that I was feeling badly, and suggested that he summon Florence, who, I supposed, was in her bedroom next to mine. He tapped upon the door. There was no answer. I requested him to open it.

"'Why, there is no one here,' said he. 'The roo mhas been stripped.'

"I ran to look for myself. Every article of apparel belonging to Florence was gone. The shock caused me to faint, and I remained unconscious for three hours.

"I did not see Florence from that day she and Mr. Thaw left London until the afternoon of her marriage on the 4th of April, 1905. I was not consulted about the marriage. We did not know that a marriage had been arranged until my husband and I were asked to go to the home of the Rev. Dr. McEwan. This was one hour before the ceremony. All the arrangements had been carried out by Mr. J. Dennison Lyon, Mr. Thaw's banker. Mr. Lyon had the marriage license clerk at the clergyman's house. It was necessary that the mother sign the application for a license, for my daughter was a minor. This I readily and cheerfully did. I was glad that Mr. Thaw was man enough to give her his name.

Snubbed at the Wedding.

"We were shown into the drawing room. No one greeted us or spoke to us. Mrs. William Thaw came in, accompanied by her son, Josiah, and another witness. The clergyman was there. No salutations were exchanged. Florence and Mr. Thaw entered. The ceremony ended, they and the rest immediately left the room. No words of farewell were said. I went into the hall and encountered one of the witnesses, a woman. I asked to see my daughter.

"'I will see if I can find her,' she replied. She went away and did not return.

"Mrs. William Thaw came into the hallway. I told her I wished to see Florence.

"'I don't know where she is,' she said, and turned away.

"The clergyman was the next to whom I appealed.

"'I don't know anything about her,' he responded, passing by me. I have never seen my daughter since.

Love for Daughter Unaltered.

"As solemnly as though these words were uttered with my last breath, I wish here to affirm that my love for my daughter is as deep and intense as it was when I first held her in my arms a helpless babe. Resentment I may have felt, but never hatred, or vengetul sentiments. My heart beats as responsive to her sorrows as though they were woes of my own. Regardless of all that has transpired, my affection is unaltered.

"A word from her would at any time have brought and will bring me to her side. The door of my home is open to her, it will swing wide at her lightest tap to-day, to-morrow, and always while I live."

DAUGHTER HEARS STATEMENT.

May Make Some Comment on It To-day—Lawyers Visit Thaw.

The long statement of Mrs. Charles J. Holman, in which the mother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw defends herself against the accusations of selfish and unnatural conduct in the rearing of her daughter, caused the young woman little apparent concern when it was shown to her last night. The statement was read to Mrs. Thaw in her apartments at the Lorraine by Dan O'Reilly, her personal counsel. Mr. O'Reilly later said that no statement would be given out in reply.

"Mrs. Thaw may, however, have something to say to-morrow," added Mr. O'Reilly.

Mrs. Thaw visited her husband in the Tombs shortly after noon yesterday, remaining with him for over an hour. Josiah Thaw was another visitor at the Tombs. He said he could say nothing definite of the plans of the family, but that the Countess of Yarmouth would probably sail for England before long. He did not know if she would return for a second trial.

Considerable surprise was created by the visit of Lawyer Hartridge to the Tombs shortly before 5 o'clock. Since the disagreement he had not called upon Thaw. He did not visit the Tombs in the last few days of the trial. It had been generally understood that the connection with the case of Mr. Hartridge, together with the others of Thaw's counsel, with the exception of Dan O'Reilly, had been severed.

The lawyer permitted it to be understood yesterday that he was still to be numbered among the Thaw counsel. His interview with Thaw, he said, had been at the latter's request, and they had gone over some papers together. It was rumored in the Tombs yesterday that just prior to the visit of Hartridge, Thaw had filled out and sent checks to Mr. Delmas and to Dan O'Reilly, the first for $37,500 and the second for $25,000.

A. Russell Peabody, also of counsel for Thaw, paid a visit to the Tombs yesterday, and upon leaving the building strengthened the conviction that he, too, is still interested in the case.

"Mr. Thaw authorizes me to say that no statement will be given out by him to-day," he said, adding, "and no one connected with the case will make any statement to-day."

Henry Clay McPike called upon Clerk Penny in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday and asked that the letters written by Thaw to Mr. Delmas and submitted to the lunacy commission be immediately surrendered. The request was refused, as an order must first be obtained from Justice Fitzgerald, who is now on his way to Canada.

It was learned positively yesterday that ex-Gov. Frank S. Black of the law firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, whose name has been mentioned as next counsel for Thaw, will never be connected with the case. It is known that he has privately stated that nothing could induce him to undertake the defense of Thaw. He has been connected with only two murder cases, one of them the defense of Molineux, and he has frequently said that he would never again appear in a criminal action.

Value in Champagne.

The best Champagne obtainable is a Vintage Wine, the first pressing of selected fruit of a favorable year. The growth of 1898 was considered one of the choicest yields of recent years, and the wine produced is of an exceptionally good quality.

When entertaining friends it is evidence of Champagne knowledge to call for

Monopole Red Top 1898

Dry Monopole Gold Top 1898
(Brut—very dry)

It costs no more than ordinary brands, but its quality is much superior.

WOMAN FIGHTS A BURGLAR.

Catches Him in Flat and Pluckily Attacks Him—Runs Out, Is Caught.

Mrs. Ray Marks, who lives with her husband in a flat at 839 Park Avenue, Williamsbridge, went out yesterday afternoon, locking up her flat. On her return two hours later she found the kitchen door unlocked.

As she stepped inside she was seized by a man, who had entered by means of false keys, and who had gathered together all the silverware and other valuables. Mrs. Marks screamed and the burglar began to choke her. He then locked the kitchen door so that she could not get out. Mrs. Marks then attacked the burglar, and while the two were in a rough-and-tumblo fight, during which chairs were overturned, neighbors were attracted by the racket. They kicked in the kitchen door, and the buglar rushed down the stairs to the street.

Mrs. Marks pursued him and caught him on the stoop. They had another tustle, during which the thief hit the woman again. Half a dozen women then seized the man, but he broke away and fled. Policeman Steers of the Vernon Avenue Station caught him.

The prisoner said his name was William Noble, but refused to tell where he lived. When he was searched a revolver, two daggers, and a hunch of burglars' keys were found on him. Magistrate Higginbotham held him without bail for the Grand Jury.

BROTHER SHOOTS BROTHER.

Ex-Policeman Bayne Fires Shot After a Quarrel at Home.

In a pistol duel last night George Bayne, a plasterer of 319 Hamburg Avenue, Brooklyn, shot and perhaps mortally wounded his brother, William, in the presence of William's wife, five-year-old daughter, and mother-in-law.

George Bayne boarded with his brother's mother-in-law, Mrs. Johanna Muck. William's wife and daughter lived in the same house. William was formerly a policeman attached to the Mercer Street Station. He retired a year ago, and having no funds, deserted his wife and child and went to California. He returned in February, still without funds, and found his wife living with her mother.

William quarreled with Mrs. Muck, and on Feb. 28 attacked her, stabbing her in the throat. For this he was arrested and held in $1,000 bail. After his release he lived apart from his family at 315 East Ninetieth Street, Manhattan. Nothing more was heard of him until last night.

The shooting followed a quarrel in the house.

POLICEMAN BADLY BEATEN.

Reilly Attacked with His Brother—Two Men Arrested.

Policeman Peter Reilly of the Bedford Avenue Station, Williamsburg, and his brother John, who lives at 218 East Seventy-fourth Street, Manhattan, were attacked yesterday morning in front of a saloon at Bedford Avenue and North Eleventh Street, by five young men who jumped out from different doorways.

Reilly's club was taken from him, and after he and his brother had been beaten they were thrown between car tracks. It was there that half a dozen policemen, who had been told of the attack, found them.

The police arrested George Dooley of 137 Engert Avenue and William Donnelly of 151 Greenpoint Avenue. They were held on charges of assault by Magistrate Higginbotham in the Lee Avenue Court yesterday.

SHOW INDIANS LAND IN CELL.

Try Revolver Practice on Broadway, but Promise Not to Do It Again.

"Bear-in-the-Woods" and "Big Charger," two Sioux braves, who left the reservation long ago and are now doing "Big Medicine" at a local theatre, escaped the watchful eye of the press agent and went on the warpath yesterday. They chose Broadway as the path, and it led to a cell in the Thirtieth Street Police Station.

Accompanied by numerous squaws, papooses, and braves, they started for their boarding place, after finishing their part of the performance. At Broadway and Fortieth Street the procession was halted. "Bear-in-the-Woods" suddenly reached inside his blanket and produced a revolver. He fired two shots in the air, when Policeman Burns of the Traffic Squad appeared.

"Hey, you're in wrong," he said. "Who's got the gun?"

No one answered, and Burns was compelled to go through the entire outfit before he located it on the person of "Big Charger," to whom the other had passed it.

Burns took both to the station house. They did not seem intoxicated, but after long questioning failed to give any reasonable explanation of the shooting. To be sure, "Bear-in-the-Woods" made some remarks about suspecting that his household had been invaded, but there was no evidence to show that he really intended to injure any one.

In the Jefferson Market Court in the afternoon "Big Charger" was discharged and "Bear-in-the-Woods" held in $200 bail, which was furnished by the management of the theatre, to keep the peace for six months and to refrain from carrying concealed weapons.

HOLD UP PASTEURIZATION.

Aldermen Send the Milk Ordinance Back to the Committee.

When the Board of Aldermen met yesterday the ordinance introduced some time ago by the Committeo on Public Health relative to the pasteurization of milk was called up.

"The Mayor has appointed a commission to investigate this question," said Alderman Dowling. "I move that we recommit this ordinance to the committee in order to give us a chance to receive the report of the Mayor's commission. When we get the report we can unite it with the ordinnnee and pass both as one measure."

Dr. Everson declared that "pasteurization does not kill tuberculosis bacilli," and Dr. Jacobson, Chairman of the Committee on Public Health, took the opposite view. Alderman Downing demanded that public hearings on the question be held in all the boroughs. Alderman Freeman arraigned the Democrats for "obstructionistic tactics," declaring that the delay would mean the death of thousands of children in the coming hot months.

"If the resolution is passed I believe it will drive the smaller dealers out of business in the interests of the larger dealers," said Alderman Sullivan. "If it is passed it will result in the creation of a trust. I believe the matter should be recommitted. Then we shall have an opportunity to get the Health Commissioner, who has a 'bug' on the question, to come before us and not before one of our committees."

The motion to recommit was carried by a vote of 33 to 28.

MORE MEXICAN TOWNS DESTROYED

Havoc Wrought by the Earthquake Greater Than at First Reported.

CHILPANCINGO IS IN RUINS

Shocks Continued Till 4 A. M. Yesterday—Acapulco Partly Submerged —Number of Dead Unknown.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 16.—Severe earthquake shocks continued on the west coast until 4 o'clock this morning. Late news from the area of greatest destruction shows that the devastation was greater than at first supposed.

Besides the destruction of Chilpancingo and Chilapa, it is now reported that Tixtla, between these two cities, containing about the same population as Chilpancingo, was leveled.

Messengers from the coast who have reached Chilpancingo also say that the towns of Ayutla and Ometepeo have been destroyed.

Ayutla is about fifty miles south of Chilpancingo in the State of Guerrero and some twenty miles west of Acapulco. It is one of the historic towns of the republic, for it was here that was conceived the "plan of Ayutla," which caused the revolution. The population of Ayutla is small, and it is thought that the loss of life there was insignificant.

Ometepec is further south, near the boundary line of the States of Guerrero and Oaxaca. It is a town of about 4,000 inhabitants.

Tlapa, a town 80 miles west of Chilpancingo, and near the border line of the State of Oaxaca, is also reported damaged.

A report from Chilpancingo says that the whole of the west coast from Acapulco south to Salina Cruz, the Pacific terminal of the Tehuantepec National Railway, has been badly damaged.

A dispatch to El Pais, a daily paper, which is the organ of the Catholic Church in this city, from the Bishop of Chilapa, confirms the reports of the widespread destruction in that vicinity. Fourteen persons are reported to have been killed in one house and the number of wounded is given at thirty-nine.

In Tixtla, it is reported, twelve bodies have been taken from the ruins, and twice that number of wounded are being cared for in temporary structures erected in the open country.

An operator at Chilpancingo says that the four men in the office have been working without relief for 48 hours, exposed to inclement weather. He reports that the State Government has provided tents for the homeless and has taken other means to provide for the comfort of the inhabitants.

Up to 4 o'clock this morning the shocks continued with more or less severity near Chilpancingo, completing the work of destruction and razing many of the most important public buildings of the city. The new Municipal Palace was badly shattered. Its predecessor was leveled by an earthquake four years ago. The hospitals, schools, and jail are in ruins. The prisoners from the jail were placed under guard by the Rurales and are now incarcerated in barracks. The hospital patients are being cared for in a temporary structure erected in the open country. The General in command of the troops was seriously injured.

Up to this time the number of deaths reported at Chilpancingo is thirty-eight, and the number of wounded is given as ninety-three, but in view of the latest reports it is thought that these figures will fall far short of the real number of fatalities. These may never be accurately known, as many of the dead are of the poorer classes, living in small settlements.

It is reported that Acapulco was partly submerged by great waves which dashed over the breakwater. Although no breath of wind was stirring at the time of the first shock, when the earth began to tremble the sea was lashed into a fury, and as the shocks continued the harbor took on the appearance of a typhoon-swept sea. It is said that no ships suffered to any extent.

Communication by rail with Vera Cruz is entirely cut off owing to the sinking of roadbeds on both the Mexican and Interoceanic Railways.

Reports from nearly all the large cities in the southern part of the republic have now been received, and although many of these places felt the shock severely, no further loss of life has been reported, and the property loss is insignificant.

News is anxiously awaited from the Istbmus of Tehuantepec.

FEEDING 500,000 CHINESE.

Relief Committee Cannot Do More Unless It Gets Further Funds.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Investigation shows that the plans of the Famine Relief Committee are admirable. There has been no leakage of the funds administered by foreigners.

A house-to-house inspection has resulted in 90,000 families, totaling 500,000 famine sufferers, being enrolled by the committee, which is attempting to provide food for them until the harvest. Additions to the list of families will be made only when the funds available justify it.

The persons receiving relief are divided into three classes. The first class consists of those who get free food tickets, which are not issued unless the family has absolutely no money, food, or pawnable articles and its members are too weak to work. Often the thatch roofs and timbers of houses are sold. Families, because they had a table left, have been unable to get relief, and, utterly discouraged, have committed suicide.

The second class is where one member of a destitute family is able to work. This is given to him and is paid for in food.

The third class consists of families to whom the Chinese Government is paying 1½ cents per day. Tickets are given to these families entitling them to purchase famine supplies at cost.

The fare for the round trip will be 12 guineas, ($60.)

LONDON LIONIZING BOTHA.

War Secretary Haldane Compliments Him—Roberts Seeks Him Out.

LONDON, April 16.—Gen. Botha, Premier of the Transvaal, is becoming the central, as he is the most picturesque, figure in the gathering of Colonial Premiers. He was the recipient of a pretty compliment from War Secretary Haldane at a banquet to the Premiers given tonight by the Eighty Club. Mr. Haldane, in the course of a speech, said:

"As the Secretary of State responsible for the War Office, I welcome a new General among us, and a very great General, too, and I believe my General Staff and I are going to have the pleasure on Saturday of conferring with him on the mutual defense of the Empire." A great burst of cheering greeted this statement.

The Colonial Premiers received the freedom of the city at the Guildhall this afternoon, and subsequently were entertained at luncheon by the Lord Mayor, Sir William Treloar, and the Corporation. Each of the visitors received letters-patent as a freeman, inclosed in a gold casket.

The Premiers drove in procession to the Guildhall, Gen. Botha, as the "Benjamin of the Brotherhood," riding with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Prime Minister, and bringing up the rear. The decorations of the streets through which the procession passed were not pretentious, but the visitors received a hearty welcome from large crowds.

The luncheon at the Guildhall was a brilliant function. It was attended by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Premier Campbell-Bannerman, and other Cabinet Ministers; Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who cracked jokes with Gen. Botha about their experiences on the veldt; many Peers and members of the House of Commons, and military and naval men in uniforms sparkling with decorations, while the women present were dressed in the most elaborate costumes. Lord Roberts sought out Gen. Botha in the reception room and sat next to him at luncheon.

The Boer flag captured by the City Imperial Volunteers at Jacobsdal, which usually ornaments the banqueting hall, was removed on this occasion so as not to offend Gen. Botha and his party.

Replying to the Lord Mayor's toast to the Premiers, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was seated in the place of honor on the Lord Mayor's right, predicted that the results of the conference just opened would demonstrate to the world that the British Empire was a living entity and said that the success of the conference was assured. The presence of Gen. Botha and Dr. Jameson at the same conference board, the speaker added, showed that the meeting could not be a failure.

While driving to the Guildhall it was noticed that Gen. Botha saluted in passing the statue of Gladstone. It was Gladstone who restored their independence to the Boers after Majuba.

Many of the editorial articles appearing on the conference of Premiers voice the opinion that the conference has opened auspiciously and that its success is assured.

ART DEAL BY MR. MORGAN.

Prince Strozzi to Give Him First Chance if Treasures Are to be Sold.

FLORENCE, April 16.—J. Pierpont Morgan has paid $4,000 to Prince Strozzi in order to have the refusal whenever the Prince wishes to sell any of his art objects.

The Strozzi Palace at Florence was begun in 1489 for Filippo Strozzi, the celebrated adversary of the Medici family, and was not completed until 1533. It is regarded as an example of the Florentine palatial style in its most perfect development, and possesses three imposing façades, constructed of regular courses of heavy rustica work, with narrow intervening cornices, immediately above which are the handsome windows, with their columnar mullions.

The corner lanterns, the link holders, and the rings are classed as being among the finest specimens of Italian ironwork of the period. The rooms of the palace are elegant, and it formerly contained a good gallery of pictures, busts of the Strozzi family, and some sculpture, but it has been generally understood that most of these were sold and removed to Berlin.

KING MENTUHOTEP'S BEAUTIFUL SHRINE

ABODE OF THE KING'S "KA"

M. Naville Does Not Believe It Was a Tomb—Only Egyptologists to be Allowed to Enter It.

Details now to hand of the discovery of the sanctuary of Mentuhotep I. at Luxor, reported by cable from Paris in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Sundsy, show that the excavations, in which James Dennis of Baltimore is associated with Edouard Naville, have been productive of results of extreme interest. This year, M. Naville writes, no such sensational discovery of museum objects as that of last year, when the Hathor goddess and her shrine were found, has so far been made; but the excavators have discovered that Mentuhotep, who lived in B. C. 2700, was a King to whom special honors were paid by his successors, even as late as Rameses the Great, and that Mentuhotep was worshipped by the Egyptians.

M. Naville's account follows:

"The temple of the Eleventh Dynasty, discovered three years ago, has a peculiar form, which at present is unique. It consists of a rock platform, to which access is given by a ramp. In the middle is a square mass of building, which originally had a casing of white limestone; it probably is the basement of a pyramid, towering above a columned hall, for there are rows of columns on all sides. But the temple extends a great deal further back, toward the lofty rocks forming a majestic circle at the end of the Valley of Deir el Bahari. The clearing of this part has been the work of the last weeks of 1906 and of this campaign.

"We first met with an open court lined on both sides with a single colonnade; further we found remains of a hypostyle hall not yet completely excavated, but where we can trace already seventy-two columns of the so-called protodoric style, and bearing the name of Neb-hepet-Ra Mentuhotep.

"In the open court which we reached last year we stopped at the entrance of a sloping passage extending down below the pavement, and the door of which was obstructed by heaps of enormous stones and rubbish. We left the clearing of it for this year. We entered it a fortnight ago. It is a well cut rook tunnel, which goes down quite straight for 150 metres (about 500 feet). On more than half of its length it is vaulted; two sandstone blocks leaning against each other at the top, and cut in the form of an arch, rest on the rock and on walls of dry stones erected on both sides. Except at the entrance, where there was a pile of stones, the passage was free. Between the two walls there was a path sufficiently wide for a man to go down.

"At the end of the tunnel there is a room of granite made of big blocks extremely well joined, like the chambers in the pyramids. The dor was blocked by a stone. One might have expected that this chamber was a tomb, but it seems clear that it had a different purpose. The greatest part of it is occupied by a great alabaster shrine, made of large blocks of that beautiful stone. Except a cornice and a molding, it has no sculpture or ornament of any kind. The ceiling is made of an enormous monolithic red granite slab, over which comes again alabaster.

"This shrine was empty except for a few well-cut black granite stones, which were part of a casing inserted between the shrine and the walls of the chamber. In my opinion this shrine was a sanctuary; it was the abode of the 'ka,' as the Egyptians called the double or the image of the King, which was represented by a statue now destroyed. In front of the shrine there was a heap of broken wooden figures, fragments of furniture, and a quantity of cloth in which must have been wrapped offerings, or perhaps mummified animals, also a few small pieces of bones said to be human. But there was no trace of a wooden or stone coffin, no definite evidence of a burial. That is the reason why I consider this shrine as a sanctuary. This agrees with a decree found on a large stele at the entrance of the passage, in which a successor of Mentuhotep, of the following dynasty, orders that for what he calls 'the cave of Mentuhotep' should be provided every day food and drink, and whenever a bull should be slaughtered in the great temple of Amon, roast meat should be brought to that cave. These offerings are those of a god or of the King adored as such; they are not funerary.

"It must have been a place where priests had frequently to descend, since an arch was made over the passage evidently after the chamber and shrine had been finished. There would have been no reason for arching a passage leading to a closed funereal chamber.

"The shrine, which is 3 mètres 50 long, 2 mètres 25 wide, and 2 mètres 50 high, is striking by its fine architecture, and the beautiful material out of which it is made. It would be extremely difficult to remove it to a museum. It would be an expensive work, also somewhat dangerous. Besides, in a large hall it would by no means produce the same effect as it does in its subterranean granite chamber. It will remain for the present in its deep hiding place. The passage will be closed by a door, so that people specially interested in Egyptian architecture may reach it; for it is not advisable for tourists to go in, nor would they much enjoy it.

"As it is, it has added a new feature to the temple of the Eleventh Dynasty, which has been so rich in unexpected architectural discoveries. The platform, the pyramid issuing out of a colonnade, the hypostyle hall, the subterranean sanctuary, form a whole of a nature quite unique among Egyptian temples.

THE DUMA ENCOURAGED.

Government Says It Is Doing Its Best to Work with Them.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 16.—There has been issued a semi-official statement declaring that the letter of Prof. De Martens to The London Times reflects only the personal views of the writer, and that the Government is devoting its utmost efforts to the carrying out of the Emperor's desire to perform legislative work in co-operation with the duly elected representatives of the nation.

Members of the Lower House of Parliament attach the greatest importance to this statement, which is regarded as a most encouraging sign for the prolongation of the life of the Duma.

It is understood that the Budget Committee of the Lower House is making headway in its examination of the financial schedule. It has already made provisional reductions to the amount of $11,500,000.

McGILL FIRE INVESTIGATION.

Medical College and Museum with its Collection Destroyed.

MONTREAL, April 16.—The fire which started in the Medical Building of McGill University at an early hour this morning practically destroyed the building, which, in addition to the usual equipment of a college medical building, contained the museum, one of the best on the continent. The loss in this cannot be considered in money value, as the museum had been collecting for nearly three-quarters of a century, and contained many absolutely priceless specimens. The magnificent medical library, however, was saved.

Immediately after the disastrous fire which wiped out the Engineer Building a week ago, the university authorities, it is understood, placed a half million dollars of extra insurance on the whole university plant. The Medical Building was insured for $250,000, and its contents for $100,000.

Dr. F. J. Shepherd says that his collection of a whole lifetime has been lost.

The Fire Commissioners are to make a searching investigation in regard to the origin of the fire, which they are inclined to believe was incendiary.

German Officers Punished for Duel.

DRESDEN, April 16.—A court-martial in session here has sentenced ex-Col. Baron von dem Busche-Ippenburg and Lieut. Bechwell to three months' confinement in a fortress for having fought a duel with pistols. The Colonel is 60 and the Lieutenant 24 years old. The Colonel was the offender and was challenged by the Lieutenant. The duel was bloodless.

Button-Through Overcoats, Special at $20

LET the word go forth that the button-through Chesterfield is THE Overcoat this season. Possessing great style and smart appearance, one does not wonder that it has secured the approval of the best-dressed men.

Our price—$20—is marvellously low. The few custom tailors who can equal this button-through Chesterfield demand $35 and more. It is a decidedly new form of overcoat, following the lines of the figure closely to the waist and flaring out over the hips. Shown in gray over-plaids, diagonals and herringbones, with deep centre vents or side plaits.

D. A. R. IN QUARREL OVER BOND DEALS

Finance Committee Invested in Railroad Securities—Treasurer Now Objects.

HISSES FOR MRS. McLEAN

President General Also Fails to Get an Indorsement for Re-Election from New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Factional differences among the Daughters of the American Revolution came to a head in their Continental Congress to-day. A good-sized quarrel developed out of the fact that the Finance Committee had invested funds of the Daughters in Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific Railroad bonds, and they had lost in value in the recent slump. On one side were Mrs Donald McLean, the President General, and the Finance Committee, on whose behalf it was asserted that "the most reliable financial experts in New York had been consulted." On the other side were Mrs. M. E. S. Davis, the Treasurer General, and the anti-administration element.

Mrs. McLean was hissed at one point. She also failed to-night to get an indorsement for re-election by the delegation of New York, her home State.

The financial trouble had been talked over a great deal among the members before the congress met. Mrs. Davis having charged openly that investments had been made in "insecure speculation," and there was expectation of trouble over Mrs. Davis's report. Every delegate was at attention, therefore, when Mrs. McLean, at the morning session, called for that document. The President General's manner and voice were strictly formal as she did so.

Mrs. Davis arose to an apology. The Auditing Committee had not finished its work on her report in time for presentation, and it was still in the hands of the printers.

Mrs. McLean then opened hostilities. Addressing Mrs. Davis, she said coldly:

"You have no report when it is called for by the society? Is it possible that you have not a copy of it?"

Mrs. Davis replied with much animation and some indignation that her report was in the hands of the printers, but that she would see to it that it was presented when the congress met after recess for luncheon. Then she returned Mrs. McLean's fire by asking the President General why no recommendations had been made on her report of last year, saying that it had been left "up in the air."

"That seems to be the condition of your report this year," Mrs. McLean retorted sharply.

This remark created considerable excitement, and many of the delegates hissed the remark. Several endeavored to gain recognition. One delegate of the administration side was permitted to ask if it was not the first time in the history of the congress that a report was not ready on time.

Others wanted to speak, but Mrs. McLean demanded order, and the convention resumed its business programme.

Mrs. Davis had her report ready to read at the afternoon session, and the opposing factions were all ready for trouble over it. When Mrs. Davis arose to read it, however, the administration faction showed a disposition to keep back all the revelations in it. Mrs. Davis was prepared to read all the plain remarks she had written out, but Mrs. Thomson of Massachusetts moved that only the figures be read as the report.

This motion was carried before the majority of women knew what had happened. The Treasurer General, an elderly woman of quiet dignity and motherly face, with gently waving hair, was aghast. Recovering herself, she said firmly:

"Very well, ladies. Since this is not a report, I will not submit it."

With this she left the platform, and the report was not voted on for receiving. Applause was loud for Mrs. Davis's action, and just what will be done about the report is a matter of conjecture. The committee appointed by the President General to consider all recommendations embodied in the reports of the officers is expected to decide this matter to-morrow.

The report showed that the society had a total of $24,477 bonds, $10,150 in Baltimore & Ohio, and $10,328 in the Union Pacific.

Mrs. Davis in the report said that she was not consulted about the purchase of these bonds and that she paid out checks for the investments, on the recommendation of the Finance Committee, of which she was not a member. She recommended that she be made a member of the committee.

In reference to the depreciation in the price of the bonds, the report pointed out that if the bonds were sold now there would be lost $502 as a result of the depreciation of their market value, or a net loss to April 11 of $271. Mrs. Davis recommended that when there were sufficient funds to be invested only United States bonds be purchased.

Objection was raised by a delegate to the last recommendation. She said that she had purchased such bonds at 4½ per cent., and they had now declined to 3 per cent.

Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey of this city stated that the bonds had been purchased by the Finance Committee only after its members had sought the advice of the most reliable financial experts in New York City.

Mrs. Charlotte Emerson Main, Chairman of the Finance Committee, read a letter from an expert financier in New York, advising the ladies not to dispose their holdings just now, consoling them by saying that, although stocks were low now, they would go higher again in time. There were many suggestions that Mr. Harriman was the adviser. A New York woman asked if they might hear the name of the financier.

"Certainly, it is Canfield," Mrs. Main replied.

Instantly there was an uproar and "Was it Dick?" flew about.

The report was referred to the proper committee for its consideration.

Despite expectation of a battle royal over the proposal to indorse Mrs. McLean's candidacy, the question was not brought before the meeting of the New York delegation to-night.

After a spirited contest Mrs. Charles H. Terry of Brooklyn was elected Vice President General for New York State over Mrs. James Griswold Wentz of New York City. Mrs. Terry, who is a supporter of Mrs. McLean, succeeds Mrs. James Cunningham Hazen.

INSULT TO OUR FLAG.

Honduran Rebel Officer Hauled It Down and Tore It Up.

PUERTO CORTEZ, April 12. (Via Mobile, Ala., April 16.)—The Marietta is expected here to-day from Ceiba, where Capt. Fullam went yesterday to confer with the Captain of the Paducah.

Capt. Fullam betrayed some anxiety at the time of sailing to meet the revolutionary Colonel, Isaula. It is said that he tore down an American flag from the house of an American at Ceiba, and then tore the flag into pieces.

Cablegrams are received here, but none is transmitted.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The gunboat Boston has started from Amapala, Honduras, for Corinto, Nicaragua, to convey President Zelaya to Amapala for the conference he will have there with President Figueroa. The Chicago, it is believed here, will be used to convey President Figueroa to the conference, which will be held either at Amapala or on board one of the American vessels to be anchored in Fonseca Bay.

At the State Department to-day it was admitted that an agreement between the United States and Mexico had been entered into by which a guarantee had been given that there should be no hostile demonstrations between the forces of Guatemala and Salvador on the frontier in the course of the conference. The promulgation of a joint order by Mexico and the United States will, it is believed, be sufficient to guarantee quiet.

Señor Corea, the Nicaraguan Minister, visited Acting Secretary of State Bacon to-day. The Minister is enthusiastic in his conviction that the proposed conference of the Central American States, which will probably be held after the present difficulties are temporarily disposed of, will be a success. He now wants the conference held in Washington.

WITTE DIDN'T HEED THE TIP ON HARVEY

Dined with Him Despite Warning That He Was Morgan's Mouthpiece.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S ACT

Now There is Speculation as to Why at That Time Such a Step Was Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Information received here to-day is at variance with the statement made in Administration quarters yesterday that Col. George Harvey has a grievance against the President because of the Administration having kept Count Witte away from a dinner given by Col. Harvey.

It was alleged that Count Witte, having inquired who Harvey was, learned from administration sources that he was "the representative and mouthpiece" of Mr. Morgan, and thereupon stayed away from the dinner; since which time Harvey has a grudge against the administration sources which supplied Witte with the information.

The information now received is that Count Witte attended the dinner which was held in September, 1905, at the Metropolitan Club, and proposed the toast to the President of the United States.

It thus becomes evident that if Witte did receive from Administration sources the news that Col. Harvey was "the representative and mouthpiece" of J. Pierpont Morgan, it did not have any effect in lowering Harvey in Witte's opinion. The person from whom the report published this morning was obtained, was therefore in error on that point, and yet he is a person very close to the Administration.

That person can hardly be in error about the fact that Col. Harvey was represented to Witte as "the representative and mouthpiece" of Mr. Morgan. If any such representations were made to Witte, he is the man who made them. He may be mistaken about their effect on Witte, but he cannot be mistaken about the fact that they were made, for he and Witte and one other are the only persons in the world who are personally cognizant of whether they were made or not.

The result of this state of things is simply this: Witte was informed from Administration quarters, either at his own request or voluntarily, about Col. Harvey. The information he received was that Col. Harvey was "the representative and mouthpiece" of J. Pierpont Morgan. This information, to judge by the circumstances under which it is now recalled, was not given for the purpose of establishing Col. Harvey in M. Witte's favor, but rather the reverse. Nevertheless, M. Witte was so far from being deterred from associating with such a person that he attended the dinner and took a prominent part therein.

It is further to be remembered that at that time there was no "rich men's conspiracy," and Mr. Morgan was persona grata at the White House. An act of hostility against Mr. Morgan, at least such an act as endeavoring to deter his visitor from attending a dinner given by his "representative and mouthpiece," was hardly to be looked for.

It is, of course, possible that the hint was given Witte for the purpose of putting him on his guard against the gentleman whom the President had no objection to personally, but whom he thought it his duty to warn a foreign visitor against. If so, however, it failed of its purpose, either because Witte attached no sinister significance to the name of Morgan or because he did not care.

SENATOR BORAH'S TROUBLES.

District Attorney Ruick Summoned to Washington by Bonaparte.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—District Attorney Norman M. Ruick of Idaho has been summoned to Washington to see the Attorney General, and may see the President before he goes away. This is because of appeals made by the friends of Senator Borah to the President to help him out in his troubles. He has been indicted for complicity in the timber frauds, along with other Republican leaders in the State, and they are asserting that their indictments are the result of a conspiracy.

Borah is the special counsel for the prosecution of Haywood and Moyer, the alleged assassins of ex-Gov. Steunenberg, whom the President has recently branded as "undesirable citizens." Since the publication of the President's letter to James S. Sherman, in which this phrase occurs, Borah's friends have been redoubling their efforts to get him to interfere in their behalf. It is alleged that the indictment of the counsel for the prosecution is partly for the purpose of helping the defense.

TAFT TOURING PORTO RICO.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 16.—Secretary Taft and his party left San Juan this morning for Ponce in automobiles.

CAGUAS, Porto Rico, April 16.—Secretary Taft and his party stopped here this morning on their way to Ponce. The city was decorated with American and Spanish flags and large crowds from the surrounding country gave the Secretary a cordial greeting. The Alcalde in his address of welcome did not refer to the citizenship question. Mr. Taft in his reply felicitated the people on the prosperous condition of the country and praised Gov. Winthrop's administration.

Caguas is the most important inland city, and its inhabitants have been most persistent in their demand for American citizenship. Mr. Taft did not mention the question at this place, where President Roosevelt spoke strongly in favor of granting citizenship to the Porto Ricans.

A steel bridge at the entrance of the city, which has just been completed, was named Winthrop Bridge by Miss Marjorie Ide of Mr. Taft's party, who broke a bottle of champagne on the structure.

"The collection is one of the smallest ever brought forward to furnish a sale of this kind in this city. But in quality and charm of subject it has never been surpassed in the history of local art sales."—PRESS.

"There are just twenty-nine paintings in oil and water color, but it rarely happens that the reviewer is called upon to pass on so thoroughly artistic a lot of modern work, where the quality is so uniformly high.

"They all have the feeling of spontaneity of enthusiasm, and one is sure they were painted because the various artists were genuinely impelled to put down their thoughts, or their impressions of nature.

"All, too, are of modest dimensions, easily placed on the walls of the modern drawing room, and they are pictures to keep ever before one, to live with and grow fond of."—GLOBE.

"Many of these pictures have come from the famous Loudon collection of J. S. Forbes and Alexander Young, but they need no recommendation other than their inherent beauty and tenderness. Mauve, Israels, Jacob and Willem Maris, Blommers, Neuhuys, Wissenbruch, Theophile De Bock, Bosboom and Bernard de Hoog are the Dutchmen represented here, and the whole effect is of quiet harmony, restful grays and greens and browns, and peasant life that is sober, and homely without being melancholy."—MAIL.

34-YEAR SENTENCE FOR YOUNG BURGLAR

Judge Rosalsky Says Such Criminals Merit the Severest Punishment.

ASSAULTED HIS VICTIMS

C. M. Smith Robbed and Beat the Oestreicher Family—A Warning to Others.

Judge Rosalsky, in General Sessions, yesterday, imposed sentences aggregating thirty-four years and three months on Clifford M. Smith, who pleaded guilty to burglary in the first degree and assault. Smith, who is also known as James C. Pierce, is 22 years old.

On the night of March 28 last Smith climbed through a transon over the entrance to John Oestreicher's saloon, at 2,577 Eighth Avenue, and, passing through the saloon, went up stairs to the family sleeping apartments. He was rifling a bank owned by one of the children when the child awoke, and asked if it was her papa. Smith struck the child a blow on the head, and when its mother appeared Smith hit her on the head with an iron-bound screwdriver handle weighing three pounds. He next attacked the saloon keeper, knocking him down, and was caught by a policeman while escaping from the place with money and jewelry. In passing sentence Judge Rolsalsky said:

"Punishment of crime is no pleasant task on the part of a Judge. The security and safety of the homes of our citizens is one of the most essential elements of our life. In the case of first offenders the court is always disposed to help the unfortunates, and give them an opportunity to redeem themselves after the first misstep, and give them another chance to take advantage of the many opportunities which this country affords. Though this is the case of a first offender, the crime was committed with deliberation and calculation, and demands that punishment consistent with the character of the offense he imposed. Society demands that vicious and hardened criminals be put out of harm's way. The crime of burglary in the first degree is next to murder. This case illustrates what a burglar will do when he invades the home of a peaceful citizen.

"It is true the defendant is a young man, but the court would be derelict in its duty if it did not impose severe punishment. Crimes of burglary in the first degree are too frequent in this community. I regret that my duty obliges me in this case to administer severe punishment as a warning to others of this defendant's class that New York is not a safe place for burglars who use violence. On the assault the sentence is four years and three months; on the burglary in the first degree thirty years."

The lawyer who appeared for Smith said that the young man was the son of a former traffic squad policeman who had committed suicide while insane. The lawyer said he thought young Smith was insane.

After the sentence had been imposed one of the court attendants informed Judge Rosalsky that a young woman who was standing in the corridor of the Criminal Court Building had remarked that Judge Rosalsky would get "what's coming to him from me." The Judge sent an officer after her and brought her into court. She denied making the statement, and Judge Rosalsky released her after a severe lecture.

NAST SALE BEGINS.

Many Rare Art Objects Bring Very Moderate Prices.

The sale of the art collection of the late Thomas Nast, cartoonist, was begun by the Merwin-Clayton Company, in East Twentieth Street, yesterday. The attendance was large. The collection consists of arms and armor, Indian implements, brasses and bronzes, carved ivory objects, ceramics, medals, &c.

An Indian paint bag and small leather beaded bag, the former taken from the body of the eldest daughter of Chief Dull Knife at the Fort Robinson massacre, accompanied by a letter to Mr. Nast from the soldier who took them, fetched $17.50. An Indian tomahawk, with crude carving, sold for $5.50. A pair of elk horns, presented to Mr. Nast by Gen. Ruggles in 1873, brought $22.50. A fine old breastplate of the sixteenth century sold for $11, and a suit of German armor of the same period brought $41. An old, high-combed morion, or headpiece, of the time of Charles I. brought $10. A finely inlaid and decorated Spanish pistol, head of the Queen of Spain on barrel and butt, fetched $8, and a rare Filipino hand cannon, $8.50.

A finely tempered, two-handed sword of the sixteenth century sold for $75; another two-handed sword, Flamberg blade, of the sixteenth century, $70; a fine steel rapier, with cup guard and cross, of the same period, $15; an old two-edged Prussian sword, double-headed eagle on hand-guard, sixteenth century, $14, and a two-handed sword, Flamberg blade, also of the sixteenth century, $87.50.

An old brass French clock and two candelabra, with two sconces, First Empire period, fetched $51, and a pair of beveled glass mirrors in brass frames, with three sconces each, Renaissance period, $65. A bronze full-length figure of Mercury sold for $22.50; a bronze lion by F. Barye, $42; a bronze tiger by F. Barye for $42.50, and a bronze statue of the Venus of Milo for $40.

MAJOR FREMONT'S TRIAL.

Goes Over for a Week After Government Makes a Concession.

The court-martial of Major Francis P. Frémont, U. S. A., who is being tried on charges growing out of his financial transactions with a number of New York banks, was resumed in the Army Building in Whitehall Street yesterday morning. The session was taken up in reading the depositions that were to have been sent to California for the purpose of getting the testimony of Miss Elizabeth Frémont, a sister of the accused, and M. F. Michael, a San Francisco lawyer, both of whom were expected to give evidence that the defense had hoped would get Major Frémont out of trouble. The depositions will later be withdrawn.

Capt. Glasgow, the Judge Advocate, announced that the Government was willing to admit that Major Frémont and his brother had conveyed property near Fort Mason to their sister, and also that Major Frémont had reasonable grounds to believe the land would be sold to the Government, and that, in this event, his sister would advance him sufficient funds to pay his indebtedness. Mr. Loftus, Major Frémont's lawyer, on the Government's admission of these facts, withdrew his request for the California depositions.

The Judge-Advocate then announced that the Government had no further evidence to offer until the arrival in New York of W. H. Vaughn, President of the National Bank of Cuba. Mr. Vaughn is expected to reach New York on Sunday. The court-martial then adjourned until 11 o'clock next Tuesday.

Troops for McClellan Unveiling.

TRENTON, April 16.—Gov. Stokes today selected as the State troops to attend the McClellan Monument ceremonies in Washington the Third Regiment of Infantry of Camden, Second Troop of Cavalry of Red Bank, and Batter B of Camden, under command of Brig. Gen. Dennis F. Collins.

TWO FIREBOATS LAUNCHED.

Commissioner Lantry's Daughters Name Them.

Two more modern fire-fighting boats for New York's Fire Department were launched yesterday, and within a few months they will be ready for service along the city's water front. The boats were the Thomas Willett and the James Duane, which were launched from the Newburg yard of Alexander Miller & Brother.

Three Fire Department automobiles took a part of the official party to the launching, while the fireboat New Yorker carried up another official delegation, and two parlor cars chartered by Alexander Miller & Brother took the rest. Those who rode in the parlor cars were T. D. Miller of the launching firm, who acted as host; Alfred M. Downes, Secretary of the Fire Department; F. J. Lantry, Jr., and Miss May Lantry; Deputy Commissioner Hugh Bonner, Battalion Chiefs Barrett, Hauck, and Beggins; Charles W. Culkin, chief clerk of General Sessions; Capt. George J. Fox, and Joseph J. O'Reilly, editor of The Chief, the department's publication.

When the train reached Newburg the two private cars were detached from the train and a special engine hauled them down to the shipyard. There already awaiting them was the party who had come in the three Fire Department automobiles. They were the Mayor and Mrs. McClellan, Clarence S. Hoyt, Assistant Corporation Counsel; Fire Commissioner Lantry and two daughters, Catherine and Lillian, who later christened the two boats; ex-Fire Commissioner O'Brien, and Sheriff Hayes, who also at one time was a Fire Commissioner.

The fireboat New Yorker had steamed up the river with an official party on board that included Chief Croker, Battalion Chiefs Kenion and Conlon, Capt. Murray of the New Yorker, Capt. Conley of the William L. Strong, Capt. Platt of the Seth Low, Capt. Hyde of the Abram S. Hewitt, and Capt. McCarthy of the George B. McClellan.

The visitors mounted a platform erected at the bow of the Thomas Willett. A large crowd of Newburg people filled the yard. There was no speechmaking. Mr. Miller turned toward the stern.

"All right, Bill," said he. "Let 'er go."

Instantly there came the sound of pounding. A gang of men, headed by "Bill," was knocking away the wedges that held the new boat fast. As the last wedge fell away there was a pause. On the platform Miss Catherine Lantry stood, with her hands holding the ribbon attached to the bottle of champagne at the boat's bow. Then, while all watched, the boat slid down the ways.

Miss Lantry drew the ribbon toward her and then released it abruptly. The shattered bottle fell to the ground beneath, while at the bow there was a bubble and the hanging neck of the broken bottle.

"I christen thee Thomas Willett," she said joyously.

Almost before the tug had finished tying up to the Willett the official party had moved to the platform at the bow of the James Duane. This time the sister of Miss Lantry, Lillian Lantry, broke the champagne, and christened the boat as she slid down the ways. Again the New Yorker made the water christening following the champagne ceremony.

The two new fireboats are each 131 feet long, with a breadth of beam of 27 feet and depth of 14 feet. The engines will each develop 150 horse power and are turbines. The pumps are of the new centrifugal pattern and will throw 10,000 gallons of water a minute.

ACTRESS IN AUTO ARREST.

Adele Ritchie Said She Owned Machine—M. L. Sire Bails Chauffeur.

When Fred W. Harnach, a chauffeur, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday for violating the speed law, Magistrate Walsh held him in $100 bail for trial. The bail was promptly furnished by Meyer L. Sire, a real estate dealer of 24 East Sixty-third Street, by whom Harnach said he was employed.

Bicycle Policeman John Geideman said that when he made the arrest at Forty-third Street and Broadway a young woman leaned out of the automobile and said that she was in a hurry to reach the Casino Theatre for a rehearsal. Geideman told her he would have to take the driver to the station house and she agreed to go, too.

At the West Forty-seventh Street Station she said she was Miss Adele Ritchie, the actress, and, Geideman says, also declared that she owned the machine. At the time of the arrest Miss Ritchie was accompanied by her maid. She did not appear in court.

Bell Indicted for Murder.

John Bell, the Brooklyn trolley car conductor, who is in the Richmond County Jail, charged with having shot and killed Dr. C. Wilmot Townsend at his home in New Brighton, on Jan. 27, was indicted yesterday by the Richmond County Grand Jury. District Attorney Kenny says the chances of Bell ever being brought to trial are very slight. He believes the man is hopelessly insane.

Senate Votes to Repeal Libel Law—No Direct Vote on Senators.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 16.—The bill repealing the Grady-Salus libel act, the measure that was passed at the instance of Gov. Pennypacker, passed the Senate to-day without a dissenting vote. The bill now goes to the House for concurrence in the amendments inserted by the Senate. They correct minor defects. The repeal was demanded by the entire press of the State.

The House bill giving the voters of the State an opportunity to express their choice for United States Senators at the Uniform Primary elections, one of the most important political bills before the present Legislature, failed on final passage in the Senate to-day, the vote being 22 to 22. A majority vote of the Senate, 26, was necessary to pass the bill, which was opposed by the Republican organization.

SHAW ADVISES ECONOMY.

Ex-Secretary Speaks to the Y. M. C. A. Real Estate Classes.

Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw spoke last night at a dinner at Reisenweber's and warned the members of the real estate classes of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association against extravagant living. Extravagance, he said, was fast becoming the chief characteristic of the age. The ex-Secretary urged a return to the old Benjamin Franklin doctrine of economy and industry.

"The world owes you a living," he said, "but you have to collect it. Unless you save your salaries, you will be in the position of the old man who said that he had always lived from hand to mouth, but that as he grew older he found that the distance increased."

Two hundred members and guests were present at the third annual dinner of the real estate classes. Ex-President Francis E. Ward of the Real Estate Board of Brokers was toastmaster.

Sir Daniel O'Connor, Postmaster General of Australia, spoke on "Title Registration in Australia." He leaves New York to-morrow to see various members of the Legislature in Albany with a view to interesting them in the Torrens or Australian system of land titles.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue spoke on "Real Values and Realty Values." Other speakers were Joseph L. Buttenwieser, Joseph P. Day, Robert E. Simon, and Gilbert H. Montague.

The opening game in this city of the American League championship, played yesterday at the American League grounds between New York and the Philadelphia Athletics, was productive of a strange mixture of baseball. The contest, on the whole, was a disappointing one for the spectators, both from a playing standpoint and the final result. At times the playing would have disgraced a minor league team, while at others the plays were little short of the sensational order. It was a long-drawn-out game, with Philadelphia always in the lead and little real cause to worry, despite the spasmodic rallies of the Yankees, who found a stern chase a long one and were finally compelled to concede victory to the Philadelphians by the score of 9 to 6.

Seldom has so much enthusiasm been aroused at an American League game in New York. It was an impartial crowd, that applauded friend and foe alike when the occasion arose, and no opportunity was lost by the spectators to give full vent to their feelings. During the first half of the game the spectators were treated to a miserable exhibition of fielding on the part of the New York players, nor were their feelings improved by the onslaught of the Quaker batsmen, who benefited to the full by the Yankees' mishaps, which, added to opportune batting, enabled the Athletics to open up a big gap and secure a practically sure victory.

Three pitchers were used on the New York team, while the visitors found it necessary to effect one change in the pitching department. Orth began operations, but after he had been hit safely four times in two innings Hughes was requisitioned. It was a difficult task for the young pitcher, as the Athletics had secured a lead of six runs from Orth's delivery. Two more runs were added by the Philadelphians in the fourth inning, when Hughes settled down, and for the next three innings disposed of his opponents in one, two, three order. He pitched six innings, with but three hits registered against him, when Thomas was sent in to bat for him at a critical stage and Castleton finished the last inning. Dygert was very effective for six innings, but in the seventh, after two singles and a double had been made off his delivery, he was taken out of the box and replaced by Bender, the Indian, who brought the scoring to a sudden halt and held the New York hitters safe during the remainder of the game.

Four errors were charged up to New York. Chase, Elberfeld, and Kleinow suffered from overanxiety and made wild throws, while Hoffman allowed a somewhat easy fly to slip through his hands. Cross was the only offender on the visiting team, his error being the result of a wild throw. These errors, though fatal for the Yankees, did not detract from the excellent field work of the remaining members of both nines.

Considering the day, there was a big crowd on hand to greet the rival teams. The threatening weather doubtless kept thousands away from the game, but fully 10,000 persons showed their loyalty to the Yankees by turning out and encouraging their favorites. The edge of the usual opening ceremony was somewhat taken off by the game last week, when the Giants and the Philadelphias ushered in the regular season at the Polo Grounds. The time-honored ceremonies were observed—the flag raising, march across the playing field by the combined teams, headed by the Old Guard Band, and the verbal bouquets which replaced the old custom of presentation of flowers to each player. Catcher Kleinow was the only favored one in the latter respect, as he received a huge horseshoe of roses, with an attached card bearing the inscription, "From the Bunch." It was the only gift of the day.

In the absence of President Ban Johnson, who was expected to formally open the season, "Dismond Jim" Brady, the horseman, threw the new ball to Umpire Evans, which marked the opening of the hostilities. No time was lost by the umpire as he received the ball, and he turned toward the Philadelphia bench and shouted, "Batter up!"

Orth received an indication of the treatment he was to get from the outset. Hartsel led off with a clean single. Cross bunted in front of the plate, but Kleinow threw the ball several feet above Chase's head, and when it was returned the Athletics had men on second and third bases and none out. Seybold was disposed of without trouble, and Davis drove a long fly to Hoffman in centre field, which struck the fielder's glove and dropped to the ground. Hartsel and Cross scored on the misplay.

The Yankees were blanked in the second half of the first inning. Knight began the Quakers' second inning with a base hit. Berry hit an easy grounder to Elberfeld, who threw the ball over Chase's head at first base. Knight reached third and Berry went to second. Both men scored when Dygert hit to centre for two bases. Harteel's sacrifice sent Dygert to third, and the latter came home when Crose drove the ball down the third-base line for a triple. Cross was run down between third base and the home plate on Seybold's grounder to Elberfeld. Davis was hit by a pitched ball, and Murphy was safe when Chase tossed the ball wild as Williams covered the initial bag, and Seybold added the fourth run of the inning.

New York's scoring began in the second half of the fourth inning, after Philadelphia had carried its total to eight by means of two long singles by Hartsel and Seybold and a base on balls by Hughes, who had relieved Orth in the third inning. Elberfeld was safe on a wild throw by Cross. Laporte doubled to the left-field fence and Elberfeld crossed the plate. As Cross threw to the plate to catch Elberfeld, Laporte ran to third, and scored on Hoffman's long fly to Seybold.

In the sixth inning the Yankees added two more runs. Elberfeld went to first on called balls, and was forced by Williams. Laporte doubled, sending Williams to third. Hoffman singled, scoring Williams and Laporte. New York started a batting matinée in the seventh inning. Conroy started with a single. Keeler was thrown out at first. Conroy going to second. Chase singled, and a wild pitch put Conroy on third. The latter tallied on Elberfeld's two-base hit. Bender relieved Dygert at this stage. Williams singled and sent Chase home. Laporte struck out, and the Yankees lost their only chance of winning the game.

The Athletics added one run in the eighth inning. Lord received a base on balls, went to second on Knight's sacrifice, and scored when Berry doubled to centre. Score:

Eighteen Thousand See Donovan's Team Lose Opening Game at Washington Park.

CHICAGO STILL UNDEFEATED

New York is Tied for Second Place with Three Other League Teams—Phillies Defeat Boston.

The New York Giants opened the season in Brooklyn yesterday and trounced Donovan's team handily before a crowd of 18,000 people. It was the biggest attendance ever recorded in Brooklyn. Chicago did not play in the West, and retained its unbroken record of victories, but both the other teams which had clean scores—Cincinnati and Boston—met defeat, bringing the Giants up to second place, tied with the two and with Philadelphia, which opened its home season by beating Boston. St. Louis won her first victory, but Pittsburg and Brooklyn have still to break the ice.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

McGinnity Pitches Fine Ball and Giants Score an Easy Victory.

Eighteen thousand persons—a record-breaking crowd for Brooklyn—witnessed the opening of the baseball season in the City of Churches yesterday afternoon. A very fair percentage of the throng consisted of Manhattan rooters who went over the Bridge to cheer for McGraw's pennant aspirants. Elaborate preparations were made for the occasion, and the grounds were in gala attire. The turnout was remarkable, considering the day and the rival attraction at American League Park, and just before the game began the crush was terrific. The crowd filled every inch of the stands and overran the outfield, massing behind the players.

Shortly before 3:30 the band formed in front of the players' clubhouse and the two teams marched abreast to the flagpole, raising the Stars and Stripes. The march was then resumed to the home-plate amid wild enthusiasm. This continued intermittently during the preliminary practice until Umpire Rigler finally called play.

The game was principally marked by the brilliant work of old "Tommy" Corcoran, the Giants' new second baseman. He was here, there, and everywhere around the base when in the field, cutting off safe hits and getting the runner at first. He rounded out his work with some batting that figured largely in the run getting, smashing out a double and a triple, which, except for a ground rule, would have been a home run. "Cy" Seymour and Roger Bresnahan were also important factors in the Giants' victory, both in fielding and at the bat.

McGinnity's effective pitching discredits the carping critics, who have declared the "iron man's" arm is giving out. Throughout the game he had the Brooklynites at his mercy.

New York got the first run in the opening inning. Shannon walked and Browne's sacrifice put him on second. He scored when Capt. Casey failed to get Devlin's grounder and then made a poor throw to the plate. A base on balls to Dahlen, followed by triples by Corcoran and Browne, added two more in the second. The fourth and last run came in the third inning, when Bresnahan hit into the crowd in left field for three bases, scoring on McGann's single.

Brooklyn's only tally was obtained in the opening inning on Jordan's double and Casey's single. After that no Brooklyn runner got past second. The score follows:

DANIELS ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

American Swimmer Will Go Against English Champion in Match.

C. M. Daniels of the New York Athletic Club yesterday accepted a challenge from Henry Taylor. The latter is the long-distance champion of England, and is supposed to be one of the world's fastest swimmers from the quarter to the mile. Daniels was unable to compete in the mile championship of England while abroad last year, due to a clash of dates. The match will take place at Battersby Sept. 10, where most of the English salt-water championships are held.

The one regrettable feature of the match, from the American standpoint, is its coming off only three days after the 100-yard English championship, in which Daniels will compete. Still, as he will probably have no formidable rivals in this race, he can begin his training immediately after the 220-yard race of Aug. 10.

Of the outcome of the match Americans feel very confident. Taylor has covered a quarter-mile in open water in 5:35, and can probably do it again in spite of his having done only 5:42 3-5 in last year's championship. Daniels, on the other hand, has no better mark than 5:31 2-5, made in a 75-foot pool, which is equal to about 5:45 in open water. But he established these figures on the way to 1,000 yards, so that comparing them to his time in the furlong, one may safely conclude that he can swim around 5:30 if properly trained for this event. In fact, there are many who believe him quite able to dispose of Barney Kezan's world's record of 5:19, and expect to see it reduced.

A victory for Daniels, which is certainly among the probabilities, would mean an important step toward America's all-round supremacy in swimming.

HORSE SHOW AT ASHEVILLE.

Classes Well Filled—Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt Among Exhibitors.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 16.—The annual Spring horse show, which is the big society feature of the Asheville season, was opened at Riverside Park this afternoon. The classes were well filled and the attendance large. There are between 200 and 300 entries, George W. Vanderbilt showing some fine horses from his Biltmore stables. Mrs. Vanderbilt also entered "Jet" and "Cinder," her two favorites. Among the prize winners were Mrs. A. B. Doyle, Miss Mary Hamilton, Mrs. Cheskley Shaw, Mrs. H. H. Briggs, Miss Katherine Grant, C. C. Millard, Miss Alyne Reynolds. Those who offered prizes were George W. Vanderbilt, John A. Roebling, Mrs. A. C. Bartlett, C. Brewster Chapman, Frederick Graham, Philip Henry, and Beekman Lorillard.

The parking spaces were well filled with gay equipages, among those present being Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Lorillard, Mrs. Frank Lockwood, Miss Lockwood, and Roger Lawsen, Jr., of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a house party at Biltmore to-night.

STUDENTS TO USE RIFLE.

College Marksmen to be Developed by National Rifle Association.

Under a plan formulated by the Executive Committee of the National Rifle Association training for marksmen will be introduced in the universities, colleges, and schools of the United States. The plan was adopted yesterday at a meeting held in the association's headquarters, 299 Broadway. In its workings it is practically the same as that arranged by Gen. James A. Drain, the association's President, for the introduction of rifle shooting in the schools of this city under the direction of the Public Schools Athletic League.

Those who espouse the plan declare that it is the best safeguard for peace that is to be obtained, that the United States is years behind all other great countries in taking up this work. Boys and young men taught to use the rifle as a means of making them fit to serve their country in time of need, are not on that account more inclined to warlike strife.

It is proposed to hold intercollegiate and scholastic competitions every Spring. The first of the kind will be held on the ranges at Creedmoor, L. I., June 21 and 22. At this meeting a new and valuable intercollegiate trophy will be competed for.

MEADOW BROOK'S GOOD HUNT.

Club Members Enjoyed Most Successful Run of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

MEADOW BROOK, L. I., April 16.—With a dozen riders afield, all save four of whom stayed in the hunt until the finish, the Meadow Brook Hunt Club to-day enjoyed the largest run it has taken this season. Only two women riders were out, but they acquitted themselves well, being in the front not only throughout the running, but at the finish as well.

The start was from New Cassel, where the hunters met at 8:30 o'clock. From the starting point they rode to Synsette, where a welcome meet was held. Thence they rode through grassy fields to the White Church in Woodbury, where they finished.

The ground was in splendid shape and gave promise of other pleasant Spring hunts. The following finished: Miss Cornelia Bryce, Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, H. Peter, R. F. Potter, J. P. Grove, Malcom Stevenson, Samuel Willets, M. F. H. Beverly Robinson.

On and Off the Diamond.

President Harry C. Pulliam of the National League has issued a bulletin announcing that the following contracts between clubs and players have been approved: With Boston, Clarence Beaumont; with Chicago, Mordecai Brown, John G. Kling, Michael Kahoe, Carl L. Lundgren, P. J. Moran, John F. McCormick, Wilford Osborne, Orvel Osborne, John Pfiester, Newton J. Randall, Frank H. Schulte, J. W. Seabrough, James T. Sheckard, for 1907, 1908, 1909, and Blair A. Durbin, John Evers, Arthur C. Hoffman, W. J. Sweeney, James F. Slagle and Joe B. Miller for 1907, 1908.

Mordecai Brown, one of the players signed by President Murphy for three years, has had a remarkable career in baseball, and although but 19 years old is conceded by baseball experts far and wide as being one of the best pitchers in either of the two big leagues. He won more games for Chicago, which won the championship last year, than any other pitcher on the team. And, more remarkable than all, he has but two fingers and a thumb on his pitching hand, the other two, the third and little fingers, having been amputated.

Fred Parent, the well-known shortstop of the Boston American League team, has signed a contract to play with the club this year. The decision was made upon the offer of President John I. Taylor of the club to compromise the salary differences that existed between the player and the club. Parent is to receive $3,750 for the season.

Coach Billy Lush of the Yale nine has again been compelled to give up coaching. He has caught cold in the eye which was struck with a stone while he was in Washington with the Yale nine for its Easter trip. He returned from the hospital in Washington last Saturday and visited the Yale field on Monday.

"C. E. L.," in a letter to THE TIMES, complains of the injustice of making it compulsory for persons having received rain checks to use them for the succeeding game. One part of the complaint says: "How many office boys could have a grandmother die on two succeeding days, or how many funerals are postponed because of inclement weather?"

ADDED HORSE WON THE FILLY STAKES

Notasulga, from Winter Tracks, Took the Rose from a Big Field at Aqueduct.

J. R. KEENE'S FIRST VICTORY

The very light fields of ordinary horses offered as the racing programme at the Aqueduct track yesterday, backed by the cold and gloomy weather, served to increase the reaction after the semi-holiday of the season's opening, and the stands looked empty by comparison.

The racing was of a kind to appeal only to the regulars, but these, shivering in the corners of the stands and betting ring between races, and venturing into the open parts of the stands and out on the lawn only when the races were in progress, gathered fair reward for their courage, as three post favorites were successful in the course of the afternoon. A big proportion of the winners were from the Winter tracks, and animals of moderate selling class. There was one exception, in Notasulga, a two-year-old filly, which made her début in the East in the race for the Rose Stakes, half a mile for fillies, two years old, with a rather clever field, from the biggest field of the day, in which several of the big stables of the East were represented by what were reputed to be well-tried two-year-olds.

Eighteen horses were named to run for the Rose, the fourth race of the card, but seven of these were withdrawn, while three starters were added, Notasulga being among the number of added horses. Notasulga is owned by Albert Hamel, and, though she was a new element to the public generally, the regulars and betting men had full knowledge of her record at the New Orleans Winter tracks, where she was a winner, and accordingly was made a strong favorite, though a dozen other horses were backed on tips concerning their work in private.

The race was confined to Notasulga, James R. Keene's Frizette, Fred Burlew's Ella O'Neill, and the Holly Stables' Tea Leaf all the way, these four breaking out of the crowd at the lifting of the barrier and racing together all the distance, with Notasulga in front most of the distance. Notasulga was conceding weight to all the new-comers of the field, but she stuck to her work with fine courage, and, shaking off her opponents in the final furlong, won rather easily by two lengths, with Tea Leaf and Frizette head and head as named, second and third. The winner's performance made so favorable an impression on the horsemen who saw the race that several offers were made to her owner, the best bid coming from Fred Burlew, who also saw Notasulga racing at New Orleans. It was said that a bargain was made, and that Notasulga will be transferred to-day to Burlew on private terms.

James R. Keene won his first race of the season in the second contest of the afternoon, a half mile, for two-year-olds, for which he started Masks and Faces, a son of the great Keene horse, Disguise. Eight horses ran, with the betting shifting between Magazine and Rosario, while Masks and Faces went to the post at odds of 5 to 1. The Keene colt, with quite an advantage in the weights over Magazine, raced out in the lead with that colt from start to finish, and, hard ridden at the end, managed to last just long enough to win by a half length from Magazine,

EIGHTEEN PAGES

A GERMAN VIEW OF OUR TARIFF.

In the interesting group of utterances in THE TIMES of Sunday from distinguished foreign visitors none was more significant or more worthy candid attention than the spirited statement of his Excellency THEODORE VON MUELLER, late Imperial Minister of Commerce in Germany, on the trade relations of the two countries. It was entirely courteous, and even warmly kind, but it was frankly a criticism, a warning, and an urgent invitation to modify some of the essential features of our fiscal system as they affect foreign commerce and must ultimately affect our own prosperity.

Herr VON MUELLER ought to have a respectful hearing from those even who are most rigidly attached to our protective system, for he is not a free trader, he does not approach the study of our situation in a hostile spirit, he is a representative, and has been an authoritative official, of a Government committed to a rational employment of protective tariffs. But he is well grounded in the study and in the practice as well of international trade, and he knows how tariffs of different kinds and degrees actually work. The one thing that he finds hardest to excuse in our tariff is the adherence to ad valorem rates. That system, he says, "is the most abominable nuisance and handicap." He has succeeded in abolishing it in Germany and substituting a specific duty on each of the classes of a minutely divided dutiable list. "I should have preferred," he says, "a closer classification, but the idea was not popular. That is no matter. The principle is the thing—a fixed rate, one determined not by the conscience of exporter, importer, or the caprice of customs officers, but by the footrule and the scales. You can do business to advantage only when you—what is your word—when you know 'where you are at.'"

Of course to the vexations necessarily attending the administration of a complex tariff like ours, there must be added those arising from our rule that duties shall be levied not on the actual cost of the imports, but upon the price of like goods in the open market in the country of exportation. This Herr VON MUELLER calls the source of "constant uncertainty, constant dispute, constant temptation to subterfuge, mendacity, bribery, extortion, a constant source of ill-will, private and international."

In connection with this topic Herr VON MUELLER makes what is perhaps the most important statement in his interview: "I am quite prepared to say that you would perfectly satisfy Germany if you were to retain the amount of your customs just what they are today, but put them on the specific basis, so much a pound, so much a foot." There could be no more graphic and emphatic presentation of the final effect of the process our protectionists have been carrying on for years, the process of surrounding importation of every sort with the utmost difficulty, harassment, vexation, and impediment for the express purpose of preventing competition from abroad as much as possible. Here is a statement from the representative of a country with which our trade is more important than with any other in the world save one—a country that for two years has been on the verge of tariff war with us—that entire peace is possible on the simple condition that we shall define our exactions precisely. Germany, according to Herr VON MUELLER, does not ask us to reduce the duties on her goods, though many of them are extremely high; she asks us to say exactly what those duties are, so that they can be understood by all parties interested in them.

Of course we ought not really to stop there. If we hope to get the foreign trade to which the variety of our resources and industries clearly entitles us, we must not merely remove the barbed wire entanglements from our tariff wall, we must reduce the wall itself. We must abandon an isolation which never was justified. On this point Herr VON MUELLER has a few words of extreme pertinency to say:

> Surely the time is coming when you will perceive that the world has moved past the day of national isolation. For one thing, you need the inspiration of competition—foreign competition, the competition of German science, French skill, British methods—contact and freshening from other national minds and ideas. It is a great big world, and the business of the big world is a great, splendid game. Why not get into it, instead of playing off in a corner by yourself?

THE TIGHT-ROPE COMPETITION.

There is an interesting contrast between Republican comments upon Mr. BRYAN'S railway policy and Democratic comments upon Mr. ROOSEVELT'S. Thus a respected neighbor remarks that Mr. BRYAN is drawing it pretty fine when he proposes or predicts that the next campaign will turn upon Government regulation of railways by a man who believes in it or by another man who disbelieves in it. This is running away from Government ownership.

On the other hand, Mr. ROOSEVELT'S shrinking as prices collapsed on Wall Street bears a resemblance to a similar tenderness on the part of the beneficiary of Mr. BRYAN'S ideas. Mr. ROOSEVELT wanted to frighten the railways into being good, but did not want a panic. Neither did the alleged panic promoters. As a Philadelphia contemporary remarked:

> An immediate occasion for the fall in securities was the effort of the speculative railroad interests to have just enough of a panic to frighten the Administration and the country. They got more panic than they wanted.

We agree with both. Truly the "making of an issue that will be neither too radical nor too conservative is ticklish business." Our diffident suggestion is that issue-making shall stop on both sides. No issue that is really worth while is made to order, and if ever there is an excuse for looking a gift-horse in the mouth it is when a candidate offers himself, or his policy, and so manoeuvres that no other candidate or policy is available. No vaudeville show on earth possesses such equilibrists as those now posturing before Americans. To some it seems possible that the "turn" has been begun too soon to last until the end of the performance. No artists could be expected to keep attention at the breaking point until November, 1908. Before then we are entitled to an interval of rest from excitations whose results terrify their producers.

A HOUSECLEANING NEEDED.

Even Mayor MCCLELLAN, it appears, in his capacity of Citizen MCCLELLAN and member of a neighborhood association of householders, has been forced to admit that our municipal housekeeping is not in a satisfactory condition. It might be put very much more strongly. It is in a condition so unsatisfactory as to be disgraceful. Certainly in two important particulars it has not been so bad since the care of the streets was taken away from the Police Department. And these two particulars are the care of the streets and the suppression of crimes of violence.

The responsibility for the state of the streets must be divided between two departments, the Department of Highways and the Street Cleaning Department. The streets have not since WARING began his Augean labors been so dirty as the disappearance through natural causes of the Winter's accumulation of filth concealed by filthy snow shows them to be now. It is true that the new Commissioner is entitled to a considerable indulgence. But the limit of that indulgence is about reached.

The state of the pavements is the concern of the Department of Highways, and is an unmitigated disgrace to that department. It is true that a great many of the contracts by which the layers of the asphalt pavements bound themselves to maintain those pavements for a specified term of years have lately been expiring. But this fact is only an explanation, not an excuse. Surely the Department of Highways must be aware that, in the matter of holes in asphalt, a stitch in time saves nine, and that a force of Inspectors followed by a force of repairers would prevent small holes from growing into huge, deep, and dangerous gaps. But the department seems to maintain neither one of these forces. The condition of the pavements all over town is inexcusable.

The primary duty of the police is to prevent crimes of violence. Keeping order and protecting the persons and property of peaceable persons are obligations which no police force can in the least degree escape by attending to the less weighty matters of the law. Burglaries and highway robberies were never within memory so frequent as they are now. Of course they are frequent because they are unpunished. Immunity is the rule; detection the exception. The Judges, one is gratified to note, are doing their part toward infusing some terror of the law into the criminal classes by giving convicts the extreme penalty of the law. But the police are very far from doing their part. Now that two of them have been killed, they seem to be aroused to a keener sense of the situation, and are taking steps to disarm the criminals. But this disarmament is an inadequate substitute for the faithful patrolling of the streets which is the first and the most extensively neglected duty of the uniformed force. Very seldom, if ever, has our municipal housekeeping been done so badly as it is done to-day.

THE APPEAL TO JUSTICE.

According to the letter of Miss EMILY H. LUTH, replete with historical precedent, which appears elsewhere in this issue of THE TIMES, the Board of Education in its oversight of teachers' salaries is everything that is cruel, arbitrary, and unjust. It is a tyrannical GEORGE III.; it has seceded from the women teachers' inviolable union; it is the despicable King JOHN at Runnymede, who promised, refused, and was forced to sign Magna Charta; it is the dreadful Patriciate of early Rome; it is the Attic grinder of poor debtor slaves and mortgaged peasants, whom wise and noble Solons of the State Legislature are asked to set free. Equalization of salaries with the men is the new blazoning of unfurled freedom, and behind that banner march ten thousand Amazons to victory or death.

With the scorn of a twentieth century Antigone Miss LUTH spurns compromise. There shall be no halting at salaries that approximate the increased cost of living. This is a fight of "moral right and civic justice," the divine right of the employed to fix the employer's payroll, so that Tyrant Man may be dethroned. Equalization obtains in other cities, with or without the consent of the governing body; why not here? Chicago, Pittsburg, Washington, Columbus, Allegheny, and more than these in lengthening roll have witnessed its triumphant establishment. What will it do for New York?

What has it done for them? Here is the table of maximum salaries for high schools in fourteen cities, where the "square deal" and "moral right and civic justice" play in fraternal and sororal accord, paired with cities of the same class in which the hated sex discrimination is discernible by the dual schedules:

MAXIMUM HIGH SCHOOL SALARIES.

City.	Men.	Women.	Equal Pay.	Pop., 1900.
New York	$3,000	$2,500	....	3,716,000
Chicago	....	....	$2,000	1,873,000
Cleveland	2,200	1,900	....	414,000
Pittsburg	....	....	1,900	345,000
Newark, N. J.	2,200	1,000	....	247,000
Washington	....	....	1,500	279,000
Worcester	2,800	1,050	....	128,000
Columbus	....	....	1,282	125,000
New Haven	2,000	1,250	....	114,000
Allegheny	....	....	1,400	138,000
Seattle	1,250	1,200	....	92,000
Portland, Ore.	....	....	1,000	98,000
Duluth	1,300	900	....	57,000
Salt Lake City	....	....	1,080	57,000
Erie	1,800	1,102	....	56,000
Elizabeth	....	....	1,000	56,000
Norfolk	1,400	900	....	55,000
Harrisburg	....	....	1,045	52,000
Tacoma	1,050	930	....	45,000
Lincoln	....	....	855	44,000
East St. Louis	1,200	850	....	34,000
Topeka	....	....	900	33,000
Chattanooga	765	630	....	30,000
Joplin, Mo.	....	....	630	30,000
Gloucester, Mass.	....	....	1,000	26,000
Orange, N. J.	1,400	900	....	25,000
Burlington, Ia.	1,200	725	....	23,000
Clinton, Ia.	....	....	808	23,000

These are typical examples, as reference to the manual of the National Educational Association on "Salaries, Tenure, and Pensions of Public School Teachers in the United States" clearly indicates. In public school systems men's salaries are few. There are few men. "Equalization" does not increase salaries generally; it lops and prunes the exceptional salaries. If merely the sordid question of high wages actually paid were to the fore, whether maximum, minimum, or average, whether in high schools or in grammar schools, the New York dual schedules would have the better of the argument, even without approximate advancement to the increased cost of living.

LESSONS OF THE THAW TRIAL.

Very few persons, it seems, excepting hardened and inveterate criminal lawyers, are disposed to agree with some representatives of that class that the Thaw trial does not indicate any desirable change in our methods of criminal procedure.

One of the changes which other people find to be indicated is set forth in an interesting letter of Dr. ALLAN MCLANE HAMILTON to The Sun. Naturally it concerns the matter of expert testimony. Dr. HAMILTON disparages the accepted legal criterion of insanity, which dates remotely back to "the ruis in MCNAUGHTON'S case," or some other antique precedent, and renews and urges his suggestion of a permanent board of experts, who shall be "friends of the court," and retained by neither side. Doubtless the existence of such a body would prevent injustice and avoid scandal upon the difference between the amount and weight of expert testimony that can be adduced by a rich and by a poor defendant.

There is another point upon which legal correspondents have addressed us privately, and that is the abuse in connection with criminal trials of the freedom of the press. We are not prepared to deny the impeachment. There is some ground for it. But we are prepared to say that the courts have now ample power to prevent the abuse. The rule, of course, is clear. The press has a right to report criminal trials. It has no right to add comment, or to color its reports of a case sub judice. An admonition by the court, in the course of a case, would sufficiently put newspapers on their guard as to the limits of their rights. Respectable newspapers would observe these limits. Newspapers which transcended them the courts already have abundant power to deal with according to the measure of their offenses.

But certain of our correspondents have gone further, and have laid it down that a juror has no right, or "ought" to have no right, to comment on a trial publicly, even after the trial is over, that the injunction of secrecy is permanent. In that position we cannot in the least concur. The reflections of an intelligent juror upon a trial in which he has taken part, and which is completed, such reflections as those which Mr. BREARLEY has been publishing in this journal on the Thaw case, seem to us of high illuminating power and of value to reformers and legislators as well as to practicing lawyers. Necessarily the jurors, until they are discharged, are debarred from talking about either the merits of the case or the methods of the trial while the trial is in progress. But a perpetual injunction upon them of secrecy about both would come altogether too near converting the jury room into a Star Chamber to suit the modern and most of all the American sense of justice as well as of liberty.

MAX STIRNER.

When JOHANN CASPAR SCHMIDT went to the University of Göttingen his fellow-students jocosely called him Max Stirner, (Maximus Stirn,) because of his prodigiously high forehead. The name clung to him. He signed it to his extraordinary book, "Der Einzige und sein Eigenthum," in which he set forth the doctrine of individualism, the opposite of Socialism, afterward so brilliantly represented in German and Norwegian literature by NIETZSCHE and HENRIK IBSEN. Stirner's book was almost forgotten until 1898, when JOHN HENRY MACKAY published in German his painstaking account on Stirner's life and work. "Der Einzige und sein Eigenthum" has now been translated into English, and it will be the subject of a striking article by JAMES HUNEKER in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS this week. Mr. HUNEKEN has long been familiar with Stirner in the original, and knows MACKAY'S book, too, and it is needless to say that he has been a close student of the individualistic literature of modern Europe. Stirner was an extraordinary man, if not a great one, and Mr. HUNEKER has written a wonderfully interesting article about him and his ideas.

We have heard righteousness contrasted with peace. Why, I tell you that righteousness and peace cannot be divorced. Imagine the state of mind of that man who insists that they can be divorced. * * * The man who assumes that he is right and insists on judging his own course has not the proper sense, either of justice or of righteousness. It is the man who offers to submit his cause to a righteous judge that embraces the "righteousness that exalteth a nation."—Mr. CARNEGIE.

Would Mr. CARNEGIE be willing to refer the dispute between him and Mr. ROOSEVELT to the arbitrament of a third disinterested judge, and abide by the decision?

It is the custom to run campaigns with funds subscribed secretly and spent secretly. Then, after the election, the corporations control the Government and the people are betrayed.—Mr. BRYAN at the Publicity bill meeting yesterday.

It has been so in the past, but it strikes us that it is not the people but the corporations that are getting the hot end of the poker nowadays.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Everyday Heroism Illustrated.

Two policemen of the quality of SELLECK and SECHLER are a huge price to pay for the arrest of a miserable imported brigand like the Sicilian GOVERNALE, particularly as the man was "wanted" for shooting another of his own kind, an act which, while technically most criminal, could have been viewed with a certain equanimity since it decreased by one a part of the city's population that is both a nuisance and a danger. But of course that is a wrong way to look at GOVERNALE'S crime, and it was not the way in which the two policemen viewed it.

What they did, and it evidences the quality to which we have referred, was to pursue and attack the assassin without the slightest hesitation, though they knew perfectly well that by approaching such a man at such a time they were inviting peril to life and highly probable death. For it was certain that GOVERNALE, excited by the success of his murderous attack on his own countryman, would resist arrest while he had the strength to fire a revolver or wield a knife, and that he would kill if he could anybody who stood in his way and threatened his liberty. The policemen knew that, but they did not think of it. They thought only of the performance of their duty and threw themselves on the maddened animal, as regardless of personal consequences as he was. This, undoubtedly, is heroism, but it is a little hard to keep that fact in mind, since it was also, for policemen, a part of "the day's work," and it would have been as promptly attempted by at least 95 per cent. of a body of men who, whatever other failings they may have, betray a lack of physical courage only in the rarest instances.

SECHLER leaves a wife and a child only a few weeks old, and the provision which the city makes for their support is meagre. The most that the Commissioner of Police can do is to give her a pension of $300 a year. He can, if he pleases, divide this sum between the mother and the child, but he cannot increase it above what he could give the widow if she were alone, nor could he if she had half a dozen children instead of one. Hence there is reason for the present movement to raise a fund for the surviving dependents of the two dead policemen. The city certainly ought to take care of them, but the hands of the Trustees of the Pension Fund are bound by the limitations created by the charter.

War Viewed in a New Light.

Sir ROBERT BALL'S address at the first session of the Peace Conference presented some ideas on the subject of war that must have been startling to a good many of his hearers, and highly novel to most of the people who have since read what he had to say. For Sir ROBERT, being a scientist and not at all sentimental, did not hesitate to remind the assembled votaries of universal peace that they were themselves, especially as regards their virtues and their strength of mind and body, the products of a warfare which, up to comparatively few generations ago, had been incessant and had been waged with a ferocity and ruthlessness far beyond the worst of what they were met to reform.

Good or bad, that has been "nature's" plan from the beginning of life on the globe, and the survival of the fittest has always involved the killing off—and usually the eating—of the unfit; that is, of the weaker. But though Sir ROBERT saw and said this very plainly, he yet had an explanation of his presence, scientific and unsentimental as he is, at a meeting where peace was preached as necessarily and always better than the fight over a food supply which is called war. The old form of war, he said, was the natural form, not despite, but because, it lacked even a trace of chivalry, of consideration by the strong for the weak. With the notions of chivalry and of abstract right and wrong, however, war, he held, had become unnatural and was no longer serving its old purposes.

"Civilized man," the argument ran, "for his warfare picks out all his strongest and best men, exposes them to all the risks of conflict, while the weaker man is protected. Thus the race is not improved, it is deteriorated by warfare as conducted by civilized man. The conclusion, now, is obvious. By the natural warfare the human race has been created. The chivalrous warfare is conducted on principles quite wrong from the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. If, therefore, civilized man now conducts war, it is against nature. The human race must pay the penalty. The moral law forbids us (to purchase future improvement of the human race at the appalling price demanded by natural warfare. With no less force does the polity of nations demand that chivalrous war must cease, as by its means the human race will infallibly deteriorate."

This is ingenious and provocative of thought, but it occurs to us that Sir ROBERT ignored one important fact—that the definition of "fittest" has changed as well as the character of war since the days when, as he said, if our ancestors had died with their boots on, they would have had to wear four boots. Now, as always, in war as in every other competition, those who survive must be the fittest—for survival. The exceptions are individual and therefore negligible in any broad view.

The Stories of the Seismographs.

So many earthquakes occur in out-of-the-way parts of the earth where they do no harm that it means little when a seismograph has its delicate equilibrium disturbed, and even when, as in the case of this latest disaster in Mexico, the instruments in Washington, Albany, Berlin, and elsewhere record what has happened after only a few minutes have elapsed, the information thus acquired is interesting rather than directly useful, for we must still depend on the telegraph to tell us just what city has been wrecked, how many people have been killed, and how much property has been destroyed, which is about all anybody except the scientists wants to know.

But the seismographs have other uses. They reveal much about the direction of earth tremors and the speed at which they travel, and of course they show that no part of the earth is really stable for any great length of time. The little quivers that hitherto passed unnoted are now all recorded at every scientific centre, and the study of these records can be trusted, sooner or later, to increase the sum of human knowledge about the most mysterious of terrestrial activities. Curiously enough, when a seismograph is really at or near a place seriously shaken, it is almost always put out of commission before the agitation reaches its height.

INDORSES DR. DIX'S VIEWS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a member of the Commandery of the Loyal Legion of the State of New York, and one of a large number of companions who yesterday attended the beautiful service at the Church of the Incarnation commemorative of the surrender of Gen. Lee at Appomattox, and listened with great interest and pleasure to the admirable address delivered by the Rev. Dr. Dix, upon which there was none but enthusiastically favorable comment by the companions present, I was greatly surprised by the attitude assumed by Bishop Potter at the opening of the Peace Conference at Carnegie Hall last night, in which he characterized the address of Dr. Dix as "oratorical drippings" and stated, in substance, that the position of Dr. Dix in his address was inimical to the purposes and objects of the Peace Conference.

The address of Dr. Dix contained no word that was not in sympathy with the desire of all men and nations to accomplish international peace, and whatever was contained in his address which furnished a basis for the remarks of Bishop Potter referred solely to intra-national conditions caused by the undigested, and perhaps indigestible, elements of which our body politic is composed.

Illustrative of the soundness of the argument of Dr. Dix that our police cannot be discharged nor our National Guard disbanded within the life of any of those present is the fact that almost simultaneously with the utterance of his words two members of our police force were being ruthlessly murdered without any cause whatever by an enraged foreigner. It is regrettable that the newspapers, in their comments upon the criticism made by Bishop Potter, have not more clearly stated the position assumed by Dr. Dix, which, if stated, will commend itself to all right-thinking citizens.

Chance for the National Academy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The National Academy is receiving just now a great deal of adverse criticism from certain artists. These artists are "progressives" or "freaks," according to the point of view. I should say these perpetrators of startling innovations have all the representation they deserve; and that their protests sound like efforts at self-advertisement.

The Academy deserves censure, however, on other scores. New York has no gallery which will hold one-quarter of the pictures which deserve to be hung, and great numbers are excluded for lack of space only. Why don't the Academicians bestir themselves to remedy this? It can only be done through their efforts.

The answer, of course, is that the insiders are provided for now and that it would involve a sacrifice of time and work. OUTSIDER.

Through Trains on Second Avenue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Relative to Mr. Shonts's statement that the "Second Avenue elevated road is not being worked to its fullest capacity," I believe one of the reasons for this condition is that the trains on this line do not run above 129th Street. Neither do any of them run to the City Hall. If people coming from or going to the Bronx could avoid the necessity of changing cars at 129th Street and again at Chatham Square, many more would use this line. If they ran these trains directly to and from the Bronx and also to City Hall station I believe many who now use the Third Avenue line exclusively would find it to their advantage to use this line. People do not like to transfer, especially at 129th Street, where one has to climb up and down a flight of stairs in order to change cars. Some people would rather walk a few extra blocks than transfer from one train to another. A. L. FUSS.

Syracuse Won the Debate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Saturday morning's TIMES I saw a dispatch from Middletown, Conn., stating that Wesleyan University had won the decision over Syracuse University in their debate on the question, "Resolved, That the Sixtieth Congress should proceed to a general review of the tariff schedule for the purpose of reducing duties."

This dispatch, however, was not based upon fact, for upon investigation I find that Syracuse received a unanimous vote over her opponents, and therefore as a lover of justice and loyal alumnus of Syracuse I ask that you correct the erroneous report.

THE SALARY CONFLICT.

A New War of Liberation Waged by the Women Teachers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Since you were liberal enough to publish to-day letters that criticised your attitude toward President Roosevelt's popularity and the charges against the Evening High School teachers, you may be borne under again by a wave of broad-mindedness toward the injustices of New York's women teachers and print this reply to your editorial "Suppositions for Teachers."

To the first supposition, answer: A great business concern should scrutinize with care not only the proposal of 12,000 of the employés to increase their pay by 32.6 per cent. to 51.9 per cent., but also the cause of such a proposal. If the concern has a logical, just head, it will grant such a request upon finding justifiable conditions after investigation. For every effect there is a cause, you know, and the nineteenth century method is scientific; it looks with an open heart and mind at facts, and tries to see great truths, the fundamental verities.

To the second supposition: Suppose their plea were made mandatory by the employés, who should force a bill embodying the mandate through the State Legislature. Would it not arouse a degree of reasonable hostility in the breasts of the employers?

I ask: When, in the history of the world, did men try to establish a great ethical political principle that they did not have to resort to arms or to mandatory legislation or employ other means that "aroused a reasonable hostility in the breasts" of the enemies of that great moral principle? Did the Colonists obtain freedom from the tyrannical administration of George III. by means that did not "arouse a reasonable hostility in the breasts" of that monarch and his followers? Did the North, as represented by Webster and Lincoln, proclaim the sacred principle of the inviolability of our Union without arousing a "reasonable hostility in the breasts" of the Secessionists? To revert to European history, I ask: Did the Norman baronage and Saxon population of England force King John at Runnymede to sign the Magna Charta and grant its demands without arousing a "reasonable hostility in the breast" of that august gentleman? To revert to ancient history, I ask: Did the plebeians of the early Roman Republic by secession force the patricians to grant them the renowned Tribunate of the Plebs—a protection against the abuses of their debt and military-service laws—without arousing a "reasonable hostility in the breasts" of the unselfish patricians? Or did the wise and noble Solon set free the poor debtor-slaves and unjustly mortgaged peasants of Attica without arousing a "reasonable hostility in the breasts" of the worthy Athenian creditors? I might cite cases of history an infinitum where the struggle for human freedom and justice was steadfastly and nobly endured, but never without arousing a "reasonable hostility in the breast" of those that did not espouse that cause. The camp militant of tyranny, of injustice, and class privilege sees, through its own defective vision, the reasonableness of its hostility to all measures of liberty and enlightenment. So with the opposers of the "Equal Pay for Equal Work" bill of the women teachers.

To the third supposition that women employes admitted that they entered the service contentedly, with full knowledge of what their wages were to be from year to year, I answer they accepted present terms for present needs contentedly, but no people can predict what its future needs will be indefinitely hence. Why are constitutions amended? Is anything in life so static that it does not adapt its supply to its needs? Are you so benighted as to think the great mass of women teachers do not experience the changes in economic conditions in America to-day? They realize the necessity of work to maintain a living, and they realize the dignity of their labor as it has always been eloquently referred to, but never adequately rewarded by the means of making life comfortable. The women teachers accepted the wage-terms because there was no alternative but idleness. Furthermore, they did not accept the offer of their employers to consider the question of advancing salary schedule to a point corresponding to the increased cost of living, because that would compromise their principle of moral right and civic justice, on which this salary conflict is being waged. The war-cry is "Equal Pay for Equal Work," and that is the only appeal women teachers need make to all lovers of liberty and justice. Their demand is therefore reasonable to any democratic community. If we had an equality of liberties in America, so woman had a right to the ballot, there would be no unfavorable legislation against her; for her vote would mean something tangible to the office-seeking candidate of the Legislature.

To the fourth supposition, I must say you show how poorly equipped you are with data for entering a debate on the question of the choice of the teaching profession by women during the past five years. The women teachers have been tempted to enter other fields of service, as you say the men have, by the higher salaries offered. You might consult statistics, at the Board of Education Hall, and learn that there have been over six hundred vacancies in the elementary schools alone during the past year, which vacancies could have been filled, according to the existing salary schedule, by these excellent superior men teachers that we women are said to be keeping out of employment by offering our poor services at a lower wage. As a student of economics, I ask: Where do men find the case of supply and demand they give as an explanation of the higher salaries for their work? There is a demand in excess of the supply, even with the tempting higher wages to counteract the competition for male service in other fields. Then you might also consult city records and see whether women teachers are establishing a precedent in the matter of equalizing salaries. You will find no sex distinction in salary among telephone operators, stenographers, or clerks employed in other city departments. They have no professional preparation of at least six years to complete, with severe tests of scholarship and eligibility to teach; but these women receive the salaries attached to their positions regardless of sex, and the salaries are higher than the girl beginner at teaching: $1,300 to $1,800 per annum, as against $600, minus 17 per cent. for the Pension Fund. Remember here, the period of professional preparation and the examinations for eligibility are the same for men and women; the sex-distinction only appears in the salary schedules.

I mention these facts and numbers to show that your statement that "the mandate of the mass of women to have their salaries advanced above the top notch" is without careful consideration. Hence, this "mandate of the mass of women to have their salaries advanced above the top notch and equalized with the exceptional salaries paid to relatively few and indispensable men" does not totter on its economic foundations as you think.

Let the taxpayers of New York know the truth about this conflict. Let them judge the case from facts and not suggestions. If you believe in freedom of speech and of the press, you will publish this retort, and correct the erroneous theories advanced in this morning's editorial.

EUROPE NEAR TO WAR?

Gen. Spiridovitch Points Out Things the Peace Congress Might Do.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Peace Congress, of which so much was expected, is about to end. Many orators have done their utmost to raise laughter or win applause from the galleries, not refraining from compliments to those who are powerful. The time and money spent have contributed little to the furtherance of peace, though the people assembled in Carnegie Hall and the whole brilliant American Nation are sincerely desirous to help the cause of peace.

When the laughter was at its height last night in Carnegie Hall I became awfully sad and thought to myself:

"Europe is on the eve of a disastrous war. The fire is started already. Macedonians, victims of Turkish massacre, recently sent a despairing appeal to Campbell-Bannerman, the British Premier. This Peace Congress instead of trying to devise means to save the Macedonians and prevent unrestricted murder, laughs and hopes that all the work for peace will be done by Emperor William. Was it not I who, long ago, was perhaps the first in my speeches to recognize Emperor William as a genius? But it must not be forgotten that he is also a real father to his splendid nation and to German industry, which demands orders for Krupp guns and other products of manufacture—rifles and powder. The Kaiser is obliged to protect the Turks in order to obtain those orders, and we must not ask of him the impossible. All that peace lovers can expect of this great man is benevolent non-interference. Are not his delegates still in Pittsburg, studying the making of ironclads and guns, being thus demonstratively absent from the Peace Congress?"

I repeat: Instead of flattery to the strong would it not be in better taste for the Peace Congress to endeavor to protect the weak ones, to save Christians from the knives of Turks, to help Macedonians and Armenians by peaceful means, and thus to stop otherwise unavoidable war?

These lines are written by the man (1) who was called to the post of Commander in Chief of the forces in Macedonia; (2) who in 1908 stopped an already started insurrection in Macedonia, and in 1906 another in Bosno-Herzegovina only by promising that peace congresses would certainly improve their awful situation by applying to the generosity of the powers to revise the Treaty of Berlin—that greatest danger to universal peace; (3) who in 1905, in presenting to the celebrated peace lover, A. Carnegie, a diploma of honor of the Slavic Society, informed him how a savage horde of Turks proceeded to exterminate Christians in Macedonia and Armenia, and showed him pamphlets and books confirming those facts, signed by Mr. James Bryce, (now Ambassador to Washington,) M. Clemenceau, (now Premier of France,) &c.

In concluding my speech to Mr. Carnegie I said: "I appeal to you, lover of humanity: I, who saw in Macedonia Christians mowed down by Turks, I, who smelled the burned flesh of Armenian children, whose fathers were cut to pieces, whose mothers were ravished and massacred, and whose houses were burned to the ground."

The Macedonians patiently waited. It is time now either to do something practical or to say honestly to those unfortunate sufferers: "Do not rely on us; we are banqueting in luxurious hotels; we are cabling to Emperors and Kings; we are safe and secure here, and your dangers and calamities do not trouble us."

If the Peace Congress will not interfere the insurrection in Macedonia will be started in earnest; a war between Bulgaria and Turkey will follow as predicted by THE NEW YORK TIMES of April 14 in the article "Turks to Attack Bulgars." Then Servia, Greece, Roumania will interfere; Austria will not miss the opportunity to occupy Macedonia. Add to such disturbance the possible death of the sick Sultan or of old Franz Joseph (79 years) and a probable picture of what might be is complete if the Macedonian question is not settled. It is possible to avert all that misfortune by peaceful means.

I deem it necessary to add that although I am a Russian Major General, from the moment of being elected President of this Slavic Society I left the service. I am not at all an emissary of the Czar, and my words are not at all official words, but my own. The Czar is far more powerful and far more firmly seated on the throne than is generally supposed here, and needs not my assistance. History has already opened for him its golden page with the title "Immortal," for he it was who created The Hague Conference, and he it was who granted a constitution to his people, regardless of great danger to himself. Not the contemporaries, blinded by lies and calumnies, may be his judges, but history and future generations. I am not an emissary of the powerful and great, but of the weak and poor, and I am here only in my capacity as President of the Slavic Society, which in the year 1878 gained liberty for Macedonia, returned again into slavery to Turkey by the Treaty of Berlin.

New York, April 16, 1907.

THE CHAUFFEUR'S CHANT.

See her scarlet bonnet gay.
See her chassis low and long.
Listen when I turn the crank,
To her happy, humming song;
Hear the throbbing of her heart,
Tempered steel, and every beat
Finds an echo in my own—
Where's the woman half so sweet!
Don't you seem to hear her say;
"Hurry up, get under way!"

Give her drink of gasoline,
'Tis the life blood of my car;
Tighten every bolt and screw
To withstand each jolt and jar.
Clearly burns the vital spark,
Smooth and punctureless the tires,
Sound and steady all her nerves,
Which are made of shining wires.
She begins to wheeze and cough,
She is eager to be off.

Now the trees are gliding by,
Pull the throttle open wide,
Roofs and fences past us go
As she settles to the stride.
Like an arrow to the mark,
Like a meteor from the sky,
On the wings of fire and steel
Fairly she begins to fly.
Faster, faster, let her go,
Clear the track before us, hoi

Panting up the steep incline,
Coasting down in clouds of dust,
Naught can catch her as she flies,
In our lucky star we trust.
We are burning up the road.
There's a man in blue and brass,
Say, you guardian of the law,
Leap aside and let us pass.
Oh, we cannot stop, I vow,
For a word with you just now!

How the breezes whistle by,
When the road is good and straight!
All the people stop and stare,
Wondering what will be our fate.
Oh, the glory of the hour
When you feel beneath your hand
Such a thunderbolt of power,
Strength and speed at your command!
Toot the horn, and whirl the wheel,
'Tis the merry, mad 'mobile.

SOCIETY WOMEN GIVE THEIR PLAY

"Bombs and Balloons" Draws a Fashionable Audience at Carnegie Lyceum.

GIVEN FOR A CHARITY

Spence School Graduates Assist the Henrietta Industrial School.

"Bombs and Balloons," a musical comedy, the music and lyrics written by Miss Grace Hollingsworth and the book by the Misses Catharine Tweed, Helen Ludington, Grace Henry, Emily Grugen, Gillian Barr, and Ruth Ashmore, the libretto being revised and staged by Mlle. M. L. Girault, was presented yesterday afternoon and evening by fashionable amateurs at the Carnegie Lyceum for the benefit of a class of crippled children in the Henrietta Industrial School.

All of the girls taking part, not only in the presentation of the play, but in the preparation of the book, were graduates of the Spence School, and the music and lyrics were written by a young graduate and teacher of the same school, so that the school alumnae and their relatives were out in full force.

Miss Christine Roosevelt was ticket agent, and the Misses Helen Ludington, Gertrude Easton, Kate De Forest Prentice, Martha Orr, and Mrs. John D. Crimmins, Jr., were the ushers. The cast was as follows:

Venus, Constanca Pratt; Mars, Gladys Waterbury; Czar, Katharine Bushnell; Cloudy, Mary Hazard; Cupid, Alice Anderton; Sento Didmount, Eleanor Townsend; Philippa, Gertrude Leverich; Claira, Grace R. Henry; Clarice, Marion Stevenson; Alexandrovitch, Paulina Boulton; Petrovitch, Olivia Hitchcock; Evelyn, Beatrice Pratt; Halen Mary A. Vanderhosf; Florence, Matilde Leverich; Kats, Edith Landon; Dorothy, Mrs. D. H. Taylor; Alice, Colenne Gelshenen; Butterfly Dancers, Helen Harbeck and Mildred Harbeck; Dancers, Jacquelyn Kelley and Alice Anderton. Venus Attendants—Edith Talcott, Marjory Lyon, May Wells, Anna Kelsey, Mary Shreve, Edith Doudge, Fanns Coleman, Tina Hall, and Pauline Fiske.

Miss Anne Crane was the property man, Miss G. W. Barr the prompter, while Miss Julia Freeman was stage manager. The comedy was staged as being on the planet Venus, but it looked much like a mundane setting. The first act was laid in Venus's ballroom in the town of Medici, and the second at a meeting-place at Milo.

The scene opened with Venus's house party, destitute of men, and the appearance of Santos Didmont and his balloon, soon followed by the Czar of Russia, blown in by a bomb. Then Miss Jaqueline Kelly and Miss Alice Anderton did a Dutch dance in blue skirts, red stockings, sabots, and the regulation Dutch caps. This was one of the hits of the evening. The two sons of the Czar, who appeared in the first act, promptly became enamored of Claire and Clarice, daughters of Santos Didmont, and Philippa, the jealous and former sweetheart of Santos, made it lively for Santos when he flirted with Venus, who also encouraged the Czar. The timely recall of Mars from the field of battle to the side of Venus, the disappearance of Santos with his aeroplane and of the Czar by means of a bomb—and the comedy was over.

A butterfly dance by the Misses Helen and Mildred Harbeck, who came on in black cloaks and dominos which, when doffed, disclosed rose-colored dancing dresses, was another hit, colored lights being effectively used, and the dance being graceful.

The music and words were catchy. Among the songs most applauded were "In an Aeroplane" and "The Teddy Bear." Several lines of the latter were:

"I fear as'll frankly have to state,
That bables now are out of date.
No longer would a bulldog dara
Stand master with a Teddy Bear.
For when the world looks dull and gray,
And nothing seems to come your way,
There's always something big and whits
To make you feel that life is bright;
Who never cries, or wakes at night,
Who never growls or tries to bite."

Among those present were Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, Mrs. Clarence Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt, A. D. B. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henry, Mrs. William Anderton, Miss Mildred G. Townsend, Miss Grace Ruggles, Mrs. J. D. Kelley, Mrs. William Boulton, Mr. and Mrs. John Towar Bates, Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderhoef, Mrs. Gelshenen, Mrs. R. W. Stevenson, Mrs. William J. Hazard, Miss Mary C. Lefferts, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Miss Helen Tweed, Mrs. J. D. Crimmins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hitchcock, Mrs. Charles Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Barr, Mrs. Frank C. Grugen, Mr. and Mrs. Ludington, and many others.

Unlike most performances of this kind, no one was asked to serve as a patroness, and the girls relied on their own efforts. Several hundred dollars were cleared for their pet charity.

MISS RIVES'S WEDDING.

To Become William P. Burden's Bride at Noon To-day.

To-day's social events will include the wedding at noon in Grace Church Chantry of Miss Natica Rives, daughter of Mrs. George Lockhart Rives, and William P. Burden, son of the late James A. Burden, Sr. The wedding is to be a very quiet one, because of the comparatively recent death of tha bridegroom's father. A reception will follow at the Rives residence.

Many unfounded reports have been spread about Miss Rives being ill. She has been at the Hotel Netherland with a trained nurse for several weeks, as she has had a mild attack of nervous exhaustion, and it was decmed best by Mrs. Rives that her daughter should be away from the confusion incident to the wedding preparations, which Mrs. Rives attended to in detail.

Miss Rives has driven out every day and has seen her fiancé and her mother, but has denied herself to others, so that she might be fully recovered before her wedding day.

MISS ROBBINS TO WED JUNE 1.

To Live in England After Her Marriage to Cyril Martineau.

Miss Muriel Delano Robbins has decided that the date of her marriage to Cyril Martineau of England will be Saturday, June 1. The wedding will take place in the picturesque Tuxedo Church, St. Mary's, and will be followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Price Collier.

Miss Robbins is the daughter of Mrs. Collier by her first husband, and made her début several years ago. She is a great beauty, has been an attendant at many fashionable weddings. She was presented at the Court of St. James's during a recent visit to England.

The engagement of Miss Robbins and Mr. Martineau was announced a few weeks ago. Miss Robbins met Mr. Martineau on the occasion of his visit to this country some time ago. He is a distant relative of Harriet Martineau, one of the most celebrated women of her day.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Martineau will sail for England. Mr. Martineau has taken a house in London for the season.

MISS AUGUSTA BLISS WEDS.

Marries William Willis Reese in Grace Church Chantry.

The wedding of William Willis Reese, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Reese of Overcreek, New Hamburg-on-the-Hudson, and Miss Augusta Bliss, a daughter of Mrs. George T. Bliss, took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Grace Church chantry, Broadway and Tenth Street, the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington officiating.

Miss Bliss wore a princess gown of heavy white satin, embroidered in silver and having a point lace yoke and sleeves. She also wore a string of large pearls and a point lace veil. She was escorted to the altar by her brother, Walter Phelps Bliss, who gave her in marriage. Her only attendant was her niece, the daughter of her brother, W. P. Bliss. The altar was banked with white roses and lilies and the windows had window boxes of white and pale blue hydrangeas.

Alison Wright Post was best man, and the ushers were Charles R. Swords and Richard Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J. Only a limited number of guests were invited to the ceremony and to the reception, which followed at the home of the bride's mother, 887 Fifth Avenue.

The bridegroom was graduated from Columbia University in 1890. Mr. and Mrs. Reese will spend their Summer abroad, and upon their return to New York in the Autumn will live in this city.

The guests asked included Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Reese, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Bowdoin, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. George Post, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkin, Mrs. Walter P. Bliss, Miss Wickes, Miss Baldwin, Willis Terry, H. G. Agnew, Irving Grinnell, and others.

HENSCHEL—KERR.

Charles Henschel, a son of the late Dr. Edward Henschel, and Miss Ruth Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Dudley Kerr, were married at 3:30 o'clock, yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, 12 East Forty-eighth Street. The ceremony took place in the drawing room, which was decorated with smilax, arranged with a lattice-like effect, the young couple standing in a bower of roses.

The Rev. William Mercer Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Harrison Dudley Kerr.

She wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with old point lace, and with bodice entirely of lace. Her veil was also of rose point lace, and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs and orchids.

Miss Jeanne Kerr was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of rose chiffon and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Jose Victor Onativia, Jr., was the best man, and the ushers were Charles Henschel Theroe, Daniel Farr, Elmore Coe Kerr, and Childs Frick, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Frick.

Among those invited to the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Jan de Chelminski, Roland Knoedler, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Mofitant, Mrs. Noel, Mr. and Mrs. William Greer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thourd, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick, Mr. and Mrs. J. Victor Onativia, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Benedict, Miss Spence, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Flagler, Charles Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerr, Mme. Fabricotti, Frederick Von Stade, Miss Von Stade, Mr. and Mrs. Lynde Stetson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Earle, Gen. and Mrs. Anson McCook, Mr. and Mrs. James Sutter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart Smith, the Rev. Thomas Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Harmon, Drelincourt Martin, Henry Millbank, Mrs. Chauncey Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Benedict, Mrs. Ferdinand M. Thierot, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hubbard Johnston, Miss du Vivier.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spofford, Mr and Mrs Samuel Kissam, Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stokes, Miss Clara Barclay, Miss Louise Kobbe, Miss Grace Henry, Miss Isabelle Tilford, Miss Jacquelin Kelly, and Miss Marjory Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Henschel will sail on Saturday for an extendsd tour through Europe.

OELRICHS—TURNBULL.

The wedding of Charles de Loosey Oelrichs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles May Oelrichs, and Miss Marjory Turnbull, daughter of the late Lieut. Frank Turnbull, U. S. N., was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the archiepiscopal residence, Mgr. Lavelle of St. Patrick's Cathedral officiating. The bride wore a princess gown of white cloth trimmed with white lace, and a tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid of bonor was Miss Grace Chapin. There were no bridesmaids. Albert Zabriskie Gray was Mr. Oelrichs's best man, and there were no ushers. The brother of the bride, Archibald Turnbull, gave his sister in marriage.

Among those invited to the reception were Col. William Jay and Mrs. Jay, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs, Miss Blanche Oelrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. H. Coleman Drayton, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kountze, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Childs, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wysong, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Turnbull, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Turnbull, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Post, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, the Misses Turnbull, Miss Marion Fish, Miss Janette Fish, Miss Julia Fish, Miss Effie Pearson, Miss Gertrude Sheldon, Miss Elsie Nicoll, Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, John Talmadge, Kenneth Schley, Kenneth Budd, Bertram Cruger, T. Suffern Tailer, Percy Pyne, Percy Haughton, William Whitehouse, Davis Barnes, Lytel Hull, Robert Livingston, H. F. Eldridge, Peter Gerry, Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Potter, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Rollins Morse.

MAPES—BRITTON.

Owing to the illness of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Charles Victor Mapes, the marriage of Miss Winifred Hale Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Britton of Cleveland, Ohio, to Clive Spencer Mapes yesterday afternoon was a quiet affair.

The wedding took place in the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Britton at the Marquis, 12 East Thirty-first Street, the Rev. Robert Collyer officiating.

After the ceremony, which took place at 3:30 o'clock, a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by only the immediate members of the family and intimate friends.

There were no bridal attendants. It had been originally planned to have a large wedding in Cleveland, at the home of the bride.

The bridegroom is a member of the Racquet, Columbia, University, and Strollers' Clubs. He is a brother of Victor Mapes, the playwright.

LETTER FROM THE POPE.

He Writes Daughters of the Faith Warning Against Present Day Evils.

The Daughters of Faith, a society of the Roman Catholic Church, organized for the purpose of social reforms, held a meting at the Catholic Club, 120 West Fifty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon. A representative gathering of Catholic women was present, with Archbishop Farley in the place of honor on the platform.

Mgr. Lavelle presided, and there were addresses by Archbishop Farley, Dr. J. J. Walsh, George Roesch, John Jerome Rooney, and the Rev. Father Sweeny. Miss Anna R. McIntyre read a letter from the Pope to Miss Eliza O'B. Lummis, founder of the society, approving of the work. He spoke of the necessity of striving against "naturalism, the increasing evil of the day," and added, speaking of the social reform to which the Daughters will devote themselves chiefly:

Among these duties we mention particularly that of protecting Christian marriage against and disgraceful stain of divorce, of providing for proper education within the domestic walls as well as within the schools; of checking those pests of society, namely, the shameless license of spectacular representation and immoral books, of idle and wanton conversation and gatherings, and the shameful extravagance of dress.

Archbishop Farley urged the women to use their influence with lukewarm Catholics, and told them to look after the education of the children and see that they went to church schools.

A letter was read from Alice Sullivan, Secretary of the Queen's Daughters, an organization formed to offset the work of the King's Daughters in the Protestant Churches, asking the Daughters of Faith to help.

"There are 8,000 children in the parish," the letter said, "only some 2,000 under the care of the Church. Thousands of souls may be lost to us because they are taken in at the settlements or the King's Daughters get them into their churches. We have formed the Queen's Daughters to counteract this work. The tabernacle on Bronx Street is most harmful to us, and it could be purchased for a not very large sum of money. We need a building and we need helpers."

"This subject is very near to my heart," said Archbishop Farley. "The Protestant clergy are less engaged in proselyting than the women, and it is women workers that we need."

NO MORE HEARD OF JANIS.

Additional News of Missing Actor Not Expected for Several Days.

Nothing more was heard yesterday of Percy Janis, the young actor and brother of Elsie Janis, who was on Monday reported by wireless to have fallen overboard from the Minneapolis on his way to London.

Mrs. Janis, according to information from her apartments at the Marie Antoinette, has given up hope of being able to get into communication with the vessel for two or three days, until it approaches the British coast.

DITRICHSTEIN AT THE ASTOR.

He and His Plays to Appear There Soon.

Wagenhals & Kemper, managers of the Astor Theatre, announced yesterday that they had concluded arrangements by which their house, for a portion of each season, will be a producing home for Leo Ditrichstein's farces, with a permanent company, including the author. Under the terms of a contract signed yesterday Mr. Ditrichstein is to supply original characteristic farces at stated intervals, each in turn to be produced by Wagenhals & Kemper.

This arrangement will go into effect at the conclusion of the present engagement of "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott." The first performance will be a revival of "Before and After," on Thursday, April 25. "Before and After" will be followed by "Vivian's Papas," and then possibly by "Are You a Mason?"

In speaking of their plan yesterday, the managers explained that the regular season of farce at the Astor Theatre would not interfere with the annual engagements of Blanche Walsh, Annie Russell, and Mrs. Leslie Carter. Though no official announcement has been issued, it is understood that "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" will close its engagement at the Aator Theatre on Saturday night.

6,000 CHILDREN ENJOY THE CIRCUS

FROM 70 INSTITUTIONS

They Saw the Freaks and the Animals, Laughed with the Clowns, and Went Home Satisfied.

In Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon 6,000 orphan and crippled children from seventy-odd institutions saw the marvels of Barnum & Bailey's Circus. The first detachment, about fifty strong, arrived at noon, and had to wait for the doors of the Enchanted Garden to be opened unto them. But the waiting made the anticipation only so much the more delicious, and the anticipation is a very big part of the pleasure, even when the indescribable wonders of a circus are in the balance.

The children arrived in many different ways. Some came in omnibuses, some arrived in the private automobiles of the women who are interested in their welfare, some came in barges, some appeared upon the scene in carriages, and some were brought in ambulances. The hundreds of poor little cripples made the scene pathetic in spite of all the funny incidents aure to happen in such a throng. However, they seemed to be as happy as the strongest youngsters of all the host.

By 1 o'clock the children were arriving in shoals. The sidewalk in front of the building waa literally jammed with them, and the sidewalk on the other side of the street was almost equnlly full of other youngsters gazing enviously across the way. The spirit which prompted James A. Bailey to found this unnusl Orphans' Day several years ago has plainly survived his death, and was evident yesterday among all the hundreds of employes of the "Greatest Show on Earth." Not a man but did his share in helping along the good work.

Many a poor child had to be carried, and there were always strong arms ready to perform this service. The men bandied them as gently as if they had been trained to the treatment of just such cases. They lifted them carefully in their arms and were rewarded with the brightest of smiles and the most childish confidence. Many of the children who were not crippled came by squads through the street from the nearest car line, marching soldier fashion, but no amount of discipline could restrain their ceaseless chatter.

In front of the magic portals were stationed men with bags and bags of popcorn, and not a child entered in without a generous supply of the traditional circus delicacy. They marched in to see the freaks—the fat lady, the Lilliputians, the giantess, the giant, the man with the elastic skin, the sword swallower, all the other marvels of those regions. They stared in such frank and open wonderment that the marvels must for once have appreciated how really marvelous they are. Surely no false frenk could have endured their loquacious inspection without confessing his duplicity. There was lots of conversation, too, for the magnificent freaks condescended to come down from their elephantine heights and chat with the motherless ones of earth.

But more wonderful than the freaks to the children were the tigers, lions, elephants, monkeys, and all the other startling examples of the animal kingdom which hold court now in the basement of the Garden. The menagerie became a veritable paradise.

But the real joy of the afternoon for the children was the circus performance itself, and tho real joy for the onlookers was to see the immense Garden lined on all sides with open-mouthed youngsters. One little fellow, strapped to a board su that he looked almost like an Indian papoose, was to absorbed to laugh. He just simply gazed and gazed with all his might.

For the most part, the children were not uproarious, though here and there a little fellow fairly laughed until he cried. Most of them were too struck with wonderment to make much noise, and their shrill voices were hushed waiting for each new wonder.

Despite the allurements of the riding seal, the acrobatic performers, and the ski experts, the prime favorites of the afternoon were Silvers and his fellow clowns. The clowns rose to the occasion, and played directly to the henches full of children. When one of them dropped the dishes he was pretending to balance, and it was seen that they were all tied fast, the boys howled in derision. The clown shook his fist and shouted back, and that was just what was needed to set the fun going.

As the afternoon wore away the enthusiasm grew greater and greater. The dog races and the horse races were followed with the most intense interest. The four-horse chariot races capped the climax, and nothing was left to be desired.

After the close of the performance hundreds of small boys rushed down into the arena and began practicing to be circus celebrities themselves.

NAT GOODWIN SUED FOR RENT.

Leased Rooms in the Croisic, but Failed to Pay, Landlord Says.

Nat C. Goodwin is being sued by A. D. Ireland, of The Croisic, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street for the rent of his apartments there. It is alleged that he signed a lease for the apartments for a year from last October. In January, he left the city, and it is charged has not paid for the rooms from that date. Mr. Goodwin is now in the West, and Henry Goldstein, of 71 Nassau Street, attorney for Ireland, has not yet succeeded in serving the actor.

The name of Miss Edna Goodrich appeared upon the lease as joint lessee with Mr. Goodwin, but she did not sign it and is not therefore legally responsible. Miss Goodrich was the member of the Florodora Company, who, according to Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, introduced her to Stanford White. Miss Goodrich has denied this absolutely.

Dates for "The Great Divide."

The opening date for "The Great Divide" at Daly's Theatre next season has been fixed for Aug. 20. The last week of the play for this season will begin at the Princess Theatre next Monday and the 250th performance will take place on the following Friday night.

United Hebrew Charities Appeal.

The United Hebrew Charities has issued an appeal to the Jews of this city for $50,000 necessary to carry on the work of relieving the distress of the Jewish poor up to Sept. 30. For the work next year $150,000 is needed outside of the regular sources of income.

TRENTINI AGAIN SINGS.

Emma Trentini stepped before the footlights again, for the first time since her serious illness, in the second act of "Carmen" at the Manhattan Opera House last evening, and the performance gained much thereby. Mme. Lejeune, who was down on the programme for Miss Trentini's part, sang Micaela instead.

Emma Calve has toned down her performance of Carmen very considerably, and it is not the same eccentric display of this singer's mannerisms that it was when she first sang this season. Probably she will give a still better performance next Saturday afternoon. Paul Seycilhac reappeared in the cast, and Charles Dalmorés sang and acted Don José with as much fire as if the season were beginning instead of closing. Mr. Campanini conducted. The audience was a large one and very enthusiastic.

MACMILLEN HEARD AGAIN.

Rosina Van Dyk Assists the Violinist in His Final Recital.

Francis Macmillen gave another violin recital—announced as his last this season—in Mendelssohn Hall yesterday afternoon, in which he disclosed no qualities with which those who have heard him play are not already familiar. His programme was made up of showy, brilliant pieces and light, graceful ones. Most of the music called for either a display of technic or a pleasing style. There was no number on the programme which demanded the brains and depth of a finished artist. However, the young man proved scarcely capable of attending to the matter at hand, as a movement from the Paganini D major concerto was not played with tonal purity. Neither was his technical equipment sufficient for the task. In the lighter numbers he was more successful, but his mannerisms are always unpleasant.

Rosina Van Dyk, a soprano, wife of Richard Hageman, who played the accompaniments, assisted Mr. Macmillen in the programme. She sang four German songs and the "Bell Song" from "Lakme," disclosing a voice remarkable for its purity of tone, especially in the higher register, and brilliant in coloratura work. The singer has many faults, however, observable in a most unpleasant trill and an occasional forced tone. The audience was moderate in size and very enthusiastic over everything.

VICTOR HERBERT'S OPERA.

He Consults Hammerstein, but Hasn't Decided on a Libretto.

Victor Herbert visited the Manhattan Opera House last evening, during the performance of "Carmen," and he and Mr. Hammerstein had a long talk about the American opera the composer is to write for next season.

"I have not decided on a libretto as yet," said Mr. Herbert. "We have received many, but I scarcely think any of them will do. Primarily, I want a good idea, and when I get that, we—the author and I—can work it up. I don't want too tragic a theme, but it must be serious, something, perhaps, with a comedy interest, like 'Carmen,' or 'La Bohème.' I am anxious to get to work on it, and shall be glad when the question of a libretto is decided."

Lhevinne to Play for MacDowell Fund

Josef Lhévinne will give a piano recital in Mendelssohn Hall this evening for the benefit of the MacDowell Fund. It is announced by the committee in charge of the fund that the pianist is giving his services, and that the entire proceeds of the concert, except for rent of the hall and printing, will be turned over to the fund.

HIPPODROME WANTS A GOAT.

The Hippodrome wants a goat—a genuine goat of the Harlem breed. Any one possessing a good, healthy goat of a genteel disposition, amenable to discipline, yet strong and active, can get a good price for him by bringing him to the stage door of the Hippodrome at 10:30 this morning and asking for Frank Melville, the circus director.

Mr. Melville thinks he can persuade the goat to climb up a pyramid of elephants. He argues that any good Harlem goat that can scale the cliffs of Washington Heights should be able to leap from one pachyderm to another.

The press agent says that Mr. Melville is quite in earnest and hopes there will be a big delegation of "mammiferous quadrupeds" on hand. The lucky goat which joins the Hippodrome's menagerie will be fed thrice daily on real food, with no tin cans or printed matter on the side.

Margaret Illington Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, April 16.—Margaret Illington, leading woman with John Drew, in "His House in Order," fainted on the stage of the new Grand Theatre to-night, and kept the audience waiting thirty minutes while doctors worked over her. She had a serious case of hysterical hysteria.

When she was revived she asked to be permitted to go on again. Several times she nearly fel on the stage, but courageously finished. She was ill from overwork and a severe cold.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Helen Pullman and Edith Speare, the two children appearing in "The Prince Chap" at tha Majestic Theatre, will hold a children's reception after the matinee on Saturday. These receptions will be in order at all matinees hereafter in tha run of the play in New York.

Ned Wayburn has decided to give another performance by his pupils on Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27. The dramatic students will hold forth on Friday and the vaudeville pupils on Saturday, both performances being given on the little stage at 143 West Forty-fourth Street.

Graca George's engagement in "Divorcons" at Wallack's will probably be extended beyond the original two weeks set for the limit. Under these conditions it has been considered best to postpone the matinee performances of "The Lady from the Sea."

Frederic Thompson yesterday sold to J. C. Williamson tha Australian rights to "Brewster's Millions." Mr. Williamson is the most important manager in Australia.

James Forbes will sail to-day on the Majestic to make preparations for Robert Edeson's London season, which has been arranged by Henry B. Harris to begin at the Aldwych on May 6. Before Mr. Harris returns he will go to Paris to complete arrangements for the production there of his play "The Chorus Lady."

N. Y. CENTRAL ASKS FOR BRONX STREETS

TERMS TO BE ARRANGED

Belief in Albany That Plan Is to Connect with Port Chester and Westchester Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—While a movement is on foot and legislation has been passed to compel the New York Central Railroad to remove its surface tracks from the streets of the west side, a bill was introduced in the Legislature to-day by Senator Owens, who represents Percy Nagle's district, to turn a number of streets in the Bronx over to the railroad company on any terms the company can make with the city authorities.

Among the number of bills that are reserved for the end of every session, when the sponsors hope to jam them through in the bustle and confusion of the last days, this one has provoked the most comment. The first section of the bill gives the Board of Estimate the power to grant to the New York Central and its lessee, the Spuyten Duyvil & Port Morris Railroad, the right to occupy and use for their incorporation and during their corporate existence, which runs in perpetuity, as much of the "sub-surface of Spuytsu Duyvil Road" as is included within the right of way of the Spuyten Duyvil & Port Morris Railroad.

The second section gives the Board of Estimate power to grant to the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company and its lessors the right to occupy and use for the purposes of their incorporation, and during their corporate existence such right, title, interest, or easements as may be necessary or reasonably required, to provide suitable track and station facilities for proper management, maintenance, and operation in these streets: East 149th Street between Park Avenue and Spencer Place, Spencer Place between East 149th Street and East 144th Street, East 144th Street between Park Avenue and a line 100 feet east from Mott Avenue, Mott Avenue from a line 350 feet south to a line 200 feet north of East 138th Street, Cheever Place from a line 50 feet west of Mott Avenue, and East 138th Street between Park Avenue and Mott Avenue.

The company, the bill provides, must lay before the board a plan of its tracks and the proposed alterations in the streets, and after these shall have been approved by a majority vote of the Board of Estimate, the company shall be considered as authorized to go ahead and make the changes, and the map of the city shall be deemed to have been changed accordingly, without any further act on the part of the city or any of its officers and boards.

No time is fixed for the completion of the proposed work, and a provision is made repealing all acts—including the New York charter—as far as the rights, powers, and obligations of the railroad company under this act are concerned.

The bill has caused much comment here. There has been considerable speculation as to the purpose of the proposed legislation, but it is generally believed that it would open a way for connection between the existing lines of the New York Central and the independent Port Chester and Westchester lines now under construction which run through the largely unbuilt territory between the existing Central lines and the Sound.

Senator Owens said he understood the bill had the approval of the Corporation Counsel of New York City.

Boston & Albany Lease Hearing Ends.

BOSTON, April 16.—The hearing before the joint railroad committee of the Legislature on the matter of revoking the lease by the New York Central Railroad of the Boston & Albany Road was concluded to-day. Representative Dean of Wakefield, in concluding his argument favoring revocation, made the declaration that the New York Central Road had "baited a trap with increased commerce" and the business men of Boston had walked blindly into it."

TRUST FUND BILL CRITICISED.

Measure Passed by Assembly Benefits Title Companies Alone, It Is Argued.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—By a vote of 89 to 14 the Assembly to-day passed a bill introduced by Assemblyman Duell of Westchester, which gives administrators of trust funds the right to invest such funds in securities now excluded for this purpose by law, on condition that the investment is insured by the payment of one-half of 1 per cent. on the amount involved to some title company. The bill was drawn by Charles H. Young, who is a resident of Westchester and counsel for the Bronx and Westchester Title and Mortgage Guarantee Company. Young is President of the Republican Club of New York.

Assemblyman Fowler of Ulster led a spirited attack on the bill, in which Cunningham of Ulster and Cuvillier of New York joined.

"The bill," said Fowler, "would be a source of immense profit to bonding, indemnity, and guarantee companies. Trustees would be enabled to invest in any securities whatsoever, and be protected in their action merely by paying an indemnity concern to guarantee their investment. The bill will benefit such concerns alone, and what would happen if the indemnity concern should go to the wall? I don't think it would be wise to tear down existing safeguards for such a hazardous scheme as this."

Other bills introduced by Mr. Duell propose amendments to the insurance and banking laws which experts have declared would shatter existing safeguards and broaden the powers of investments of these fiduciary corporations also, for the sole benefit of the title companies. It is not likely, however, that any of the other measures will be reported out by the committees having charge in the Assembly.

CHANLER FOR UTILITIES BILL.

Says Both Parties Should Be Represented on the Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—Lieut. Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, speaking to-night before the Albany Jefferson Club on the subject of the pending Public Utilities bill, said in part:

"The commission, if it is to have the confidence of the people, should represent the people—not the people of one party, but of at least two parties. Both parties are, to a certain extent, actually in power so far as the State Administration is concerned. In my opinion, should the Republican majority in the Senate and Assembly fail to provide that the people of the State be fairly represented upon this commission, they will do so at their peril."

In concluding, the Lieutenant Governor said:

"To-day the eyes of the civilized nations are turned toward the City of New York, where their representatives are gathered in a parliament of peace. To-day the eyes of Democracy are turned with uneasy apprehension toward the same city, where, under the guise of peaceful diners, the leaders are declaring war one upon the other. Cannot we have a peace conference of our own? Cannot we at least recognize the advantage of conferring together?"

Kelsey Case May Be Deferred.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Senate Judiciary Committee is scheduled to take up the case of State Superintendent of Insurance Otto Kelsey in secret session to-morrow afternoon, but it learned to-night that owing to the illness of Senator Hinman, consideration of the case may be deferred for a week. This would suit the friends of Mr. Kelsey on the committee

BOXING BILL PASSED.

Vote in the Assembly Was Close—Goes to the Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—By a vote of 77, one more than was necessary, the Frawley Boxing bill was passed by the Assembly to-day. Assemblyman Prince of New York, representing Senator Frawley's home district, turned defeat into victory on the call of the absentees, the first roll call showing twenty-one votes less than was necessary to pass the bill. The bill now goes to Gov. Hughes. The same bill was disapproved by Gov. Higgins two years ago.

Mr. McCue of the Sixteenth New York declared that the bill would create a monopoly for the Amateur Athletic Union, and that boxers could not receive money for their work in the ring.

Assemblyman Schwegler, who has been a prominent amateur boxer for many years, defended the bill, saying that it would do away with the present fake bouts, the participants of which, he declared, were only "guerrillas."

Since the repeal of the old Horton law in 1900 efforts have frequently made to pass a bill that would allow amateurs in the strictest sense of the word to hold contests.

While the Horton law was in operation the National boxing championships of the Amateur Athletic Union were held in this city, several times at the Metropolitan Opera House, and in the last years at the Broadway Athletic Club. Since 1900 the boxers have had a hard time of it. The championships have been held in New Jersey, Massachusetts, and this year are scheduled for a Western State.

CONSOLIDATED A. C. RAIDED.

Boxers and Referee Arrested—To be Arraigned in Court To-day.

Police Captain Halpin of the Sixty-eighth Street Station, with Detectives Devanney, Cook, and Levins, raided Billy Elmer's Consolidated Athletic Club, 114 West Sixty-fifth Street, last night, and prevented the holding of the club's semi-monthly boxing show. Jimmy Rose, the referee, and Bill Smith and Harry Johnson, the principals in the first preliminary bout, were arrested, after the men had sparred about a minute. The two were charged with violating Section 458 of the Penal Code, and were held in $500 bail each. They were afterward bailed by M. J. Gilhooly, a saloonkeeper. The case will come up before Magistrate Walsh, at the Yorkville Court, this morning.

The club has a membership of about 200 well-known men, who pay $10 a year for the use of the club's gymnasium and an additional $10 a month to witness the boxing bouts. The main attraction last night was to have been a ten-round bout between Howard Smith and Kid Stinger.

The unexpected raid came as a shock to the members. A few timid ones tried to make a hasty exit, fearing arrest. No one but the actual participants were molested.

Brown's Athletic Association, with headquarters at Brown's Gymnasium, 117 West Twenty-third Street, having complied with the Fire and Police Department regulations, was permitted to hold its regular weekly boxing last night. Five bouts were decided, and the sport was interesting throughout. The stellar event was for six rounds between Patsy Connors and Tommy Murphy (not "Harlem Tommy"). They fought a draw.

BOXERS AGAIN DISCHARGED.

Long Acre Manager Allowed to Go for Lack of Evidence.

Because of flimsy evidence, Magistrate Barlow, in the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday discharged the manager of the Long Acre Athletic Club, 158 West Twenty-ninth Street, and also two pugilists, who were arrested on the charge of violating that section of the Greater New York charter prohibiting prizefights and boxing bouts where an admission fee is charged. Magistrate Whitman had previously discharged the offenders for the same reason.

TRAINER ROWE MARRIED.

Handler of the Keene Stable Weds Miss Young of Toledo.

Trainer James Rowe, a well-known figure on the racing turf and the handler of James R. Keene's stable, yesterday announced his marriage to Miss Elza Mary Young, daughter of George R. Young of Toledo. He is living at the old Villipique House at Sheepshead Bay.

Rowe was married before and has two sons, James Rowe, Jr., and Belmont Rowe. He is a native of Fredericksburg, Va., and entered the racing game as a stable boy and later became a jockey and then trained for the Davis stable. He was then engaged by Dwyer Brothers, and now handles the Keene stable.

He developed Hindoo, Luke Blackburn, George Kinney, Miss Woodford, Requital, L'Alouette, Chacornac, Commando, Cap and Bells, Delhi, Sysonby, Wild Mint, Court Dress, and Peter Pan. Sysonby won his most brilliant success, though Requital won the Realization in 1896 and Chacornac the Futurity in 1899.

CHILD LABOR BILL SAVED.

Senate Refuses to Permit Further Delay in Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Page Child Labor bill, providing that minors shall not be employed more than eight hours a day in factories, and fixing the hours of employment between 8 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening led to a sharp debate in the Senate to-day.

The measure, which had been passed by the Senate, came back after having been amended by the Assembly so as to make it effective from Jan. 1, 1908, instead of Oct. 1, this year, as provided in the Senate bill. Senator Page asked that the amendment be concurred in, but Senator Davis, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, wanted it referred to that body for a hearing. Senator Armstrong came to his support.

Senator Grady attacked Armstrong and Davis.

"These are the tactics always employed regarding labor bills," he said. "If this bill goes back to committee it will take two weeks to get it back, and then—goodbye."

The motion to recommit the bill for a hearing was lost by a vote of 17 to 25, and the measure went on the calendar for final passage.

REAPPORTIONMENT TAKEN UP.

Raines at Conference Opposes a General Rearrangement.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Republican members of the Senate held a conference to-night in the Finance Committee room with Senator Davis of Erie, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, presiding, to consider the reapportionment of Senate districts rendered necessary by the recent action of the Court of Appeals in declaring the reapportionment of last year unconstitutional. The conference adjourned without reaching any conclusion on the subject.

Two or three Senators advocated a general rearrangement as the safest means of meeting the situation. Senator Raines, the majority leader, took the opposite view, however. The conference seemed to settle one thing—namely, that the reapportionment legislation probably will be deferred until just before the failing of the curtain on the session of the Legislature.

CHARGES GRAFT IN EDUCATION BOARD

Senator Gilchrist Calls for Investigation by a Legislative Committee.

SAYS CITY LOSS IS HEAVY

Architects Accused of Changing Plans to Meet Demands of Favored Contractors.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—Charges of graft in the New York Board of Education were made by Senator Gilchrist of Brooklyn in a speech this afternoon before the Senate Finance Committee in support of his concurrent resolution calling for an investigation of the department by a legislative committee. The charges made by Senator Gilchrist, summarized, are:

That the architects employed by the board are drawing their plans and making changes in them to meet the demands of favored contractors.

That the teachers are permitted to use for dining rooms space in the public schools that should be used for classrooms.

That the teachers' meals are prepared from materials furnished by the city for the purpose of giving children instruction in cooking, where it would be more appropriate to supply luncheons from such materials to poor children.

That the teachers are compelled to use school books on which school superintendents receive royalties; that the city pays $1 apiece for text books which outsiders can purchase for 88 cents, and that for the purpose of swelling the income of these school officials a larger number of these books is being bought than is required.

That coal contracted for is delivered to private individuals, and that the receipts are signed by janitors of the public schools, and the city is compelled to pay the bills.

That there is jugglery in connection with the selection and purchase of school sites, causing great financial loss to the city.

"A wholesale investigation of city departments has been proposed," said Senator Gilchrist. "The Board of Education is the first department that should be investigated. It is the closest corporation in existence. The corps of architects maintained by the Board of Education make no two designs alike, and seem to be aiming principally at providing fat plums for their friends. I know of a recent instance in which a plan was changed so as to provide an extra $7,000 to the contracting firm, with no particular benefit to the city."

Speaking about the selection of school sites, Mr. Gilchrist said among other things:

"The manner in which these sites are selected and acquired as a scandal. Here is an instance. The Board of Education had an option of $10,000 on a site. The option was allowed to expire. Then the property was appraised at $7,000, but the city ultimately was compelled to pay $22,000 for it on condemnation proceedings. In another instance the board paid $40,000 for a site which could have been acquired for $20,000."

Senator Tully said that if a bill was passed providing for a general investigation of city departments it would cover the Board of Education as well.

Senator Gilchrist then declared that if such a measure was passed he would not press his resolution.

BILL CALLED RANK JOBBERY.

Queens Borough Building Measure Squeezed Through by Three Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—With only three votes to spare, Assemblyman De Groot's bill providing for the erection of borough buildings in Queens passed the lower house to-day. The final passage of this bill was preceded by a debate, during which the bill was denounced as the "rankest piece of real estate jobbery" that had come before the Legislature in years.

The bill calls for the appointment by the Supreme Court of a commission of five members to select suitable sites for the buildings, and gives the court itself power to select a site from among those submitted by the commission. The commission has supervision over the erection of the buildings. Each member is to receive $10 a day for his services, and no limit is placed on the time to be consumed in the selection of sites or the completion of the structures.

Assemblyman Todd of Queens fiercely arraigned the bill as an out-and-out job. Assemblyman De Groot was compelled to admit that he had received the bill for introduction from a merchant of his district. Mr. Todd said that this merchant held an option on practically all the real estate in the section where the borough buildings were to be erected, and had had the bill introduced for the purpose of finding a profitable market for his holdings.

Travis H. Whitney, a New York lawyer, representing the Citizens' Union, in commenting upon the provisions of the bill said:

"There is no necessity for this legislation, inasmuch as the authority to erect these buildings if necessary is vested in the city authorities under the charter. It is one of the worst bills that has come up this session."

Some of the Tammany members opposed the bill on the same grounds as the Citizens' Union.

JOKER IN THE POLICE BILL.

Bingham Abolishes "Telegraph" Bureau and Heads Off Wage Increase.

What was considered an effort on the part of Police Commissioner Bingham to head off a "joker" in the Police bill, which Gov. Hughes signed yesterday, became known yesterday when the following order changing the name of the Telegraph Bureau was made public.

The term "Telegraph Bureau" in this department is hereby abolished, and the designation "Bureau of Electrical Service" is substituted therefor. The Superintendent of Telegraph will hereafter be known and designated as "Superintendent of Electrical Service." The Assistant Superintendent of Telegraph will hereafter be designated as "Assistant Superintendent of Electrical Service," and the word "telegraph" will be eliminated and changed to the word "telephone," and corresponding changes will be made wherever necessary. This order is to take effect at 8 P. M. April 15, 1907.

Commissioner Bingham, when asked why he had promulgated the order, said: "We haven't any telegraph instruments in the whole building."

The attention of the Commissioner was then called to the fact that the Police bill specifies that operators in the telegraph office shall be known as Lieutenants. There are ten of these men who are now classed as Sergeants. The Commissioner said the men will hold the same rank as heretofore. He said he did not have them in mind when he issued the order.

The elimination of the word "telegraph" from the rules and regulations is considered at Headquarters as a wise move to prevent these ten men from going to the courts and suing for the advance of their rank from that of Sergeants to that of Lieutenants with the corresponding large increase in pay.

200-Pound Baggage Bill Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Eagleton 200-Pound Baggage bill was passed by the Assembly to-day. Prentice of New York declared the measure would conflict with the long-established rule that 150 pounds should be the standard maximum weight between the United States and Canada. Eagleton admitted this, but declared that the State of New York could afford to establish a precedent. The bill was introduced at the request of the Association of Commercial Travelers of America.

AUTO CUP CIRCUIT MAY BE ENLARGED

Parkway Racing Course Likely to be Longer Than Sixteen Miles.

WILL SOON ANNOUNCE SITE

American Manufacturers Surprising Committee by Eagerness to Enter Vanderbilt Cup Trials.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., attended an important meeting of the Plan and Scope Committee of the Long Island Motor Parkway yesterday at the offices of the Parkway, 527 Fifth Avenue. Those present were A. R. Pardington, Dean Alvord, Ralph Peters, and Jefferson De Mont Thompson. The plans for the racing circuit for the coming Vanderbilt Cup race were carefully discussed, but while no definite statement was made regarding the exact place of starting and ending the contest, it was ascertained that these important points were practically settled.

Mr. Vanderbilt since his return from abroad, where he made a careful study of the various conditions for the big European events of the year, has inspected the proposed Parkway site, and it was learned that largely through his influence a longer racing circuit will undoubtedly be completed for the big cup race in October than originally seemed feasible to the committee. While nothing positive on this subject has been announced, it has been generally understood that the committee proposed to build a sixteen-mile circuit, and to require the cars in the Vanderbilt Cup event to traverse this section twenty times. All of the big races abroad are held over much longer circuits, varying from forty-nine to fifty miles for the Grand Prix to about eighty miles for the German Emperor's cup race.

"I hope to have a meeting of the Racing Board within the next week," said Mr. Thompson after the Parkway meeting. "I have had several talks with Mr. Vanderbilt on the subject of rules and changed conditions for this year's event, and we seem to be agreed that certain modifications must be made. I am sure that twenty cars will be entered, and probably twenty-five, so there is no tendency to hold back on account of slight changes in rules. The foreigners also will all be over just as usual, and I have received word from the representatives of the Panhard, De Dietrich, and Darracq cars in France that their cars are ready to enter at the proper time. Whether any effort will be made in France to designate the eligible cars for the Vanderbilt Cup race according to their places in the Grand Prix, as was the case last year, is a matter that has not yet been acted upon by the French officials."

Mr. Thompson stated that among the American cars which he believed would be seen among the entries for the elimination race were three Thomas cars, one and possibly two Locomobiles, two Dragons, three Pope-Toledos, one Apperson, two Frayer-Millers, a Haynes, American Mors, and a Moon. Walter Christie's new front drive racing car, which is to compete in the French Grand Prix on July 2, will try for the American team. The car is practically finished, and has been inspected with interest by several experts. It is believed that it will be the lightest car in the Grand Prix event, weighing but 1,700 to 1,800 pounds.

MISS EGER CLEVER AUTOIST.

Drives Car 215 Miles from Wilkesbarre to New York.

Miss Marie Eger arrived in this city early yesterday morning after a 215-mile automobile run from Wilkesbarre, Penn. Accompanied by her uncle, Charles Greuter, the designer of the Matheson car, Miss Eger drove one of the new thirty-five-horse power machines from the Wilkesbarre factory by the Port Jervis route. She left Wilkesbarre Sunday morning and spent the night at Milford, Penn.

Miss Eger had less than six weeks' experience with the car before starting on the journey. Bad roads were encountered from the start. The Pocono Mountains provided the first serious grades, one of which is 27½ per cent. Here was found the only stretch of road that was good, six miles of macadam. Stroudsburg was the next town of importance, and from that point the car was driven up the Delaware Valley, through Milford, where the tourists passed the night. The route then followed was to Port Jervis, Middletown, Goshen, Newburg, where the ferry brought the car across to Fishkill.

Coming down the east side of the Hudson the roads were in miserable condition. At Ossining the road was torn up for street railroad construction, leaving a five-foot ditch on either side. Miss Eger, almost worn out with the severe tax on her, let her hand tremble on the wheel so that the front wheels of the car went over the side of the road and into the ditch. Several laborers lifted the machine back to the road. Despite the accident, a banquet was held, at which a silver loving cup was presented to the President by R. C. Heck, on behalf of its members. The first trip to the fishing banks will be made Sunday, April 21, from Long Beach, on the auxiliary yacht Katie M.

The steamer Angler carried a number of fishermen to the banks on Sunday. The catch included 341 codfish, the largest weighing 24 pounds. Several hundred blackfish were landed, one angler taking eleven. Three lobsters, the largest weighing 14 pounds, and a number of cunners made up the result of the day's work.

Members of the Emil Dreecher Fishing Club have arranged trips every Wednesday on the schooner yacht Gussie, which will anchor for deep-sea fishing. The boat will leave Canarsis at 7 A. M.

The annual election of the South Brooklyn Fishing Club resulted as follows: President—J. B. Thompson; Vice President—C. H. Ward; Secretary—R. B. Williamson; Treasurer—W. W. Washington; Steward—W. Wheeldon.

Members of the Neptune Fishing Club went out from Rockaway last Saturday and returned with 450 flounders.

The Thomas MacNee Social Club is arranging a schedule of fishing trips for the coming season. The first will be on board one of the deep sea fishing steamers next Sunday.

The schedule of trips for the South Brooklyn Fishing Club follows: May 5, 19, June 2, 16, 30, July 14, 28, Aug. 11, 25, Sept. 8, 22, Oct. 13, 27, and Nov. 10. The motor boat Three Sisters will leave Stillwell's Pier, Gravesend Beach, at 7:30 A. M.

At the regular meeting of the Black Stocking Fishing Club, held at 021 Tenth Avenue, the following officers were elected: President, Louis Ulrech; Vice President, George Hild; Treasurer, George Weisensee; Secretary, A. C. Heck; Sergeant-at-Arms, F. Miller. Following the meeting, a banquet was held, at which a silver loving cup was presented to the President by R. C. Heck, on behalf of its members. The first trip to the fishing banks will be made Sunday, April 21, from Long Beach, on the auxiliary yacht Katie M.

FAST TENNIS PLAY IN DOUBLES FINAL

MISS SUTTON WILL COMPETE

Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Little Beaten in Main Contest on St. Nicholas Rink Court.

Swift volleying at the net won for Miss Marion Fenno and George L. Wrenn, Jr., the final of the indoor mixed doubles lawn tennis tournament yesterday on the court of the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. Three slashing sets of tennis were necessary to decide the match before the Boston girl and her partner defeated Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Raymund D. Little.

It was unusually lively playing for matches of this sort, and the fashionable gallery that attended heartily applauded the splendid shots from places of vantage on the side lines and in the balcony boxes, where they sipped tea and nibbled toast. They also discussed the prospects of the American challenging team, for Karl H. Behr, Jr., made his appearance. Paired with Raymond D. Little, who is at present an uncertain quantity as to joining the team, Behr faced William A. Larned and George L. Wrenn, Jr., in an exhibition doubles contest. The latter had slightly the better of this match, as Little made frequent nets and outs, while Behr was also erratic at times. It was reported that Behr would continue active practice at doubles, with which he is unfamiliar, so that he may be in trim to take his place beside Beals C. Wright against the Australians and the Englishmen.

Mrs. Barger-Wallach also announced that Miss Hazel Sutton, the California girl who two years ago wrested the women's title from the English, was expected to arrive in this city to-morrow for play in other of the scheduled tournaments. Miss Sutton will go to Hempstead, L. I., as the guest of Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg.

From the beginning of the mixed doubles final both Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Little elected to play a driving and a lobbing game. This was made necessary because of Mrs. Barger-Wallach's inability to bring off overhead shots. Miss Fenno and Wrenn immediately camped at the net. Both were strongly aggressive. Miss Fenno frequently making some telling smashes. Wrenn attended to the lobbs from deep court, and he got such good length and direction to his drives from that position that his side was enabled to keep in the lead. Miss Fenno ably supported Wrenn in her service games. The summary:

Mixed Doubles—Final Round.—Miss Marion Fenno and George L. Wrenn, Jr., defeated Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Raymond D. Little, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

TRADING OF SMALL VOLUME

The chief characteristics of yesterday's stock market were its dullness and strength. Prices rose rather sharply in the early part of the day, and when business came to an almost complete standstill at the end of the first hour of the afternoon session they continued to hold their ground. In the last half hour the market as a whole became active under the leadership of Union Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Reading, and American Smelting, and a further advance set in which carried quotations above the previous high levels and to gains running from 1 to 3 points. The dullness of the trading is illustrated by the fact that the volume of transactions was little more than half that of the preceding day. Practically all of the business originated within the four walls of the Stock Exchange, and price movements were, therefore, dictated almost entirely by the necessities or desires of professional speculators. There were no news developments of sufficient importance to play a part in the market, although the financial community as a whole displayed some interest in the dispatches coming from various Western points telling of the unfavorable conditions surrounding the development of the wheat crop in certain States. For the most part, however, yesterday's advices of this kind, particularly those dealing with the "disastrous visit" of "green bugs" in Kansas wheat fields, need not be taken too seriously; they have apparently a common origin in the minds of a group of so-called "crop experts," and fall pat with operations in the grain markets demanding supporting material of this character. After the close of the market announcement was made of the passing of the dividend on Bethlehem Steel preferred stock. This action had been foreshadowed by the peculiar circumstances surrounding the conduct of this company, especially as regards its failure to secure any adequate return on the equipment installed by it for producing armor plate for the United States Government, and is, therefore, in no way to be referred to the condition of the steel trade itself.

In the local money market rates were again easy, and the banks once more gained heavily from the Sub-Treasury, having received from that source over $3,000,000 since the compilation of the last bank statement, this comparing with a small loss in the same period a week ago. Out-of-town banks continued to draw down their balances here, and, in addition to this, it is understood that a number of interior institutions are otherwise securing funds in this market, presumably to meet the demands of the season, which appear to be unusually heavy. Fully as interesting as these movements at home, however, were those in the European money markets yesterday, especially in London and in Paris. London, which was so recently an importer of gold from France, turned exporter yesterday, over $1,000,000 being withdrawn during the day from the Bank of England for shipment to Paris. This matter exercised a favorable influences upon sentiment in the French capital, where securities were strong, and it caused no alarm whatever in London, where markets likewise displayed strength. Money remains so easy in London, where discount rates are now a full 1 per cent. below the Bank rate, that the disposition seems to be to assist liberally Continental money markets.

"One of the things in the present situation that does not inspire me with the feeling that we shall have a continuance of easy money, is the extent of bank horrowing," remarked one of our bankers yesterday. "Bank borrowing at the present time is very heavy, and this particular kind of horrowing usually possesses a distinct significance unless it is seasonal. Such borrowing at this time of the year is expected on a small scale, but at the present time the demands from out of town, and particularly Western banks, is inordinately heavy. If it were for Fall requirements I should not pay so much attention to it, hut at the present time it is significant of more than ordinary business developments. These loans, as you know, are made on the bills receivable of the borrowing bank, and the entire aspect of the situation from the point of view of this centre is not eepecially reassuring."

Gossip on the floor of the Exchange yesterday had to do with the personal affairs of a well-known operator in stocks whose condition at his hrokerage offics is supposed to be precarious, and the possibility of his embarrassing the house with which he trades being reasonably certain. In answer to a criticism of his extended position one man remarked that he was all right, that he had several thousand acres of land in his own right. "That is fine stuff to have when your broker calls for margin," bruequely remarked a broker who is familiar with operations on a hig scale. "What good is ten thousand acres of sand at Montauk Point when your broker wants $100,000 before 12 o'clock? The one real sure enough asset on a day of falling prices is cash, not land."

***

Plunging speculators are not an unknown quantity, of course, in the speculative district, but their experience of late has not been particularly pleasant, nor are they regarded as a healthful acquisition for a hrokerage house. Developments of the past two or three days recall the fact that one of this class has been shifted from one house to another, until finally he wound up with one of his friends, and very muoh to the detriment of that friend's financial affairs. He is a consistent hull, and he has carried as high as 500,000 shares of stock, and he has seen profits of $5,000,000 on paper. He can nevsr see a top to the market, and the net result of his speculative astigmatism has been his practical failure.

***

Some of the shrewdest traders in the Street have been keeping away from Amalgamated Copper because of the current gossip that certain men identified with the business have not been in a very good financial position. These men have no direct connection with Amalgamated Copper, hut the traders in question know ths offeot of sentimental influences, some of which are very far-fetched, but at the same time dangerous. Sentiment is an elusive thing, and it is difficult to figure whether it is a cause or an effect. It is discussed gravely in every hrokerage office, but it has little weight when the real big factors in the market take a hand in the game.

***

There are many who attribute the sharp decline in the opening market of several days during the past two weeks to the work of bucket shops. A two or three-point decline in a few important stocks will work wonders for the etability of these institutions. There is a tendency to underestimate their strength, hut they exsrcise a vast influence even on the Stock Exchange. They are competent to force a sharp decline if there is any tendency in that direction at all, and this means the wiping out of hundreds of accounts on their books.

***

Brokerage houses do not report at the present time any significant investment buying of stocks. It does not always follow that fractional lots represent investment, although, of course, a substanttial amount of such transactions means the taking out of the market of these securities. The fact seems to be forgotten that there are several hig houses doing an odd-lot business, and their huisness is not limited to a period immediately following a panio in the market.

***

Official denial of a further issue of Southern Railway notes in the immediate future was made yesterday. The rumor was persistent, but it was rather tinged with a bearish aspect and emanated apparently from quarters unfriendly to the stock. Such rumors continue indefinitely and their speculative weight should be measured by the real facts in the case, which are at present contradictory of the gossip.

***

One of the quesr manifestations of the times in the financial district is the appearance among the so-called conservative element of many extreme radicals from the point of view political. Of course, the Street in the public mind is always synonymous with the reactionary element, so called, hut it would surprise those who are not in intimate touch with bankers and brokere to find out how many of the members of big brokerage houcse take a positive delight in voicing their views on current topics to the exclusion of the idea that the old times were best. This seems to he a development of the past year or eo, but it is not likely to spread to any alarming extent while the speculative and investment markets remain constituted as they are at present.

***

"So far as the hond market is concerned the nature of the present situation depends entirely on the point of view," said a bond expert yesterday. "When we get a little activity in the market now it contrasts so sharply with the preceding dullness that we are disposed to enthuse over the betterment and to exaggerate its importance. Thue, the idea prevails for a few days that things are getting decidedly hetter. But thie does not last, and when the stimulation of the unwonted activity disappears we get the real perspective of the bond market. Compared with real good markots of two or three years ago, we are standing still, hut you see our point of view has changed. I have hopes of a good bond market some time in the future, hut for the present I am content with these little spurts from time to time and their conesquent exhilaration."

***

Those who place their speculative faith in crop gossip emanating from wirehouses should find out first of all how such gossip originated. It must he borne in mind that the big grain houses are very often in pools for the manipulation of certain grain options, and, as we have not arrived at the millennium yet, the information conveyed through these wirehouses is intended primarily to fortify the position of the house in its pool operations, rather than to convey the unvarnished truth to the man who fesls that the present price of traction stocks is in some remote way connected with the condition of Winter wheat in the West.

EXPORTS OF MERCHANDISE.

Exports of merchandise for the week were valued at $14,897,719 compared with $13,978,573 in the preceding week and $12,152,985 in the correeponding week last year. Total since Jan. 1, $188,974,933, against $187,071,607 in the corresponding period last year.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

COLE-RYAN STOCKS UP

Curb trading was practically at a standstill yesterday, though prices were fairly well maintained under what little selling appeared. Outside of a few issues, in which activity is specially stimulated, the market was as flat as on a midsummer day, and nothing of interest developed. In the mining list some slight activity was manifest in the Cole-Ryan Coppers, which moved up. Greene-Cananea sold up from 15¾ to 16⅛, and Butte Coalition sold 2,500 from 25 up to 25¼ at the close. United Copper, which sold ex-dividend, lost ¼ point on transactions in 1,100 shares. The close was at 60. Chicago Subway moved only fractionally, closing ¼ below the opening, at 10¼, after transactions of 4,300.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 16.—The supplies of money were so ample in the market today that borrowers could hardly he found. Discounts were weak.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was dull and uninteresting. There was a slight downward movement of consols and other gilt-edged securities, due to realizations, owing to the fact that the London County Council loan of $10,625,000 at 3½ per cent. will be issued to-night. Mexican rails weaksned on account of the earthquake in Mexico, hut they hardened later.

Foreigns were apathetic until the afternoon, when Paris buying caused an improvement, especially in Rio Tinto. Japanese Imperial 6s closed at 101⅝.

Americans opened dull, hut the lower level attracted moderate buying. The market hardened to oyer parity at noon, with Canadian Pacific leading. Later the New York opening came flat and checked ths advance, but prices improved and at the closs wsre steady at about the best quotations of the day.

Bullion amounting to £71,000 was taksn into ths Bank of England to-day, and £200,000 was withdrawn for shipment to France.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid 10.90; Lisbon, 8.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3 7-16@3½ per cent.

PARIS, April 16.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened unsteady, but generally grew firmer at the close.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 60c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 21½c for checks.

BERLIN, April 16.—The tone on the Boerse to-day was irregular. Americans, with the exception of Canadian Pacific, were lower. Coal and iron shares improved.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 48 pfenigs for checks.

Discount rates: Short bills, 4 per cent.; three months' bills, 4⅝ per cent.

The second day of the stock market on the Produce Exchange yesterday saw dealings in only one stock, and that a mining stock which sells at cents per share. Tranactions of 1,550 in this issue at 17 cents per share, the high price of the day, represented only $263.50 in money value.

The brokers in the stock corner of the floor were undiscouraged at the lack of trading. They say they have lots of orders, only the gaps between bid and asked prices are too wide to make a market. So far no talk has been heard of abandoning the stock-trading project, and the Committee on Securities is determined to see the thing through.

Meanwhile the Curb market continues to do business on the Broad Street pavement.

HEINZE HEARING CLOSED.

Copper Man Declares Butte Bank Directors Were Hodgens's Dummies.

The hearing before the commission in the suit of Thomas M. Hodgens against the United Copper Company and Stanley Gifford, the Secretary and Treasurer of the company, to compel the company to open up its books, was concluded yesterday before Nicholas W. Bindsell, the Commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court of New Jersey, at 59 Wall Street.

F. Augustus Heinze, who controls the State Savings Bank of Butte, Mont., and is largely interested in the United Copper Company, was recalled by Mr. Walsh in rebuttal. He said that he had drawn up resolutions commending the administration of Mr. Hodgens of the State Savings Bank, but that his reason for doing so was more to save the reputation of the bank and its credit than to commend personally Mr. Hodgens. He said that Mr. Hodgens had control of the Directors of the bank, and that he did not consider them under the administration of Mr. Hodgens other than dummies.

Hodgens was recalled. He said that Mr. Heinze had promised him 72,000 shares of common stock of the United Copper Company, and gave him 6,000 shares, and afterward asked for their return on the ground that they had been given by mistake, and that the shares should be returned. Mr. Hodgens said he could not see the matter in that light, and he and Mr. Heinze disagreed. He stated that afterward he settled with Heinze by his returning the 6,000 shares and letting the balance go. He denied ever having accepted the stock as a gift or as a reward for services to the bank.

He said that at this time the State Savings Bank was in a desperate state and short of money, and that he tried to get Mr. Heinze to come to its relief, but the latter said that things would have to go on in the old way. Hodgens admitted that the State Bank had brought a suit against him in Butte for an accounting. He said that if a judgment was obtained against him by the bank, he was amply able to meet it. He said in order to do so he might have to part with some of his securities. He said he and Heinze had made $30,000 profit jointly in one month in the Fall of 1905, in the purchase and sale of 5,000 shares of Amalgamated Copper stock.

This closed the hearing. The Commissioner will report to the New Jersey court.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, Third Judicial District, Ulster County.
ASHOKAN RESERVOIR. Section No. 4.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS OF APPRAISAL.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court at the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. Such application will be made at a Special Term of the Supreme Court to be held in and for the Third Judicial District, AT THE COURT HOUSE IN THE CITY OF KINGSTON, ULSTER COUNTY, N. Y., ON MAY 15TH, 1907, AT 10 O'CLOCK in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard. The object of such application is to obtain an order of the court appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders, one of whom shall reside in the County of New York, and at least one of whom shall reside in the county where the real estate hereinafter described is situated, to act as Commissioners of Appraisal under said act, and discharge all the duties conferred by the said law and the acts amendatory thereof, upon such Commissioners of Appraisal, for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York.

The real estate to be acquired herein is situated in the Town of Olive, and is to be acquired in fee for the purpose of furnishing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water to the City of New York.

The following is a statement of the boundaries of the lands to be acquired herein, with a reference to the date and place of filing of the map.

All the parcels herein described are to be acquired in fee and are colored pink on the map hereinafter referred to.

All those certain pieces or parcels of real estate situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, shown on a map entitled "Reservoir Department, Section No. 4, Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, Map of real estate, situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, to be acquired by The City of New York under the provisions of Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended, for the construction of Ashokan Reservoir and appurtenances, in the vicinity of Olive City and Brodhead," which map was filed in the office of the County Clerk of the County of Ulster at Kingston, New York, on the 4th day of March, 1907, and is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the junction of the centre lines of the Tongore and Samsonville Roads, said point being at the southeast corner of parcel No. 145, end running thence along the centre line of the said Samsonville Road and the southerly line of said parcel No. 145, S. 67° 18' W. 195.4 feet to the southeast corner of parcel No. 143; thence along the southerly line of said parcel, and still continuing along the centre line of Samsonville Road, the following courses and distances: S. 40° 47' W. 55.7 feet, S. 28° 27' W. 106.8 feet, S. 34° 20' W. 55.3 feet, S. 53° 16' W. 32 feet, S. 63° 30' W. 290.1 feet and S. 53° 28' W. 97.7 feet; thence still continuing along the southerly line of parcel No. 143, N. 3° 44' W. 44.0 feet, N. 89° 26' W. 111.2 feet, S. 59° 02' W. 293.3 feet and S. 28° 26' E. 158.4 feet to the centre of the before-mentioned Samsonville Road; thence along the same, and still continuing along the southerly line of said parcel No. 143, S. 53° 05' W. 116.6 feet and S. 71° 39' W. 74.7 feet to the northeast corner of parcel No. 144; thence along the easterly line of said parcel, S. 21° 12' E. 72.3 feet to the southeast corner of said parcel; thence along the southerly line of same, S. 71° 13' W. 160.8 feet, S. 48° 56' W. 100.9 feet, S. 64° 51' W. 80 feet, S. 55° 02' W. 102.3 feet and N. 77° 47' W. 104.9 feet to a point in the southerly line of the before-mentioned parcel No. 143; thence along the said southerly line, S. 55° 03' W. 144.7 feet to a point in the easterly line of parcel No. 142; thence along the said easterly line S. 58° 14' W. 47.3 feet, S. 25° 19' W. 49.0 feet, S. 35° 59' W. 24.8 feet and S. 11° 36' W. 193.5 feet to a point in the easterly line of parcel No. 140; thence along the said easterly line, S. 30° 04' E. 52 feet, S. 22° 39' W. 458.8 feet and N. 67° 43' W. 52.2 feet, crossing Samsonville Road; thence still continuing along the said easterly line and the southerly line of parcel No. 140, the following courses and distances: S. 72° 17' W. 602.6 feet, S. 24° 45' W. 272.5 feet, S. 45° 21' W. 389.8 feet, S. 56° 36' W. 486.4 feet, S. 20° 50' W. 751.3 feet and N. 70° 28' W. 30.8 feet to the westerly line of said parcel; thence along the same, N. 44° 06' W. 251.1 feet; thence on a curve of 633 feet radius to the right 760 feet and N. 24° 44' E. 963.7 feet, partly along the westerly line of parcel No. 140 and along the westerly line of parcel No. 141; thence still continuing along the westerly line of parcel No. 140 on a curve of 1,367 feet radius to the left 479.3 feet; thence N. 4° 40' E. 4,019.6 feet, partly along the westerly line of said parcel No. 140 and along the westerly line of parcel No. 140, partly along the westerly line of parcel No. 138; thence still continuing along the westerly line of parcel No. 156, on a curve of 467 feet radius to the left 59.9 feet to the most southerly point of parcel No. 170; thence along the westerly and southerly lines of said parcel the following courses and distances: On a curve of 407 feet radius to the left 386.2 feet and N. 59° 05' W. 281.8 feet; thence on a curve of 667 feet radius to the left 455.2 feet and N. 89° 00' W. 29 feet; thence along the southerly lines of parcels Nos. 179 and 177, N. 89° 00' W. 981.4 feet; thence on a curve of 1,067 feet radius to the left 647.1 feet and S. 56° 15' W. 119.3 feet to the most southerly point of the before-mentioned parcel No. 177; thence still continuing along the southerly line of said parcel No. 177, S. 30° 01' W. 73.8 feet, N. 10° 43' W. 34.4 feet, N. 36° 47' W. 410.3 feet, N. 60° 10' W. 182.1 feet, N. 81° 59' W. 143.3 feet and S. 86° 32' W. 477.5 feet to the most westerly point of said parcel; thence along the easterly line of parcel No. 143, S. 37° 10' E. 139.2 feet and S. 27° 08' E. 139.0 feet; thence S. 08° 14' W. 396.6 feet to the centre of Tongore Road, thence along the same and the easterly lines of the before-mentioned parcel No. 143 and parcel No. 146, S. 47° 58' E. 182.8 feet to the most northerly point of parcel No. 145; thence along the easterly line of said parcel, and still continuing along the centre of said road, S. 43° 31' E. 153.8 feet to the point or place of beginning.

The fee is to be acquired by The City of New York in all the real estate parcels Nos. 140 to 180, inclusive, contained in the above description.

Reference is hereby made to the said map, filed as aforesaid, in the office of the County Clerk of the County of Ulster, for a more detailed description of the real estate to be taken in fee, as above described.

In case any property above described is used for any public purpose, such as a highway, &c., such use shall continue until The City of New York shall have legal right to take poeession of or change the same.

Verdict in Suit for Brokerage.

A verdict for $310 and interest was rendered yesterday in the City Court in favor of Lewis B. Crane, a real estate broker, and against Charles E. McManus. The broker claimed that, through his services, an agreement was reached between Mr. McManus and one Lubelsky for the purchase by the latter of the property at 1403 Fifth Avenue for $31,000. Mr. McManus then declined to make the sale, on the ground that his mother, who also had an interest in the property, refused to sell. Lawyer Jacob Friedman, for the broker, contended that, as Mr. McManus had enployed the broker to find a purchaser, it was immaterial who was the owner of the property. The proof of part ownership by the mother was thereupon excluded, and Judge Hascall charged the jury that if, through any other interest in the property, the defendant was unable to make the sale, that that fact could not deprive the broker of his commission.

Buyer for Stanton Street Parcel.

Henry Gans has bought, through Israel Altman and Max Birnbaum, the six-story tenement 253 Stanton Street.

Samuele & Krakower have sold for Pauline L. Goodman, 114 and 116 St. Mark's Place, two five-story brick tenements, with stores, on plot 40 by 100.

The same brokers have also sold for a client to A. C. Weingarten 146 East Broadway, a five-story tenement, 24.6 by 60.

Watkins & Co. have sold for M. L. Blumberg, to the American Central Real Estate Company, 49½ Division Street, a four-story building on lot 25 by 68.2.

The Cuozzo & Gagliano Company have leased for the N. H. Lyons Company the five-story double tenement 615 East Fifteenth Street for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $15,000.

Bronx Dwellings in New Hands.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Rosalie Magda 1,030 East 156th Street, a three-story dwelling, 20 by 100.

THOS. M. HENNEBERRY

Two Attractive Offerings.

$50,000 CASH

will buy a parcel that offers immediate opportunities for a quick profit. This parcel is situated on the west side and improvements now under way by the city will assure of a holding that will enhance its value on completion of the present work. It can be bought on very favorable terms, and by disposing of it at retail a good profit is assured. Will consider propositions to syndicate the transaction if agreeable. Particulars to principals only, on application.

$33,000 CASH

will buy a Madison Avenue Corner Apartment House which will return about 9% net annually on the above amount. The first mortgage has just been renewed for 3 years at 4½%. The second mortgage has 3 years to run at 5%, making the combined average rate of interest on both mortgages under 5%. This parcel should commend itself to investors who desire to buy where there is an assurance of an increase in the value of their holding. The vicinity of this property has a very bright future, and its location, together with the fact that it is a corner, makes it an attractive proposition.

I have other parcels in various locations, the particulars of which can be had on application.

If You Want to Buy or Sell Real Estate

in Manhattan Borough I believe you will find it to your interest to place your business in the hands of an office where your wants will receive consideration, where the particulars will be truthfully stated, and where the desire to make a satisfied client is paramount to that of making a commission resulting from misrepresentation.

By having the exclusive handling of your business, the Broker is not handicapped and is able to proceed on more intelligent lines and very often obtain better and quicker results than could be had otherwise.

I am asking for your business on the above lines and if you are interested I would be glad to hear from you.

TO SAFEGUARD SEAFARERS.

The Navigation Conference will open this morning in the rooms of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, at 203 Broadway. William McCarroll, President of the Board of Trade, called the meeting to discuss additional safeguards for passengers and crews, not only on coastwise steamships and excursion craft, but also on yachts sailing under foreign flags, and on motor boats.

The conference will discuss wireless telegraphy in its relation to the equipment of coastwise vessels, the establishment of relief ships, and a generally more efficient examination of steamers.

Mrs. Jane Wilson of 175 West Eighty-fifth Street denies that she is the woman who gave that name and address when arrested by the police last Friday night in a raid on an alleged gambling house in Seventh Avenue. Mrs. Wilson has made it clear that the use of her name and address was without warrant.

Life Sentence for Negro Porter.

Edward Harris, a negro porter, formerly employed at the Phoenix Bank, and living at 857 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. Harris pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree for the killing, on Nov. 6 last, of Herbert M. Vance, a negro Pullman porter. Vance lodged with Mrs. Louise Page, in the house where Harris dwelt, and the latter shot him after an altercation.

ENGINEERS OPEN THEIR NEW HOME

Carnegie, Who Gave $1,500,000 for It, Shares in the Dedicatory Exercises.

ROOSEVELT SENDS LETTER

The dedicatory exercises of the new building of the United Engineering Society, at 25 West Thirty-ninth Street, to which Andrew Carnegie gave $1,500,000 for construction and still more when it came to raising an endowment fund, were held yesterday afternoon. The exercises were in the assembly hall of the new building, which is one of the finest auditoriums of its kind in the city. There will be other meetings to-day, to-morrow, and Friday.

Mr. Carnegie left the Peace Conference long enough to attend the opening yesterday. There he shared attention with the venerable Dr. Edward Everett Hale, President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, Ambassador Creel of Mexico, Sir William H. Preece, President of the Institute of Electrial Engineers of England, and "Uncle" John Fritz of the Building Committee, who received the most prolonged applause of any of those present.

Charles Wallace Hunt, who presided, had as a gavel the setting maul which Mrs. Carnegie used when she laid the cornerstone of the building. The popularity of Dr. Hale with the audience of engineers was curiously attested when applause broke out as the clergyman rose to make the opening prayer. T. C. Martin, President of the Engineers' Club, read this telegram of congratulation from President Roosevelt:

The White House, Washington.
April 13, 1907.

My Dear Sir: I heartily congratulate you on the opening of the building of the Engineering Societies. The building will be the largest engineering centre of its kind in the world. It is, indeed, the first of its kiod, and its erection in New York serves to mark and emphasize the supremacy which this country is steadily achieving through her proficiency in applied science. The whole country is interested in the erection of such a building, and particularly, of course, all of those who follow either the profession of engineering or any kindred profession, and in no branch of work have Americans shown to greater advantage what we like to think of as the typically American characteristics.

With all good wishes, believe me, sincerely yours, THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Mr. T. C. Martin, 114 Liberty Street.

President Hadley's Address.

President Hadley delivered the principal address and declared that a combination of ethical and technical standards would produce the best professional service.

"It is not enough," said Dr. Hadley, "to know the special sciences on which the practice of a profession is based. A man ought to have clear conceptions of the public service which his profession can render, and the public duties that its members owe. Thus, and only thus, can the engineer, the lawyer, the physician, or a member of any learned profession, rise to the full dignity of his calling.

"There are two quite distinct qualities which must be combined in order to secure the best professional service; two quite distinct tests, which work must meet in order to be pronounced first-class. One of these is the technical standard; the other, for want of a better word, may be called the ethical standard.

"This larger view of professional obligations is not so fully recognized as it should be. We have, in the nineteenth century, made so much progress in the technical training of doctors and lawyers and engineers that we sometimes forget that there is need of anything more than technical training. We have let the old idea of public leadership, which was prominent in the minds of the great professional men of past centuries, give place to another and narrower ideal, which is fully satisfied when a man has made himself a technical expert. Many a man of real eminence in his calling deliberately rejects the wider conception of professional duty which I have here indicated. Perhaps he recognizes the claims of public service, perhaps he does not; but in any event he believes that these claims rest upon him as a man, rather than as an engineer or a lawyer. In his professional capacity he says he is hired not to tell what the law ought to be, but what it is; not to advise how a railroad can do the most public service, but how certain men with certain ideas of their own can best use the differential calculus to get those ideas carried out.

"This is, perhaps, the prevalent view of professional ethics to-day. I believe that it is a wrong view, which must menace not only the influence and standing of the professions themselves, but the general interest of the Republic.

"In the first place, a man who believes that he is hired to carry out another man's ideas can never claim a position of actual leadership. He remains a paid servant—highly paid, doubtless, because he is possessed of a kind of skill which is very unusual, but nevertheless a servant, bound to carry out the wishes of his master. A group of professional men, which regards this as a proper view, thereby forfeits the claim to stand in the first rank socially and politically, and voluntarily accepts a position of the second rank.

"A commonwealth like that of the United States is necessarily governed by public opinion. Courts may formulate this opinion. Legislatures may pass rules to give effect to it. Police may enforce its demands against the recalcitrant. If the lawyers as a class try to keep the law in line with the demands of intelligent public opinion, we can get good law. But if lawyers are content to see the law perverted to private ends, and judges take refuge in technical construction of precedents, without full regard to the needs of the existing situation, Legislatures will step in to create a chaos of conflicting laws which are worse than no law at all.

"There are three professions to-day which do not regard themselves as servants, but as masters—the financier, the journalist, and the politician. If the engineer and the lawyer accept positions as servants, simply putting their technical knowledge at the disposal of the merchant, journalist, or politician who will pay the highest price for it, it is not simply a confession of inferiority—it is a dereliction of public duty."

A Tribute to Carnegie.

Ambassador Creel voiced the greeting of President Diaz of Mexico, and a letter was read from Charles A. Haswell, who, at the age of 97, is the dean of New York's community of engineers. Just before Mr. Carnegie was introduced, Charles F. Scott, the Chairman of the Building Committee, delivered an historical address. It was in the course of this that the mention of "Uncle" John Fritz called forth the applause for that member of the Building Committee. Mr. Scott concluded by turning to Mr. Carnegie and saying:

"Mr. Carnegie, it has been your great privilege to make this possible. You provided money. It has been transformed into bricks and mortar. But your letter gives more than money; in it is an ideal: 'A union building for you all.' That, too, has transforming power. Already the harmonizing feature is an active force. Our societies are working together, they are getting a broader view of their position, and a new inspiration for the large work that lies before them."

When Mr. Carnegie rose to speak, he asked the audience not to applaud him too long, lest he should conclude that they did not want to hear him.

"Mr. President, Mr. ex-President, Mr. Present President, and Uncle John Fritz," he said, and then he had to stop again for the applause to subside.

"The Scotch have a saying," continued Mr. Carnegie, "and they have many wise sayings that fools and bairns should never see a thing half done. I do not want to associate myself with fools and bairns, but I think I may add that donors should never see a thing half done.

"I went to Pittsburg the other day to see the completion of a task which I had placed in the making as far out of my personal observation as was this building. I saw a palace such as Aladdin might have brought forth and was overwhelmed. So to-day with this hall and this audience; and I am minded of what Mrs. Carnegie said in Pittsburg when I likened it to the rubbing of Aladdin's lamp. She said: 'Yes, but we didn't even have to rub the lamp.'

"It is the spirit of the men that does the work; the safety of human society lies just here. Whenever we coalesce to do some good, a unification takes place and a consolidation; and whenever men meet to conspire against the public good—to do some evil—they find themselves unable to trust each other. That's why you needn't lie awake nights and worry about the future and about what problems society is going to meet. As sure as the sunflower turns toward the sun so the human race turns toward better things.

"This is the rock on which I rest, and on which I meditate sometimes. Nor can you deny this, that, quite apart from whatever evil exists, there is that principle of improvement inherent in us. To-day is better than yesterday and to-morrow will be better than to-day. So I look forward to the future of this building, and I know that the organizations to whom it is devoted will advance and continue to meet the developing needs of our age."

"Who are the architects?" he said. "Are they a well-known firm? No. They are two young men who perhaps were never heard from before in New York, and there is the proud father of one of them, [pointing to Dr. Hale,] and there is a proud lady sitting up there in the gallery, [pointing to Mrs. Carnegie,] for the other one was Mrs. Carnegie's brother. There's democracy for you. No social influence in determining the architecture of this building, but twenty-eight sets of plans out of which this one was selected by unanimous choice."

Mr. Carnegie had a word to say for universal peace to which he arrived by speaking of the American spirit of co-operation. This, he declared, was not found in the Englishman, nor yet in the Scotchman.

"Where are you going Sandy?" said one Scotchman to another in the story that Mr. Carnegie told.

"Doon to the club," said Sandy.

"An' wha foor?"

"Just to contradeect a wee bit."

"We only hate those we don't know," said the donor of the engineering building in conclusion, "and the more I go on and the younger I get, and the more experience I have with men and women, the more I come to realize the truth of this. To know the virtues of your brother is to know the spirit of brotherhood. That is why I am an advocate of the peace of the world. We only have to go on to know our brothers the world over in order to realize that all men of all nations are indeed brothers."

Last evening, from 9 o'clock until early this morning, there was a succession of receptions in the Engineering Building, first a general reception in the main auditorium, and then receptions by officers and councils of the foundar societies in their various headquarters.

BROKER SUED FOR $10,000.

Cowan Says Rawak Falsely Accused Him in Advertising Transaction.

An action has been brought in the Supreme Court by Isaac Cowen, of 1418 Fifth Avenue, an advertising agent, through his lawyer, Bernard H. Sandler, against Henry Rawak, of 36 West 116th Street, a real estate broker, for $10,000 damages.

Cowen alleges that he received from Mr. Rawak on March 13 last two advertisements to be inserted three times each in two daily papers of this city.

The advertisements were not published, according to Mr. Rawak, and he appeared at Mr. Cowan's office the following day, Mr. Cowan says, and with great abuse drove him into the street, at the same time advising the assembled crowd that he, Cowen, had stolen his money.

It now develops, according to Cowen, that the advertisements were published as ordered, and the suit is the result.

DON'T WANT STATE INQUIRY.

Aldermen Say They Have Power to Investigate City Departments.

The Board of Aldermen, at its meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution offered by "Tim" Sullivan requiring the Commissioners of Accounts to turn over to the board the reports of the investigations into the department of Borough President Ahearn. The resolution declared that the commissioners are required by Section 112 of the charter to do this.

"Speaking for the Republican contingency in this body, I would like to say that they believe there is no necessity of going to Albsny for an investigation of the city departments, the power to make such an inquiry being vested in this body," said Alderman Meyers, leader of the Republicans.

"We entirely concur in that view," replied "Tim" Sullivan.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Western area of high pressure has overspread the Missouri Valley, with colder weather extending to Oklahoma. The disturbance from the lake region is moving eastward with the general area of low pressure over northeastern districts, causing snow and light showers.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be fresh west to southwest; South Atlantic Coast, fresh west.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have fresh southwest winds and cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Fair in south, snow or rain in north, portion Wednesday. Thursday, fair and colder; brisk southwest to west winds.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and somewhat colder Wednesday. Thursday, fair; fresh west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

FIRE AND WATER CLOSE 2 THEATRES

FRANK DANIELS A LOSER

The patrone of the hotels in and about Times Square were awakened by the fire engines at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, and, looking out, saw a tongue of flame shooting from a window of the roof garden skating rink of the New York Theatre Building. The flames started beneath the skating rink floor and ate their way beneath the flooring to the front of the building, facing Times Square, and then extended to the corner of the roof at Seventh Avenue and Forty-fourth Street.

The men of four engine companies and two hook and ladder companies succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading to the lower part of the building. The firemen, however, were compelled to bring into use eight streams before they got the fire under control, as considerable woodland scenery of papier-maché took fire.

The eight streams of water which were turned into the roller skating rink damaged the New York Theatre, which occupies the Forty-fifth Street end of the block, and also the Criterion Theatre, at the Forty-fourth Street end of the building. In fact, so much water was poured into the place that it leaked down into the two theatres and did much damage.

"Tattooed Man" Company's Losses.

The Criterion Theatre was so deluged that it cannot be occupied for some time. The scenery and costumes of "The Tattooed Man" company were injured to such an extent that practically an entire new production will have to be prepared for the opening of Frank Daniels in the attraction at the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia, next Monday evening. To this end, scena painters and costumers were put at work yesterday, and they will keep at it night and day in order to have the play ready in time.

In addition to damaging the theatres by water, many of the business offices in the building were so badly damaged that they had to close down yesterday. The majority of these offices were on the fifth floor, directly under the roof garden or skating rink floor. Among them were Jules Murray's Amusement Agency, the business offices of the New York Theatre, J. Fred Zimmerman's office, the American Theatrical Exchange, the Klaw & Erlanger Construction Company, Lew Dockstader's Minstrels, Matt Grau's agency, the Rogers Brothers, William A. Brady's office, Joseph R. Grismer's office, Wilton Lackaye's and Robert B. Mantell's headquarters, the offices of the Gulf Fisheries Company, Joe Hart and Frederick W. Bert.

In some of these offices the ceilings fell after the firemen had chopped away the concrete flooring of the skating rink, which was practically the main roof of the building. Above the skating rink the glass roof was smashed to flinders.

Tons of water leaked down from the skating rink at the top of the building to the electrical offices of Klaw & Erlanger on the fourth floor, and then to the offices of Rich & Harris on the third floor.

The skating rink, where the fire originated, was conducted by Walter Rosenberg, whose loss is covered by insurance.

New York Theatre Damage.

At the New York Theatre, where "The Land of Nod" is holding forth, Louis Werba, the house manager, said that considerable damage had been done by the water, though the fire did not get inside the building.

"We shall close the theatre for a few days," said Mr. Werba last evening. "The ceiling is badly damaged, and we must make a thorough investigation for the sake of public safety before again opening the theatre. However, 'The Land of Nod' will resume its engagement shortly."

It is believed that the fire was caused by defective insulation of an electric light wire.

The folks from the hotels who were routed out of bed went into the street and watched for three hours the firemen at work. Many of the patrone of the Hotel Astor stood at the windows of their apartments and saw the firemen work in relays, as the dense smoke from the oil-polished tar-papered flooring of the skating rink time and again drove the firemen to the fire escape balconies and ladders for fresh air. Three of the firemen had their hands and faces slightly cut by broken glass when they were compelled to smash windows to get into the building from an extension ladder which they raised in Times Square.

NEW PHASE OF SEWER FRAUDS

Two Claimants for Damages to One House—Metz Tells Jerome.

Controller Metz consulted with District Attorney Jerome yesterday about a new phase of the sewer frauds which has come out in Brooklyn. It is quite likely that the Grand Jury will be asked to take up the matter. The Controller said that a certain physician in Brooklyn recovered $257.52 for damages to a house in Hancock Street, Brooklyn, owned by him in August, 1904. He filed a claim in November of that year for $500, and the action in the First District Municipal Court resulted in the verdict stated.

About two months later five claims, for $2,344, were filed by a lawyer for a builder who said he owned the house in question. The builder appeared before the Controller and withdrew some of the claims, admitting that they were fraudulent, but reserved the right to file new claims. Later three new claims were filed. Then the records of the physician's case were examined, and it was discovered that somebody had lied.

This information was submitted to District Attorney Jerome yesterday by Chief Examiner Prial of the Finance Department.

HUGHES SAYS MAYOR HAS POWER TO PROBE

No Investigation of City Departments by the Legislature Is Necessary.

READY TO LEND A HAND

Tells Ellison He Will Entertain Charges Against Any Official Removable Solely by the Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Corporation Counsel Ellison of New York came up to the Capitol to-day and presented to Gov. Hughes the suggestion of Mayor McClellan that the various city departments be subjected to a general investigation by a committee of the Legislature. The Governor told Mr. Ellison that the Mayor had full powers under the charter to investigate these departments, and that no legislative investigation was necessary.

The Corporation Counsel of New York, however, left the Governor with the distinct assurance from him that if the charter should prove defective in this respect he would be very glad to suggest legislation that would provide for a proper extension of the Mayor's powers, and that he would entertain any charges properly preferred against elective city officials who, while part and parcel of the New York City Administration, could not be removed by the Mayor, but were removable solely by the Governor.

This is thought to have special reference to the case of President Ahearn of the Borough of Manhattan, who at present is under fire for the manner in which he conducted his department. Corporation Counsel Ellison, in speaking to a TIMES correspondent before his departure to-night, declared that if the disclosures in the investigation now in progress in New York should warrant it, he would not hesitate, as the Mayor's legal adviser, to urge the preferment of charges before the Governor against Borough President Ahearn.

Here is a statement authorized by the Governor, after his talk with Corporation Counsel Ellison:

"There is no necessity in my judgment for a legislative investigation. So far as heads of departments are responsible to the Mayor, he is in a position to make a full inquiry and he may remove any officer who refuses to give him all the information necessary to disclose the condition of his department.

"Generally, with regard to all the city departments, including those in charge of elected officers, it was the intent of the charter that the Commissioners of Accounts, who are responsible to the Mayor, should have full opportunity for investigation. I believe that these Commissioners have full power to investigate all the city departments. Further, if the information thus obtained warrants the presentation of charges, with suitable specifications against any city officer removable by me, such charges can be presented and the matter investigated in accordance with law.

"It should be distinctly understood that the Mayor has full authority through his appointed officers to investigate the city departments, and is responsible for making all necessary inquiries to insure the proper administration of the City Government. If, however, it can be shown that in any respect the power is lacking that clearly the framers of the charter intended to give the Mayor in this particular, then the power should be supplied, and I shall be glad to recommend any legislation which may be found necessary for that purpose."

Corporation Counsel Ellison said:

"The Governor is a good lawyer. I agree with him without any reservation whatever in his construction of the charter as regards the Mayor's powers to make a formal investigation of the Borough Presidents' departments, or the department of any officer holding a place under him, through his Commissioners of Accounts. On the other hand, if the contention of the counsel employed by the Borough President is correct, then, as the Governor intimates, we shall seek by legislation an extension of powers under the charter to remedy any defects the courts may declare to exist."

Mr. Ellison said the special counsel employed to conduct the investiagtion would present proof to-morrow of conditions existing in the Borough President's department from witnesses who were willing to testify and had an adequate knowledge of facts.

"This testimony," Mr. Ellison said, "may seriously affect the situation, though what the exact result of the testimony will be I shall not attempt to say at this time. It is quite possible that sufficient may be shown to warrant charges, independent of the testimony of bureau heads which at one time seemed necessary."

"What about the political aspect of the Mayor's move?" Mr. Ellison was asked.

"Oh," he replied, "I think it should be conceded that there is no politics in the Corporation Counsel's office."

"What about the charge that this is merely a move in the Mayor's war on Tammany Leader Murphy?"

"I think the political aspect may be safely eliminated, because the Borough President asked for an investigation and is merely getting what he declared he was after, nothing more and nothing less," said Mr. Ellison.

FAMILY HELD FOR MURDER.

Mrs. Gilman Accused with Son and Daughters of Slaying Dona Gilman.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 17.—Affidavits were filed this afternoon charging Mrs. Leah C. Gilman, mother; Collins, brother, and Fayne and Bessie, sisters, with murdering Dona Gilman, whose body was found on a commons near her home Nov. 20 last. The Grand Jury recently ignored the case against the Gilmans. The attorney filing the affidavit said there was no new evidence.

With the exception of the daughter, Bessie, who has been living in Germantown, and who will be in court to-morrow, the members of the family appeared voluntarily and gave bond for their appearance. The mother and son were released on $2,500 bond and the two daughters on bond of $1,000 each. The affidavits were sworn to by Lemuel C. Miller.

ANNOYED MR. ZIMMERMANN.

Former Clerk Sent Cablegrams in His Name—Goes to Bellevue.

Leopold Zimmermann of the banking house of Zimmermann & Forshay of 9 Wall Street was complainant in the Tombs Police Court yesterday against Peter Pegosse, a former stenographer, whom he accused of writing him annoying letters and with sending fictitious cablegrams to the correspondents of his house abroad. Pegosse, who had been arrested at his lodgings in 83 East Fifty-sixth Street, was sent to Bellevue to have his sanity investigated.

Mr. Zimmermann told the story of his troubles with his former clerk at his apartments in the Hotel Savoy last night. Pegosse, he said, had the delusion that he was an important figure in international finance and had been acting accordingly, making free use of Mr. Zimmermann's name and of the names of his partners. In addition to this he had recently taken to opening accounts with various firms, giving him as a reference, and had made repeated applications to the house to have checks casbed which were drawn on banks where he had no account.

Mr. Zimmermann said he had had the man arrested simply to have him taken care of. He had entered his employ about five years ago, he said, and had proved unusually capable, so much so that he had taken him to Europe as his private secretary.

Soon afterward he left to go with the Stock Exchange bouse of A. A. Housman & Co., but had stayed there only six months, having had to go to a hospital for treatment. He began to act strangely soon after his release from the hospital. He first began to annoy Mr. Zimmermann by talking erratically about his connections with foreign banking houses which he thought he repreented. Then he appeared frequently at the Wall Street office with checks which the firm knew would not be honored. A few weeks ago the house learned that some one was sending cablegrams, collect, to some of their European correspondents, giving incoherent bearish views of the market, to which the names of the firm and some of its clerks were signed.

This and a letter sent to one of Mr. Zimmermann's partners, which had a threatening tone, led Mr. Zimmermann to act.

CONRIED WANTS BLAUVELT.

Sends an Offer to Weber's Soprano, Who Is Getting Real Money Now.

Lillian Blauvelt, who is now singing the leading part in "The Magic Knight" with Joe Weber's Stock Company at the Grand Opera House, has received an offer from the Metropolitan Opera House and may next season take the place made vacant by the departure of Bessie Abott. It will not be the first time that Miss Blauvelt has sung at the Metropolitan. She has a large répertoire of opera rôles, including Micaela in "Carmen," Violetta in "Traviata," Rosina in "The Barber of Seville," Juliette in "Romeo et Juliette," and Marguerite in "Faust."

Miss Blauvelt's contract with Mr. Weber runs until Jan. 1. She is under contract to sing with him for thirty-five weeks, and that period will not have closed at the end of this season. Whether she will be able to appear at the Metropolitan or not is not yet decided.

"I haven't made my plans yet for next year," Mme. Blauvelt said yesterday. "I am going abroad this Summer for rest, as this has been a very trying season. It is true that I have received an offer from a certain impresario, but I can't talk about it. I am still under contract with Mr. Weber, and what I will do when that contract runs out I don't know."

At present Miss Blauvelt is receiving more money than many of the opera stars, and that will be a great factor in determining whether she will return to the grand opera stage. She is said to receive a sum of $40,000 for the period of thirty-five weeks in which she sings. She appears only in Victor Herbert's "The Magic Knight," and is on the stage only some twenty-five minutes.

RUNAWAYS ON SPEEDWAY.

Elmer Stevens, Horse Trainer, Thrown from Runabout and Injured.

Elmer Stevens of 1,313 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, well known on the Speedway as a trainer of fast horses, was thrown from his runabout yesterday afternoon and painfully injured when he was "brushing" along the upper course with George Oliver of 241 West 141st Street. Many teams exercising on the Speedway at the time were terrified by the runaways.

Stevens and Oliver had just started north of Washington Bridge when a newspaper fluttering across the driveway frightened Oliver's horse. The animal shied to the right, struck Stevens's black trotter, and then set off up the Speedway. Stevens's horse balked and began backing. It then turned sharply around, spilling Stevens, and galloped away southward, turning in and out among the line of light rigs.

Mounted Policeman Fitzgerald caught the horse at 159th Street. Oliver held to his reins, and, with the aid of Mounted Policeman Murphy, brought his horse to a stand. An ambulance was summoned, and Stevens was taken to the Washington Heights Hospital, where it was said that he was badly cut about the head.

$120,000 DUTY ON JEWELS.

Money Paid Over on Leeds and Tiffany Pearls Pending Decision.

More than $120,000 has been paid over to the United States Treasury as a result of the litigation involving the importation of the so-called "Tiffany pearls" and also the "Leeds necklace."

A dispute over the question of classification of these two expensive jewels caused this litigation.

The last appeal having gone against the importers, the court having decided that the duty must be paid before any further appeal would be considered, Bernard Citron, the importer of the Leeds necklace, paid Collector Stranahan yesterday $110,335, the balance due upon the pearls in question. Upon such payment the papers were forwarded to the Board of General Appraisers for determination of the question whether the pearls were subject to duty at the rate of 10 per cent. or 60 per cent.

There was received also by Collector Stranahan yesterday the sum of $10,032 from Tiffany & Co. A representative of this company, accompanied by counsel, appeared before the Collector with the copy of an order signed by Circuit Judge Lacombe, directing that there be a stay in the case now pending, provided the importer paid to the Collector within ten days from April 16, 1907, the sum of $8,122, the increased duty due upon the pearls in dispute, together with interest of $1,010 at the rate of 6 per cent. from the date of filing protest.

SUES TO UNCOVER SECRET DIVIDENDS

Mine Broker Wants to Know Things About United Verde Copper Co.

AND C. W. CLARK'S STABILITY

Prying, Says the Company, but a Hearing to Prove Mr. Clark Not a Bankrupt Is to Begin.

The earnings of the United Verde Copper Company are to be investigated by order of the Supreme Court of Texas next week, and the public will have a chance of finding out if the rumor that the company has paid 200 per cent. for years is correct. Strenuous opposition has been made by the company. The inquiry will also be made to determine the financial standing of Charles W. Clark, son of ex-Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, general manager of the company.

Three or four years ago the Rosario Mining and Milling Company, a Texas corporation, wished to dispose of a mining property in Guadalupe y Calvo, State of Chihuahua, Mexico. It employed as its broker ex-Judge M. W. McConnell of Butte, Mont. He made a conditional sale to Charles W. Clark, Edward L. Whitmore, and E. L. Sizer.

This syndicate took possession and expended about $100,000 in development work. It was asserted that the mines did not turn out as well as they expected, and they repudiated the sale. So far no question has been raised as to their right to do so under their contract with the Rosario Company, but the matter may come up later.

When McConnell tried to collect his commission from the Rosario Company he was told that he had not produced a bona fide purchaser willing and able to buy. He was told, it is alleged, that Charles W. Clark was a bankrupt, E. L. Sizer was in a like condition, and that Edward L. Whitmore, who is dead, was also insolvent. At the time of the transaction McConnell had represented to the Rosario Company that Clark was a multimillionaire, whereas the company asserted that Clark was then, and has always since been, a bankrupt.

McConnell turned over his claim for commission, which amounts to $40,000, to G. Himminghoffen of Guadalupe y Calvo, and he began action in the Supreme Court of Texas against the Rosario Mining & Milling Company. The matter turns entirely upon the question of the financial standing of Charles W. Clark, and so George W. Harper, Jr., of 277 Bradway was appointed by the Texas courts a Commissioner to take evidence from the Secretary of the United Verde Copper Company, Pierre V. C. Miller, and to examine the books of the company to discover the holdings of Mr. Clark, the rate of interest paid him in the last five years, and the salary he has been receiving as general manager of the company.

The copper company has strongly objected to these proceedings. Atwater & Cruikshank, counsel for the company, and the private attorneys for ex-Senator Clark, acting as counsel for Mr. Miller, appeared yesterday before Justice O'Gorman and asked that a subpoena duces tecum issued by Commissioner Harper for the production of the company's books should be vacated. In an affidavit Mr. Miller gave his reasons for this application.

"The United Verde Copper Company is a close corporation," the affidavit said. "The Hon. W. A. Clark of Montana is the President of the corporation and is the holder of most of the stock.

"The stock of the company is not traded or dealt in, and, so far as I know, none of it is now for sale. The affairs of the corporation have always been kept from the public. There have been from time to time attempts made by outsiders, for business or other reasons, to gain information concerning the affairs of this corporation and the names of the stockholders.

"These attempts have always been resisted, and it is not the policy of the company to discuss its own affairs or the private affairs of the stockholders.

"I desire to have the subpoena served upon me vacated, as I consider it is a wholly urnecessary prying into the affairs of the stockholders of the United Verde Copper Company. Mr. Charles W. Clark is a resident of San Mateo, Cal., and if his financial responsibility is material to either of the parties in the litigation in Texas they should be required to get this information from him."

Justice O'Gorman refused to vacate the subpoenas which, as a matter of courtesy to the Supreme Court of Texas, had been signed by Justice MacLean, and the proceedings will take their course. The hearing has not yet been finally fixed, but probably it will be held on Monday morning at the office of Mr. Harper, 277 Broadway.

FLORIDA AGAINST NEGRO VOTE

Senate Votes Disfranchisement and House Will Follow Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 17.—The Senate, by a vote of 23 to 5, has adopted a joint resolution to declare the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the National Constitution void and to disfranchise the negro in Florida.

The resolution was introduced by Senator John S. Beard of Pensacola, who spoke at length upon the subject, his speech leaving no doubt in the minds of his audience that the amendments were irregularly adopted and hence illegal. Senator Beard declared that he believed the Supreme Court of the United States would uphold the action of this State in disfranchising the negro.

The house will adopt the resolution without a dissenting vote, and the question of the validity of the amendment will undoubtedly be brought before the United States Supreme Court.

Weyerhauser Fears a Reaction—Talks Too Much, Says Perkins.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, April 17.—Frederick Weyerhauser, who is said to be at the head of the lumber trust and to be wealthier than John D. Rockefeller, discussed President Roosevelt's attitude toward the railroads and other large corporations to-day.

"I will say that I think the President has gone into his course with the best of intentions, yet I think that he has been a trifle meddlesome," he said. "I think everybody should observe the law, whether it be the railroads or any one else. I think that rebates were wrong and should have been done away with.

"It is unfortunate, however, that the railroads have been forced to adopt more conservative methods and discontinue some of their extension work. There is no doubt that some of this work now in progress would be halted if it were practicable to do so. When the railroads begin to curtail the effect will become apparent in other lines, the iron interests for instance, and thus it will be felt ultimately by the people at large."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—United States Senator Perkins created a sensation last night at the annual banquet of the Oakland Merchants' Exchange by declaring that President Roosevelt talks too much.

"It is the history of the human race," he said, "that some people talk too much, and this is the fault of our President. He wanted to naturalize the Japanese, and on this point, as you all know, he talked too much, but the people forgive him because he is in earnest and his heart is for the right."

LOCKED INTRUDER IN CLOSET.

Mrs. Von Bermuth Kept Him There Until Help Came.

When detectives from the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station arrived at the home of Oscar Von Bermuth, a commission merchant at 57 West Sixty-eighth Street late last night, they found a man locked in a closet on the first floor. He was arrested and taken to the station, where he was charged with being a suspicious person. The prisoner gave his name as John Lee, a brakeman of Utica, N. Y.

While Mrs. Von Bermuth was in the parlor she heard a noise in the basement. Going into the hallway, she says she saw a door of a closet at the top of the basement stairs slowly closing. When the door finally closed she heard a click, and knew that the door was locked. She stayed on guard until her husband returned home a few minutes later. Mr. Von Bermuth telephoned to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, and Detective Levins was sent to the house. The detective opened the door and found Lee.

LEAVES $2,000,000 TO FAMILY.

Will of Aurelius Hull Admitted to Probate at Morristown.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 17.—By the will of Aurelius Hull, admitted to probate to-day in the Morris County Surrogate's office, Charles A. Hull of Brooklyn and Harrie T. of this city are heirs to $2,000,000, and are appointed executors and trustees of the estate. Miss Irene Mills, Miss Maria A. Mills, and Miss Mary Mills are to receive $2,500 each. Mrs. Carolino H. Maxwell is left $1,500, and James K. Polk, the colored coachman, $500.

A fund of $150,000 is left in trust to the executors, one-third of the income from which goes for the support of his daughter-in-law, Elizabeth Van Rens Hull, widow of George L. Hull, as long as she remains a widow. The remaining two-thirds will go to the support of her son, George L. Hull, Jr.

Another fund of $15,000 is left to the executors in trust, the income to be paid to Miss Mary E. Starr during her life, and at her death the principal to revert to the estate. The sum of $12,000 is left in like manner for Miss Josephine D. Hull, and $8,500 for Mrs. Caroline H. Maxwell.

HORSE CAUGHT IN BED SPRING

Odd Accident Blocks Bridge Traffic—Linemen Release the Animal.

Traffic on the north roadway of the Brooklyn Bridge was blocked for twenty minutes yesterday by a queer accident, in which a horse and a bed spring figured. A truck loaded with bed springs from a factory was crossing the bridge, when one of the springs fell to the roadway. A horse attached to a truck close behind stepped on to the spring and the spiral wires, breaking from the framework, coiled around the front legs of the animal. The horse plunged and floundered until he was hopelessly entangled.

A long line of cars was held up, and motormen and conductors aided the driver in his efforts to release the horse. All attempts, however, failed and finally a repair wagon was summoned. The linemen had to cut away the springs with their nippers before the horse could be released. The animal was badly frightened, but uninjured.

BLOODHOUNDS HUNT FIREBUGS

Paul Rainey's Dogs on Trail of Men Who Burned His Barn.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ALBANY, Miss., April 17.—English bloodhounds, for which Paul Rainey of Cleveland paid a fancy price, have been mustered into service for the first time in a man hunt, and are now trailing four persons supposed to have set fire this morning to a great barn on his place, near here, which serves him and his guests as a Winter home. The barn was destroyed, with some valuable horses.

The hounds took a trail which led into the wood preserves, but at a late hour to-night nothing had been heard from the party in charge of them.

RUEF JURY BOX FILLED.

Members Selected Subject to Peremptory Challenges.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—After preliminaries, examinations, adjournments, and other delays occupying twenty-two days a trial jury subject to the exercise of peremptory challenges was completed to-day in the case of Abraham Ruef, charged with extortion. Four tentative jurors were chosen to-day, thus filling the box.

It is thought likely that another week will be required for the permanent filling of the box after the peremptories have been satisfied.

SCHIFF DEFENDS THE RICH WHO GIVE

Says That Men Like Morgan and Rockefeller Fill Him with Admiration.

DO THE MASSES DO AS WELL?

Little Streams of No Use to Mankind Help to Swell Great Fortunes.

Jacob H. Schiff was one of the guests of honor at the dinner of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School at Delmonico's last night.

"I was invited to the peace banquet," said he, "but I decided I would rather be with you. After all, this is as efficient a peace meeting as the congress. You, who try to cure diseased minds and bodies, are the true missionaries of peace."

Then he took as his text an announcement made earlier in the evening by Dr. G. N. Miller, Secretary of the Institution. The Jones bequest of from $110,000 to $115,000 will be paid next week, with $25,000 to $30,000 to come later. This will reduce the debt on the Post-Graduate Hospital to $300,000. Mr. Schiff congratulated the institution, and proceeded to express his views upon the benefactions of the wealthy.

"If only rich men," he said, "who do so much for education and art would do something for the medical schools they would effect more good. They should support not only the schools attached to universities, but those situated in great cities where the material for medical study is plentiful.

"We hear much of the responsibility of the classes to the masses. Gentlemen, I am not sure whether the masses do their duty as thoroughly as do the classes. I am filled with admiration for men like Rockefeller and Morgan and the others of whom Dr. Miller spoke. They have great fortunes, but they direct their diffusion rightly. Their wealth is like a reservoir, into which run little streams from the mountains, which of themselves would be of no use to mankind."

Mr. Schiff then pointed out that the medical profession could do much to assist the classes in the management of the wealth they had collected from the masses, by allowing the general run of mankind that it was a good thing that the means of doing things had been concentrated in the hands of the few who could use them wisely.

"You doctors," he said, "who come into touch with all classes can not do better than to teach toleration of the wealthy man. At present the men who have gathered great fortunes are indiscriminately condemned."

"I congratulate you on what you have accomplished. The city and country have the right to be proud of your achievements. Those who come from Europe may say there is here too much business, too much rush. But when they ask for palaces and castles let them look at our universities and libraries—even if they are Carnegie libraries. Let them listen to our men of science. They are our real Princes."

The dinner was a celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Post-Graduate Hospital and the speeches were all of a laudatory character of the good work done. Dr. D. B. St. John Roosa, the President, grew very sarcastic over the old system of teaching, and contrasted the small classes of his own institution with the ordinary schools, where undergraduates are expected to learn by hearing a book read in the pit and watching through opera glasses an operation half a mile away. He looked forward, too, to the time when the medical profession would get its proper influence, and the Legislature would not dare to say anything on medical subjects without its approval.

Dr. J. N. West put in a plea for more special hospitals. "If our wealthy men," he said, "instead of spending money upon libraries in places where they are rarely visited, would build hospitals, the American poor would be better off. There is in all this vast city but one hospital where cases of inoperable cancer will be received, and that is a small one kept by Sisters of Charity. I know a case in which a young girl was practically confined to one small flat for two years, because her mother was suffering from this disease, and no institution would receive her.

The pre-eminence of American surgery over German in relation to appendicitis was maintained by Dr. Carl Beck. He is a German himself, but he told how he had lectured the Berlin Medical Society upon this topic.

"When the King of England had appendicitis," he said, "he was not treated as well as an ordinary American is. The Germans know all about appendicitis, but they do not know what to do. The American may know less of its pathology, but his practical sense tells him how to fight its poison. It is a pity that the inventiveness of American surgeons is not better understood. They should understand German better and publish more in that language."

BURGLAR IN BATTLE ON ROOF.

Policeman Wins, Capturing Assailant of Mrs. Englebrith with Loot.

William J. Kelly, who says he is a printer and lives at 220 East 120th Street, was locked up in the East 104th Street Police Station last night on the charge of burglary.

Mrs. Lena Englebrith returned to her flat at 228 East 115th Street late last night and discovered a man rummaging through a dresser in her bedroom. The intruder hit her with a jimmy that he had used in forcing an entry to the flat, and then fled to the hallway and thence to the roof.

Mrs. Englebrith's shrieks for help were heard by Policeman Gibbons, who on running up the stairs was told that the thief had escaped to the roof. Up there he went and thief and policeman grappled. It was only by freely using his night stick that the policeman at last subdued his opponent.

When the prisoner was searched in the East 104th Street Station four watches and a quantity of other jewelry were found in his possession.

ROOSEVELT AND STOCKS.

Reported as Doubtful of Railway Issues—An Emphatic Denial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Ex-Gov. Larrabee of Iowa had a talk to-day with the President about strengthening the Inter-State Commerce law, having in view a more strict Federal supervision of railroads and the prevention of overcapitalization.

Mr. Larrabee refused to-night to affirm or deny a report printed in New York that the President had said that if he were Trustee of an estate he would not buy railroad stocks under present conditions, but would buy National bank stocks.

At the White House it was denied emphatically that Mr. Roosevelt had said any such thing to Mr. Larrabee.

MORGAN 70 YEARS OLD.

J. Pierpont Morgan, to whom Wall Street willingly concedes the title of Dean of American Finance, was seventy years old yesterday, and the cables to Italy were kept busy carrying congratulatory messages from his associates in the Street.

One of the longest was a round robin from Mr. Morgan's partners and employes, to which was attached upward of 100 signatures, including those of the entire working force of his banking house.

LOTTERY MEN PLEAD GUILTY.

Oscar Hauger of Hoboken and W. C. Henderson Admit Violating Law.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., April 17.—The United States Grand Jury to-day returned indictments against Herman Brunner of St. Louis, Mo., and Oscar Hauger, a resident of Hoboken, N. J., for an alleged conspiracy to violate the Anti-Lottery laws.

Hauger went before United States Commissioner Richard Jones, Jr., immediately after he was informed of the indictment and entered a plea of guilty. Shortly after Hauger had left the Commissioner's Court he was followed by William C. Henderson, a former resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., but now living in Los Angeles, Cal., who also entered a plea of guilty. Sentence in each case was suspended.

Amendment was also made of the indictment of John M. Rodgers of Wilmington, Del., who, the Government alleges, printed tickets of the lottery company. Arrangements for his arrest have been made at Wilmington. It is expected that by Saturday a number of indictments will have been returned against persons in different parts of the United States.

RED BANK'S MAYOR HELD UP.

Stopped for Speeding and Running Boy Down, He's Ready to Sell.

Mayor William Otterson of Red Bank, N. J., came to town yesterday and purchased an automobile from the Manhattan Storage Company. The company lent him Albert Schwartz to take the machine to the Fort Lee Ferry at 130th Street.

Schwartz and Mayor Otterson were stopped on Lenox Avenue five minutes after they started by Traffic Policeman Mars on the chargo of exceeding the speed limit.

Magistrate Cornell held the chauffeur in $500 bail for trial, but paroled him until to-morrow. The visiting Mayor said he would load the automobile on a truck and treat it as freight until he got to the more liberal atmosphere of New Jersey.

The Mayor, when he left the court, changed his mind and decided to let Schwartz run the machine to the Fort Lee Ferry.

The automobile was running west on 116th Street, and when near Lexington Avenue the machine knocked down Michael Miolo, an eleven-year-old boy, of 340 East 114th Street. His nose was broken.

Patrolman Cameron arrested Schwartz for the second time in one day. The chauffeur was held in $500 on two charges of assault and not having a proper license.

"The machine is a hoodoo," said Mayor Otterson dejectedly. "I will sell it cheap." The Mayor then went to look for some one to take the machine to New Jersey for him.

Currier Bequest for Deserving Students Who Need Assistance.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, April 17.—Announcement was made to-day of two bequests of $100,000 each which have recently been made to Yale University. By the death of Edward West Currier of New York City Yale is to get $100,000. The bequest is left by the will of Lura Currier, who left the money to his stepson, Edward W. Currier, to hold in trust during his lifetime. The income is "to be paid to deserving students in need of assistance, preference being given to students coming from New York City." The fund is to be known as The Nathaniel Currier Fund.

By the will of William C. Egleston, who died on March 25 in New York City, Yale receives another $100,000.

BOY DRAGGED UNDER A TRAIN.

Five-Year-Old Rolled Under One Car, Then Another, but May Recover.

Five year old Joseph Tropia was struck by a northbound Bath Beach electric train yesterday afternoon at New Utrecht Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. Before Motorman Kearns could bring his train to a stop, the boy was dragged a hundred feet by the motor under the first car, dropped, and then caught by the motor of the second car.

The passengers attempted to remove him from beneath the motor, but he was wedged in so firmly that it was necessary to send for the wrecking car. There was a wait of thirty minutes for its arrival.

The car was then jacked up and the boy removed. The ambulance surgeon, who had meanwhile been summoned, said that the child had suffered a broken right arm and scalp wounds, with possible internal injuries. He may recover.

HONOR CARNEGIE FRIEND OF PEACE

CALLED A WORLD CITIZEN

TWO NOTABLE DINNERS

The National Peace Congress, the first to be held in this country, ended last night with the holding of two dinners. The feasts followed a day of labor, resulting in the passage of a set of resolutions which those who framed them believe will be helpful to the American delegates at the next Hague Conference, as showing clearly the sentiment of the American people. They believe also that the Congress accomplished much more, and Andrew Carnegie, in an interview given last night, expressed the opinion that the Congress had resulted in answering all the important objections against the plan of worldwide peace.

Mr. Carnegie was decorated last night with the Cross of the Legion of Honor of France by the French Government through the French representative to the Congress, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant. The presentation was made at the dinner at the Hotel Astor before seven hundred guests, to all of whom the honoring of Mr. Carnegie came as a surprise. In announcing the action of his Government, the Baron praised Mr. Carnegie highly for his interest and energy in behalf of the peace movement, and said that he had not alone proved to be a good citizen of this country, but was a good citizen of the whole world.

The resolutions which were passed at the morning conference, and which epitomized the work of the congress, included recommendations for international peace and international law generally; for the permanency of The Hague Court, to be open to all nations; the adoption of a general arbitration treaty and the invocation of an investigating committee before a resort to arms; the establishing of the neutrality of personal property at sea, and the limitation of armaments. Resolutions praising President Roosevelt, Elihu Root and Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman were also adopted.

In his interview Mr. Carnegie, discussing the accomplishments of the congress, said:

"Our Peace Conference has brought three objections clearly before us:

"First—Nations cannot submit all questions to arbitration. Answer. Six of them have recently done so by treaty—Denmark and the Netherlands, Chile and Argentina, Norway and Sweden. So much for the claim that nations cannot submit all questions. They have done it.

"Second—Justice is higher than peace.—Answer. The first principle of natural justice forbids men to be judges when they are parties to the issue. All law rests upon this throughout the civilized world. Were a judge known to sit upon a case in which he was secretly interested he would be dishonored and expelled from his high office.

"If an individual refused to submit his dispute with a neighbor to disinterested parties (arbiters or judges) and insisted upon being his own judge, he would violate the first principles of justice. If he resorted to force in defense of his right to judge, he would be dishonored as a breaker of the law. Thus peace with justice is secured through arbitration, either by court or by tribunal, never by one of the parties sitting as judge in his own cause.

"Nations being only aggregates of individuals, they will not reach justice in their judgments until the same rule holds good, viz.: That they, like individuals, shall not sit as judges in their own causes. What is unjust for individuals is unjust for Nations. Justice is justice, unchangeable, and should hold universal sway over all men and over all nations.

"Third—It is neither peace nor justice, but righteousness, that exalteth a nation. Answer—Righteousness is simply doing what is right. What is just is always right; what is unjust always wrong. It being the first principle of justice that men shall not be judges in their own causes, to refuse to submit to judge or arbitrator is unjust, hence not right, for the essence of righteousness is justice. Therefore, men who place justice or righteousness above peace practically proclaim, as it appears to me, that they will commit injustice and discard righteousness by constituting themselves sole judges of their own cause in violation of law, justice, and right.

"Civilized man has reached the conclusion that he meets the claims of justice and of right only by upholding the present reign of law. Our pressing duty is to extend its benignant reign to combinations of men called nations. What is right for each individual must be right for the nation. This union of law and justice, insuring 'Peace and good-will among men,' through disinterested tribunals, is 'righteousness which exalteth a nation.' The demand that interested parties shall sit in judgment is the 'wickedness that degrades a nation.'"

The last day of the conference was comparatively harmonious, though at the morning session there was some dissension and one interruption of a speaker which caused astonishment. It was at this session that the resolutions embodying the sentiment of the congress were read and passed unanimously.

FRANCE HONORS CARNEGIE.

The great peace dinner at the Hotel Astor last night, which marked the end of the Congress, reached its climax when Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, the distinguished Frenchman who leads the delegation from that country, bestowed upon Andrew Carnegie the Order of the Legion of Honor as a "good citizen of the world." The seven hundred guests who thronged the ballroom and the rooms adjoining almost to suffocation, rose and cheered the host and the foreign guests to the echo, and then cheered again as Mr. Carnegie, when he had recovered his composure, returned thanks for the decoration.

But if Baron d'Estournelles paid tribute to Mr. Carnegie in bestowing the insignia of the Legion, he paid no less tribute to the venerable Dr. Edward Everett Hale, who had just preceded him on the speaker's dais. It was Dr. Hale to whom the warmest welcome had been given of all the notables of the evening, and he talked not of peace, but of justice, which he deemed the necessary forerunner of peace between the Nations. "The Grand Old Man of America" was the title by which Dr. Hale had been introduced. He began in a voice that resounded through all the halls where the diners sat.

"'The old man has lived long enough to hold his tongue on occasion. I don't propose to say one word about peace," Dr. Hale continued. "I propose to say my word about justice. Give us justice, and peace will follow. When you meet a lady on the train going home and she tells you that her grandfather fought at Bunker Hill, thank her, not because her grandfather fought for peace, but for justice. And when they tell you about the difficulties which are in the way of uniting forty or fifty nations in an international agreement, say that these are not to be compared with the difficulty of uniting the thirteen seaboard States of America in 1787. We must not forget that the first International Peace Society in the world was organized in 1780, and what was the first peace society in the world is now the greatest."

The Supreme Court and the Union.

Dr. Hale dwelt upon the part that the Supreme Court of the United States has played in contributing to the stability of the Union, and drew the parallel between such a tribunal of justice and The Hague tribunal, concluding with the words: "Believe me, gentlemen and ladies, it is the last word that I will say. Peace follows justice, peace follows justice."

Baron d'Estournelles, who had been at the Waldorf dinner earlier in the evening, had entered the room while Dr. Hale was speaking, and he was immediately presented.

"It is," he said, "a fine sight to see in your country an old man speaking of the future. I thought yesterday that I had seen all I could in that great gathering of children brought together in the name of peace. But now I have seen more, for I see that there is no difference between generation and generation. I see the agreemnt of youth and age that the principle of eternal justice shall be substituted for the horrors of war."

The speaker then turned toward Mr. Carnegie.

"It is not enough for a man to be a good citizen in his own country," he said. "Here is a man who has been a good citizen of the world Government.

"Mr. Carnegie"—and the Baron's voice trembled as he spoke—"let me say, my dear friend, that I am the bearer of good news. Let me attach to you, my dear friend, this ribbon, and let mo consider that you are now a citizen of America and of France, a citizen of the world, because you have done for it such good work."

As he spoke the Baron placed about Mr. Carnegie's neck the broad red ribbon, from which hung the star. The ironmaster trembled and it was a moment or two before he could recover sufficiently to reopond.

"This great honor," began Mr. Carnegie, and then he had to stop to let a round of applause subside. "This honor is as surprising as it is overwhelming. None knows as well as I that it is not deserved for anything that I have done. But if a heart that keeps on enlarging as I grow older and embracing more and more of the earth's surface and more of its people, merits the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, it will be because every year of my life will lead to a nigher and bigher view of the humanity and a brighter view of the future.

"That this honor comes from France makes it doubly receptable, for I know what France did for this country when this country needed a friend. I love France for her idealism, I love her because she le a friend of my country and always a friend of my native land. None knows so well as I how little I deserve this honor, an honor so great that it does not exault, but humbles by comparison the achievements for which it is given.

"It will be another bond binding me to live my life so that France, which hae bestowed it upon me, mny never have occasion to regret that ehe has placed me within that circle of faithful servants of mankind."

Ambassador James Bryce in his speech had a good deal to say about the responsibility of the newspapers for wars and international trouble in general. He narrated how they reported back and forth across the border or across the ocean every spiteful thing said on either side that tended to stir up passion, and omitted everything tending to mitigate passion. Yet the Ambassador did not blame the newspapers.

"They want to please the public," he said. "They believe that the people like to have their passions aroused. The press is what the public makes it. Every nation has just such newspapers as it deserves. The blame after all rests upon the people themselves, who lose their heads with excitement. They can resist anything but temptation."

To Reduce "Fever Fits."

Mr. Bryce suggested as a means to reduce the "fever fits" a general reduction of the armaments of the world and the enlargement of the general arbitration treaties, which he valued not only for the actual results accomplished, but because the fact of arbitration brings to bear upon the questions involved the attention of the whole world. Lastly, Mr. Bryce hoped that the conference would bring home to every citizen a sense of his own responsibility for the removal of "this oldest evil of humanity."

When President Charles W. Eliot of Hervard was called upon late in the evening he declared that he wanted to supplement the idea that Mr. Bryce had offered by way of suggesting concrete steps to be taken in the interest of peace.

"One common cause of war," said Dr. Eliot, "is, of course, ignorance of one people about the characteristics and purposo of another. I believe that one of the next things to be done is to increase the amount of international publicity, to increase the knowledge of the nations about each other and their mutual intercourse."

President Eliot suggested an international publicity bureau, for the organization of which, he said, the press associations and newspapers had paved the way. He believed that it should have in every capital and every large port a corps of experts to carry on its work.

"And," he said, "if the nations will not finance it I think I could suggest four or five rich men who could do it without National aid of any sort. I will not need to name them, more than to say that they are Americans, who could perform this great service for mankind."

Another suggestion that Dr. Eliot had to offer was the establishment of an international police force to back up the decisions of The Hague Tribunal. He found a precedent in the expedition to Pekin, nor did he find it incompatible with the idea of peace, for he believed that the police power must be exercised for many a century to come, just as it was suggested in the translation which he placed on the message of Bethlehem —"Peace on earth to men of good will."

President Eliot thought that the enforced neutrality of the Suez Canal and of the Panama Canal ehowed the way for declaring the great waterways of commerce neutral, and backing such a peaceful declaration by an international naval police force. In conclusion he said:

"There is one sentiment which especially causes war. That is what is falsely termed sometimes 'National honor.' We havo heard of the great progress that has been made by international arbitration; yet we hear of international disputes that cannot be adjusted without war because of 'National honor.' It is said that the honor of a nation is violated whenever its flag, once raised, is hauled down. Yet we hauled down our flag in Cuba, and never was a more honorable thing done by the United States.

"If there is no other outcome of this Peace Congress than that we offer to the world a new definition of 'National honor,' it would be enough."

William J. Bryan, who had spoken earlier at the Waldorf, arrived at the Astor dinner very late in the evening and received a rather cold reception. There wns little applause when he entered the room, and that which groeted him when he rose to speak did not compare with the tribute paid Dr. Hale and several of the other speakers.

Mr. Bryan's Remarks.

Mr. Bryan discussed the protection in peace nnd not in the preparation for war that should be sought by the United States. In opening his speech he referred to the "diplomats, politicians, agriculturists, and others" who had already addressed the guests, and then declared that he could not come before them as any of these. "I cannot appear as a diplomat," he said, "because I have not been diplomatic at times. I cannot appear as a politician, because I cannot be referred to by any other title than the permanent 'ex.'"

Continuing, Mr. Bryan said in part:

"The best way in which this Nation can protect itself is to make the people of other countries acquainted with our ideals, our customs, and our people.

"If we spent 10 per cent. of the money that is not used in the preparation for war in establishing colleges to which we could invite the youth of the world, we could accomplish much along this line. When they had become acquainted with the ideals of this nation, we could send them back home. Thus we would obtain more protection than by all the Dreadnoughts in the world."

The other epenkers at the dinner were Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada; Don Enrique Creel, Ambassador of Mexico to the United States, and Samuel Gompers.

Earl Grey spoke of the industrial arbitration law that had been recently passed by the Canadian Parliament, and under which there have been threo important arbitrations in a month. Then he said:

"Now why should we not apply to international disputes the principle of this Canadian act which forbids men to draw the sword until after a round table conference has taken place? Let the legislatures of the world who wish to promote peace decree that it shall be illegal to furnish a war loan to any Nation who begins hostilities without first coming to the round table of The Hague Tribunal."

BRYAN AT PEACE DINNER.

With a large chorus singing a peace festival hymn nnd waving flags of all nations, 500 of the delegates to the Peace Congress and their friends filed into the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night and sat down to the dinner that had been provided when it was found that there was no hotel in the city large enough to necommodate all the peace workers, and the Hotel Astor banquet hall rromised to be more thnn filled.

There were men and women from all over the country who took their seats at tables bearing the names of the vnrious States from which they came. There were also foreign notables who sit at tables marked with the names of nearly all the lands on the face of the globe. At the end of the hall, before which the epeakers stood in turn, there being no guest table, were two large American flags, and about them flags and coats of arms of many nations.

During the dinner an orchestra rendered National anthems, and the guests focused their attention on a table near the end of the hall where sat Yang Yu Wei of the Mikado's realm, dressed in native costume and accompanied by his daughter, whom he has just brought back from Paris. Mr. Yang was not a delegate to the congress, but his presence was nevertheless welcome.

Ex-Mayor Seth Low acted as toastmaster and began the speaking by congratulating himself on the fact that although there might have been "smacks" at the various sessions of the congress, it was highly probable that after a good dinner every one would be in a peaceful frame of mind. If dissensions arose between the epeakers and the Chairman, he said, they would be sent to The Hague Tribunal; if among the speakers themselves, they would be allowed to fight it out. He then introduced Baron d'Estournelles de Constant.

The Baron said he felt somewhat like Daniel in the lion's den. He said that when the King chided Daniel and remarked that he seemed glad to be in his dangeroue position, and that the lions would doubtless make a good dinner of him, Daniel replied:

"Yes, oh, King, but I smile because there will be no speeches at this dinner."

Continuing the Baron dwelt at length on the great hope and satisfaction that the sight of the children in Carnegie Hall on the day previous had given him. He said he could go back to France now and eay to the old people that he did not care whether they believed in him or not; the children were with him. Then he praised Andrew Carnegie, and made an announcement similar to that made by him at the Hotel Astor, that Mr. Carnegie was to be decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. When he concluded and started for the Astor the diners rose and applauded him until he was out of sight.

The nevt speaker was Prof. Kuno Francke, who told of the progress of Germany and of how much the other nations had had to do with it. The happy relations between Germany, France, and England, he said, were a great blessing, and it seemed impossible that they should ever be broken.

Mr. Low next introduced William Jennings Bryan, who received an enthusiastic welcome. Mr. Bryan spoke in part as follows:

"This Peace Congress hae served at least one purpose; it has shown that the nations that keep large armies, supposedly for protection against each other, are after all quite good friends when you bring them together. A good effect must come from the way in which these gentlemen who have visited us here have slyly admitted to esch other that they really have a deep feeling for each other.

"The world is appreciating more and more the valuo of a human life, and is beginning to dread the wasto of human life in war. The burden of proof that war is necessary to advancement is on the advocates of war. Who will dare to put an estimate on the value of ever one human life? If we would measure the value of the lives lost on battle fields, or in camps, let us estimate the measure of affection we have for our own children and then multiply that by the number that have been killed. Before a child is old enough to talk it has awakened in nne heart the responsibility of womanhood, nnd in another breast the new strength of fatherhood, and it has brought these two hearts nearer together. Who shall measure the value of such a life?

"Tell me that liberty is of greater value than life, but why take the alternative of life or liberty, give me life and liberty?"

Mr. Bryan went on to say that bloodletting was not necessary for human progress, otherwise wars should occur regularly. He concluded:

"War is not necessary, and I could not worship my God with the zeal I do if I thought that he intended to make my advancement dependent on my taking my brother's life. I prefer to build society on the doctrine of human brotherhood rather than on the doctrine of hatred and ill-will."

The speaker was vigorously applauded when he concluded. He stopped on his way out of the room and shook hands with the chinese representative.

Archbishop Ireland spoke next, and told the peace workers that Jesus Christ was the first great peacemaker, and that ever since His coming peace had shone in the world and had increased.

John Bassett Moore told of the progress of arbitration in this country, nnd said that the various arbitral courts had cost more than a permanent court would have.

Mr. Moore pointed out that for many years progress had been made in arbitration, and he mentioned the many conferences and congresses that had been held in various countries at which new matters had been brought within the scope of arbitration. He said that he had recently looked up the matter and had found that since the Constitution of the United States was drawn this country had been party to more than sixty arbitrations. These, he said, occupied 125 years, a period much longer than the life of the country, because in some cases there were two or three different arbitral tribunals in session at once.

As an answer to the argument that a permanent arbitration court would be too costly, he said that he had no doubt whatever that the cost of the various arbitrations carried on in this country exceeded what it would have cost to maintain a permanent court. Tho variety of matters that hnd been arbitrnted by the courts here, he said, was very large, and covered almost every conceivable matter of difference between nations. He related one or two particular instances, and said that it was true that nothing had been henrd of some of the cases afterward, simply because the mnttere had been so quietly settled that no one knew of the settlement.

Speaking of tho Alabama claims, Prof. Moore spoke of Hamilton Fisb and praised him highly, saying that no Peace Congress should fail to recognize his signal services. He said, too, that an announcement he had read recently that comparatively few of the decisions of the arbitration court were regarded by the nations interested was entirely misleading, because the instances in which the decision had been disregarded were ones in which new information had come to light after the court's decision and an amicable settlement had been reached by the interested nations between themselves.

At the conclusion of his speech Prof. Moore was vigorously applauded and comment was made on the fnct that it constituted one of the strongest arguments that had been advanced in behalf of international and general arbitration.

Sir Robert Cranston also spoke, taking the place of Ambassador Bryce, who found it impossible to visit both dinners.

PEACE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Conference Closed After a Day of Comparative Harmony.

The Peace Congress proper came to an end with the meeting at Carnegie Hall yesterday morning with the adoption of resolutions declaring for international peace and for international law; the making of The Hague Court, to be open to all the world; it nrged the adoption of a general arbitration treaty, and the invocation of an investigating commission before a resort to arms; it suggested the establishing of the neutrality nf personal property at sea, and the limitation of armaments, and passed additional resolutions commending the work in the intereste of peace of President Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Secretary of State, and the British Prime Minister, Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

All this was not accomplished without discord, but it was finally accomplished. The resolutions, each of which was preceded by the usual "whereas," were as follows:

The Resolutions Adopted.

Resolved, by the National Arbitration and Peace Congress held in New York City, April 14 to 17, 1907, composed of delegates from thirty-five States, that the Government of the United States be requested, through its representatives to the second Hague Conference, to urge upon that body the formation of a more permanent and more comprehensive international union for the roguler purpose of insuring the efficient co-operation of the nations in the development and application of international law and the maintenance of the peace of the world;

Resolved, That to this end it is the judgment of this congress that the Governments should provide that The Hague Conference shall hereafter be a permanent institution, with representatives from all the nations meeting periodically for the regular and systematic consideration of the international problems constantly arising in the intercourse of the nations, and that we invite our Government to instruct its delegatee to the coming conference to secure, if possible, action in this direction;

Resolved, That as a logical sequence of the first Hague Conference The Hague Court should be open to all the nations of the world;

Resolved, That a general treaty of arbitration for ratification by all the nations should be drafted by the coming conference, providing for the reference to The Hague Court of international disputes which may hereafter arise which cannot be adjusted by diplomacy;

Resolved, That the congress records its indorsement of the resolution adopted by the Interparliamentary Union at its conference last July, that in case of disputes arising between nations which it may not be possible to embrace within the terms of an arbitration convention, the disputing parties before resorting to force shall always invoke the services of an international commission of inquiry, or the mediation of one or more friendly powers;

Resolved, That our Government be requested to urge upon the coming Hague Conference the adoption of the proposition, long advocated by our country, to extend to private property at sea the same immunity from capture in war as now shelters private property on land;

Resolved, That the time has arrived for decided action toward the limitation of the burdens of armaments, which have enormously increased since 1899, and the Government of the United States is respectfully requested and urged to instruct its delegates to the coming Hague Conference to support with the full weight of our National influence the proposition of the British Government, as announced by the Prime Minister, to have, if possible, the subject of armaments considered by the conference.

George Foster Peabody presided at the conference in the morning, and the Committee on Resolutions, consisting of Richard Bartholdt, Samuel B. Capen, Andrew Carnegie, Judge George Gray, Judge C. Holt, John Bassett Moore, and Daniel Smiley, and presided over by Dr. Benjamin Trueblood, had held a meeting previously and framed the foregoing resolutions. Everything went smoothly for some time, in the course of which Mr. Bartholdt made a speech, nnd a suggestion that the resolutions be presented to the President, Mr. Root, and the delegatee to The Hague by a special committee was adopted. Thomas Nelson Page suggested that a committee of fifteen be appointed to keep up the good work and not let it die.

Rabbi Levy Interrupted.

Then Rabbi Levy began to speak, and his enthusiasm led him to diverge from the point and utter some ideas of his own on peace. In the heighb of his eloquence Dr. Levy was interrupted by Dr. Richard, who shouted loudly:

"Will the gentleman pleaso speak to the point? We have heard sufficient argument in favor of peace, and we have very little time left."

Dr. Levy was dumbfounded. He turned to the audience and asked whether he should go on. He was told to proceed, amid applnuse, and thereupon had something to say about the "sneers of the interrupter" and the inconsideration some people showed. At the conclusion of his speech Dr. Richard went after him and shook hands with him, and thus was peace brought about once more.

Mre. D. A. Lockwood of Washington, after trying for some time to get the attention of the Chair, started to speak toward the platform, and was told to turn around. She had previously asked: "Are no delegates but those on the platform to be allowed to epeak to the resolutions?" and then ehe added:

"I must turn my back on the audience or on the platform. Those on the platform seem to have had it nll their own way so far, and I much prefer to face the common people."

Mrs. Lockwood wanted included in the resolutions a petition for a general and gradual reduction of armament. Judge Murphy of Buffalo offered a resolution to the effect that neutral nations should be allowed to support the nation of the two at war supposed to be in the right, and there were many other resolutions along similar lines which were received and may be considered later by the committee. The meeting wound up with a speech by Dr. Mead of Boston, and thereafter the resolutions were put through without a dissenting voice.

BRYAN TO THE PEACE MAKERS.

Tells Afternoon Session the Conference Will Carry Weight.

The afternoon session, as well attended as any of the others, though it was to discuss the apparently dry subject of "The Legislative and Judicial Aspects of the Peace Movement," was one of perfect harmony and accord and remarkable in the reception vouchsafed to William Jennings Bryan, who was the last speaker to address a regular session of the congress.

Mr. Bryan was preceded by Richard Bartholdt, who concluded his address by putting the international peace proposition squarely up to the President. He said:

"I hold that we cannot take a backward step now end disappoint the world by failing to make the next great Council of Nations produce results proportional to the possibilities of this hour and to the rightful place of the United States in the politics of the world. On the contrary, I believe I voice the sentiment of this congress when I repeat what I said in a letter to President Roosevelt: That the prestige which he has obtained throughout the world by his successful intervention in the war between Russia and Japan, and by other acts in bringing The Hague Court into operation, points to him as the Chief Executive who should lead in espousing these great reforms for the benefit of mankind, and thus achieve more glory in one day than could be gained on a dozen battlefields in a hundred years."

Mr. Bryan said that while the congress was unofficial, its actions had none the less weight, and that no one should be surprised to find that realities seldom came up to ideals. The point was that progress was being made. It had been said that Germany was a menace to the peace of the world, but it transpired that the so-called war lord was a strong advocate of peace, and the same might be said of King Edward. This country increased its army and enlarged its navy, but its ruler was found to be one of the greatest of peacemakers, and the country was foremost as an advocate of world peace.

"We live in the ideal, but we work in the real," continued Mr. Bryan. "We need not be surprised if our nation makes proposals that are not acceptable to other nations. Having taken one step we must stand there until we are able to take another step. Thus all progress is made. You can't expect all the people of the world to think alike, if they think at all."

Continuing, he said that he believed that money should be made contraband of war and that it should be made impossible for "the financiers of one nation to profit enormously by encouraging war by another nation." He declared that there was no valid reason why all international disputes should not be submitted to arbitration, and that it would be found that all nations would accept the rulings of the court. It was important, also, that there should be deliberation, as man calm was a very different animal from man excited, the one thinking and saying what he could do and the other thinking what he ought to do.

Mr. Bryan finished with a story of his visit to the tomb nf Napoleon, where he saw the great conqueror, perhaps the greatest of all warriors, lying beneath a crucifix, at the foot of the "Prince of Peace."

When Mr. Bryan concluded, there was tremendous npplause. He had been greeted with an nvation and frequently interrupted with applause, and the enthusiasm with which his peroration was greeted was remarkable.

Other speakers at the meeting were ex-Secretary of Stato, John W. Foster, Judge William W. Morrow of San Francisco, and Senor Diego Mendoza, who declared that the aspiration of the great South American, Bolivar, had been realized. At the beginning of the session, over which Seth Low presided, Capt. Hobson and Mrs. Helen Beach Tillottson of the Daughters of the Revolution, presented Mr. Carnegie with a large white bordered American "peace" flag and a set of appropriate resolutions.

MRS. EDDY FOR PEACE.

Head of Christian Science Church Writes to Hayne Davis.

Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christinn Science cult, believes that international conelliation is of paramount importance. The following letter from her to Hayne Davis, the American Secretary of the International Conciliation Committee, was made public yesterday by Mr. Davis:

"Pleasant View, Concord, N. H.,
"April 3, 1907.

"Mr. Hayne Davis, American Secretary, International Conciliation Committee.

"Dear Mr. Davis:—Deeply do I thank you for the interest you manifest in the success of the Association for International Conciliation. It is of paramount importance to every son and daughter of all nations under the sunlight of the law and Gospel. May God guide and prosper ever this good endeavor. Most truly yours, MARY B. G. EDDY."

ITALY GIVES UP PEACE PLAN.

France Doesn't Expect Much from a Discussion of Armaments.

PARIS, April 17.—An announcement of the withdrawal of Italy's compromise proposition in the matter of a discussion of the limitation of armaments at The Hague Peace Conference owing to Austria's and Germany's decided attitude in opposition to it was made public here today.

It does not greatly affect France's position relative to the limitation of armaments. Authoritative circles declare that France, as a matter of principle, regards favorably all efforts to advance the idea, but is of the opinion that its discussion at the approaching Peace Conference is not likely to assume concrete shape.

BERLIN, April 17.—Germany's delegation at The Hague Peace Conference will be:

Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, Ambassador to Turkey.

Privy Councillor Kriege, the German permanent member of The Hague Arbitration Court.

Prof. Zorn, Professor of Law at Bonn University, who as a delegate to the first conference at The Hague accompanied the late F. W. Holls of New York, one of the American delegates, to Berlin, with the object of persuading Emperor William to make concessions, which rendered possible the organization of the Arbitration Court.

Major Gen. von Guendell of the General Staff will be Military Adviser.

Rear Admiral Siegel, now Naval Attaché at Paris, will be Naval Adviser.

Branch of Peace Union in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, April 17.—A branch of the Inter-Parliamentary Peace Union was organized here to-day, and a telegram will be sent to Earl Grey in New York notifying him of the fact.

MORE HONORS FOR CARNEGIE.

To Be Perpetuated in Bronze in Brooklyn Public Libraries.

More honors are to be heaped upon Andrew Carnegie. The Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Public Library are planning to immortalize him in bronze. A bas relief in bronze of Mr. Carnegie is to be put in each of the twenty-six public libraries in Brooklyn.

BRYAN HAD NOBODY IN MIND.

He Says, When He Talked of Driving Out a Self-Called Democrat.

Because nf the discussion aroused by his speech at the dinner of the Brooklyn Democratis Club on Tuesday night, William Jennings Bryan was asked yesterday to give, as well as he could remember it, the exact wording of that part of his speech referring to the attitude of Democrats toward the question of whether or not the people should govern themselves.

Mr. Bryan's own version of what he said, which differs slightly from all the printed reports of it, was:

"The right of the people to govern themselves is the fundamental Democratic doctrine. We may differ about other questions, but if there is a man calling himself a Democrat who does not believe in the right of the people to govern themselves, I shall drive him out of the Democratic Party if I can, and I may add that if the Democratic Party does not believe in the right of the people to govern themselves it will have no difficulty in driving me out of the party.

Many people at the dinner professed to believe that the speaker was hitting at Thomas F. Ryan. Mr. Bryan denied this yesterday and said that he had no particular man in mind when he made his speech, but was simply enunciating a fundamental doctrine of his party.

CHARGE FRAUD IN LAND DEAL.

Suit Brought Against F. D. Turner and Other Real Estate Men.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 17.—John A. Middleton and Thomas N. Jarvis have brought suit here in the Supreme Court against Frank D. Turner, the Hillair Realty Company, Charles H. Munch, and Frank D. Turner, Jr., charging them with fraud and false representations. Mr. Turner is a well-to-do real estate dealer.

The plaintiffs, Middleton and Jarvis, in their complaint allege that on Nov. 19, 1906, Frank D. Turner represented to them that he knew of certain real estate located near Croton Lake, in the towns of Yorktown and New Castle, in Westchester County, consisting of 198 acres, on which he had a purchase option at $350 per acre, and that if bought at that price it would prove a good investment. Two days before this Turner showed them the property and told them at that time that his option might expire on that date, and that unless the land was purchased on that day the owners probably would refuse to sell the land at $350 per acre.

Turner and the plaintiffs bought the property as a joint enterprise. Middleton was to contribute $15,000, Jarvis to contribute $10,000, and Turner the balance of $37,300. A corporation was to be capitalized at $62,300 of $100 shares, par value, the stock to be issued proportionately to Turner, Middleton, and Jarvis. On Nov. 19, it is asserted, Middleton and Jarvis paid $8,115 each on account of the land, and on Dec. 12 Turner purchased the land and transferred it to the corporation.

The plaintiffs assert that Turner did not pay $350 per acre for the property, and that he did not have an option on the property. They allege that Turner owned the property at the time he made the agreement with the plaintiffs. They also set up that the property was worth only $150 an acre, and that in October Turner offered to sell the land for $30,000.

An injunction was asked restraining Turner from transferring any shares on the books of the company, pending the trial of the action.

FELL TWO STORIES AT FIRE.

Lieut. Whitby, Who May Die of Injuries, Rescued by Salvage Corps.

Lieut. Frnnk Whitby of Engine Company 108 fell from the third to the first floor of a burning building at 137 Furman Street, Brooklyn, last night at 10 o'clock. The fall through an open hatchway rendered him unconscious, injured him internally, and probably fractured his skull. Four members of the Insurance Salvage Corps rescued him from the burning building. He was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital and may die.

The fire was in a four-story brick building used by the Foster Pump Works for a storehouse. Whitby went up to the third floor to investigate.

When he was missed by Deputy Chief Lally four men under Lieut. Lloyd of Truck Company 68 were ordered to go in search of him. The building was aflame throughout by this time. As the four were preparing for the search four men nf the Salvage Corps under Lieut. Ray came staggering out of the burning building with the unconscious Whitby. The four rescuers immediately succumbed from the smoke through which they had groped their way. Ambulance Surgeon Tousey revived them.

Whitby had fallen through an open hatchway to the first floor, landing in a pool of water. The salvage men had stumbled across him in trying to get out. The building was gutted with a loss of $20,000.

LEXOW WITNESS BARRED.

Returning Here from France, She Is Ordered to Leave in 48 Hours.

Released on parole to enable her to sell some real estate in this city, Mrs. Louise Smith has given her promise that she will sail on the French liner La Savole today for France never to return. Mrs. Smith, under the name of Mme. Herrman, was a witness before the Lexow Committee in 1894. The committee wanted to know what causes led to her great prosperity. After the investigation she sailed for France.

She never acquired citizenship here, and as she is now the wife of a Frenchman, there was no doubt in the minds of the immigration officials as to her right to enter this country. Last week she came in as a first cabin passenger on the French liner La Savole. The Inspectors recognized her, and concluded that she was not a proper person to enter the country. She was taken to Ellis Island and to Commiesioner Watchorn she explained that she did not come here to live, but to dispose of some property she owned in West Third Street.

Commissioner Watchorn investigated and found that the woman's story was true, and he accordingly paroled her for forty-eight hours in the custody of the French Line, and on her pledge that she will sail to-day and never come back.

STEAD ADDRESSES SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

Tells Women Men Should Tell Them of Their Faults and Let Them Vote.

FALSE CHIVALRY HERE

Wives Are Without Proper Discipline, He Says—Never Speaks at Meetings Where Women Are Barred.

A large gathering of women met in the big drawing room of the new Colony Club yesterday afternoon at a benefit reception given by the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League for its Colorado research fund.

The league is a new organization of young college women, which aime to take up equal suffrage work practically. It has employed an expert statistician to investigate universal suffrage conditions in Colorado. This is Miss Helen Sumner, who has been told to report conditions exactly as they are, favorable or unfavorable. W. T. Stead was invited to tell the collegians end their friends what he thought of woman suffrage. Mr. Stead thought favnrably of it, and said so with much vehemence. He was heartily applauded.

Mr. Stead's Address.

"I am glad to see the three gentlemen here," said Mr. Stead in opening his address, "for since the Lord has seen fit to put boys and girls in the same family I have never believed they should be separated in any way. I have never belonged to any club to which women were not admitted or addressed a meeting where women were excluded. I wou'dn't go to luncheon—I really wanted to to-day—because women were not invited. A few years ago, just before I went to jail—"

"Just before I went to jail," he continued, "I was to speak at a meeting, and in the announcement that was sent me I read: "'W. T. Stead will speak to a meeting of men only.'

"'No, I will not,' I sent word back. There will be ono man who will not be there if women are not admitted.' So when I reached the place I saw the public notices of the meeting. 'For men only, but women are invited to attend.' At another time they sent me word that I was to speak at a meeting of a men's organization, and they couldn't possibly let women in becauee the men had taken all the seats.

"There will be room for one woman,' I wrote back. 'She can have my place,' and I don't know what they did about it, for I didn't go.

"America," said Mr. Stead, getting down to the suffrage question, "in some things is taking a back seat in the world. You have the reputation of being very democratic, but as a matter of fact you are very conservative."

"Hear! Hear!" called a woman's voice.

"They say that women here are greatly respected by men, and I used to think that this was a paradise for women and that their opinion counted ae much as men's. It was a great awakening when I came over here fourteen years ago. It may be all true enough, for the women in the homes and the American wives are spoiled and don't have the discipline that every human being requires. But in the city, State, and National life women are not considered as human beings. In politics the best half of American life does not count for 1 per cent.

"There are two nations here, and the half which reads books and thinks wears petticoats and the half which never reads anything but the newspapers wears trousers. Anything that serves to separate men and women and prevent one from having the advice and help of the other is bad.

Male Organizations Bad.

"Male clubs, male legislatures, male barracks, are bad; they need humanizing. Any organization from which one sex is barred is inhuman, anti-social, and dangerous. I speak particularly of the male organizations, because there are so many things that the men can bar you from, and so few from which you can bar them.

"There is a true and false chivalry. The false kind is smiling and polite to a woman because she is a woman, but it is not good for you; it is distinctly bad. For instance, a pretty and attractive woman comes in to the drawing room and says, 'What do you think? I have been having examinations in mathematics, and I have discovered that by adding the figures sideways 2 and 2 make 5.'

"'Dear me, what a discovery,' the men will say. 'And to think that it should have been left to you to find it out.' Then she goes out to repeat the same thing and the men say, 'What a fool she is!' Instead of telling you that you are fools and idiots they let you go out to continue to make fools and idiots of yourselves. How do our boys get sense knocked into them? Everywhere they go they are told very forcibly when they make mistakes. I don't think a man is my friends when he doesn't tell me when I am wrong. I got into a horrible row in a Chicago club telling some plain truths, but I hope I shan't here.

"Men say they don't want women in the dirty work of politics. In England the women do what I think is the very worst kind of political work, making a house-to-house canvass. It is a very important part of the campaign, and the man who does not have it is likely not to be elected, and yet women can do all that, but when it comes to putting their names on a ballot they can't do it.

"And why shouldn't a woman hold any office for which she is fit? Whatever she can do, even to being a good policeman, why shouldn't she do it? You may be miserably inefficient, but however sentimental, weak, and emotional you may be, that is no reason for handicapping you for life. Why should we be afraid of your competition? We have had for a long time all the advantageous places, and then we ask why you don't equal us.

The Suffragette Movement.

"The suffragette movement in England is not one of revolt against men who don't believe in woman suffrage, but those who have promised and won't do. The Liberal Cabinet is divided on the question, and when a party is split it is worse than an earthquake or the day of judgment. In all movements there is a time to get mad, though it is a delicate question when that time is. Never get mad when you can get more some other way. When the M. P.'s have to be guarded by 1,000 policemen to protect them against a handful of women who never strike, but press forward then they have learned that the suffragists are in earnest."

The Rev. Anna Howard Shaw made an address. Miss Caroline Lexow, President of the league, received the guests with Miss M. Cary Thomas of Bryn Mawr, Mrs. Simon Flexner, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Stanton Blatch, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Miller, Miss Annette Finnigan, Miss Helen Hoy, Dr. S. Josephine Baker, Mrs. W. H. Fain, Mrs. Helena Fischer, and Mrs. Charles Edward Knoblauch. Refreshments were served.

DENIES CHARGES OF GRAFT.

P. Jones Says He Doesn't See How Coal for the Schools Could Be Stolen.

Patrick F. Jones, Superintendent of Supplies of the Board of Education, was asked yesterday about the charges of graft in the matter of supplies to the Board of Eduoation made by Senator Gilchrist before the Senate Finance Committeo at Albany.

He said, regarding the charge that coal was being diverted to private uses, that he could not see under the present system of inspection how coal could be taken to private houses without detection. They had four Inspectors in Manhattan and the Bronx, three in Brooklyn, and one each in Queens and Richmond, he said, from whom he had received 401 reports since May, 1906, and in them there was no intimation of graft.

As for the charge that New York pays more for its books than other States, he said, according to the rules of the Board of Education, it might be true that some other States paid less for their books, but they must be an inferior grade of book. The department obtained its books at from 20 to 30 per cent. less than they could be bought in the open market.

SAYS CITY BROKE CONTRACT.

Ryan-Parker Co. Wants Storage Yard —Metz's Offer of a Site Declined.

Controller Metz and ex-Controller Grout had a little spat at the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday. Mr. Grout, representing the Ryan-Parker Construction Company, which is building the Manhattan Bridge, contended that the city had contracted to give the company a storage place for the steel used in the work, and had not done so.

There is no suitable place in New York for such a storage plant, so the Bridge Commissioner recommended that two and three-quarter acres owned by Terry & Tench in Bayonne be leased. The owners wanted $25,000 for the site.

Controller Metz objected. He said he understood the company would make $100,000 through the lease. Mr. Grout declared the city was repudiating a contract, "an unconscionable act." Mr. Metz offered a yard at Ninety-sixth Street, but Mr. Grout scoffed at it. A committee will try to compromise the matter.

SAYS LICENSE ELEVATOR MEN.

Attorney Dunphy Is Going to See the Aldermen About It.

Thomas P. Dunphy, an attorney of 170 Broadway, intends to appear before the Aldermen next Tuesday on the introduction of Alderman "Little Tim" Sullivan, and bring before the Board a proposal for an ordinance for the better regulation of elevators in office buildings. He wants a special commission appointed under the Building Department to consider the qualifications of elevator operators and to license them.

"At present," said Mr. Dunphy yesterday, "the elevators are under the supervision of the Building Department, but it is not strict or direct enough. If we had a special commission, the public safety would be far better secured."

Sheriffs' Arrest Follows Lynching.

MARKSVILLE, La., April 17.—Charged with manslaughter for alleged carelessness in allowing a negro, Charley Strauss, to be lynched yesterday, Deputy Sheriffs J. E. Keegan and J. J. Salmon were today arrested and placed under $700 bond each. Strauss was hanged to a tree in the woods near Eola, La., where a crowd of masked men met the deputies as the latter were escorting the negro to jail.

MACHINE BLOCKED ON 5-C. FARE BILL

Wadsworth and Moreland Made Believe Governor Wanted It Recommitted.

HUGHES DENIES REPORT

Democratic Line-Up Wins Republican Votes—Advanced to Third Reading.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—On the plea that the Governor had demanded it, Speaker Wadsworth and Majority Leader Moreland tried to-day to have the Wagner Coney Island Five-cent Fare bill bill recommitted to the Railroads Committee, which had just reported the measure out. The integrity of the House machine, which has been such a power at the present session, went to smash, temporarily, over the proposition. Republicans broke away from their leaders, and, joining with the Democrats in the House, took matters into their own hands. After defeating the motion to recommit by a vote of 74 to 49, they advanced the bill to third reading.

Prior to bringing the bill up, the Speaker and Mr. Moreland had circulated the report that the Governor had sent for them yesterday afternoon and informed them that he desired the bill recommitted, because its passage at this time would detract from the powers of the proposed Public Utilities Commission. The Governor was asked about this report to-night and authorized the following statement:

"I am informed that a rumor has been circulated that I sent for Speaker Wadsworth and ordered that a certain railroad bill, I believe the so-called 5-cent bill, should be killed. There is no basis for this statement. I have not ordered this bill or any similar bill to be killed. I shall assume responsibility with reference to such measures only as they reach me and as I have opportunity to deal with each specific measure according to its merits."

The Democrats lined up solidly against the proposition to recommit. The Republicans flocked over to the Democrats only after Assemblyman Merritt, who is one of the sponsors of the Governor's Public Utilities bill, had made it plain that he was determined to vote against the bill being recommitted. He ridiculed the contention of Assemblyman Moreland that the bill would take all the ammunition away from the proposed Public Service Commission. He said he scouted the idea that the Governor could have intervened at this time, and declared that the attitude of Speaker Wadsworth and Mr. Moreland was more than a riddle to him.

"This is a very fair proposition," said Mr. Merritt. "Let us realize that this bill affords immediate relief. That is what the people are demanding, and that is what they should get. This bill deals with a real condition. Why send this bill back? Why have all the efforts of the introducer and the Railroads Committee wasted? We reported this bill because we believed it to be a good bill. It should pass. I do not agree that we should wait for the Public Utilities Commission to act. I do not agree that the commission will be shown any discourtesy by this measure."

Many Republicans went to Moreland and told him that to support his motion to recommit was the hardest and most difficult thing asked of them this session. They were informed that the Governor had instructed Speaker Wadsworth that he wished the bill recommitted.

Before the roll call was half over it was evident that the machine could not stem the tide. When the vote was announced the bill was advanced without a fight.

CHILD LABOR BILL PASSED.

Page's Measure Gets Unanimous Vote After Some Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—The Page Child Labor bill passed the Senate to-day and will go to the Governor for his approval. As the measure carries out recommendations made in his message to the Legislature, it is considered certain that the Governor will sign it.

Its provisions, making it a misdemeanor to employ minors in factories more than eight hours in twenty-four, and fixing the hours of employment between 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., were attacked again by Senator Armstrong of Rochester and Senator Davis of Buffalo, both of whom wanted the bill amended so as to fix the hours from 7 A. M. to 6 P. M. Senator Cobb of Watertown came to Senator Page's assistance.

"We don't want to make old men out of our working boys," he said. "We want them to have all the freedom from cares possible, and the opportunity to go out in the sunlight and play with other boys."

Senator Ackroyd (Dem.) of Utica also opposed the amendment, declaring that he had been working more than twelve hours a day before he was 14, and knew from bitter experience what such toil meant to a child. The amendment was lost by 14 to 31, the following Senators voting in favor of it: Allds, Armstrong, Cordts, Davis, Dunn, Franchot, Gates, Hill, Hooker, Knapp, Raines, Taylor, Tully, and Wemple.

The vote on final passage stood 47 to 0.

Bronx County Bill Not Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—The Bronx Assemblymen, all Democrats, provided an hour's fight in the Assembly to-day on a motion to discharge the Internal Affairs Committe from further consideration of the bill creating the county of Bronx. The Republicans fought it. The motion to discharge the committee was beaten—48 to 75.

PLEA FOR A CLEAN RIVER.

Merchants Ask Hughes for Hudson River Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—As a step in their campaign for the purification of the Hudson, the Merchants' Association, through Edward Hatch, Jr., Chairman of its Committee on Pollution of Rivers and Streams, has presented a petition to Gov. Hughes, asking him to make an investigation of the defiling of the waters of the Hudson by the big paper mills at Glens Falls, Fort Edward, Palmer's Falls, Sandy Hill, and Hadley, with a view of devising some remedy.

"A recent investigation by agents of the Merchants' Association revealed the fact that between Hadley and Fort Edward, in a distance of about twenty miles, the sulphite paper mills were dumping into the river about 160,000,000 pounds of refuse a year, and the ground pulp paper mills about 48,000,000 pounds.

"The worst part of the pollution, according to the Merchants' Association Committee, comes from the sulphite mills. Farmers below Glens Falls complain that stock will not drink the river water. It cannot be used for washing purposes. There are no fish in the stream, and even boys do not swim in it."

Dr. Thomas Darlington, Commissioner of Health; John H. O'Brien, Commissioner of Water Supply, and Dr. Eugene H. Porter, State Commissioner of Health, held a conference here on Monday, with reference to the conditions at Mount Kisco and Katonah, on the Croton watershed, which threaten the pollution of the water supply of New York. As a result, experts from all three departments are to-day going over the watershed, and prompt steps will be taken to clean it up.

Dr. Porter has written to Dr. Darlington, urging the construction of a filtration plant for New York as soon as possible. He says it is the only safe way in which the water supply can be protected. The State Commissioner of Health says that a filtration plant would practically eliminate typhoid from this city.

FIGHT FRANCIS'S BILL.

New York Surgeons Oppose Measure to Limit Vivisection.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—A delegation of New York physicians and surgeons appeared before the General Laws Committee of the Assembly to-day in opposition to the Francis bill, which restricts vivisection to such experiments as shall be performed under the supervision of the State.

They argued that to limit vivisection might compel experiments on human beings, with a possible check to medical and surgical science. E. J. Hanna of the New York City Humane Society said:

"The very fact that they oppose this bill is in itself incriminating. The greatest vivisectors have said that at no time during experimentation did they have time to think whether the animal was suffering. The German scientists, who rush with glee to the torture trough, shrink from some of the things done in American universities."

Col. Wagstaff, President of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, suggested that the bill be amended so as to permit unrestricted experimentation only by scientific colleges. Henry Bergh took the same view.

HUGHES VETOES TWO BILLS.

Provided for Court House and More Attendants in Queens County Jail.

ALBANY, April 17.—Gov. Hughes vetoed to-day the bill of Assemblyman Sinclair providing for a special commission to build a new Columbia County Court House at Hudson; also, that of Assemblyman Garbs, providing for an increase in the force of employes at the Queens County Jail.

Both vetoes were the subject of messages by the Governor, in which he stated his general attitude toward special and local legislation. Of the Queens County Jail bill he says, in part:

"I disapprove the bill because it is important that matters of this sort should be placed in the control of the appropriate local authorities. A large number of bills have been introduced providing for new positions and increases of salaries in various local offices of political sub-divisions of the State, and I am convinced that the policy should be established of giving to the local authorities adequate power to deal with such matters."

In vetoing the Columbia County Court House bill Gov. Hughes says, in part:

"The object of this bill is to take from the Board of Supervisors of Columbia County the power vested in it by the county law to build a new County Court House, and to place this power with a commission named by the Legislature. It has been shown to me by evidence, which, in the absence of suitable contradiction must be accepted, that the people of this county have confidence in this present board, and there is no apparent ground upon which this matter which normally belongs with the Board of Supervisors, should be taken, against the wishes of their constituents, out of their hands."

KELSEY'S CASE GOES OVER.

Hughes's Friends Say That Insurance Superintendent Will Have to Go.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—With the outlook distinctly favoring a victory for the Governor in the final action of the Senate Judiciary Committee on his recommendation for the removal of State Superintendent of Insurance Otto Kelsey, the Committee, late this evening, decided to put consideration of the case over for a week. The delay is caused partly by the fact that Senator Hinman, who is one of the leading members of the Judiciary Committee, is prevented by illness from attending, and partly because Senator Davis, Chairman of the Committee, is scheduled to accompany the Governor to Buffalo, where he is to make the principal speech to-morrow night at the semi-centennial celebration of the local Chamber of Commerce.

The Governor's friends now say that with Senator Hinman present, they would have eight of the thirteen votes of the Committee for Kelsey's removal. The eight are: Davis, Armstrong, Cobb, Page, Hinman, Grattan, Taylor, and Cohalen. Those who are expected to vote in favor of Kelsey are: Allds, Raines, McCarren, Grady and Smith.

DR. AKED INVITES ALL TO HIS CHURCH

Doesn't Come Here As the Rockefeller Pastor, He Declares.

NO PLAN OF A CRUSADE

Man Who Stirred Liverpool Says He Must Study New York Conditions Before Acting.

The first thing that the Rev. C. F. Aked, who comes here from the Pembroke Chapel, Liverpool, to accept the call from the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church—the "Rockefeller Church"—said when he arrived here yesterday was that he hoped to make that church serve as the place of worship for the longshoreman, the shop girl, the laborer, and the poor man as well as for the millionaire. Dr. Aked arrived on the Cunarder Carmania, with his wife, and declared that he came to preach a gospel which knew no caste or rank, and that the poor were as welcome in the church on Fifth Avenue as the wealthy. Indeed, Dr. Aked invited the others and other members of the engine room crew of the Carmania to attend his first Sunday service.

Dr. Aked, who was here a few months ago to preach in the church which has extended to him the call, is tall, muscular, and active, with a ruddy complexion which speaks of strenuous days in the open air. In Liverpool, where he was immensely popular, they called him the athletic parson.

When interviewed, somehow the conversation turned first to Mr. Rockefeller, and Dr. Aked rather resented the idea that he was to be the pastor of "Rockefeller's church."

"I know nothing of Mr. Rockefeller," he said, "and it is rather hard to call the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church Rockefeller's church. He is only a pewholder in the church."

Here some one managed to get in a question as to tainted money, and Dr. Aked brightened up.

"I am not talking now on tainted money," he said. "But perhaps you feel like the negro. The story goes that two negroes were talking when one of them asked whether he had heard that a certain rich man had tainted money.

"'What is this tainted money?' asked one.

"'Whst,' said the other, 'ain't you heard what dat is? Well it 'tain't yours and it 'tain't mine.'"

Then becoming very serious, Dr. Aked continued: "I have come here to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ. My ministry is one of conciliation. I want to reconcile all classes in religion, for in religion there is no rank. The poor girl will be as welcome in our church as the woman with money, and the day laborer will be received with as open arms as will the money king."

"Does this invitation go out to the slums?" he was asked.

"Yes," came the prompt reply. "All are welcome."

Mr. Aked is interested in the Peace Conference, but while he says he believes in a peaceful man, he likes to see one who has the fighting blood in his veins.

"I have been preaching peace since I was ordained," said Mr. Aked, "and I shall continue to do so. Yet a man must have fighting blood in his veins if he would stand for peace. He must labor strenuously on peaceful lines if he would strive for peace. The idea that peace can only come through the sword is silly. It should come by peaceful methods. It was one time said that the way to resume payment was to resume; so the way to obtain peace is to obtain it. If the nations are to stop fighting they are to stop, and it will not be stopping to increase the armies and the navies. Nations can stop fighting if they choose. For example, the 300 cities of Italy made war on one another. They wanted peace, so they stopped fighting and they have not fought since.

"There are three points to be agreed upon by nations for the furtherance of peace," he continued. "There must first be an agreement not to increase armaments beyond their present level; second, there must be an agreement to arbitrate, and third, there must be an agreement for a permanent tribunal for the purpose of arbitration."

Mr. Aked knows something of war, for he was a pro-Boer at the time of the late war, and as a consequence he had to take part in several battles in Liverpool, where for a time he was unpopular.

As a reformer Mr. Aked obtained a reputation in Liverpool which made him feared by evildoers. He was asked whether he intended doing any active work toward the suppression of gambling and other vices in this city, and he replied:

"At this moment my mind is a blank. It will take me a little time to study existing conditions. I shall feel my way at first. I think, however, that my fighting days are over; the things I have been fighting in Liverpool are not here."

SAXE'S TAX BILL PASSED.

Owners of Fences for Bill Posting May Have to Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—By a vote of 28 to 16, the Senate passed to-day Senator Saxe's bill providing that Tax Assessors in their valuation of unimproved real estate for taxation purposes should take into consideration fences used for billposting purposes, and include in their assessments the income derived by the proprietors from that source. The bill provoked a lively debate. Senator Cassidy, the gentle cynic of the upper house, objected to the bill as "foolish legislation."

"It is just as absurd as though we should decide that the Tax Assessors must take into consideration the woodchucks' holes on a piece of property," he said. "I want to explain, though, that it was Senator Raines who suggested the woodchucks' holes as a good comparison."

The Senate laughed, and then Senator Foelker of Brooklyn offered an amendment to the effect that trees, boulders, and grass on a lot should be taxed as well, but after Senator Grady had spoken warmly in favor of the bill, giving instances of how along upper Broadway in New York one-third of the property on either side which should be built up was held for an increase in price by the owners, who in the meantime enjoyed large incomes from bill posting contracts, he withdrew his amendment with the explanation that he did not believe the bill could be laughed to death.

DEADLOCK IN WISCONSIN.

First Ballot Shows No Choice for Senator to Succeed Spooner.

MADISON, Wis., April 17.—The first ballot in joint session of the Legislature for United States Senator, to succeed John C. Spooner, was taken to-day with no choice. The vote was:

George W. Bird, Democrat, 24; John J. Esch, 19; Irvine L. Lenroot, 19; H. A. Cooper, 19; Isaac Stephenson, 17; W. H. Hatten, 16; scattering, 17.

To Watch Democratic Club Election.

Supreme Court Justice Dickey announced yesterday the appointment of James B. Graham, former secretary to Gov. Odell; ex-Judge Hurd, and Hugo Hirsch a commission to supervise the annual election on April 25 of the Democratic Club of the Borough of Queens. The club has had one election, but the Cassidyites counted themselves in and Justice Dickey decided that the election was fraudulent.

BRAIN STORMS, SAYS OLIVER.

Minority Leader's Attack Defeats Bill He Wanted Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Minority Leader Oliver and the McClellan Assemblyman, Cuvillier, had a clash to-day over Oliver's bill for the selection of uniform school books by a commission which would be authorized to make a five-year contract between the City of New York and a text-book publishing house. The bill was beaten. Cuvillier accused Oliver of hypocrisy. He said the measure was of a "petit larceny order" against the City of New York. Oliver was furious. He denounced the McClellan member as a traitor, as a Republican ally, and as possessed of "more brainstorms than Albany has physicians."

Cuvillier's attack went a long way to defeat the bill. Oliver's declaration that it was primarily aimed at the school book trust was not sufficient to attract support.

Road Objects to Amendments in Eleventh Avenue Track Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Ira A. Place, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, appeared before the Assembly Railroad Committee to-day in opposition to the amendments which have been put in the Saxe-Bohan Eleventh Avenue bill. The representatives of the Committee of Fifty argued in favor of the adoption of the new amendments, which they said were proposed to meet the demands of the additional taxpayers' organizations. They declared that the amendments were not opposed by the city authorities.

Mr. Place wanted to know by what right the committee had put the amendments in the bill. He said that the New York Central, the Rapid Transit Board, and the civic organizations had agreed upon the original bill, and that now these civic organizations were breaking faith with the railroad company. He declared that the New York Central would not accept the amended bill, and that if it passed the company would be forced to fight it to the highest courts.

The Rev. Father John P. Chidwick, Charles De Hart Brower, Senator McManus, and Assemblyman Bohan appeared for the bill.

Assemblyman Cuvillier Argues Against New Recount Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—At the hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee today on the Prentice Recount bill, Assemblyman Cuvillier, Clarence J. Shearn, and J. Fairfax McLaughlin appeared. Mr. Cuvillier made a long argument against the measure and sought to justify his statements with court decisions. Mr. Shearn covered much of the old ground the Hearst men have been tramping over so long. A delegation of original Hearst men was on hand to lend dignity to the plea.

"The cry is raised that we must not go behind the returns," said Mr. Shearn. "I say there is nothing sacred about a fraudulent election return. Pray, why are ballots preserved by statute for six months except to be recounted, if necessary? The law now provides a court review for void and protested ballots. Why not, then, for the real frauds involved in ballot-box stuffing and actual miscounting?

"To those who say there is a remedy in the courts, I reply that the remedy is nullified by the interminable delays of the law. An action was begun on Jan. 8, and, though pressed with the utmost vigor, issue has not yet been finally joined."

The bill passed the Assembly by a large majority.

Guard Rail Bill Recommitted.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—By a vote of 75 to 35, the Assembly recommitted to-day the Cuvillier bill, requiring guard rails on the elevated railroad stations in New York County. Majority Leader Moreland fought the bill on the ground that it took power away from the local authorities.

CHANCELLOR MAGIE KICKS.

Jersey Justice Says Law Cannot Make Him Name Insurance Directors.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 17.—Chancellor Magie came here to-day, saying that he is not pleased at the Hillery act, which puts up to him the appointment of three Directors of life insurance companies from among the stockholders. He says that the duty is not a judicial one and he can and may decline to perform it. He further says that the Legislature has no power to force his compliance, on the ground that his functions, as prescribed by the Constitution, are purely judicial.

In support of his position, the Chancellor cites a similar duty put on Chief Justice Beasley by the Legislature some years ago, which the Chief Justice declined to perform on the ground that no duty other than judicial can be put on the Judges under the Constitution.

Should the Chancellor continue to hold his views, this act of the Legislature will be abortive. Gov. Stokes refused to make any comment. It was he who suggested the law to the Legislature.

AID FOR WALSH'S SYNDICATE.

Chicago Clearing House to Facilitate Completion of Chicago Southern.

CHICAGO, April 17.—James B. Forgan, Chairman of the Clearing House Committee of this city, issued a statement today in relation to the affairs of the Chicago National Bank and those of John R. Walsh, the former President of that institution, and of the Equitable Trust Company and of the Home Savings Bank. The Clearing House Committee at the time of the failure of the Chicago National Bank and the other institutions, advanced money to meet their pressing obligations. The statement is as follows:

"John R. Walsh is forming a syndicate to complete the Chicago Southern Railway Company, thus giving to the Southern Indiana Railway Company, his main line, an entrance into Chicago. To enable him to accomplish this the Clearing House Committee will exchange the Chicago Southern notes in the hands of the associated banks, amounting to $766,000 for the first mortgage bonds of the completed road. The committee has also agreed to a subscription of $250,000 to be made to the syndicate in connection with the exchange of these bonds.

"Besides this the Directors of the Walsh banks are to make a substantial subscription to the syndicate which finishes the Chicago Southern Railway."

Its Smoke Costs the Edison Co. $4,000.

The Court of Appeals has just affirmed a verdict for $4,000 damages recovered by Sarah A. Ely against the Edison Company for damages arising out of the defendant's violation of the "smoke nuisance" law. Through her attorney, Frank M. Hardenbrook, she sued for an injunction restraining the operation of the defendant's power house in West Twenty-sixth Street, and asked for damages.

EDITOR MASSON ARRESTED.

Accused of Violating Speed Law, as He Said Others Did.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., April 17.—Thomas L. Masson, editor of Life, who at the last meeting of the Glen Ridge Council complained of the reckless driving of automobiles, was himself taken into custody last night, charged with having violated the State law regulating the speed of automobiles.

The Council, shortly after the receipt of Mr. Masson's complaint, employed two special policemen to watch for reckless autoists, and Mr. Masson's arrest was the first one made by the officers. They asserted that Mr. Masson's machine was going at a twenty-five-mile-an-hour rate. The limit allowed by law is 12 miles an hour. Recorder Smith, after a warning, allowed Mr. Masson to go.

THE "JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION SPECIAL."

Great expositions have been called milestones marking a nation's industrial progress. The Jamestown Exposition, which opens April 26th, is the three-hundredth milestone in the development of the American nation. Future generations will turn to it as one of the prominent events in our National history. It is our privilege to visit this Exposition and see for ourselves what three hundred years of American enterprise has wrought.

To further provide for the increased travel between New York and Norfolk during the Exposition, the Pennsylvania Railroad, on Sunday, April 21, will establish the "Jamestown Exposition Special," via the "Cape Charles Route." It will leave New York at 10.55 P. M., daily, and arrive at Norfolk at 10.30 A. M.; returning it will leave Norfolk at 7.00 P. M. and arrive at New York at 8 A. M., daily. It will carry Pullman sleeping cars and standard coaches.

Additional express trains to Norfolk leave New York at 7.25 A. M., week-days, with Pullman parlor cars and coaches; 6.05 A. M., Sundays, with parlor car from Philadelphia, and at 8.55 P. M., daily, with Pullman sleeping cars and coaches. Similar trains run from Norfolk to New York.

EARTHQUAKES IN EUROPE AND ASIA

Much Damage Is Done to the Spanish Towns of Tortosa and Murcia.

CONSTANTINOPLE SHAKEN

Severe Shock at Askabad—List of the Victims of the Disaster in Mexico Continues to Grow.

MADRID, April 17.—Severe earth shocks were felt to-day at Tortosa and Murcia. Much damage was done, but no casualties have been reported.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 17.—An earthquake shock was felt here and in the suburbs at 4:30 A. M.

It was especially sharp in the upper part of the Bosphorus.

ASKABAD, Russian Transcaspian Territory, April 17.—A severe undulatory earthquake occurred here at 12:26 P. M. to-day.

It lasted five seconds.

Tortosa is a fortified town in Catalonia, Province of Tarragona. It is built in terraces on an eminence above the River Ebro, and has a fine cathedral. The population in 1900 was about 25,000.

Murcia is about thirty miles from Cartagena. The city, which is situated in an exceedingly beautiful valley, was formerly the capital of the Moorish Kingdom of Murcia, and is now the capital of the modern province of its own name. It has a fine cathedral, a number of colleges, and extensive manufactures. The population in 1900 was about 110,000.

AYUTLA IS DESTROYED.

Members of Prominent Mexican Families Killed by the Earthquake.

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—Details of the destruction wrought by the great earthquakes of last Sunday and Monday are reaching this city slowly. Each succeeding dispatch magnifies the extent of the disaster.

A message from Acapulco to-day confirmed the story of the total destruction of Ayutla. The jail and hospital collapsed, but the prisoners and patients were taken out safely. Factories throughout the district are in ruins, and thousands of workers will suffer terribly from the loss of their homes and enforced idleness. The Post Office, telegraph office, and barracks at Ayutla were destroyed.

In Tixtla seven bodies were taken from the ruins to-day and many injured persons were removed. At Tixtla eight dead and forty injured are reported; in Ayutla nine dead and about fifty injured.

In Huamixtlan the cathedral fell, and the Government offices and schools are in ruins. Every other building was damaged.

At Techan and Tlapa nearly all the houses fell in, but nobody was hurt.

A survey of Mexico City shows that the damage sustained was heavier than at first supposed. In some instances buildings were shaken in the foundations so that it has been necessary to prop them up.

A remarkable escape from death was reported from Santa Julia to-day. In that colony is the Salesiano College, a school for children. The building was a new structure and supposed to be earthquake proof. When the big shock came on Sunday night over a hundred children were asleep in the dormitories. Thirty-five of these, together with the teachers of the institution, left the building before the second story and the roof fell in. When the terrified teachers counted their charges and found that seventy were missing they improvised rope ladders and ascended to where they believed they would find the mangled bodies of the missing pupils.

Their surprise and joy were unbounded when they reached the highest point of the ruins and found the terrified children clinging to beams and rafters. Not one was injured. The roof in falling rested on the beams, so that a space was left over the place where the little ones had sought refuge. The children were safely conveyed to the ground.

In the State of Guerrero and elsewhere along the Pacific Coast occurred the greatest property loss. In the vicinity of this city severe loss was suffered by the Mexican Clay Manufacturing Company, an American concern. The damage to the company's works will probably amount to $50,000.

From the latest reports it is learned that the earth is now quiet in the region which was afflicted, but the last shock occurred as late as noon to-day.

In the list of known dead, which now totals fifty, and of the injured, which approximates 300, are many names of members of prominent Mexican families and men conspicuous in the official life of the region. So far the name of no American or other foreigner has appeared in the meagre lists of dead and injured sent to this city. The country most damaged is a particularly rich territory.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—George Mitchell, President of the La Dicha Mining Company, whose properties are in Mexico, thirty miles from Chilpancingo, to-day received the following telegram from Acapulco, dated April 16:

"This city and vicinity visited by an earthquake. No damage or loss at Marques. No news from La Dicha yet. Our residence and office also demolished. Expect to save all our records."

TRIES TO DIE IN ST. PETER'S.

Pope Concerned About Act of Conscience-Stricken Youth.

ROME, April 17.—A youth of 19 attempted to commit suicide to-day at the entrance of the sacristy of St. Peter's. He was taken to a hospital, seriously wounded.

The Pope, when he heard the news, gave orders that inquiries be made regarding the reasons for the young man's action.

The would-be suicide said at the hospital that he had attended mass before the shooting. A letter was found on him saying he was going to kill himself because when intoxicated he had been induced to write some blackmailing letters in the interest of others. This act had been discovered and he was about to be condemned for it.

"THERE'S A REASON"

NEW MOVE BY FRANCE.

Menacing Demonstration Off Mogador —Moroccan Situation Grave.

Information from Casablanca is that the situation there has much improved, thanks to the presence in the harbor of the French cruiser Lalande. The Governor has paid out $900 to neighboring tribesmen to induce them to keep quiet.

The success of the French naval visit to this port induced the commander of the Lalande to send the cruiser Gloire on to Mogador in an endeavor to bring about a similar result there.

The general situation is grave, owing to the resentment of the Moors over the French occupation of Oudja. Native opinion is unanimous that France is seeking to pick a quarrel with Morrocco in order to make further annexations of territory. In the meanwhile the country is swarming with "provocative agents."

The members of the Diplomatic Corps here are consulting together regarding the effects of the Sultan's concessions to German companies for the construction of sewers and other public works at Tangier costing over $200,000, and for the construction of port works at Larache to the value of about $1,000,000. There is a tendency in many quarters to regard these concessions as not being in conformity with the terms of the Algeciras Convention.

Mogador is a fortified city and seaport of Morocco on the Atlantic, 225 miles west by south of the city of Morocco. It has a population of about 15,000, including Christians and Jews. Its port, south of the citadel, is sheltered by an island off the shore. Mogador has considerable commercial importance.

ENGLISH CRIMINAL APPEAL.

Measure Constituting a New Court Introduced—Not a "Rich Man's Bill."

LONDON, April 17.—A bill constituting a Court of Criminal Appeal, which has not heretofore existed in Great Britain, was introduced in the House of Commons today by Attorney General Walton. He explained that the measure would create the right of appeal against convictions for crime, similar to that now existing in civil cases.

The new court will consist of seven Judges of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, to be selected and presided over by the Lord Chief Justice. The right of appeal in matters of law will be unqualified, and in matters of fact it will be left to the discretion of the new court. There will be no new trials, but the court will have ample powers to get at the truth. It will be able, if necessary, to summon fresh evidence and, when the court has satisfied itself of the true merits of a case, it will be the duty of the court to determine whether the conviction shall stand, be set aside, or be modified.

The Attorney General said that this was not a "rich man's bill." An official would be appointed whose duty it would be to collect the material necessary in order to have a case reheard, and if professional assistance were required a solicitor and counsel would be provided for poor prisoners. The prerogative of the Crown in regard to mercy would be left untouched.

The Attorney General added that the bill was not a party measure. Its adoption was necessitated by the fact that justice had blundered. Enterprising newspapers had rushed in where jurists feared to tread. Retrial by newspaper had taken the place of a rehearing before a judicial tribunal.

The measure passed its first reading.

FOR A BRITISH COUNCIL.

Resolutions Introduced at the Colonial Premiers' Conference.

LONDON, April 17.—The business transacted at the second sitting of the Colonial Conference here to-day included the introduction of resolutions from the Governments of Australia and New Zealand urging the appointment of an imperial council, and one from the Government of Cape Colony proposing the organization of some plan by which contributions for imperial defense from each colony shall be equitably fixed on the condition that the colonies be represented upon the imperial council, by which questions concerning the peace of the empire shall be discussed.

The resolutions were not formally moved, but there was a general discussion of matters connected with them.

The Earl of Elgin, the Colonial Secretary, who presided, eventually drafted a composite resolution for consideration at the next meeting of the Conference.

The conference adopted a resolution lamenting the death of Prime Minister Seddon of New Zealand.

An Increased Unionist Majority.

LONDON, April 17.—The bye-election held to-day to fill the seat in the House of Commons for the North Division of Belfast, made vacant by the death of Sir Daniel Dixon, Unionist, resulted in the victory of George S. Clark, Unionist. Mr. Clark, who is a member of the shipbuilding firm of Workman, Clark & Co., received 6,021 votes. William Walker, the Lahorite candidate, received 4,194 votes. At the previous election Sir Daniel Dixon received 4,907 votes and Mr. Walker 4,616.

CHINA OBSTRUCTS RELIEF.

Officials Interfering with Work for the Famine Sufferers.

SHANGHAI, April 17.—The Famine Relief Committee is feeding 400,000 persons and will continue to do so until June. Grain is arriving daily. The estimated purchases for April are 3,150 tons of millet, 140,000 bags of flour, 350 tons of potatoes, and 5,000 bushels of wheat for planting. Thirty thousand men are employed on work provided by the Relief Committee, principally at Tsing-kiang-Pu.

The Chinese official relief has ceased. Some official obstruction is being placed in the way of the most suitable and the most needed relief works on the plea that China herself proposes to undertake these measures. No fulfillment of these promises, however, is probable.

LIBERAL PRIEST SUSPENDED.

Pope Punishes Father Murri, Leader of the Catholic Democrats.

ROME, April 17.—Father Romolo Murri, leader of the Catholic Democrats, has been suspended "ad divinis" by the Pope for disobedience of the Papal instructions regarding the behavior of the clergy.

The punishment inflicted upon Father Murri has aroused more or less excitement here, principally among the liberal section of the Catholics. Father Murri's offense consisted in severe criticism of the action of the Church in Italy, as well as comment on the French situation, especially on the Montagnini documents.

The suspension decreed by the Pope means that Father Murri may not exercise his clerical office or administer and enjoy the fruits of his ministry.

Rome, a weekly Catholic paper, recalls that in 1902 the Pope, who was then Patriarch of Venice, had occasion to admonish Father Murri for certain writings. Father Murri thereupon wrote a strongly worded letter to the Patriarch, saying he had expressed an opinion about writings which, perhaps, he had not read. He added that he could not permit such criticism and asked for an apology.

At the recent Consistory the Pope delivered a speech in which he condemned with energy certain new ideas which, he said, threatened to bring about rebellion under the pretext of a return to the pure Gospel. The allusion to the principles of Father Murri was evident.

GERMANS ATTACK THE BRITISH RULER

KING VICTOR AT GAETA

GAETA, Italy, April 17.—King Victor Emmanuel arrived here to-day on board the royal yacht Trinacria and is personally supervising the preparations for his meeting here with King Edward. The Trinacria is escorted by twelve men-of-war.

The weather is most unpropitious, however, and the people are beginning to fear that all their preparations to give color and brilliancy to the royal meeting at Gaeta, which is one of the most beautiful spots on the Mediterranean, will go for naught.

ROME, April 17.—The Marquis of San Giuliano, the Italian Ambassador to Great Britain, has arrived at Naples ready to proceed to Gaeta if summoned to take part in the coming conference between King Edward and King Victor Emmanuel.

This fact, added to the presence of Foreign Minister Tittoni at Naples, strengthens the view that the meeting of the two Kings will have considerable political importance, and that they will confer on important international questions.

BERLIN, April 17.—King Edward's approaching meeting with King Victor Emmanuel at Gaeta is attracting much attention in the German press, which comments on the event as being an effort to isolate Germany and win Italy away from the Triple Alliance.

An article in the Cologne Gazette in this sense is being widely discussed, because it is believed to have been inspired from Berlin. The writer says public opinion in Germany sees in King Edward's course an attempt to disturb the European equilibrium, which is calculated to awaken misgivings regarding his disarmament proposal. The writer, in conclusion, warns Great Britain that "war with Germany would be dangerous for any opponent or any coalition of opponents."

This sharp language is interpreted by the Tägliche Rundschau as meaning that the German Government has grown weary of the "English game of hide and seek, and the comedy of peace and disarmament."

The attention of the Foreign Office was called to the Cologne Gazette's article, with the result that it was stated that it expressed only the editorial opinion of the paper; that the German Government was in no way responsible for such views, and that the Government officials would have taken steps to prevent their publication if they had been known in advance.

The Foreign Office, it is asserted, does not see any reason for disquiet in connection with the meeting of the Kings of England and Italy, since Italy knows that her independence is better guaranteed by being a member of the Triple Alliance than if she were thrown wholly upon Anglo-French support. Great Britain's predominant position in the Western part of the Mediterranean is fully recognized by Germany, which has no interests there.

PARIS, April 17.—The forthcoming meeting of King Edward and King Victor Emmanuel is viewed with the utmost satisfaction in Governmental circles here.

The royal conference is regarded as not only likely to strengthen the cordial relations existing between Italy and Great Britain, but as binding closer the ties between those two countries and France, and as exerting a good effect on the European situation.

MADRID, April 17.—It is reported here that arrangements are being made for King Victor Emmanuel to visit Cartagena and Madrid in the course of his Mediterranean cruise.

GUILTY, BUT JURY DISAGREED.

Stood 8 to 4 for Acquittal of Prisoner, Who Then Confessed Theft.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 17.—A remarkable situation was disclosed in the County Court to-day. A jury that heard the evidence against Frank Zions, who was charged with purse snatching, was out for hours, and was finally discharged because unable to agree. Eight of the twelve men stood steadfast for acquittal. The other four said there was no question that the young man was guilty.

Soon after the jury had been allowed to go by the Judge, Zions went before the Judge and pleaded guilty to the indictment charged. Sentence will be imposed on Friday.

New Governor in Jamaica Soon.

LONDON, April 17.—Sydney Olivier, until recently prfnelpal clerk of the West African Department of the Colonial Office, ex-Colonial Secretary of Jamaica, and at various times Acting Governor of the island, who has been appointed to succeed Sir Alexander Swettenham as Governor of Jamaica, will sail for Kingston on May 4 on the steamer Port Kingston in order to take over the Governorship.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, April 17.—A number of workmen recently discharged from Woolwich Arsenal are preparing for a demonstration on April 22 in the form of a march on the Houses of Parliament, with bands and banners, to impress their grievances upon the Government. War Secretary Haldane's scheme for reducing the military expenditures has resulted incidentally in the loss of employment by several thousand skilled workers, and they and their friends are stirring up an agitation in the press and Parliament which is welcomed by political opponents of the Administration.

ROME, April 17.—The mission of the Rev. Stephen Sater Ortynskyi, who has been appointed Bishop for the Catholics of the Greek Ruthenian Rite in the United States, will consist in direct religious ministrations to all the members of that rite in the country. Not having any particular diocese, the new Bishop will act in accord with the American Bishops. The Poles have already asked for the appointment of a prelate to act for them in the United States, as Bishop Ortynskyi will act for the Ruthenians.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 17.—Prof. Leo S. Rowe of the University of Pennsylvania, President of the American Academy of Political Science, has arrived here and later will visit various other points of interest in Chile.

MARSEILLES, April 17.—Prof. Archibald Cary Coolidge of Harvard University, who has been lecturing in France under the auspices of the Alliance Française, delivered a lecture here to-day on "The United States as a World Power." He was applauded by a large and notable audience.

LONDON, April 17.—Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Macgregor Stewart, Governor of Bermuda since 1904, who has resigned owing to the pressure of private affairs, expects to be relieved of his post in May.

OTTAWA, April 17.—The Hon. W. S. Fielding, Acting Premier, to-day informed Mr. Borden, leader of the Opposition, that the United States Government had not asked permission to take the protected cruiser Detroit from Boston by the St. Lawrence waterway to the Great Lakes.

BONILLA IN MEXICO.

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—Ex-President Manuel Bonilla of Honduras was landed at Salina Cruz, Mexico, from the United States gunboat Princeton to-day.

President Bonilla is expected to come to this city. He left Amapala last Saturday aboard the Princeton after having entered into an agreement with President Zelaya of Nicaragua and President Figueroa of Salvador that he should quit Central America.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Representatives of the Governments of Nicaragua and Salvador are about to confer at Amapala or on board an American gunboat in Fonseca Bay, Honduras. The object of the conference is the settlement of the difficulty between Nicaragua and Honduras and Salvador. It was expected that the conference would be between Presidents Zelaya of Nicaragua and Figueroa of Salvador personally, but at the last moment they decided to send representatives.

Señor Corea, the Minister from Nicaragua, conferred with Assistant Secretary Bacon to-day. He said that the representative of Zelaya was J. D. Gamez, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and he understood that Minister of Foreign Affairs Garcia of Salvador would represent that Government. He thought the conference would begin to-morrow.

The failure of the Presidents personally to confer was because of the illness of President Zelaya, according to a dispatch received by Señor Corea.

It is not expected by Señor Corea that the conference will result in more than a temporary agreement, because the five States of Central America have determined that it is necessary to hold another conference, at which all will be represented, for the purpose of agreeing upon a peace proposition on an enduring basis. The Ministers from the Central American States are exchanging views with their Governments on the plan to select Washington as the place for holding the conference, and already have assured them that such a selection would be warmly welcomed by President Roosevelt and Secretary Root.

$15 FOR EACH MURDER.

Paid by Warsaw Terrorists—W. H. Stuart's Slayer Sentenced.

WARSAW, April 17.—It was announced to-day that in the course of police investigations into the recent murder of a physician here by a hired Terrorist, it was established that $15 each was the price paid by the Terrorists of Warsaw for murders.

TIFLIS, April 17.—The actual murderer of William H. Stuart, an Englishman, and who was American Vice Consul at Batum, and who was killed at his country place, near Batum, last May 20, was sentenced by a court-martial yesterday to be hanged, but in view of his youth the assassin's sentence was commuted to ten years' imprisonment.

Two others who were accused of complicity in the crime were acquitted.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 17.—Judge Arnold, President of the Moscow Supreme Court, who sentenced several reactionists in the Kostroma district, where serious disorders occurred, has resigned at the request of M. Chtcheglovitoff, the Minister of Justice. The Liberal press contrasts the Minister's action in this case with his speech in the Duma on April 12 advocating an independent Russian judiciary. Judge Arnold, who is a Senator, is an outspoken opponent of drumhead courts-martial.

Although the conflict regarding the taking of the testimony of experts by the committees of the lower house of Parliament is supposed to have been peacefully terminated, an unpleasant incident to-day caused a revival of the ill-feeling. Prince Lvoff, the greatest authority in Russia on famine matters, whose relief organization is feeding nearly 1,000,000 persons in the stricken districts, was to-day forbidden to enter the Tauride Palace. After a long wait outside the Prince was finally permitted to enter the Secretary's office, but police agents dogged his footsteps and listened to everything he said. This became so unpleasant that the Prince departed in indignation.

PARIS WAITERS STRIKE.

Most of the Cafes Able to Keep Open—Many Strikes in France.

PARIS, April 17.—A number of the café waiters of this city went on strike this evening. The movement caused some inconvenience, which was offset by considerable amusement.

Profiting by the example set by the electrical workers in their recent successful strike, sealed instructions to stop work were sent out at a late hour this afternoon, and at 6 o'clock a number of men left the cafés. Most of the establishments on the principal boulevards, however, remained open with the assistance of extra hands, hastily summoned from outside.

This strike commands a certain amount of public sympathy. It is recognized that the waiters have to work hard under unfair conditions, that they receive no wages, and that they are obliged to purchase their places.

General unrest in the labor world is indicated by numerous dispatches reporting strikes throughout the country. The most important is probably at Evian, where the famous alkaline spa is located. The workers of all kinds at Evian have voted to go on strike unless they receive an increase in wages, and this movement is liable to cause considerable loss to the thermal establishments there.

The Minister of Labor, M. Viviani, has ordered that all mines must be supplied with a certain number of respiratory machines, and that specially trained rescue gangs be in attendance in case of accident.

Used Pianos of High Grade
On Which Prices Are Much Reduced.

The Loeser, Heller and Reiman Player-pianos are responsible for the most extraordinary offerings of Upright and Grand Pianos ever made.

For these Player-pianos, with their double usefulness, have induced many people to part with Pianos which for hand-playing are absolutely as good as new—Pianos with some of the most famous and honorable names in the history of Piano selling.

It should be remembered also that these Pianos for the most part are not at all in the class warranting the term "second hand" Pianos.

They have all been used, in the sense that they all came to us from private owners in exchange for some one of the instruments in our regular line.

But very many of these Pianos are so nearly new and so absolutely perfect that even their own salesmen could not tell them from new instruments without looking at the serial number.

It is the HIGH GRADE of these Pianos which makes them extraordinary values—quite as much as the low prices.

The list is interesting. You will find the Pianos themselves even more interesting when you come to-day. You will find that such values cannot be matched or even nearly matched anywhere in the greater city.

MISSING TRUSTEE'S PAPERS SEIZED

GONE FOR TWELVE DAYS

The disappearance of Edward H. M. Roehr, a trustee for the $200,000 estate of the late Judge Charles Kiehl of Brooklyn, has caused considerable uneasiness among the Kiehl heirs, and an investigation of the missing lawyer's books has begun. His office in the Home Life Insurance Building, at 256 Broadway, was entered yesterday by two detectives at the instance of District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn, and two boxes, containing papers relating to the estate, were taken.

When opened later in the office of the District Attorney it was found that several important documents were missing. Just what they are Mr. Clarke declines to say. He admits, however, that the trustee's accounts seem to be badly tangled, and that the matter will be placed in the hands of a title company to unravel.

The larger part of the estate, which was placed in charge of Mr. Roehr eight years ago, was invested in mortgages. Some of it was in securities. The records in the City Register's Office will be searched in an effort to trace the transactions which have been made by the trustee in the past few years. Until this is done and the records of the mortgage traasfers are compared with the entries in the trustee's books the exact extent of the supposed shortage canaot be ascertained.

Mr. Roehr disappeared soon after one of the Kelhl heirs, Mrs. John Paul, had applied at the Surrogate's Office in Brooklyn, demanding an accounting. That was twelve days ago. Mr. Roehr was living at Montclair, N. J. His wife was on a visit to friends in Lakewood. His former law partner, Robert H. Elder, an assistant in the Brooklyn District Attorney's office, was not aware that Roehr had left the city until a few days ago. He knew that the trustee had not been at his office, but had not thought seriously of the matter until he had learned of the application of Mrs. Paul for an accounting.

Mrs. Roehr continued for several days to write to her husband. The letters were found unopened yesterday in his office. The wife is now with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Christian Friedmann, at 174 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn. She says she knows nothing of her husband's whereabouts. She thinks some accident must have befallen him, and will not believe that he fled rather than face an investigation into the affairs of the Kiehl estate.

The date of the hearing before the Surrogate had been set for yesterday. John T. McGovern, a brother-in-law of the trustee, appeared and asked for a postponement of the case for one week. He said he wished to make a thorough examination of his brother-in-law's affairs. Later in the day he gave out the following interview:

"It cannot be denied that Mr. Roehr is financially involved. His trouble dates back to certain investments, made about two years ago, in a mortgage and realty company, a corporation organized to lend money on bonds and mortgages. Roehr invested his own funds and those of others in the concern. I understand he and his clients lost about $250,000 through that company. He has since been endeavoring to make good his losses and those of his clients. I have not had a talk with Roehr for more than a year and a half, when I severed all connection with his law firm. Assistant District Attorney Elder had nothing at all to do with his business transactions."

It was after this loss in the realty concern that Mr. Roehr began to play the stock market heavily, according to information received yesterday by District Attorney Clarke. It is said that he lost large sums in Wall Street. He also became affiliated with the Imperial Coal and Coke Company at No. 1 Broadway, a concern which figured in the public prints a few weeks ago because of its method of doing business. Mr. Roehr was a Director in that company. Capt. Englehart, President of the company, is a cousin of the missing man. He said yesterday that Roehr's disappearance can in no way affect the coal and coke company, and that he did not know his cousin had disappeared until he learned it from the District Attorney's men.

All of the Kiehl heirs who intrusted the handling of their inheritance to Roehr are women. They are Mrs. Mary Fint, a daughter of the Judge; Mrs. Louisa Schmidt, a granddaughter; Mrs. Bertha Nahe, stepmother of Louisa Nahe, who was a granddaughter of Judge Kiehl, and Mrs. John Paul of Richmond Hill, who represents her children, beneficiaries in Judge Kiehl's will. These children were grandchildren of Mrs. Margaret Hexamer, a daughter of the Judge.

The incomes of all the heirs was paid regularly by the trustee during the eight years he managed the estate. Whether in recent years this income waa taken from a diminished principal or was paid from his own pocket in order to tide over the crash until he had a chance to recoup in the stock market is a question the District Attorney is now trying to solve.

Two other heirs to the Kiehl estate received their inheritance in full a few years ago from Roehr. They were Charles Hasloecher and Catherine Magg. Each received about $30,000.

Roehr has been living like a man with unlimited means during the past few years. He had an automobile and a yacht, and was a member of the Atlantic Yacht Club. He is about 40 years old. He was born in Brooklyn, and was educated abroad. His grandfather, Col. Henry E. Roehr, owned the Freie Presse, Brooklyn's German newspaper. Edward was a reporter for a while on his grandfather's paper, and was Albany correspondent. Then he studied law, having been advised to do so by Hamilton Fish, and soon built up a good practice, forming a partnership with Robert H. Elder. He entered politics and was elected Assemblyman. In 1895-96 he was clerk to Speaker Fish.

He married Miss Annie Friedmann, daughter of a wealthy baker of Brooklyn. Mrs. Roehr's personal estate is supposed to have gone in the pool with which the trustee tried to make good his losses in the realty concern.

At one time Roehr was President of the Bank of the Commonwealth, in Montague Street, Brooklyn, but the institution soon went to the wall.

Mr. Elder, in telling why he dissolved the partnership with Roehr, said yesterday that he did not like the way Roehr was running his business. Bills were coming in which Roehr refused to meet, and the affairs of the firm were in a bad fix, owing to his careless business methods. He said that Roehr neglected the practice that had been built up by years of work, so a few weeks ago Elder notified Roehr that they must part.

"I know that Roehr lost heavily in the stock market, said Mr. Elder yesterday. "I know nothing, however, of the Kiehl estate. He never told me of that side of his affairs, and I never inquired. He kept the papers of the Kiehl and the Hexamer estates in two boxes, which the District Attorney now has in his possession. They will tell the story of what he has done when the Register's Office records have been run out. I cannot say that I am surprised that he has come to grief." He was on that road long ago."

Charles Henshal is counsel for Mrs. Paul. He said yesterday that his client had reason to believe that a demand for an accounting was reasonable owing to certain rumors that had reached her ears of the business methods of the trustee.

District Attorney Clarke said: "I have conferred to-day with Mrs. Nahe, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Hexamer, and with Mrs. Fint. I have learned that Mrs. Nahe's interest in the estate is about $60,000, and that of each of the other direct heirs, or their heirs, about the same. The value of the estate should be in the neighborhood of $200,000 from what I have learned from the heirs. Until I carefully examine all the papers in the two tin boxes and have a title company make a thorough investigation, I will not be able to determine just how much the estate is short. There are grave doubts entertaind that all of it is left, according to the reports already at hand. Before taking any official action, however, I must determine whether a crime has been committed."

SECRETARY CORTELYOU HERE.

He Has Nothing to Say About Government Deposits in the Banks.

Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou paid his first visit to this city yesterday since his appointment to his present post on March 4. Mr. Cortelyou spent yesterday attending to custom house matters, and he is expected to remain in New York for a day or two longer, during which he will get in touch with the other Treasury offices here.

Secretary Cortelyou had nothing to say yesterday for publication regarding his policies in the administration of the Treasury Department, nor, more particularly, regarding the deposit of custom receipts in the National banks. It has not yet appeared to what extent the current receipts from customs are to be placed with the banks.

POISON GIVEN TO WIFE.

Physician's Wife Held in Cleveland—Warrant Out for Husband.

ROCHESTER, April 17.—The police here say that the woman arrested in Cleveland last night, who gave her name as Mrs. Loretta Leavitt, is Mrs. Blanche Bourvalle, wife of a physician who lives at 130 Plymouth Avenue. George W. Johnston is also wanted, and is thought to be in Cleveland.

The story told by the police is that George Johnston and his wife rented rooms in a house on Plymouth Avenue, in which Dr. Bourvalle and his wife were lodgers. Mrs. Johnston became ill on March 29 and Dr. Bourvalle prescribed for her, it is said. After he left the room, it is said, Mrs. Johnston asked for more medicine. Later Mrs. Johnston was hurried to a hospital.

Detective Bauer declares that the hospital physicians say the womnn had taken belladonna, and without treatment would have died in an hour. Mrs. Johnston told her story to the police, and when she returned home found that her husband and Mrs. Bourvalle had gone away. A warrant was then sworn out for Mrs. Bourvalle, charging assault in the first degree. Detective McDonald has gone to Cleveland after Mrs. Bourvalle.

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Mrs. Blanche Leavitt Bourvalle, a strikingly handsome woman is under arrest here as a fugitive from justice, and will be turned over to a detective from Rochester, who is expected to arrive here this evening. Mrs. Bourvalle came to Cleveland about four weeks ago from New York. She obtained employment in a dressmaking establishment as an assistant, where she was known simply as Mlle. Blanche. Her employers knew nothing of her antecedents.

The local police have not succeeded in locating George W. Johnston, who, it is said, is wanted by the Rochester authorities.

TO FORCE PAINTERS' HANDS.

Masters Hiring Non-Union Men to Test Sympathy Strike Move.

The real test of the power of the Brotherhood of Painters to get the other trades to strike in sympathy on arbitration contracts was invited yesterday by the members of the Master Painters' Association starting to fill the places of the strikers with new men. This was also an official intimation that no union of painters would be recognized, the men being employed only as individuals.

Up to last evening the unions in the other trades had lived up to the arbitration agreement and stayed at work. Two hundred marble workers who struck in sympathy at the Plaza Hotel were ordered back to work at once by Business Agent McAllister of the Marble Workers' Union on the ground that they had no authority to strike and that their action was premature. The Consolidated Board of Business Agents declined to take the responsibility of ordering strikes of the other trades on arbitration contracts, and left the question to the affiliated unions, which are now voting on it.

D. A. R. PRESIDENCY MAY BE CONTESTED

Mrs. Washington Howard, It Is Said, Will Run in Opposition to Mrs. McLean.

HALL PORTICO DEDICATED

Fund to Pay for the Memorial Continental Building Now Nearly Subscribed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.-Speculation is rife to-night on the eve of election of the National officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution as to whether the President-General will be re-elected unanimously. That she will be elected is conceded, and the only hope the opposition, or conservative, party have is of preventing the election from being unanimous.

Until to-day the slate of the conservative party had no candidate for President-General, because no one could be found willing to allow her name to be used. For all other places there were candidates. To-night there is a belief that Mrs. Washington Howard of Alexandria, Va., is to be the opposing candidate to Mrs. McLean.

The McLenn slate to be presented for election to-morrow includes the names of Mrs. Donald McLean to succeed herself; Mrs. Charlotte Emerson Main, Vice President General, in charge or organization; Chaplain General to succeed Mrs. Tennis S. Hamlin, Mrs. Esther Frothingham Noble; Recording Secretary General—Miss Elizabeth Pierce; Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. John Paul Ernest; Registrar General—Mrs. Amos Draper of the District of Columbia; Treasurer General—Mrs. Mabel G. Swormstedt of the District of Columbia; Historian General—Mrs. J. Eakin Gadsby of Georgetown; Assistant Historian General—Mrs. Helen M. Boynton. The ten Vice Presidents General to be elected or re-elected on this ticket are Mrs. Charles H. Terry of Brooklyn, Mrs. Alexander B. Patton of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Charles H. Deere of Illinois, Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Alabama, Mrs. Baldwin D. Spillman of West Virginia, Mrs. H. S. Chamberlain of Tennessee, Mrs. A. A. Kendall of Portland, Me.; Mrs. Wallace Delafield of Missouri, and Mrs. Lindsay Patterson of North Carolina.

The other slate will have, besides Mrs. Washington Howard, if she agrees to run, Mrs. Frederick Dubois, for Vice President General in charge of organization; Mrs. Charles Brown, formerly of Tioga, Penn., Treasurer General; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Virginia Miller; Librarian, Miss Aline Solomons; Register General, Mrs. Fisher; Chaplain General, Mrs. Gilfillan; Recording Secretary, Miss Bartow; Historian General, Miss Susan R. Hetzel; Assistant Historian General, Miss Minnie F. Mickley. The Vice Presidents General are the same, except for the names of Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Delafield, and Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, who are replaced by Mrs. James M. Fowler and Mrs. B. M. C. Clarke, and two others yet to be selected.

The features of to-day's proceedings of the Continental Congress were the dedication of the memorial portico at the Memorial Continental Hall and the collection of contributions to swell the Continental Hall building fund. To-night a reception to the delegates was given at the Library of Congress.

Practically the entire afternoon session was devoted to the announcements of the contributions to the fund by the various State chapters. Already the organization had accumulated a fund of $250,000 for this purpose, and it is believed that with to-day's contributions there will be nearly enough to pay for the buildings.

The National Society of the Children of the American Revolution, a kindred organization, which is also holding its annual convention here, will make its annual pilgrimage to the tomb of George Washington at Mount Veraon to-morrow.

Injured in Wreck, Sues for $25,000.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 17.—David Geddis of Rathbun Avenue, this place, who had one of his legs broken and suffered other injuries in the wreck of the Brewaters express on the Harlem Rond at 200th Street on Feb. 16, has entered suit against the railroad company for $25,000 damages. He asserts that he lost a good paying position through inability to attend to his duties.

FEAR RULES CHICAGO POLICE.

Dare Not Disobey Chief's Wishes Even to Obey the Law.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Fear of the man higher up has always ruled campaign contributions in the Police Department of Chicago, the Civil Service Commission was told to-day. In its investigation of charges against ex-Chief of Police John M. Collins it got proof that a levy had been made on the police during the receat Mayoralty campaign.

Capt. O'Brien of the Detective Bureau was questioned by the commission to-day.

"A short time before the primaries," he said, "Chief Collins called me into his office and said he was trying to raise money to assist Mayor Dunne. He wanted me to help him. He said those opposing Mayor Dunne had plenty of money, while the Mayor himself had but little. I didn't say anything, but when I reached my office I spoke to my lieutenants about it. I told them that I was not in favor of it, but that I would leave the matter to them, and they could do as they pleased. A few days later $445 in envelopes was handed to me, and I gave it to the Chief himself."

"Did the commanding officers ever discuss the clause of the civil service law, which forbids them to contribute for political purposes?"

"Yes, I have heard it discussed, and have talked about it myself."

"Then, why did some of the officers not rebel against the contributions?"

"I can't explain that. There was a certain fear that exists among members of the department that makes a man hesitate in matters of that kind, and they think the best way is to do as the other officers do, contribute."

TOMBSTONE CUTTERS STRIKE.

New Union Takes First Action of the Kind in the Trade.

Demands were formulated yesterday for a new wage scale by the Independent Letter Cutters and Monumental Workers' Union, formed a fortnight ago, and which has already started a strike. The demands were announced by Harris Lauterstein, President of the union, at 151 Clinton Street, headquarters for the strikers. The wages demanded are $3.50 a day for first class, $3 for second class, and $2.50 for third class workmen.

The strike, which is the first in the trade, affects shops at Bayside Cemetery, Silver Lake Cemetery, S. I.; Washington Cemetery, Brooklyn, and eight shops on the east side devoted to the making of tombstones. One of the strike leaders said:

"One would think, on account of the nature of the trade, which is not a cheerful one, that we would be paid at least as much as men in other and more attractive branches of stone carving. We are the worst paid class of skilled mechanics.

Local Credit Men Dine.

Three hundred credit men of New York and its suburbs met last night in the Hotel Savoy for the annual dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association. The speakers were Sherman Moreland, one of the Republican leaders in the Assembly; Assemblyman Warren S. Lee, and the Rev. James E. Freeman of Yonkers.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Messrs. Harper & Brothers beg to announce the publication of The Cruise of the "Shining Light," a new novel by Norman Duncan, author of "Dr. Luke of the Labrador."

PUBLISHER'S OPINION

Whatever else the book is, it is not ordinary. It is an unusual story unusually told.

It is a story of the strange lives of three people, a boy, an old man and a girl whom the boy grows to love.

It is a story of to-day, yet full of the mystery of a more romantic time. There is humor in it and drama and tenderness, and the same fine manly religious feeling found in Mr. Duncan's earlier book.

The people in the book, the minor characters and all, are live people, and when you finish the story they seem like old friends—people you are sorry to part from.

PORTO RICO DEMAND SENTIMENTAL---TAFT

He Tells the Islanders They Have All the Real Advantages of Citizenship.

DECLARES WE LOVE THEM

Says That Speaker Cannon Is In Some Respects the Most Powerful Man In This Country.

PONCE, Porto Rico, April 17.—Secretary Taft and his party, Gov. Winthrop, and the insular officials accompanying them arrived here yesterday afternoon. They stopped at the Hotel Francaise and were visited by many representativ citizens.

A banquet in honor of the Secretary was given by the city last night. The speech of welcome was delivered by Augusto Gautier, President of the City Council. Señor Gautier spoke of the excellent work done by Gov. Winthrop dnuring his tenure of office, referred at length to the question of citizensbip, and declared he was convinced of Mr. Winthrop's continued interest, while in Washington, in Porto Rican affairs.

Gov. Winthrop delivered his response to this address in Spanish. He expressed gratitude for the confidence of the people, deeply regretted his departure, and promised always to lend his aid in matters affecting the island. He was visibly moved.

Herminio Diaz, a member of the Executive Council, who acted as toastmaster, then made a long speech, in which he introduced Secretary Taft and paid another tribute to Gov. Winthrop. He made a passionate plea for citizenship and expressed the hope that Secretary Taft would unite with President Roosevelt against Speaker Cannon, who, when here recently, gave the Porto Ricans little hope in the matter of citizenship.

Secretary Taft then spoke vigorously in reply, saying in part:

"Again I am urged to make a full and specific declaration regarding the policy of the United States toward the dear people of Porto Rico. I am only a humble member of President Roosevelt's Cabinet. Whatever I may think or whatever I may do is a matter of little importance to the people of this island. I can only invoke your attention to the fact that President Roosevelt has visited Porto Rico und the island has been visited by Mr. Root, the Secretary of State, and by Mr. Cannon, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and in some respects the most powerful man in the Republic.

"What these visits indicate is this: That the people of the United Stats have a deep affection for the people of Porto Rico and feel more kindly toward them, and have a greater interest in them, than in the people of Cuba or the Philippines. The United States has gathered Porto Rico to her bosom and given her that which means the material progress of the island, namely, the beuetit of the markets of the United States. She has givein her the markets and the prosperity she enjoys to-day. She has given every Porto Rican the same liberty enjoyed by the people of the United States.

"You say citizenship has not been given to you. President Roosevelt has recommended that citizenship be given, but there have been Congressional difficulties with reference to this matter. I am not dealing, however, with generalities, but with concrete facts. I ask what is it that a Porto Rican does not enjoy that an American enjoys? You have every guarantee and security which a citizen of the United States has under the Constitution. You have the writ of habeas corpus and the trial by jury, and when you are in a foreign country the same flag protects you that protects a citizen of the United States. Therefore, while President Roosevelt urges citizenship, he urges it on the ground of gratifying the sentiment of the people of this island. But when you come to examine the facts of what you ask, the question is whether it is not nominal rather than substantial."

The Secretary closed his speech with complimentary references to the work done by Gov. Winthrop.

During the dinner the streets in the vicinity of the hotel were so crowded that it was necessary to invoke the aid of the police to make a passageway. The banquet room is situated on the ground floor and next to the street, and this made it possible for a great crowd to hear and see the Secretary. He was cheered at the close of his remarks.

Secretary Taft is the second Secretary of War to visit Ponce. Secretary Alger came here eight years ago this month, and a banquet was given to him in the hotel in which Mr. Taft was entertained. Secretary Alger, responding to a toast on that occasion, predicted that the new life under the Stars and Stripes would bring prosperity to the island.

BLOW AT PORTO RICAN TRADE.

French Action Likely to Be Disastrous—Other Decrees Expected.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Although notice of the issue yesterday in Paris of a decree imposing the maximum duties on coffees imported from the United States and Porto Rico has not yet reached the State Department, the officials were fully prepared for some such action, having been informed in the course of the correspondence which has been going on for the past six months that it was contemplated.

The reason for the decree is said to be the dissatisfaction of the French Government at the failure of the United States Senate to act upon the French reciprocity treaty which has been pending before that body for several years. Added to this, it is said, is a suspicion on the part of the French Government that the negotiations now in progress between the United States and Germany relative to the tariff upon American goods imported into Germany conceal some advantage to be bestowed upon German trade with the United States in which French trade is not to share.
which French trade is not to share.

This decree is regarded as the beginning of a systematic effort to bring such pressure to bear upon the American Congress, through the imposition of restrictions upon the American export trade, as will force the whole subject of reciprocity upon the attention of Congress at the beginning of the next session. The State Department officials fear that this French action is the precursor of similar attacks upon American trade by other nations of Continental Europe.

No serious damage is expected to result to American trade from the French decree, because there is little traffic in coffee at any time, but it is feared that the effect will be disastrous to Porto Rico, which at present finds almost its only market in France for its coffee, now that the Spanish market is closed by excessive duties.

EDDY DEFENDANTS' DENIAL.

Complaint Not Brought in Good Faith, They Assert.

CONCORD, N. H., April 17.—A general denial of all the allegations made by the complainants in the suit for an accounting of the property of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, filed March 1, was the answer filed to-day by the defendants named in the original action. These defendants include Alfred Farlow, Ira O. Knapp, William B. Johnson, Joseph Armstrong, and Edward A. Kimball of Boston, Stephen A. Chase of Fall River, and Calvin A. Frye, Irving C. Tomlinson, Herman S. Hering, and Lewis C. Strang of Concord. The complainants are George W. Glover, Mary Baker Glover, and George W. Baker, relatives of Mrs. Eddy, who sued as her "next friends."

The specifications directed against the Boston defendants in the original bill were that Mrs. Eddy was, and for a long time had been, incompetent to do business or to understand transactions conducted in her name; that the defendants, whose answer was filed to-day with other leaders of the Christian Science Church who were named in the original bill, had possessed themselves of the person and property of Mrs. Eddy, and had carried on her business; that on account of Mrs. Eddy's infirmity these persons were bound to give account of all transactions undertaken in her name, and that the defendants had wrongfully converted property to their own use.

To these representations the defendants, Farlow, Knapp, Johnson, Chase, Armstrong, and Kimball, have filed specifications and detailed denial, declaring also that they have no knowledge of many of the allegations of the complainants and demanding that the complainants furnish proof thereof. They also declare that they have reason to believe that the bill of complaint was not brought by the plaintiffs in good faith, but that "the so-called 'next friends'" have been induced to loan their names at the instigation and at the expenss of certain evil-minded persons who were furnishing money for the prosecution of the bill of complaint for their own evil purposes, and to advocate their own selfish interests.

NO ARREST ON SUSPICION.

Magistrate House Refuses to Hold Prisoner Without Definite Charge.

Magistrate House, sitting in the Tombs Court yesterday, refused to take any action in the cases of two prisoners whom J. J. Gegan, a Detective Sergeant, said raigned before him. The detective said he had picked up the men on suspicion, as they were well-known pickpockets. He had no evidence against them.

"This thing has got to stop," said the Magistrate; "at least it has got to stop so far as I am concerned. I refuse to discharge or hold these prisoners. I won't take any action in this case. You can do as you please with these prisoners."

Turning to a volume of decisions by the Appellate Division, Magistrate House quoted the case of Phillips vs. Leary and said:

"Under this ruling these men have a right to sue you. They had a right to be along the street if they were not violating the law. Even if the Police Department is above all courts, as some people seem to think, I propose to conduct this court on the principles of law and not in accordance with the dictates of the police."

POLICEMAN A SUICIDE.

Baker's Transfer to Patrol Duty Affected His Mind.

John F. Baker, 36 years old, for seven years probation officer for Justice Zeller in Special Sessions, but for several weeks attached to the Liberty Avenue Station, Brownsville, Brooklyn, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at his home, 1,012 Stebbins Avenue, the Bronx, by shooting himself in the left side of the head.

He had previously sent his wife and little boy away from the house. He was alive but unconscious when his wife returned almost an hour later, but died without regaining consciousness.

Baker's transfer to precinct duty seemed to affect his mind. His wife said he had brooded over being sent to a station. Baker was on vacation since last Saturday. His wife says that he had been complaining much of late of having severe pains in the head.

LAWYER THE PRISONER.

Thomas H. Ray Accused of Threat in a Civil Case.

Charged with writing a threatening letter, Thomas H. Ray, 24 years old, a lawyer of the firm of Phillips & Ray, and who lives at 555 West 182d Street, was arrested yesterday afternoon and afterward arraigned before Magistrate House in the Tombs Court. The lawyer was arrested on the complaint of Dr. Herman Besser of 95 West 119th Street. The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon.

HELD FOR $25,000 ROBBERY.

Discharged Employe Arrested for Express Company Theft.

ST. PAUL, April 17.—The police have arrested John Gunderson on the charge of holding up Fred Zimmerman, the clerk in the Northern Express Company's office, last night, and robbing the safe of $25,000. The police would not say whether the money had been recovered or not.

When Gunderson was taken to the police station he appeared to be under the influence of liquor, and said he knew nothing about the robbery. Upon the police suggesting that they would let him go without prosecution if he would tell where he had hidden the money, Gunderson said he could not remember what he had done with it. Then he said he had been drinking and did not remember what had happened during the night.

Gunderson had been employed by the Northern Express Company, and was discharged recently. He is said to have been familiar with the details of the office and knew that a package containing the $25,000 was going to Duluth on the night train.

To Discuss a Calvin Memorial.

Plans for celebrating the 400th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin, in Geneva, in 1909, will be discussed at a conference at the Union Theological Seminary at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The proposal of the Genevan Committee to erect a monument will be considered. Among the speakers will be President Eliot of Harvard, President Patton of Princeton, Prof. Williston Walker of Yale, and Dr. Felix Adler.

Dr. Guy Indicted for Murder.

Dr. Samuel S. Guy, the dentist and former Coroner of Queens County, who shot and killed his wife, Lillian Mott Guy, at their home in the old Mott mansion at Far Rockaway on April 8, was indicted yesterday by a Queens County Grand Jury for murder in the first degree. Attorney Youngs moved for the transfer of the indictment into the Supreme Court. The motion was granted and Guy will soon be tried. Mrs. Guy's body has not been buried. The funeral services will take place to-morrow.

Ex-Capt. Wendel's Trial Postponed.

The trial of Louis Wendel, former Captain of the First Battery, for larceny, which was to have been heard before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday, was adjourned, at the request of Wendel's lawyer, Abe Levy, until April 26. No reason was assigned for this move. Wendel was in court.

Mrs. Doyle Gets Divorce and Allmony.

Supreme Court Justice Truax signed an interlocutory divorce decree yesterday in favor of Mrs. Rose Marie Doyle against William Sherwood Doyle, general agent in the State of Illinois for the Reserve Loan Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis. Several women are named in Mrs. Doyle's complaint. The plaintiff is awarded $20 a week allmony and the custody of her eleven-year-old son Richard.

ICE TRUST MUST OPEN ITS BOOKS

Court Upholds Attorney General's Petition to Get at Monopoly.

NOT A POLITICAL MOVE

Suggestion of Counsel That Losing Speculators Were Back of Suit Rejected.

Supeme Court Justice Greenbaum granted yesterday the petition of Attorney General Jackson for permission to examine the books of the American Ice Company. The Justice declares that the Attorney General has presented enough facts to entitle him to the inspection.

The object of the inspection is to replace copies of the company's records either lost or stolen from the office of the Attorney General just before Mr. Jackson succeeded Julius S. Mayer. The result of the inspection is to be used in an action brought in the name of the People for a judgment setting aside contracts made by the Ice Trust with subsidiary companies on the ground that they are in restraint of trade and a violation of the anti-trust laws. Justice Greenbaum said, in part:

"The action is based upon the alleged maintenance by the defendant of a monopoly in the sale of ice, and is brought to secure the annulment of certain arrangements and contracts, alleged to have been entered into and illegally continued by the defendant, and to enjoin the consummation of said alleged unlawful acts. Justice Greenbaum says:

"The State, by virtue of the duty of owes to the people to protect them against monopolies, has seen fit to provide by statute a most drastic and sweeping procedure for the examination of witnesses, papers, and documents upon the application of the Attorney General whenever he has determined to commence an action under the act in question, before the beginning of the action.

"It will thus be observed that in this case the Attorney General would have had the right to apply for an order as sweeping and broad as that now asked for. His position before the court upon this motion is therefore somewhat analagous to that of one who had a right before the commencement of the action to an inspection of the papere, and where the petitioner, seeking to examine the papers after the action was brought, should not be subjected to the strict rules that may be applied where a different relationship between the parties exist.

"The bad faith of the Attorney General is assailed by the defendant in the assertion that this action is inspired by two unnamed 'prominent politicians, high in the counsels of the Democratic Party,' who it is alleged lost large sums of money in speculativ dealings in the stock of the American Ice Securities Company, which is a large holder of the stock of the defendant corporation. It is alleged that this motion is made as a retaliatory measure in behalf of the aforesaid politicians. The charge is a most serious one, and, if established, would undoubtedly be entitled to great weight upon the question of the good faith of the application.

"But the affidavit discloses no facts whatever upon which judicial consideration may be based. The sources of affiants' information are not disclosed, the grounds for asserting the Attorney General's complicity with the so-called Democratic politicians are not stated, and not a solitary circumstance is presented showing the Attorney General's relation to or connection with the politicians. The names of the latter persons are not disclosed, although it is suggested on defendant's brief that if desired they would be secretly whispered in the ears of the court."

The opinion declares that it would be monstrous to heed allegations presented in this fashion, and that the petition should be granted on the merits solely.

PLANS FOR LIFE SAVING.

Maritime Interests Ask More Men and Equipment In These Waters.

"Our deliberations are, and will be, much more peaceful than those of the peacemakers who are now meeting in this city," said Rear Admiral J. B. Coghlan at a meeting of the maritime interests held yesterday at the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation, 203 Broadway, to consider ways and means to obtain better inspection of and laws governing the vessels plying the waters of New York and the Sound.

Admiral Coghlan submitted a resolution asking that the Government provide a landing place for the Life Saving Service at Point Judith, near which the Larchmont was sunk, and that one high-power, self-righting, and self-bailing lifeboat be stationed there.

A number of resolutions were submitted asking for more Inspectors and for provisions requiring an adequate number of bulkheads in oceangoing vessels, greater care in ship inspection, and suitable examinations for Captains, mates, and seamen before granting them licenses. Guido Rossati read a communication from the Italian Chamber of Commerce in which changes in the present inspection laws were suggested.

In the afternoon session Lincoln C. Cummings of Brookline, Mass., President of the National Movement for Government Inspection of Crews, suggested that on oceangoing vessels a trained officer be provided for each lifeboat. Other speakers were Capt. Luther R. Dow, General Manager of the American Association of Masters, Mates, and Pilots; E. C. Brennan of the American Life Saving Society, Charles Darsch, President of the Society of Slocum Survivors, and J. Augustus Johnson, a Director of the Legal Aid Society. The Committee on Resolutions will make its report at 11 o'clock to-day.

Arrested on Tobacco Fraud Charge.

Jacob Marquisee of 685 East 130th Street was arrested yesterday on an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Blanchard in an action to recover $15,050 brought by Julius E. Mosheim. Bail was fixed at $16,000. Mosheim, in his complaint, declares that Marquisee and two other men borrowed $17,050 from him on the representation that they wanted to enlarge their tobacco business. He charges that they returned $2,000 and converted the balance to their own uses.

Gourdain Ordered Back to Chicago.

Louis A. Gourdain of New Orleans, who was convicted of conducting a lottery in Chicago in violation of the United States laws, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields, and, waiving examination, was ordered taken back to Chicago to-day. He begged the privilege of remaining at his hotel over night, but the Commissioner refused to show him any especial consideration, and he spent the night in the Tombs.

Court Gives Wheeler Ten Years.

Although the jury added a recommendation for mercy to their verdict, Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, sentenced Joseph Wheeler of 412 West Thirty-ninth Street, who was convicted of assault, to ten years' imprisonment yesterday. On March 18, Wheeler forced an entrance into the house at 31 West Sixteenth Street, where he seized May McLaughlin and made her give up $20 at the point of a revolver, afterward beating her.

CHILD GIANT IN COURT.

175-Pound Boy Charged With Having Too Big an Appetite.

Richard Kraft, 15 years old, who stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 175 pounds, was up before Magistrate Conorton in the Long Island City Court yesterday on complaint of his mother, who said he was an ungovernable child. The boy's mother is now Mrs. Ellen Allen of 646 Grand Avenue, Astoria. She is a little woman, and when her big son stood up alongside of her the Magistrate asksd:

"Where is the child?"

"Here he is," answered the mother, who was almost hidden behind her boy's bulk.

"What!" exclaimed the Magistrate; "is this a 'child'?"

"Yes, your Honor, and we have a terrible time with him."

"Well, I should think so," remarked the Magistrate. "I wouldn't want to get into his hands."

Young Kraft's mother said her son refused to go to school, and when his appetite got working he simply raided the pantry while the family sought refuge in the cellar. She said they were all afraid of him and she wanted him sent away.

"He only gets hungry, Judge," said the mother. "If you could only give him something for his appetite, I think perhaps he might go to school or go to work."

"Just leave him here and I'll see if there's anything in the Penal Code that I can give him for his appetite," said the court. The "child" was held until to-day. The court believes a good dose of work will help little Richard.

CHURCHLESS BRONX CRIES FOR CHURCHES

Banners Bearing "We Want a Church" Invade Presbyterian Mass Meeting.

CRUSADE THERE PLANNED

Said to be Fewer Churches in the Bronx To-day Than in 1890—$42,000 Raised.

The carrying of the Gospel to the Bronx was considered by a number of the speakers at a Presbyterian mass meeting in Carnegie Hall last night, where the Peace Conference decorations were still in place. Something of the work that has been done thus far in that particular was brought out by the speakers, who told of strange journeyings and of portable chapels which moved where they were most needed.

To add effect to the remarks of the speakers who dwelt on the nearly churchless Bronx, there were two delegations from Bronx sections who bore bannsrs setting forth: "We Want a Church."

For last night's meeting the Presbyterian churches of the city had given over their midweek prayer meetings. In addition to music by a choir of 300 Sunday School voices, the evening was devoted to eight-minute speeches by various clergymen. The church must expand, they said. In 1890 there were fifty-six Presbyterian churches in Manhattan and the Bronx and now there are fifty-four. And in thtse seventeen years the Bronx had grown over 200 per cent. Some of the speakers also referred to the recent reorganization of the Presbytery with the addition to it of a lay-clerical council, to mark which reorganizaton the meeting had been called.

"I once went to the Bronx," said the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie, of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, after the topic, "The Church Aggressive," had been announced.

The audience laughed.

"I did," he continued. "I made my will before I went. I was afraid to go alone. So I went with Dr. Coffin."

Again the audience, seeing funerals, laughed.

"We finally got up there somewhere. There was a race track near by. I wasn't very familiar with the surroundings, but Dr. Coffin seemed to be. We hired a little room and started a Sunday school."

In addition to describing his exploration trip in the Bronx, Dr. Wylie said that the Church should stand for good in the city, it should carry the gospel to the strangers who came in via Ellis Island, and it should win for itself the children.

The Bronx was considered at greater length by the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin.

"The Church has many problems to solve," said he, "but it also has the ever present problem of the Bronx. We have few churches there. The Woodstock church requires for its building $60,000. A chapel could be built for $15,000. It takes gold to buy dirt in New York. In some quarters we have the ground, the dirt, but not the building. We need a church on the Washington Heights section north of 155th Street, at least twenty-five block further north than the church on the Heights. The people are pouring into the section to the north, but the dirt is expensive. Kingsbridge, too, should have a church. There is scarcely a downtown church that has not members who come from the Kingsbridge section.

"The people of the portable Intervale chapel can in time be moved to the Prospect Avenue Church, and the portable chapel itself moved to the other side of the elevated subway, where there is now no Protestant church.

"Some years ago the people of Williamsbridge got some land. On their church there is a mortgage of $10,000, which they cannot pay. The people of the Bronx have mortgages on their own homes, and then there are always the assessments. You who have never lived in the Bronx do not know what assessments are, but they come and they come."

Then Dr. Goffin had the two delegations of Bronx church seekers stand up. They were received with applause.

Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, President of the Church Extension Committee, pleaded for a million-dollar endowment for his committee.

"A church in the Bronx can be built and equipped for $40,000," said he. "We want to buy lots on Washington Heights, in Van Nest, and on Lenox Avenue a cry has been heard for land. We want to buy land at Kingsbridge, too. This committee is incorporated. It can hold property permanently. A million-dollar endowment would guarantee the building of a church a year for all time."

Subscriptions for the fund of the Extension Committee were then received amounting to some $42,000, among them being several $10,000 subscriptions.

The other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, the Rev. Dr. Walter D. Buchanan, the Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, and the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson.

GUY DENOUNCES EXPERTS.

The Justice Says Reform Is Needed in Civil and Criminal Practice.

In an address delivered before the Bronx Bar Association at their third annual dinner held last night at the Morris Building at 140th Street and Third Avenue, Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy denounced the system of expert testimony now in use in courts. He said in part:

"It seems to me that the time has come for a united effort on the part of the legal profession in the matter of the employment of expert testimony to correct abuses which unquestionably prevail in the employing of witnesses, not to enlighten the court and jury on questions requiring scientific knowledge, but to make a case for their employers regardless of truth and right.

"While of course there must always be a large class of cases in which expert testimony will be a necessity, there must be in civil as well as criminal practice strict lines of limitation established within which the testimony of those who testify for hire shall be accepted."

Sixty members of the association attended the dinner. Supreme Court Justice John J. Brady was the guest of honor. The other speakers were Supreme Court Justice Brady, Deputy Attorney General James Donnelly, City Judge Tierney, and Charles P. Hallock.

Ex-Justice Whyard Fined.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 17.—William Whyard, for eighteen years a Justice of the Peace and a prominent politician, was found guilty by a jury in the County Court to-day of assault in the third degree, and was fined $150 by County Judge Platt. The fine was paid. The complainant was Edward H. Leubbers, Secretary of the Volunteer Life Saving Corps of New York City, who alleged that he was towing down the Hudson River a boat that he had purchased from a Nyack firm that had meanwhile become bankrupt, and that he was pursued by the Justice and Constable McNichol in the launch Chorus Girl, and was overtaken and thrown in the hold of the boat while the Justice made fast to the Chorus Girl the yacht whose ownership was disputed.

125,000 Children to be in Parade.

Gov. Hughes has accepted an invitation to review the main division of the Anniversary Day parade of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union on June 6. For the first time, the schools of the Williamsburg and Greenpoint churches will parads with those of the other sections of Brooklyn. It is estimated that 125,000 children will march.

HIS ACT WINS HIM FREEDOM.

Leddy Demands Restitution by Partner in $8,000 Trunk Robbery.

The odd plea of his lawyer that he had not only urged his partner in the theft to make restitution, but that he had even attempted to throttle him in the counsel room of the Tombs prison in an effort to make him agree to this, earned James Leddy a chance to reform yesterday, for Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions suspended sentence in his case, although sentencing Harry Murray to four years and ten months' imprisonment. Leddy said he was 22, and lived at 500 West Fifty-fifth Street. Murray is 28, and is an ex-convict. He lives at 124 East 118th Street.

The men were arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan yesterday, charged with being the men who, passing as expressmen, had stolen four trunks from Ogden Mills Reid, son of the Ambassador to England, and Trenor L. Park, on Dec. 27 last, instead of delivering the trunks at the Pennsylvania ferry, to which they were directed, Murray, who had engaged Leddy to assist him, carried them to a room which he rented in Ninth Avenue, near Thirty-eighth Street. Then Murray gave Leddy a few articles to pawn, while in his absence he rifled the trunks.

According to Lawyer George Simpson, who appeared for Leddy, Murray never told him of about $6,000 or $8,000 worth of jewelry, which he had found in the trunk, and which, it is said, he had given to a young woman acquaintance. At the time of their arrest Leddy, who had had no stomach for the job, not only told where he had pawned the goods which had been given to him, but surrendered the tickets to the police. Murray, however, refused to give up the jewelry, which Leddy learned of then for the first time.

According to Simpson, Leddy then urged Murray to make restitution of the valuables, even trying the argument of force. Simpson said that Murray laughed at Leddy, telling him that he was too honest to be at liberty and that he would be better off at Sing Sing.

The fact that a second lawyer, who had also witnessed the choking, arose in the court room and assured him that the story was absolutely true, led Judge O'Sullivan to suspend sentence in Leddy's case. In doing so he remarked:

"This is a case where one might err in trying to do justice to this defendant, Leddy, and I am going to give him an opportunity to make something of himself."

Leddy had once been in the army and had made a good record there, so Judge O'Sullivan continued:

"The three years' good record you made in the army has been blasted by your crime, but you must now go out and win it back, and I will suspend sentence to enable you to do so."

VACATION FOR J. J. HILL.

He Goes to Washington for a Few Days' Social Visit.

James J. Hill went to Washington yesterday for a visit of several days. It was said by Mr. Hill's friends that no significance was to be attached to his trip, as it was purely of a social nature. It is understood that Mr. Hill with members of his family has gone to visit his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hill, who reside in Washington.

This is the first vacation that Mr. Hill has taken since he threw off the burdens of the Presidency of the Great Northern to assume the Chairmanship of the Board of Directors of that road. He is now facetiously described by his friends as a man of leisure, but Mr. Hill himself has said, and his friends believe, that he will continue, notwithstanding the change in his official title, to take an active part in the management of Great Northern affairs.

METZ KISSED THE BRIDE.

The Controller and Others Witness a Wedding in Mayor's Office.

There was a marriage in the Mayor's office yesterday to which several of the heads of the City Administration were witnesses. The bridal couple were John H. Fleberger of 62 Columbia Terrace, Weehawken, and Lillian M. Gerlach of College Point, L. I. Fleberger is a chemist who was employed by Controller Metz, when the Controller was more interested in chemistry than finance.

Mr. Metz brought the couple into the Mayor's office. He had President McGowan of the Aldermen with him to act as a witness. Dock Commissioner Bensel and Water Commissioner O'Brien were also present.

The Mayor performed the ceremony. After Fleberger had kissed his bride, Controller Metz bestowed a fatherly kiss on her also. Then the couple hurried away.

MUST SHOW AHEARN.

And Till the Courts Rule, Will Refuse to Appear at Mayor's Inquiry.

Borough President Ahearn was subpoenaed yesterday by the Commissioners of Accounts, who are investigating his department, to appear before them on Monday, April 29, for examination. It was said by persons who know that Mr. Ahearn, on advice of his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, will not appear.

Corporation Counsel Ellison, who was responsible for the serving of the subpoena, will then apply to the courts for a ruling on the right of the Mayor's Commissioners to compel the attendance of witnesses. The continuance of the investigation will depend on such a ruling. The Corporation Counsel contends that Section 119 of the charter does give the Commissioners this power.

R. W. Davis, Jr., auditor in Mr. Ahearn's office, has been summoned to appear before the Commissioners to-day, when the examination of witnesses against Mr. Ahearn will be resumed.

Mr. Littleton has gained the point he raised at the hearing of the Commissioners on Monday that information should be given to his client as to the intended scope of the investigation. Corporation Counsel Ellison has turned over to him further details already adduced by the investigators from the books in Mr. Ahearn's department. These charge extravagance and favoritism in awarding contracts.

RAIDS ON TOBACCO FIELDS.

Many Beds of Plants Salted and Destroyed in Tennessee.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., April 17.—The destruction of tobacco plant beds in this district by "night riders" has reached an alarming stage, and it is feared that unless the depredations are speedily stopped there will be an unusually light crop.

During the past week a number of plant beds have been salted and the plants killed. In Trigg County, Ky., the situation is serious in the extreme. Fully a score of plant beds have been destroyed, tobacco rolled into the river, and warnings posted in the places of independent planters.

Trainmen have even been threatened with violence if they haul the tobacco of growers not connected with the Growers' Association.

200 Factory Girls Strike.

A strike of 200 non-union girls took place yesterday at the white goods factory of Rottner Brothers, 33 East 103d Street, because, according to the strikers, they were asked to work too hard. Twelve non-union men quit in sympathy. The strikers said that the firm was using new machines and requiring more work for the same wages. After they struck they decided to demand an increase.

The Value and Importance of Ethical Remedies.

Remedies which physicians sanction for family use, as they act most beneficially and are gentle yet prompt in effect, and called ethical, because they are of

To gain the full confidence of the Well-Informed of the world and the approval of the most eminent physicians, it is essential that the component parts be known to and approved by them, and, therefore, the California Fig Syrup Company has published for many years past in its advertisements and upon every package a full statement thereof. The perfect purity and uniformity of product which they demand in a laxative remedy of an ethical character are assured by the California Fig Syrup Company's original method of manufacture, known to the Company only.

There are other ethical remedies approved by physicians, but the product of the California Fig Syrup Company possesses the advantage over all other family laxatives that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts, without disturbing the natural functions or any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of Syrup of Figs, and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtlessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs; and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for Syrup of Figs, or by the full name, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, and the same heretofore known by the name, Syrup of Figs, which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

ITALIANS PUT BLAME ON THE SICILIANS

Say Latter Are Chiefly Responsible for Lawlessness Police Are Suppressing.

HUNT FOR GUNS GOES ON

Magistrates Impose Heavy Penalties on All Offenders—Bingham's Orders Not Relaxed.

The orusade against the carrying of concealed weapons that began after the murder of two policemen Sunday afternoon by an Italian went steadily forward yesterday. Commissioner Bingham did not relax his orders in the least; the whole police force, rank and file and superiors, are aroused by the death of Policemen Selleck and Sechler; the Magistrates are co-operating against the class of men who carry concealed weapons, and an aroused general public sentiment adds to the force of the crusade.

To-day the Grand Jury will consider fifty cases of prisoners, Italians and others, which have been sent up by the Magistrates since Monday morning. The Tombs is full of prisoners, the number being still further augmented yesterday. The police courts were jammed with arrested persons again yesterday morning. Last night the campaign continued. The weapon room at Police Headquarters was still further packed yesterday with more seized weapons of all kinds and shapes.

It is asserted that most of the offenders who are arrested for carrying assorted arsenals, and who are called Italians, are really Sicilians. But the police say they can't tell any difference between those who come from Italy and those from the island adjoining.

Say Sicilians Are the Guilty Men.

Coroner Acritelli got a long letter yesterday signed by some 200 Italian women. The letter showed, in picturesque language, that Italians do not want to be shouldered with the odium attaching to them because of Sunday's shooting, which they said was really done by Sicilians.

"The Sicilian," says the letter, "is bloodthirsty man; treacherous; thief, overbearing; vindictive; liar; counterfeiter. He belong to Black Hand. He exercises blackmail. Is a dynamiter, and by blood a coward. Therefore if the Government wants peace, if the Government wants quietness in America, we must suppress the immigration from the Sicily. Then you will see if the Italians in America will not be mentioned any more erlinally.

"The Sicilian is not liked even by ourselves. He should not belong to Italy. He is out of the peninsula geographically, and is a dishonor to Italy."

Alleged Murderer Arrested.

In looking for Italians carrying concealed weapons in the Stalian district in Mulberry Street last night, Detective Sergeants Petrosino and Archipoli arrested a man who was, they say, afterward identified as a man wanted in Italy for murder. He was arrested only after a struggle and locked up in Police Headquarters on a charge of being a suspicious person. He gave his name as Eurico Alfano, and refused to say where he lived.

According to the police, Alfano was the leader of a band of brigands in Italy, and about three months ago one of the band was murdered. The members disappeared and warrants were issued for their arrest. The prisoner, the police say, admitted his identity last night and said that he had been in this country about six months. The Detective Bureau said last night that if the Italian Government did not desire to send for him he would be deported.

Policeman William F. Voss of the Mulberry Street Station, saw a big Sicilian named Archangel Seafudl encounter two passing citizens at Hester and Mott Streets yesterday morning. Scafudl had pulled his pistol. The three were quarreling. Voss pushed the Sicilian's pistol close up against his breast, so that if it went off Scafudl would get the bullet, and then began to beat him in the face. They grappled and rolled out in the street. The two citizens fled.

When Policemen Smith and Sindt came up they found Voss straddling the huge body of the Sicilian. Scafudl's head was in such condition from Voss's nightstick that he had to be sent to St. Vincent's Hospital. The revolver the Sicilian had was a brand-new one of the latest pattern and fully loaded. When arraigned Scafudl said he was a Sicilian and a laborer, but refused to give his address.

Magistrate House Aroused.

Eight Italians were up before Magistrate House in the Tombs Court yesterday charged by Central Office men with carrying dirks and pistols and other deadly weapons. The Magistrate held them all in $3,000 each for trial.

"And to-morrow I'll hold any man brought before me for this offense in $4,000," he told them. "The next day I'll raise it to $5,000, and I'll keep raising it until this praetice is broken up."

An Italian named Michael Cerussi of 512 East 149th Street was up before Magistrate Crane in the Morrisania Court yesterday morning.

"Has he been searched?" asked the Magistrate.

"He has," answered the complaining policeman.

"Did you find any concealed weapons?"

"Fined $2 for spitting," said the Magistrate.

The fourteen Italians who were arrested Tuesday night by Acting Captain Price of the Bronx Detective Bureau after a spectacular fight for a rescue of prisoners were also before Magistrate Crane yesterday. Thirteen of them were held in $500 each for trial. Luigi Fullo was fined for trying to incite his countrymen to resist the police.

Magistrate Baker's crop of prisoners arrested for carrying concealed weapons yesterday morning numbered five. Four of them, being unable to furnish the $1,000 bail that was imposed upon them to keep the peace for six months, were sent to the Island. The fifth was held in $1,000 for trial. The five had been arrested the night before by County Detectives Reardon and Brennan fighting in front of the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Avenue A and Fourteenth Street. They all had dirks.

"I'm sorry I can't inflict more severe punishment on you," said Magistrate Baker in sentencing the prisoners. "This praetice of carrying dirks and revolvers has got to stop."

Herman Schwartz of 126 Cannon Street is not an Italian, but he was before Magistrate Finn, in the Essex Market Court yesterday morning, for carrying a concealed weapon. He was held in $500 bail for trial. Two policemen said he had been driving a wagon aimlessly around the streets, and that when they had asked him what he was doing he drew a revolver on them.

Payton Scott, a negro, had a detailed explanation yesterday morning in the Harlem Police Court of why he had had in his pocket a pistol the night before when arrested on West 125th Street. As he was running to catch an elevated train his weapon dropped out on the sidewalk. Policeman Mahoney promptly arrested him.

"Five hundred dollars bail for trial!" was the judgment on Payton Scott.

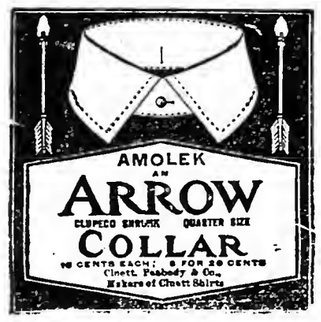
Boy Victim of Ready Revolver.

Salvatore Forina, 13 years old, of 136 Hudson Avenue, died in the Brooklyn Hospital yesterday from pistol wounds in the thigh which he had received Sunday at a wedding party where the entrance of the defeated suitor and a consequent rough house preceded the coffee. The boy was one of two who got the stray bullets. The other, a man named Scantino, it was said yesterday, would probably recover.

Funeral services for Policeman George M. Sechler of the Mercer Street Station, one of the officers shot while trying to arrest an Italian early Sunday morning, were held last night from his late home, 618 Macon Street, Brooklyn. Capt. Miles O'Reilly and a squad of reserves from the Sixteenth Precinct, the police band, and a detail of mounted police under the command of Mounted Sergeant Hilliard, were among the mourners.

The reserves, the mounted squad, and the band escorted the body from the policeman's late home to the Fulton Ferry, where it was taken aboard an annex boat for Jersey City. The body was shipped to the western part of the State for burial.

The funeral of Policeman Alfred A. Selleck will be held from his late home, 304 South Third Street, Williamsburg, this morning.



ASTOR THEATRE BENEFIT.

Selleck and Sechler Families to Get Half of 3 Days' Receipts.

The management of the Astor Theatre will give one-half the gross receipts of Thursday, Friday, and Saturday performances to the widows and orphans of Policemen Alfred Selleck and George M. Sechler, who were shot to death on Sunday.

Mr. Wagenhals of the theatre made the offer to Inspector Walsh yesterday, and Walsh got the consent of Commissioner Bingham. It is expected that $7,000 will be realized by the sale of tickets. Half of this sum will be turned over to the Commissioner for the use of the bereaved families.

AN INTERNATIONAL MEET THIS SUMMER

Oxford and Cambridge Propose Track Games with Yale and Harvard.

ENGLISHMEN TO COME HERE

Contests Would Be Held in the Harvard Stadium at Cambridge—Negotiations Now Pending.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—There is every probability that there will be an international intercollegiate athletic meet during the coming Summer between America and England—with Yale and Harvard on one side and Oxford and Cambridge on the other. The proposition, which was originally made by the English collegians, to alumni of Harvard and Yale residing in London, was that Oxford, as winner of the Oxford-Cambridge dual meet, compete against the winner of the Yale-Harvard meet to be held on May 11 in this city. This, however, did not meet with the approbation of the American universities, and the counter suggestion was made that the two English universities join and meet a Yale and Harvard team. It is on this basis that the international meet is likely to be arranged.

The American alumni in London communicated with the university authorities here and in Cambridge, and conveyed the wishes of the English universities to them. Yale and Harvard agreed that a meet was desirable and immediately authorized alumni in London to enter into preliminary negotiations with Oxford and Cambridge as to the time and place of the games and the list of events to be included in them. It is expected that a formal challenge will be received within a short time from England, and that it will be promptly accepted.

The games, if arranged, will be held in this country as the fast international meet was held abroad. They will undoubtedly take place in the Stadium at Cambridge, as the most suitable place for holding college track meets. New York City is out of the question owing to the lack of suitable grounds within easy reach of the city proper, where a good track and facilities for handling a big crowd are available. The Stadium affords both.

The games will be the third held jointly by Yale and Harvard and Oxford and Cambridge. In 1901 an Oxford-Cambridge team came to America and was defeated in New York by Yale and Harvard. In 1904 Yale and Harvard went abroad and defeated Oxford and Cambridge in London. Yale in addition has twice met Oxford, losing in England in 1894 and winning in America in 1896.

MRS. VANDERBILT GETS CUP.

Takes Trophy for Best All-Around Horse in Asheville Show.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 17.—The annual spring horse show at Riverside Park came to a close to-day, ending with the judging of all the blue ribbon winners for a cup to determine the best all-round horse in the show. This honor was captured by Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, who also carried off the blue ribbon in the second event of the day. Mrs. Vanderbilt handled the ribbons herself, driving her two favorites, Jet and Cinder. The attendance was larger than yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Lorillard were the guests of Mrs. A. B. Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Olmstead of New York were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Roehling of New York entertained a party of friends. Mrs. Frank Lockwood and Miss Lockwood of New York also entertained visitors to the show, while Augustus Sheppard and a party from New York were with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rees.

Among those who showed their horses in the ring were Mrs. J. B. A. Bennett, Mrs. Mortimer Hancock, Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Beekman Lorillard, and Mrs. Tench Coxe. Cups were presented by John A. Roehling, George W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Annie Martin, Miss Radeker, and Mrs. Joseph M. Mazzam. The chief prizewinners of the day were Mrs. Tench Coxe, Mrs. Ruth Radeker, Mrs. H. H. Briggs, Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, Mr. W. S. Ray, and F. A. Mears.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

The scarcity of competent jockeys, noted by many horsemen early in the season, already has caused turfmen to talk of inducing some of the American riders now abroad to return. Already an offer has been made to get Shaw to come back, but it is said that there is no chance for Shaw to do so, as he has made contracts for the year with foreign turfmen.

Jockey John Bullman, the leading rider of the turf a few years ago, and one of the best riders of two-year-olds that racing ever has produced, made his reappearance in the East yesterday at the Aqueduct track after having been in retirement for two years. Bullman is in good condition, and believes that he easily can ride at 110 pounds or less, and already he has made a contract for the year to ride for J. J. Walsh.

The race track police at Aqueduct, alleging that they had detected the man carrying information out of the rack track inclosure to the agents of poolrooms, arrested a young man who gave his name as James Wilson, late in the afternoon, and through the remainder of the racing detained him in the police room at the track.

In a letter received from the American jockey, Fred Taral, now riding in Europe, the news reached the Aqueduct track yesterday that Johnny Taral, Fred Taral's fifteen-year-old son, is in such ill-health that the boy, one of the most promising young jockeys in Europe, has been sent to the Alps for the Summer by his employer. Johnny Taral is under engagement to Baron Springer at a retaining fee of $7,500 a year.

The mare Logistilla, handicapped at 111 pounds, has been declared out of the Suburban Handicap by her owner, Samuel Hildreth. At the same time Logistilla was stricken from the Sheepshead Bay Handicap, the Thistle Stakes, and the Long Island Handicap, all to be run at the Coney Island Jockey Club's Spring meeting.

ROAD DRIVERS' PARADE.

Entry List for Annual Event Will Exceed That of Previous Years.

The annual Speedway parade and horse show of the Road Drivers' Association, which will be held on the Speedway Drive Saturday, May 4, promises to be the biggest event in the history of the organization. At a special meeting of the association, held last night at the Hotel Cadillac, Chairman G. A. Coleman of the Horse Show and Parade Committee reported that the entry list was in excess of last year, and it was probable that 500 horses would be in the parade. In order to accommodate a number of intending entrants it was decided to keep the entry list open until to-morrow at midnight.

The horse show grounds will be laid out directly in front of the grand stand, which will enable the occupants to witness both events from the grand stand.

The judges who will officiate at the horse show are Senator Horace White, Frank Ware, J. G. West, George Webb, and George R. Hall.

JUGGLER IS FIRST IN SELLING STAKE

Beaten Carter Handicap Horse Cleverly Captures the Rockaway at Aqueduct.

HOT SHOT'S STEEPLECHASE

When Juggler won the Rockaway Stakes at the Aqueduct race course yesterday, the victory left a clean seore for horses from the New Orleans Winter tracks, every stake event of the Aqueduct meeting to date having been won by seasoned horses from that Southern city.

Juggler's performance in the Carter was so far behind what his owner, Fred Burlew, believed to be his true form that the gelding was sent back to try again in company of lesser class, and in a fair field of selling class horses won a really good race, in clever style at the end, though it took hard riding and a lot of urging to keep him in front through the stretch. Of the nine horses named to run for the Rockaway, six furlongs, with selling allowances, four were withdrawn, and the fast four-year-old Jacobite, carrying E. R. Thomas's colors, was sent to the post a hot favorite at odds on, with Juggler the next choice. Slickaway, Pater, and Hooray made up the field, and to the lead of Slickaway at the lifting of the barrier, every horse had a turn in front in the run through the first five furlongs. Slickaway then was in the lead, with Jacobite second, and Juggler third, with just a furlong more to run, and through that last furlong whips and heels were at work on all three, Juggler responding best and coming away after a sharp struggle, to win at the finish by two lengths, while Slickaway, hanging on better than Jacobite was second, well off in front of the favorite.

The second feature of the afternoon's racing was the victory of Thomas Hitchcock's, Jr.'s, green jumper, Hot Shot, in the steeplechase. Hot Shot has been on the shelf so long that he had been absolutely forgotten by the general public, though he is the same Hot Shot that in the colors of J. E. Madden ran third in the Belmont Stakes of two years ago, finishing the race disabled with a split hoof, which was only repaired in time for him to be trained this season. Hot Shot went to the post at 8 to 1 in a field of four, with Commodore Fontaine a warm favorite at 20 to 9 on. Hot Shot performed in a style to surprise even his owner and trainer, and the manner of his victory was such as to make it appear that he is a worthy stable mate to the great jumpers of the Hitchcock stable, Good and Plenty and Hylas.

In the six-furlongs handicap a sensation was provided for the spectators when, just after the three horses running were started, Workman, ridden by the popular jockey Walter Miller, stumbled and pitched Miller over his head, in what seemed to be a severe fall. Miller was hardly on the ground before he arose and scrambled under the rail, limping slightly, while Workman, recovering quickly, went on before the field and actually galloped in first. Grapple, the odds on favorite, just behind him, winning easily from Clare Russell, the only other starter. Miller was bruised and shaken up, but he insisted that he was not hurt and could fill his riding engagements for the afternoon, and so he was out riding in all the remaining races, his next mount being Hooray, in the Rockaway Stakes, and his next two both winners, Suffrage and Master Robert. THE wonderful work of the Public Schools Athletic League is recognized by The New York Times as deserving widest notice. Accordingly, the Sunday issue of this paper will hereafter devote much space to it. With 175,000 active members in this city alone, with President Roosevelt as its honorary Vice President, the League has become a fact which is bound to have a most important effect upon the rising generation. Already it is plainly promoting manliness, honor, scholarship, manners and bodily health. Parents ought to know all about the League. Boys are eager for the League news. Both should have regularly The Sunday New York Times; which leads in news in this, as in all other branches of Sport.

Yankees Defeat Athletics, 5 to 4, on Ninth Inning Batting Rally.

A ninth-inning batting rally by the New York Americans yesterday turned defeat into victory and gave them the second game of the series with the Philadelphia Athletics by the score of 5 to 4. It was an exciting and unexpected termination to an otherwise uninteresting contest, and aptly illustrated the glorious uncertainties of the National sport. The erratic "Rube" Waddell pitched for Philadelphia and kept his hits so well scattered that when the "Yankees" began their half of the ninth inning the score was 4 to 2 in favor of the Quakers. Waddell began by sending the first player to first on called balls. A single followed, when Capt. Davis sent his star pitcher to the bench and replaced him with the Indian, Bender. The change did not work as it did on the opening day, when Bender succeeded in stopping a threatened batting rally, as two clean singles and a dropped thrown ball enabled the home team to gather in three runs with only two men out.

The Yankees were entitled to the game by their playing. They outbatted and outfielded the Athletics, but up to the turning point of the game were unfortunate in making their hits at the wrong time. Elberfeld, who aent in the winning run, led both teams in batting with three hits, but his first two singles were thrown away for run-getting purposes, as his efforts were unsupported. He was the only player to make more than one hit.

The contest, considering the cold weather, was well played, but lacked the brilliancy which is necessary to arouse the enthusiasm of the spectators. Doyle pitched a steady, effective game, and held the heavy hitting Athletics down to six hits, three of which were made in the first inning, but thereafter he steadied down and had his opponents at his mercy. The score:

Chicago Bunched Hits and Won.

DETROIT, Mich., April 17.—Chicago bunched three hits and a base on balls on Killian in the fourth, scoring three runs and deciding the result. Smith was hit freely, except when there were men on bases. Manager Jones was put out of the game for disputing one of Umpire Stafford's decisions, and off the field for debating one of Umpire Sheridan's. Davis was put out of the game and off the field for throwing a ball at Umpire Stafford. The weather made the game a torture for both players and spectators. Score:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Giants Win from Brooklyn in Exciting Finish at Washington Park.

There was plenty of excitement in the closing scenes of the game at Washington Park yesterday, which New York won from Brooklyn by a score of 2 to 1. It took ten innings to decide the issue, and until the last half of the ninth it looked all New York. The score was only 1 to 0, but Ferguson, who occupied the box for the Giants, had allowed but one hit. But after Maloney had struck out, "Bad Bill Dahlen" hurled Casey's grounder to the right field bleachers and the Brooklyn Captain pulled up on second base. Lumley then drove a clean single over second base, but though Seymour held Casey on third, Lumley made second on the throw in. A hit meant two runs and the game, and Jordan drove one out that looked good enough, but Corcoran made a bully stop. He could not recover in time to get the runner and one man scored. Ferguson put on steam and struck Batch out. Lewis drove a terrific grounder at Devlin, which the third baseman juggled, but caught his man at first.

In New York's tenth inning both Ferguson and Shannon were retired. Then Browne beat out a grounder to short and stole second, getting both bases by a hair's breadth. Devlin singled to centre and Maloney ran in on the ball, getting it as Browne rounded third base. A perfect throw had the right fielder by ten feet, but for some reason Bell stepped in front of Ritter and intercepted the throw, fumbling it and allowing Browne to score. It proved the winning run, for Brooklyn in her half was unable to get a man around, though Ritter reached first on balls and both Hummell and Maloney hit hard flies which Browne caught.

The game was replete with brilliant fielding features, which, with the splendid pitching, was responsible for the close score. There was plenty of hard hitting, but again and again a remarkable stop or throw robbed the batsman of the credit of a hit. Brooklyn suffered especially in this respect, the remarkable support he received enabling Ferguson to hold them down to two hits. Both Ferguson and Bell were effective when men were on bases and hits meant runs.

Seymour was the only man to hit safely consistently, getting three clean doubles and losing one through a fine catch by Lumley. New York's first run came through his first two-bagger following Shannon's single. The score:

Opening Day at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 17.—In spite of the cold weather over 8,000 people to-day saw the opening of the local baseball season with a game between the Pittsburg and Chicago teams. President Pulliam of the National League was present and threw out the first ball. The Chicagos won by getting hits at opportune times and taking advantage of errors by the Pittsburgers. Neither pitcher was startling in his work, but Taylor was given errorless support, while the support of Willis was poor. Score:

14 INNINGS AT PRINCETON.

Lafayette Wins a Remarkable Game from the Tigers.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 17.—It took fourteen innings to decide to-day's baseball game between Princeton and Lafayette, the visitors finally winning out by a splendid batting rally. The weather was too cold for good baseball, but both sides played remarkably well notwithstanding. The contest was largely a pitchers' battle, Schneider and Heyniger dividing the honors about evenly. The score:

Fordham Bats Out a Victory.

In a game replete with hair-raising stops and splendid catches and heavy batting by Fordham, Villa Nova was trimmed yesterday at Fordham Field by the score of 9 to 2. The New York boys played one of the best games they have put up so far this year and showed a liking for Peloquin's delivery. In all, the Bronx boys hammered out eleven safeties, including two three-baggers and three two-baggers. The score by innings:

THE DELUSIONS OF MR. BRYAN.

"In 1908 we shall not only win a victory, but shall be in power for generations, and it shall fall to our lot to carry out all the reforms for which the people are clamoring," said Mr. BRYAN to his friends of the Brooklyn Democratic Club Tuesday evening.

We do not know upon what facts or beliefs Mr. BRYAN bases this prophecy. If he is really speaking as a prophet he risks his whole reputation; if he speaks as a politician seeking merely to put heart into his followers, we must doubt the sufficiency of the means to the end. He deludes himself, but not his followers. A Bryan Democrat would have to be very blind to the signs of the times if he believed that his party, or the Bryan portion of his party, will triumph next year and remain in power for generations.

All the reforms for which the people are clamoring? Every man who keeps his ears open knows that these are Mr. ROOSEVELT'S reforms. Originally they were Mr. BRYAN'S. Mr. ROOSEVELT has seized upon them, has made them completely his own, and he has vitalized them with his personality and his genius. He is so far superior to Mr. BRYAN in ability, in intellectual reach and resource, in picturesqueness, in zeal, force, and ardor, and in his command of all the arts by which crowds are roused and led that Mr. BRYAN is as completely "blanketed" and beaten as if he had never been in the race. In comparison with the wonderfully gifted leader in radicalism Mr. BRYAN seems pale and ineffectual indeed. No very large number of persons any longer seriously attends to him. Demonstrations organized in his honor seem cold and perfunctory. Democrats who wish to remain "in politics" abide with him because they have nowhere else to go. But the people? The reforms for which they clamor, the chastising of the railroads, the chaining of the corporations, the abridgment of the swollen fortunes, with all these another and a far abler agitator and radical than Mr. BRYAN has charged himself.

Robbed by Mr. ROOSEVELT of all his living issues, afraid to trust himself to his issue of Government ownership of railroads, Mr. BRYAN, desperately casting about for some idea with which his name may be identified in the popular mind, has fished up the ancient, battered, uninteresting, and academic notion of the initiative and referendum. You might as well try to inspire the people by urging upon them a new method of extracting the cube root. The initiative and referendum has a deathless charm for raw minds. It is the last support of frayed and outworn political reputations. A theory which, if applied in private business, would result in universal bankruptcy, which has in every land been rejected by the founders of political institutions, which is applicable only to the affairs of small, primitive, and homogeneous communities, will not be transformed by Mr. BRYAN into an issue about which the people will go wild.

Mr. BRYAN really confesses failure upon all issues but one. He says he will drive out of the party Democrats who differ with him in respect to the initiative and referendum. In driving Democrats out of their party Mr. BRYAN has been tremendously successful. In that field he is supreme. We know of no other in which he any longer counts for much. He may get himself nominated next year, but it will be a campaign without enthusiasm, without confidence, without heart. Running against Mr. ROOSEVELT he would be beaten worse than Judge PARKER was beaten in 1904. Running against Mr. TAFT his campaign would be equally hopeless. But, whether intentionally or not, Mr. ROOSEVELT has forced Mr. TAFT into a position in his own State that gravely imperils his availability. He has provoked a fight, he has made a direct issue with the Republican organization in that State, and while Mr. TAFT and Mr. TAFT'S candidacy are the subject matter of the contest, Mr. TAFT himself is sent away upon distant missions, and so loses whatever advantage might accure to him from personal appeal to his fellow-citizens and from active participation in the strife. If the President had desired to clear the field so that he should remain not only the most conspicuous but the sole figure in it, his forcing of the Taft issue in Ohio would have been set down by able politicians as a master stroke of policy. Mr. BRYAN can judge whether circumstances and manoeuvres that tend to make Mr. ROOSEVELT'S nomination inevitable are likely to be favorable or fatal to his own ambitions.

PEACE CONGRESS RESOLUTIONS.

The resolutions yesterday adopted by the Peace Congress agreeably refute the prognostications of those who predicted that the congress would be controlled by impratical sentimentalists. That bas, undoubtedly, been the general European view, as expressed by the press. The "platonics" of Sir HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN have been answered by inquiries whether Great Britain was prepared to abandon "the two-power standard." When the United States proposed that the limitation of armaments should be added to the programme, our Government was advised at Paris to "go to Berlin," and at Berlin to "go to Paris." The general question was that put in the debate on naval expenses in the French Senate, "Who is going to begin?" And the organs of the nations which stagger under the weight of their armaments bave told American and even British organs of peace and conciliation that these organs were talking much at their ease.

The answer to these doleful vaticinations is found in the resolutions of the Peace Congress assembled by the efforts of Mr. CARNEGIE. The sentimentalists and the visionaries who were expected to control the congress have not controlled it. What is there unpractical or fantastic in the proposal that The Hague Conference shall become an "institution," meeting periodically and statedly for the furtherance of the ends of its original assembly? Or that The Hague Tribunal shall be an international court in permanent session, and open to all nations? Or that a general treaty of arbitration shall at the next Hague Conference be drawn up and submitted for ratification to all the nations? Or that all international disputes shall be submitted, not to the arbitration, but to the mediation of impartial powers before a war is declared or waged? Or that private property at sea shall have the same immunity in case of war as private property on land? Or even that action should be taken for the limitations of the armaments which have so greatly increased since the first Hague Conference was called to regulate them?

How can any power justly or plausibly except to the consideration, at least, of these propositions? The adoption of them would plainly be a great step in the direction of peace. It would be for every nation concerned a policy of national insurance at a premium a mere trifle in comparison with the cost of the armaments which are avowedly maintained for purposes of national insurance. And these propositions are in line with the opinion of the civilized world. They are, in fact, so far as they go, the expressions of that public opinion which, as DANIEL WEBSTER said three-quarters of a century ago, is destined to supersede "fleets and armies" in the direction of the destinies of mankind. We may, to be sure, repeat the eloquent words of the Baron D'ESTOURNELLES DE CONSTANT, in the debate from which we have already quoted:

> I am not combating the Minister of Marine, I am combating the errors of many Ministers, Ministers of yesterday, Ministers of to-day, and—for I am under no illusions—Ministers of to-morrow. Well do I know that more than one day and more than one effort will be needed to triumph over an error by which many private interests profit, but of which the whole country is the unconscious victim.

As an effort for the enlightenment and the organization of that public opinion which is more and more coming to be the court of last resort, the "last argument" of peoples if not of Kings in the modern world, it may well be that the New York Conference of 1907, as a prelude to The Hague Conference of the same year, will be entitled to a memorable place in history.

THE UTILITIES COMMISSION.

At the Albany Club's Jefferson reception Lieut. Gov. CHANLER looked beyond the controversy over the Public Utilities bill to what will result upon its passage. His plea was for a business commission, representing neither the Republican nor the Democratic Party, but the people. The strap-hangers in New York City, said Mr. CHANLER, are not yearning for a Republican commission. The Brooklynites who daily struggle in the Bridge crush do not care as much for either party as they do for their comfort and lives. Said Mr. CHANLER:

> What they want is some guarantee that there will be as little partisan politics as possible in the commission. What is true of the city is true of the State. We do not want politics in the men who, as Commissioners, are to have a decided power over our railroads.

Perhaps it is unnecessary to borrow trouble upon this account with such a man as Mr. HUGHES as Governor, and yet it is neither gratuitous nor premature to take precautions. The Federal statute forbids the appointment of more than three Commissioners from the same party, and political considerations are always balanced in making appointments. In one aspect this is an absurdity. There is no Republican method nor any Democratic method of administering a railway, whether steam or electric, and whether street or elevated, city or suburban. It is fortunate that this is so when a Democratic metropolis has to trust a Republican administration for the supervision of one of its greatests interests, and when politics are so mixed that the Republican Governor has only Democratic colleagues in the State offices. This is pre-eminently a situation in which politics should be ignored, and the most competent men should get the appointments.

The ideal to be aimed at is not a miniature Legislature, with elaborate procedure and interminable red tape. "The Texas idea," as described in The Outlook's account of the government of several Texas cities, would be a good model. Galveston and Houston have learned under stress of necessity how to boil down entire city administrations into exequtive bodies of a small membership, with whom business can be done as readily as with any mercantile establishment. There are Aldermen, but they are such only in name. There are no committees, nor hearings, except such as are in continuous session in business hours. These officials in charge of all public utilities resemble corporation Directors more than anything else, and business is done with a facility and speed and thoroughness to which the cities named had been strangers. This is as it should be, for cities are corporations, not political sovereignties, and municipal politics is a misnomer and an incumbrance. The plea that our Utilities Commission shall not be partisan is therefore in the interest of efficiency rather than of equity in the distribution of patronage.

THE CLEVELAND OBJECT LESSON.

The Cleveland Electric Railway "cannot do that sum." Our telegram does not supply details, but states definitely that 8-cent fares do not cover cost, and that the deficit prevents a continuance of the experiment. So sure is this that the tracks are to be torn up. This is conclusive as the case stands, but it may be supposed that the conditions are not immutable. There have been cases in which men of talent for that sort of thing have been able to create business enough to turn a loss into a profit. It is not the fare per passenger, but the receipts per car, which determine whether the balance of profit or loss is upon the debit or credit side. It is conceivable that through a term of years the right man might produce a density of traffic which should give Cleveland the cheap fares which it has not been able to produce by enactment. A promoter of that sort would be willing to take long chances and to wait for his reward, but he would require it to be considerable, and reasonably certain. Any chance that the conditions of his contract would be modified without asking his advice or consent would be fatal to private enterprise, and Cleveland would be left to see what municipal administration could do for it. It is now clearly perceived that payment of deficits from tax money is not true economy, and that fares and tax bills must be taken together in the reckoning of prudent citizens.

Cleveland's experience seems to us to have a double significance. It justifies what has been called the Bourbon attitude by those who are implacable against innovations not thoroughly worked out. The abolitionists could not compromise on slavery, because it was a question of morals. Economists cannot compromise upon Government or municipal ownership, because it is a question of the multiplication table. However admirable the argument, it will not make good deficits, and deficits have thus far been the surest product of public utility experiments. In the second place, Cleveland is only one among several examples of the extremity to which the rate regulating mania is proceeding. Not only is the Federal Government active. Not only are the States imitating the United States. Municipalities are catching the fever. Gov. FOLK has summoned a special session of the Legislature of Missouri, and in his message especially counsels the fixing of rates by cities. If this meant the fixing of "reasonable" rates, in good faith in the public interest, it might be hard to justify opposition. Nobody will volunter to defend extortion, or injurious monopoly; but the true remedy for such offenses—when they are facts instead of dreams—is to safeguard the future, not to invalidate existing rights because of improvident bargains in the past, or because of any theoretical right to regulate rates. The first contract invalidated by retroactive legislation will signify the retirement of private capital from the field. Cleveland exemplifies the futility of campaign promises. St. Louis will pay a penalty upon a larger scale if its Legislature shall be dragooned into doing what it has just refused to do in order to make a campaign issue. But New York will suffer worst if, with its nearly exhausted borrowing power and urgent need for the expenditure of millions only obtainable by private enterprise, it shall take any action disturbing capital in its security for profits lawfully realized from contracts freely entered into.

DISARMING ITALIANS.

It is possible, of course, that if policemen had not been the victims of the habit of many of our Italian, and especially of our Sicilian, immigrants of carrying concealed weapons, the general raid upon those immigrants for the purpose of disarming them would not have been made. But it is none the less a matter for public congratulation and an unmixed good that it should have been made.

It does not follow that because an Italian or a Sicilian is found in possession of a concealed weapon he is a professional criminal, a robber or a blackmailer; that he is a member of the Mafia, the Black Hand, or any other criminal organization. But it is true that every professional criminal among the Italian immigrants is also a carrier of concealed weapons. It is also true that there is a belief among many Italians who are not professional criminals that there is something unmanly in an appeal to the law, and that it behooves every man to right his own wrongs. This belief and action upon it are as incompatible with American notions of civilization, which is in the first place a matter of law and order, as organized crime. True, it is generally at the expense of another Italian that these Italians put their theories into practice. But that should make no difference. The life of an Italian immigrant is as sacred in the eyes of American law as that of a native. The professional criminals among the Italian immigrants form a dangerously large proportion. A large proportion of the weapons seized by the police were undoubtedly provided by their owners as aids to crime. But, even leaving out the professional criminals, it is intolerable that the most passionate and lawless part of the population should be abundantly provided with the means of doing deadly mischief when their murderous passions chance to be aroused. Such a lesson as this raid and its consequences are likely to administer will teach these immigrants, in a very impressive fashion, that the presumption that a man who conceals a deadly weapon means to make deadly use of it is the presumption on which the police and the Magistrates of New York are prepared to act. After the lesson has been administered and learned it will be overwhelming. Every Italian in New York will be put upon notice that the carrying of concealed weapons is in itself a crime, and a sign that the man who carries them does so for purposes of committing other crimes.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Are Wise to Go Slowly.

It is beyond question that a large number — perhaps something like 30 per cent.—of the children in the public schools have defective eyesight and that all of these children need properly adjusted glasses to enable them fully to utilize the educational facilities provided for them and to have a fair chance of developing their physical, mental, and moral possibilities. Yet we think that the Board of Education has done well not to undertake without further consideration and information the great task of supplying free the glasses needed. The thing itself should be done; that is, the children with defective sight should all get their glasses, but there are several reasons, all more or less weighty, though perhaps none of them is conclusive, why the glasses should be supplied, at least whenever possible, by their own parents.

The reason presented first in an opposing statement made by the Assistant Secretary of the board's Committee on Physical Welfare of Children is that the expense would be much greater than the advocates of the plan have yet admitted. To that we do not ascribe much importance, for whether the first cost would be $30,000, or two or three times as much, the city could afford and would be willing to pay it if necessary. Of greater moment is the argument that the gift of glasses would be an undermining of parental responsibility and lead to still further calls upon the city to act as a dispenser of alms. Its duty, in a matter like this, it seems to us, is to teach the parents to meet their responsibilities, rather than to relieve them of them, and only when the inability to buy glasses is demonstrable should they be given. Even in that case, according to the third argument of the Assistant Secretary, the indigent parent had better apply to the clinics, dispensaries, and other relief agencies that stand ready to meet such a demand.

All of these considerations should receive the attention of the board, and it may be that their final decision will be to limit their part of the reform to periodic examination of the children's eyes by the regular achool physicians, all of whom are or ought to be competent to tell when a pupil needs glasses, and then by due regulations compel the parents to send their children to an oculist. Glasses so secured would be much better appreciated and guarded than those obtained for nothing.

Care should be taken, however, that the children get, not glasses, but the right glasses, for if this is not done their last state will be worse than their first, and just there will lie the danger, in a city like New York, if the matter is left to the parents, for the delusion that opticians are oculists is lamentably widespread. The examination of the eyes of children is particularly difficult, because their muscles of accommodation are strong and their defects of vision not to be found by testing their ability to read letters across a room.

A New Law and New Wickedness.

Secretary WILSON has done well in making emphatic and public announcement of the fact that when the manufacturers of foods and drugs pretend that in allotting to them a "serial number" the Government has guaranteed the purity of their wares, they are guilty of a deliberate deception of the public—of a deception of exactly the sort which the new law was intended to prevent.

It is true that the "serial number" is proof of the existence of a guarantee, but the guarantee is that of the manufacturer to the Government, or, rather, that of the manufacturer to the retail dealer, recorded by the Government, and not that of the Government to the purchasing public. In other words, the manufacturer files at Washington a general statement to the effect that all his products are pure and true to label. Then, without investigation, the Department of Agriculture issues to him a serial number, to show that the statement has been made, and the retailer can sell packages bearing that number without incurring general responsibility for the nature or quality of their contents. That responsibility falls exactly where it belongs, on the manufacturer, and, by means of the serial number, the manufacturer can be easily and promptly prosecuted if the consumer or a Government Inspector discovers that the label is misleading.

In other words, the serial number implies nothing except that the manufacturer has made a formal assertion of his honesty and of his purpose to obey the law. That he is the one or intends to do the other is left quite undetermined. If he is not and does not, he is in more peril than he used to be, but he hasn't the slightest right to advertise his serial number as if it were a Government guarantee. Indeed, by doing so, he lays himself open to suspicion, and the Secretary of Agriculture charges him with "outrageous misrepresentation." The department advises the consumer, he says, "to judge the purity or the impurity of the products according to the false reprssentations mads concerning the guarantee," and he adds: "In other words, manufacturers who will deceive the public about the guarantee will lie about the quality of their product." That is a shrewd way of putting ths case—a little cruel, perhaps, but just and accurate, so far as we can see.

Tolerance Gained Expensively.

A new "most important lesson" of the Thaw trial is found by almost everybody who looks for one. Perhaps the most curious of thess discoveries is that of the able person who writes a daily column for The Boston Transcript under the caption of "The Clerk of the Day." He finds satisfaction, or at least consolation, where nobody else had thought of looking for it—in the fact that "we have all talked about the Thaw case, pretty nearly all of us far more than was nice."

The established conversational limitations having been thus broken down, they can never be re-established, the Clerk thinks, and in common justice we will have to adopt a more tolerant frame of mind toward peoples—the so-called Latin races, for instance—who, if they ever recognized those limitations lately so dear to us, long since forgot them. Therefore, he argues:

> "Perhaps the gain in toleranoe will make up for the loss in delicacy. We've been altogether too cocky about our morals—which weren't so much after all. We've been strutting around with 'Better than thou' written all over us. And it's not unnatural that 'Better than thou' should connote 'Worse than we.' * * * Tolerance isn't the mere indulgent looking upon other countries as horrid while declining to punch their heads for it. It's a frank recognition of differing points of view—in manners, taste, and morals. It's an agreement to disagree. It's an arrangement by which ws accept all the good in other nations snd refuse to let the good be blotted out by ths evil. It's an optimistic, hopeful, generous attitude, and friendly withal. How finely we boast of our love for humanity, yet how hostile, at heart, has been our feeling for the races (saving only our own) that compose humanity! Chiefly, that has been because we thought so absurdly well of ourselves—especially as concerned our notions of propriety."

That is ingenious, amusing, provocative of thought—most things except convincing. It's not quite that.

ENGLISH CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

Exception Taken to the Comments of De Lancey Nicoll and Mr. Jerome.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Naturally the Thaw case has caused comparisons to be made between English and American methods of justice in criminal cases. Mr. De Lancey Nicoll ascribes the law's greater delay here to the fact that the American system favors the accused more than the English. Except as to rich defendants, the exact contrary is true. From arrest until verdict the accused in England is treated as not guilty. The third degree is unknown there; public opinion would not tolerate it for an instant. A prosecuting counsel never engages in England in a desperate fight for a verdict of guilty; the traditions of the English bar in modern times do not countenance such a practice. The prosecutor simply places the facts before the jury dispassionately, and calmly awaits their verdict. The Judge will himself bring out points in the prisoner's favor if his counsel fails to do so. The accused may be an habitual criminal of the worst type, yet no previous conviction is allowed to be known to the jury until after their verdict is given.

Mr. Jerome, in an interview, ascribes the greater rapidity of English trials to the superior ability of their Judges; also because an English Judge is the judge of fact as well as of law. This, again, is not the case, nor does another comment of Mr. Jerome's, this time on the Whiteley murder, possess much value. He says:

> "In the recent Whiteley case, tried in London, a conviction was obtained and the defendant was sentenced to death in a few hours. It is also on record that within a few hours afterward the Home Secretary commuted the sentence to life servitude, which stands a commentary that a mistake had been made."

There is only one verdict possible in England in murder cases—there are not two degrees—and the Judge must pronounce the death sentence. The Home Secretary always reviews the evidence in every capital case, and at least one-third of the condemned have their sentences commuted. ENGLISH LAWYER.

AN EXTREMIST

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in regard to the women teachers of New York fills the bill exactly. If the women teachers in the New York public schools are not satisfied with their too good wages, long vacations, and short hours, let them resign and go to the States they came from to better themselves in New York.

I was educated in a public school in England nigh fifty years ago, and I never had a female teacher, always men.

My wife was educated in a public school in Wisconsin nigh fifty years ago, and she never had a female teacher, always men.

Why not do away with female teachers in all boys' and girls' schools except in the primary grades? If we do this we will have quietness about equal pay and better educated children. R. R. R.

English as She Is Written.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just received the following neatly engraved circular letter. It may interest your readers as an example of French tradesmen's English:

> Madam,
>
> We have the honour to adoite you that we will be transferred next april on the 15th; from the 23 rue de la Paix to the 279, Rue St. Honore near the Rue Royale on account of expropriation and in the same occasion for enlargement of our house.
>
> We take thie opportunity in profit to make a exposition of our news models for spring and summer and we hope, Madam to have the advantage of your visite.
>
> Hoping to see you soon in our news salloons, we beg to remain, Madam, yours very respectfully.
>
> P. S.—As the past we begain very mee travelling coat et tailor dresses from 50 to 60 dollars.

We now have an authoritative statement as to the gossip which goes on in such places, for does not the worthy tradeaman say the place is a "news" saloon? E. B.

What of the Plaza Hotel Murder?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the Thaw case has been relegated to the background for a while, can somebody tell us what is doing about the "Plaza Hotel murder"?—as foul a stain as ever rested on the fair name of New York. J. W. E.

WEE PORTRAITS IN COLOR.

Some Fantasies Also at the Show of Miniature Painters.

This year the Society of Miniature Painters celebrates its eighth year of existence by taking possession of the upper gallery at Knoedler's, where the stream of sightseers and flirta moves most continuously, carrying with it now and then an artist or a lover of art.

Certain miniatures are arranged in wall boxes covered with glass, which gives them a kind of prominence and suggests that they are coetlier, more precious, than the ruck of little portraits. But they are not; it is just cleverness on the part of the committee. So the grouping and the boxing off help to dispel that monotony which is sure to be heard droning from walls where many pictures are displayed which are nearly the same in size and greatly similar in colors.

Mr. Baer, the President, offers four portraits, of which only that of Mrs. J. S. K. rises above mediocrity, but, fortunately, he has a fanciful miniature of Spring sailing through the air and scattering flowers over the greensward upon a cliff by the sea. Prima Vera's drapery of pale pink gossamer trails after her, uncovering the torso to the waist, and mingling with the fleecy clouds behind. Prima Vera is perfectly comfortable as we may see from her smile; that smile would surely come off if she swept head on into an April snowstorm. Miniature work is very suitable to conceptions of this kind, where the delicate water color technique and underground of ivory fit the daintiness of such themes.

Mrs. Mary Fairchild has a nude kneeling figure of a girl of 13, with gossamer drapery over head, shoulder, and one forearm; she is arranging a spray of roses in a vase, and one large pink rose lies on the floor in the foreground. The title is merely "The Rose." Here, then, is one symbolical picture and ons of genre; but there is also a miniature landscape. Mrs. Anna Brewster paints on ivory a minim view of the Hudson from Riverside Park. Then there are "An Old Dutch Woman," in big white cap, seated on a bench, with her hands in a dish on her lap, shown by Miss Lucy May Stanton; "The Olden Style" of bonnet, (1820,) by Miss Daggett, and "Old Pete," who, heaven knows, looks Dutch enough, in his brown cap and visor, with his mutton-chop white whiskers and long clay pipe, the sending of Miss Mabel R. Welch. Even the modern study of sunlight has penetrated into the ranks of the miniaturists if we are to take seriously Mrs. A. W. Siebert's claim to be working for that end in the seated portrait of a young woman under a white umbrella. The fair sitter's profile is in shadow and defines itself against the umbrella.

After all, the main reason for the existence of an American or any other society of miniature painters must be found in portraits, and for the most part portraits hardly to be distinguished from pot-boilers. An exception is the likeness of Miss May Herrick by Mrs. Ella Condie Lamb. Delicacy of feature and charm of coloration in the sitter have been reflected with great exactness. Mrs. Lamb has known how to eliminate all that is dull and frigid in the miniature of commerce and leave a dainty vision of snow-white hair, dark-blue eyes, sparkling expression, and perfect features; this suggests the fairylike color-prints in lithograph by Whistler.

Miss Ella Shepard Lamb exposes two firmly and finely colored heads rather above the common size for miniatures, which she calls "A 'Kappa' of Washington" and "A Princess in a Fairy Tale," the latter a comely young person in a very low-necked gown, whose red-gold hair comes down in two majestic braids.

More than ever before the miniaturists offer examples of broad workmanship instead of the minute and stipply handlings which one often sees. Thus Miss Mary Gay uses water-color wash effects, and Miss Florence H. Dreyfous paints a "Miss B." in strong light and shade with the broad treatment of charcoals and pastel. One asks whether some of these miniaturists do not make a life-size portrait first and then reduce the picture, as a sculptor works for a medallion in a large scale and reduces the model to a smaller size before putting it in bronze.

Notable are the likenesses by Miss Alice Beckington, Miss Mary H. Tannahill, Miss Jane H. Valentine, and Mrs. Orrick-Semmes, ("The Artist's Mother.") Fräulein Magda Heucrmann paints Lenbach looking over his spectacles as in his well-known self-portrait, and under "The Chemist" depicts some well-known person who certainly looks the part. Mr. William J. Whittemore has attractive little portraits of Mrs. N. E. Paine and the Misses L. McCutcheon, and M. Scoville.

The Miniature Painters are only sixteen in number, so the greater part of the exhibitors are non-members. Among the noteworthy in the former class are Mrs. Bush-Brown, who gives a lifelike expression and takes to unusual backgrounds; Mrs. Collver, who paints Japanese children and maids in Japanese garb; Mrs. Lucia Fairchild Fuller and Miss Laura Coombs Hills, about whom there is little to say this year; Mrs. L. A. Josephi, who contributes a "Decorative Panel," and Mr. Thomas R. Manley, who exposes four miniatures.

Simplified Spelling Ambitions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's leader on "Restoring Latin," you say incidentally: "One of the chief grievances that old-fashioned spellers have against our own spelling reformers is that, so far as they succeed, they will succeed only by distinguishing American spelling still further from British, instead, by united international action, of establishing an international standard."

Permit me to state for the information of your readers that the Simplified Spelling Board is doing its very best to bring about that "united international action" which you deiderate. The matter has been a very important part of uor programme from the outset. We attacked the problem in our own way by endeavoring to arouse an intellectual interest in the subject of spelling without proposing anything new whatsoever. In that preliminary effort we have been remarkably successful, which should be teken as an augury that the rest will come. Just now the prospect is pretty good. CALVIN THOMAS.

THE MILLENNIUM.

O would the blest Mellennium
Would kindly hurry up and come,
And help us in the troubles that Obscure our view of where we're at!

How pleasant it would prove to see
Ben Tillman sitting down to tea
With Theodore, our favorite son,
And Mister Booker Washington!

How nice 'twould be if some bright day
That Brownsville set, in glad array,
Paraded as a Regiment
Commanded by the President!

How we'd rejoice in nineteen-eight
Electing a Triumvirate
To rule the land—Fairbanks and Taft
And Root—with Roosevelt abaft!

O wouldn't it be mighty fine
To see the Railroads all in line,
So prosperous they'd pay the fare
Of passengers to anywhere!

How happy all the world would seem
If we could realize the dream
When taxes and high tariffs end,
And Congress pays a dividend!

What great and welkin-splitting cheers
Would greet Millennial Engineers
Who'd take that mighty Salton Sea
And pipe it down to Panamee!

O what a glorious, gladsome time,
When for the men who write our rhyme
Carnegie builds a mansion tight
Instead of for the things they write!

O prithee blest Millennium,
On bended knee we beg thee come
And bring fruition, rich and ripe,
Unto these visions of the Pipe!

ART EXHIBITION AT THE ARTS CLUB

Sculpture, Paintings, Pastels, by Artist Members Only, Fill the Gallery.

AN EXCELLENT SHOWING

Some grumbling was indulged in by a few of the painter and sculptor members of the National Arts Club this Winter because the Art Committee had not made arrangements for an Autumn or mid-winter exhibit of fine art by club members. It is a fair and debatable question, however, whether April is not as good a month as Decsmber for such a purpose. At any rate, during this first season of the club's occupsncy of its new quarters on Gramercy Park other exhibitions took precedence; whether hereafter the annual showing of club work in the fine arts shall be held in Autumn, Winter, or Spring will depend on the artist members themselves.

Meantime the new Art Committee has brought together a very enjoyable collection of sculptures, oils, pastels, water colors, and drawings in black and whits, and of medals and miniatures, which fill the galleries, and may be seen daily, afternoons and evenings, during the coming fortnight.

Last night there was a preliminary opening for members and the press, and on Saturday there will be a general reception, at which none-members will be present by special invitation.

One of the places of honor above the hearth in the large gallery is held by a Japanese symbolical figure painted by John La Farge, who contributes also a picture of Samoan maidens engaged in a ceremony, views of South Pacific islands in water color, a small "Supper at Emmaeus," and other pictures. Robert W. Vonnoh shows a full-length portrait of a lady in Louis Quinze costume, and a fine flower piece taken in his own garden at Rockland, near the Tappan Zee. Frank V. Du Mond contributes original paintings of forest interiors with groups of people, one showing an encampment of gypsies in a Spanish oak wood. This is a picture that repays examination. Some of the gypsies are busied about the fire with cooking pans; others are extended luxuriously in the glow of the fire; still others play the guitar. The little figures emerge from the depths of the oak forest in a way that makes one think of George Borrow's description of gypsy life in Spain.

Two decorative landscapes by Leon Dabo, kept in a low and cool key, have a place to themselves in the southern end of the long gallery. Miss Juliet Thompson shows a number of life-size portraits and fancy half-lengths in pastel, executed with remarkable skill and feeling for color. Richard Hall exhibits a life-size portrait of his daughter, and other likenesses. Douglas Volk has a capital full-length portrait of Mr. Seligmann as virtuoso with his 'cello, about half life-size, an an ideal figure of a girl in colonial dress. Mrs. Ella Condie Lamb sends a group of small portraits, one being a head of Mr. Spencer Trask, President of the club. It is something of a novelty to see this charming artist as a painter of portraits; she has a decided talent that way. William Walton exposes three odd little fanciful pictures called "The Haughty Princess," "A la Canicule," and "The King's Daughter," the last a scene from some Arabian Nights entertainment, with figures suggestive of Persian paintings. Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nicholls has a half-length of her young daughter and a delightful little oil sketch of Venetian boys lounging in the sun on the stairway that leads from the water to the Giardino Pubblico, a painting on water color card board. Benjamin C. Porter shows two portraits of attractive little ladies dressed in old-fashioned gowns that suggest the eighteenth century. These pictures have the tone of paintings of that period.

Nudes are very rare in this exhibition, doubtless owing to the fact that they are unsalable in this country. An exception, but a brilliant one, is a nude woman lying with head toward the spectator, a red cushion placed near her shoulder. It is by Miss Helen Watson Phelps and has already won an Honorable Mention at an International Fair. A most difficult feat in drawing the head and figure foreshortened is met with extraordinary success and the flesh painting is adequate.

Sculpture is well represented by ideal heads and busts from Daniel C. French and Herbert Adams, statuettes by George E. Bissell and Hermon A. MacNell, medals and medallions by Victor Brenner, and others. Richard George sends two excellent busts, and there are good pieces by Brewster, symbolical figures and bas reliefs. Among the MacNell figurines are his "Snake Dancer" and "Multonomah." Bissell sends a statuette of Diogenes with his lantern, and a reduction in bronze of his seated statue of Abraham de Peyster on Bowling Green.

Among the paintings are decorative compositions by Bicknell, interiors with figures by Miss Alethea Platt, an alert and excellent likeness by Miss Clara McChesney of Francis Wilson strand views and scapes with fishermen by George Wharton Edwards, romantic figure pieces by Mrs. Parrish, and flower pieces by Mrs. E. M. Scott.

Although a number of artist members have failed to respond to the call for this exhibition, which comes at a time when there are many rival art shows going on here and in other cities, the collection is varied and attractive, while the committee found it necessary to limit the number of pieces accepted owing to lack of room. It is clear that hereafter this will prove an annual art show to reckon with.

NAST COLLECTION SALE.

A Shakespeare Coat of Arms a Feature of the Bidding.

A casket with Shakespeare's coat of arms and this inscription carved on the lid: "Old oak from Shakespeare's Birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon. Restored 1857," was among the interesting things at the second day's sale of the late Thomas Nast's art collection by the Merwin-Clayton Company, in East Twentieth Street, yesterday. On the back of the casket is inscribed: "Picked from the Chaff and Ruin of the Times, to be new varnished 1878. John Marshall, Carver, Stratford-on-Avon." This souvenir was brought from Stratford-on-Avon by Mr. Nast. It was sold for $40.

A statuette, in full length figure, of Washington fetched $12.50. Four of the famous Chelsea (England) statuettes representing "London Cries" sold, the first three for $10 each and the fourth, a finely gilt female figure, for $16.

"The Amazons," an Elkington electro-plated plaque, from the English exhibit at the 1876 Centennial, brought $20. A silver and bronze Elkington plaque from the same exhibit, "The Pompeiian Lady at Her Toilet," fetched $25. "Paradise Lost," an Elkington electro-plated plaque, and an Elkington cloironne vase, both from the English exhibit at the exposition of 1876, sold respectively for $50 and $32.50. A First Empire clock in gilt bronze, surmounted by a statue of Napoleon, fetched $26. A carved ivory casket from the Centennial Exposition sold for $21, and a complete set of ivory chessmen for $55. A Chinese quilt, eider-down lining, hand embroidered in silk, brought $25. A jug and two drinking mugs, Doulton ware, fetched $51. The jug has a small caricature of Nast with a little stick, made by himself while on a visit to the Lambeth pottery at James Doulton's request. After Nast had made the caricature in the soft clay Doulton told the potter to finish the piece and then sent it to Nast. August, 1878.

SMITH—LAMP.

The marriage of Morton W. Smith and Miss Marie Natalie Lamy, formerly of Minneapolis, took place yesterday at Stamford, Conn., the Rev. Thomas Robinson officiating. Owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's mother, the wedding was a small one. Among those who accompanied the bridal party to Stamford were Mrs. Lamp, Edward Gould Smith, Richard Penn Smith, Clay M. Greene, S. E. Crimmins, and Frank Unger.

MISS DODD TO WED JUNE 12.

Her Engagement to Henry Noble MacCracken Announced.

The engagement of Henry Noble MacCracken, third son of Chancellor Henry M. MacCracken and Mrs. MacCracken, and Miss Marjorie Dodd, the only daughter of the late Samuel C. T. Dodd, has been announced. Ths marriage will take place June 12. The wedding will be a small one, and the two families only will be asked, as Miss Dodd's father died only a few months ago, and her mother, who was Miss Melvina Fuller Smith, died a few months before her husband. It was because Miss Dodd has been in deep mourning that no public announcement was made of her engagement. The wedding will probably take place in Miss Dodd's home, 42 East Sixty-fourth Street.

Mr. MacCracken is a brother of Jnhn Henry MacCracken and of George G. MacCracken, whose marriage to Miss Martha J. Hall, daughter of Mrs. John H. Hall, will take place at the Fifth Avenue home of the latter on April 29.

PRESIDENT HEINS TO WED.

Will Marry Miss Boschen, Commissioner Dunne's Stenographer.

The friends of John L. Heins, President of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Company, the only rival of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company in Brooklyn, were surprised to learn yesterday that he was to marry again, and that he was to take as a bride Miss Margaret A. Bnschen, a stenographer employed in the office of Public Works Commissioner Desmond Dunne of Brooklyn.

Mr. Heins's first wife, who was a Miss Zundt, died a year ago. She was well known for her many charities and for the deep interest she tnok in the welfars of the hundreds of employes of her husband's road.

The bride-to-be lives with her brother and three sisters at 384 Union Street. The date for the wedding has not been announced, but it was said yesterday that it would probsbly take place next week. Mr. Heins, who is much older than Mise Boschen, has a home at 1,941 Albemarle Road.

Mr. Heins has been the head of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Company, which operates the Smith Street line to Coney Island; the DeKalb Avenue, Hamilton Ferry, and Franklin Avenue lines, for several years.

WOMAN LEFT SIX WILLS.

Mrs. Jones Had Many Ideas About Disposition of Her Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 17.—Because six wills of Mrs. Samuel Jnnes were offered for probats in the Orphans' Court to-day, Dr. Frank C. Jones, a son, who is named as a legatee in each testament, told the court that his mother was weak minded.

Four heirs are interested in the estate, which is worth ahout $30,000. They are the three children of the testatrix, Samuel W. Jones snd Mrs. M. Louisa Brown of this city, Dr. Frederick C. Jones of Bernardsville, and a minor daughter of Mrs. Brown. No one has asked to have any of the wills probated.

The first will was drawn in 1898. It left the property to the thres children. The second will was drawn in 1899, and was a duplicate of ths first, except for a change in the trustee. A will drawn in 1900 again changed the trusteeship, and one of 1901 mado some minor changes. In 1902 the fifth testamentary document was executed by Mrs. Jones, whereln her counsel, Charles F. Axtell, was named as trustee. In 1903 the last will, so far as known, was drawn. By it Samuel W. and Frederick C. Jones are named as trustess. Ten days after this will was executed a codicil was added, which named Samuel W. Jonee as executor, and provided that if the eatats was not large enough to pay the legacies in full, that Samuel W. Jones's and Mrs. Brown's shares should be first paid.

HILDA SPONG SUES MANAGER LAWRENCE

Though He Thought All Was Friendly After Closing Her Season.

HER LAST PLAY FAILED

Now She Wants to be Recompensed for the Twenty Weeks' Salary She Lost.

Hilda Spong, the actress, has coms to a parting of the ways with Waltsr N. Lawrencs, ths manager who first brought her before the public as a full fledged star at Websr's Theatre last Autumn in "Lady Jim." She began suit yesterdsy to recover from Mr. Lawrencs $4,000, whieh, shs asserts, is due to her for salary, although she has not been playing since November, when she closed in "John Hudson's Wife."

Mr. Lawrence said last night that he had not yet personally received ths papers in the case, but hs knew such a suit was contemplated by Miss Spong.

"Shs wrote mo a letter in which she made certain demands," said Mr. Lawrencs, "and I answered it. I ehall bs glad to have both the letter nnd the answer shown in court. When we closed 'John Hudson's Wife' we supposed that everything was most amicable, for she was consulted before any action was taken. It obviously wasn't fair to expect us to continus a losing vsnture. We gave every one the customary two weeks' notice, and closed the company. She now seems to think that her season was not then over."

Mr. Lawrence's attorney is S. H. Weinhandler. Mr. Weinhandler said that, as Mr. Lawrence was very busy, he had arranged to have ths papers served upon himself, snd hsd accepted service yesterday.

"Miss Spong sues for salary for twenty weeks at the rate of $200 a week," said Mr. Weinhandler. "When her season in 'Lady Jim' and 'John Hudson's Wife' came to a close, all the company received the regular twn weeks' notice and she mnde no complaint. All relations appeared to hs most friendly and we were arranging for a new play for her next season. Miss Spong was under contract to Mr. Lawrence for a term of yeare, but now she voluntarily reseinds the contract. Of course, we sbsolutely deny our liability for salary during the time that Miss Spong has been idle."

At Miss Spong's house it was said that she had left town for a few days.

ELLEN BEACH YAW MARRIED.

Singer the Bride of Vere Goldthwaite, a Boston Lawyer.

BOSTON, Mass., April 17.—It became known to-day that Ellen Beach Yaw, the singer, and Vere Goldthwaite, a young lawyer of this city, were married here several days ago. Mr. Goldthwaite is the son of Dr. S. V. Goldthwaite of Concord Square. The marriags took place at the Hotel Somerset, the Rev. Dr. Beach, a relative of the bride, performing the ceremony. Immediately after Mr. and Mrs. Goldthwaite went West for their wedding journey.

The wedding is the outcome of a romance which began nine years ago in Arizona, where Miss Yaw was detained by a washout which had stopped traffic on the Southern Pacific Railroad. A group of cowboys gathered around the stranded train. In the group was young Goldthwaite, who at that time lived on a ranch in Arizona, and he and the singer became sequainted.

PICKED A ROSE AS SHE SANG.

Donalda Wins Her Audience by a Pretty Bit of Stage Business.

Mme. Donaldo introduced a pretty bit of stage business into her singing of "The Last Roes of Summer" in "Martha" last evening at the Manhattan Opera House. Holding a pink rose as she sang, she slowly pulled the petals off, one by one, after the manner of the girl who is trying "hs loves me, he loves me not." Seldom has she sang better, and ths large audiencs insisted on a repetition, which was granted.

It was practically Mme. Donalda's farewell at the Manhattan, although she will appear in the bill on Friday evening. Shs made a great success.

Mme. de Cisneros again sang Nancy, and Messere. Bonci, Arimondi, and Gianolli-Galletti were in the cast. Max Bendix conducted the opera for the first time here.

LHEVINNE'S RECITAL.

Large Audience Hears Him Play for the MacDowell Fund.

Josef Lhévinne gave a piano recital in Mendelssohn Hall last evening in aid of the MacDowell fund. There wae a large audience, and as the artist gavs his services there was a generous addition to the fund.

Mr. Lhévinne commenced his programme with Brahms's F minor sonata, a profound work, which is a test of pianistic genius, not of mere technic. This young pianist plays with great feeling, and his technic is undisputed.

Appropriately enough, three of MacDowell's own pieces, "Winter," "The Eagle," and "Moto Perpetuo," were played, and the programme closed with three Rubinstein numbers.

PITTSBURG ORCHESTRA SPLIT.

Musicians, Dissatisfied with Order by Paur, Threaten to Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 17.—The autocratic sway of Conductor Emil Paur over the Pittsburg Orchestra has resulted in an upheaval among the members. To-day it is announced that Paur has prohibited the musicians from playing outsido engagements during the twenty weeks' season of the orchestra. Ths members declare they will etrike unless the order is revoked.

Henry Bramsen, the first violoncellist, has left the orchestra and contracted with the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago for next season. Luigi von Kunits, the concert master, will not make a contract under present conditions. There are numerous reports of further changes.

Coupled with the report of contemplated changes also comes information from Toronto, Canada, that a committee of the Mendelssohn Choir, Canada's greatest musical organization, has opened negotiations with the Thomas Orchestra, with a view of procuring that organization for the chorus services of concerts there next season. The Pittsburg Orchestra has been appearing in conjunction with the organiztion, but will not be considered for next season's concerts.

Concert for the MacDowell Fund.

A concert will be given on Monday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria for the benefit of ths MacDowell fund, under the auepices of ths National Opera Company. Madame de Cisneros and Mr. Sammarco will appear.

Bonci's Little Son Has Diphtheria.

Master Bonci, the young son of Bonci, the tenor of the Manhattan Opera House company, was stricken with diphtheria yesterday. He was taken to the Minturn Hospital.

JANIS'S DEATH CONFIRMED.

Elsie Janis and her mother, Mrs. Jane Bierbower, who are at the Marie Antoinette, received yesterday afternoon a wireless message from the Atlantic Transport liner Minneapolis, dated yesterday morning, and confirming the report of the death at sea of Percy Janis, who disappeared on Sunday night. The earlier report stated that the young man, who is a brother of Elsie and who was to appear as Chris Hazy in the production of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" in London, was missing from the ship and was supposed to have fallen overboard.

Ths message received yesterday afternnon reads: "Held services for Percy today. Heartfelt sympathy to father, mother, and sister."

This final report was a severe blow, as Mise Janis and her mother had been hoping against hops that the first message was a mistake, and possibly the result of an incomplete examination of the ship.

JOB FOR HAMMERSTEIN'S GOAT

Hammerstein's operatic goat, especially famous for its appearances in "La Boheme," is to fill the goat vacancy at the Hippodrome, and will doubtless learn tn climb up a pyramid of elephants as gracefully as an antelope. Frank Melville, circne director of ths Hippodrome, was forlorn yesterday morning when only thres goats answered to his advertisement for a goat to be trained for circus purposes. After one had inspected the three goats it was evident why Mr. Melville was disconsolate. Harlem had done her worst —and they were, all of the commonplace black and white variety.

The operatic goat has not yet been gathsred into the Hippodrnme fold, but will soon arrive. Its name is Melba, and if it can learn to climb from ons elephant to another and stand on top of Lena, the biggest elephant of all, an offer will be made for its purchase. For the present it is to be boarded at the Hippodroms on trial for its scaling abilities—as if it had not learned all tho scales at ths Manhattan Opera House!

A SOCIALIST PLAY.

Julius Hopp's "Friends of Labor" to be Seen on the Bowery.

Julius Hopp, who organized the Socialist Stage Society and under whose direction performances have been offsred at the Berkeley Lyceum, is finally to see a professional production of one of his own plays, "Friends of Labor" is to be presented at the Kalich Theatre on the Bowery for one week at least, beginning on May 21. The performance will be in English.

Tickets are to be sold through the Socialist papers and the Socialist societies. Those that are left over will then be sold at the box office. Part of the proceeds are to go for the aid of certain leaders of the Western Federation of Miners, who are now in prison on a charge of murder.

The play has fourteen speaking parts and is principally hued out in mob scenes. "We should have at least 150 people in the mob," says Mr. Hopp. "We shall train only nine of them, though—three for the Democrats, three for the Socialists, and three for the Republicans. Then around the lodging houses we will go and collect the rest of them."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Beverly Sitgreaves will sail for Europe on April 27. She goes to consider offers made to her to appear in London and Paris.

Frank Connor, who is to play in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" in London, sailed yesterday on the Majestic. He was accompanied by Kyrle Bellew.

A vaudeville performance as a benefit to the Treasurer of the Lincoln Square Theatre will be held at that playhouse on Suaday night. Many vaudeville players have volunteered their services in honor of Mr. Mackenzie.

The date for the opening of Luna Park has been set for May 11.

The engagement of "The Land of Nod" will not be resumed at the New York Theatre. The actors received their notice yesterday.

The hearing in reference to the city's application for the revocation of the license of the Victoria Theatre was again postponed yesterday to Saturday morning.

ENGINEERS' PRIZES ARE PRESENTED

ADVANCE IN ELECTRICITY

Dr. Sheldon Tells of the Added Responsibility In This Line of Work.

It was founders' day yesterday for the members of the allied engineering societies who are devoting the greater part of this week to the dedication of the new $1,500,000 building in West Thirty-ninth Street which Andrew Carnegie gave them. That meant an afternoon session given over to addresses by the Presidents of the various engineering organizatione and ths presentation of commemorative medals. A company not much smaller than that which heard the addresses of Mr. Carnegie and President Hadley of Yale on ths opening day of the dedication was present in the big assembly hall of the new structure.

After introductory remarks by John W. Lieb, Jr., Chairman of the Dedication Committee, Dr. Samuel Sheldon, Preeldent of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, epoke on behalf of that organization. He said in part:

"The rapid growth and character of his work necessitates that the engineer shall continually deal with the probabilities of the future. Because of the magnitude of modern engineering undertakings and the desirs for high efficiency there is a marked tendency to intrust the purchase, erection, and installation of electrical apparatus to large engineering organizations. A firm in New York City, besides the installation of electrical railways, power, and lighting plants, is engaged in the construction of sewerage systems, and in the erection of hotels, banks, thestres, terminal stations, and other large structures. To such an organization the financing and engineering construction of ths Panama Canal is a natural and feasible undertaking."

F. R. Hutton, President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, said in part:

"This building stands as a rebuke to certain economic fallacies. It is a convincing answer to a contention that manual labor of arm and brawn are the only resl creators of wealth in the production process, and that the reward of toil is to be directed entirely to him who contributes bodily effort. It says to such a theorist that misdirected toil and labor, which goes for naught through ignorance of physical or economic law, will impoverish the community, not enrich it. Experiments are costly when at their basis lie assumptions contrary to truth and fact. The director and organizer of labor is to be compensated both practically and in the public consideration according to his economic value. The engineer is a factor in production that transcends by far the significance of the mere craftsman, and this building evidences the truth of that fact. The economic future does not lie amid the dreariness of some of the contentions of the Socialist. It lies in releasing more and more the human unit from the stress which we lay upon the beasts of burden. In this releasing process the engineers will inevitably be the leaders."

T. Comerford Martin, President of the Engineers' Club, which is included in the organizations to which the building is given, produced a poem that told about the Little Club Nearby." The clubhouse of the Engineers' Club and the new Engineering Building stand back to back and are connected both through a courtyard and by a bridgs from the seventh floor. Among other verses Mr. Martin delivered this one:

Here may brethren dwell in peace; here may your tribes increase;
Here may the founts of knowledge ne'er run dry.
But for leisure moments sunny, or refreshing milk and honey,
Come over to the kindly Little House near by.

John Hays Hammond spoke for the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and then greetings were read from fifty or more foreign societies. The exercises closed with the presentation of the John Fritz gold medal to Prof. Alexander Graham Bell and the presentation of medals for distinguished services to R. W. Pope, Secretary of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; F. R. Hutton, Secretary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and Rnssiter W. Raymond, Secretary of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

ENFORCED HER OWN LAW.

East Orange Woman Gets First Conviction Against Patent Medicine Man.

The woman who was responsible for the passage of nn ordinance in East Orange forbidding the distribution of samples of patent medicines was also responsible for the first arrest under the ordinance yesterday.

Several months ago Mrs. William H. Klimeke of 71 Sussex Avenue, East Orange, wrote to the City Council calling attention to the fact that samples of patent medicines were distributed about the streets and were likely to fall into the hands of children who might eat or drink them, and thereby be made ill. She said one child nearly died as a result of eating some patent preparation. The Council passed the ordinance, and Mrs. Klimeke produced a copy of it when the first offender she spotted was arraigned before Recorder Fort. He fined the man $2.

The man gave his name as Harry J. Hummell of Newark.

WHO WAS MAX STIRNER?

JOHANN CASPAR SMITH (John C. Smith) was his name, and he was born in Wagner's Bayreuth. He died in 1856, aged 50. But the name his student companions gave him, Max Stirner, (Maximus Stirn,) because of his high forehead, clung to him through life.

What Was MAX STIRNER?

The philosopher whose theory of "individualism" and the importance of "the Ego" largely influenced Nietzsche and Ibsen and a host of lesser European philosophers.

MARTIN L. SYKES DEAD.

He Was a Pioneer Railroad Financier, Beginning His Career in 1844.

Martin L. Sykes, for many years Vice President and Treasurer of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad system, and one of the wealthiest residents of Mount Vernon, died at his home in Chester Hill, that city, yesterday morning. Mr. Sykes, who was 81 years old, was one of the pioneer railroad financiers of this country. He began his career as a civil engineer on New York, New Haven & Hartford Road, in 1844, soon after the opening of that road to Hartford.

The road at that time was laid with strap rails, and was operating the old English stylo of coaches. Later he became clerk to the President, Charles F. Pond, and from that position was promoted to General Superintendent. After serving nine years, he became Superintendent of the Connecticut River Railroad, and in 1854 he took charge of the Hudson River Railroad as Superintendent under Edwin D. Morgan, President.

In 1860 Mr. Sykes turned his attention to the Western roads and was elected Vice President of the Michigan Southern & Northern Indiana. In 1865 he returned to New York, becoming Vice President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, where he remained up to 1867, going to Cleveland as Vice President of the Cleveland, Painsville & Ashtabula Road.

In 1867 he was elected Vice President and Treasurer of the Chicago & Northwestern, where he remained until 1902, when he resigned on account of advanced age. Mr. Sykes held a large block of Chicago & Northwestern stock, and is reported to have amassed a large fortune. He was a widower without children, and his niece, Miss Lyman, kept house for him in Mount Vernon. His executors are Miss Lyman, F. H. Deman of Mount Vernon, and William G. Wiley, a member of the Stock Exchange.

He was one of the largest contributors to the support of ths Mount Vernon Hospital and other local charities.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Charles J. Peshall.

Charles J. Peshall, a well-known lawyer, died in St. Francis's Hospital, Jersey City, yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in England 67 years ago. He came to this country, and settled in Arkansas. Later he removed to New York. He was a great lover of animals, and was a member of the New York Kennel Club. He severely criticised some of the club members for their treatment of dogs, and they sued him for libel. Peeball defended his own case, and won it.

Shortly after he removed to Jersey City, where he first came into prominence through his efforts to save Edward Halliger, the negro minstrel, who killed his wife, from the gallows. He went before a Federal court and applied for a writ of habeas corpus. When the writ was denied he took an appeal, which acted as a stay. In this way he prolonged Halliger's life for two years.

He also strived for a time the execution of Edward Clifford, who killed William Watson, Division Superintendent of the West Shore Railroad at Weehawken. After that the Federal Judges declined to recognize him, and he became a railroad lawyer. Though he was prosperous for a while, he died in poverty.

His wife died three years ago. He has no relatives in this country so far as known.

John P. Dunning.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—John P. Dunning, a well-known newspaper correspondent, died to-day in a hospital here of tumor on the brain. He was 44 years old.

Dunning first came into notice as a newspaper writer of exceptional ability in 1889. He had been sent to Samoa by The Associated Press to watch for developments in the Samoan difficulties. The naval squadrons of the United States, Great Britsin, and Germany having gathered at that place. A great hurricane swept over the islands on March 15, 1889, and fifteen merchant vessels and six men-of-war were piled upon the shores of Apia Bay and 142 officers and men of the American and German warships lost their lives. Dunning assisted the natives in saving many lives. Afterward he wrote a 20,000-word story of the storm, which, for graphic English, was considered a model of descriptive writing.

Dunning acted as war correspondent in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines.

Police Captain Mannion.

Police Captain Thomas H. Mannion of the Eldridge Street Station died yesterday afternoon in the Presbyterian Hospital as the result of an operation for kidney trouble. Capt. Mannion was one of the largest men on the police force, being known by many of his friends as "Big Tom." He was born in October, 1855, and was appointed a patrolman on July 7, 1884, a Roundsman on Dec. 30, 1890, a Sergeant on Dec. 30, 1892, and a Captain on April 13, 1903.

Woman Dies at 109 Years.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 17.—Mrs. Hannah Armsworthy is dead at the home of her son near Queenport, Guysboro County. She was 109 years old.

Obituary Notes.

EMILE HARTMANN, a retired cloth printer, died on Tuesday at his home, 785 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born in France in 1834, and came to this country in 1890. Mr. Hartmann leaves a widow and one daughter.

PATRICK J. RILEY, a contractor and builder, died on Monday at his home, 10 Windsor Place, Brooklyn. He was born in the neighborhood of Fort Hamilton 54 years ago. In the last ten years Mr. Riley had built more than 5,000 houses in

Stocks Dull and Lower—Call Money Rates, 3@2 Per Cent.

THE TRADING PROFESSIONAL

The instability of markets so completely dominated by professional traders as the stock market here has been for some days was well exemplified by the course of prices yesterday. Following the sharp upturn of Tuesday on a narrow volume of business, stocks rose an additional point or so in the early part of the morning session and then fell back steadily on dull trading until at the end of the day losses of a point or more were general. Fluctuations were quite unconnected with the meagre news developments of the day, although attempts were made to make speculative capital of such matters as the unfounded report that the Inter-State Commerce Commission was to resume its hearings in this city to-day after having obtained a ruling from the Circuit Court on the question of Mr. Harriman's answering the inquiries to which he refused replies, and a rumor that the Union Pacific had arranged to sell the $10,000,000 of notes. The response to such reports was by no means commensurate with the trouble taken to give them wide circulation. That they should have arisen and received a moment's consideration supplies one further illustration of the professional character of the market. So far as the report concerning the Inter-State Commerce Commission is concerned, the truth appears to be that a representative of the commission is to hold an inquiry here to-day into the propriety of certain rates enforced by the Union Pacific. As to the note issue, it is well known that sooner or later the Union Pacific must obtain a substantial amount of money in order to meet obligations incurred in the course of the purchase of certain stocks, but there is, it is understood, no pressing necessity upon the road to accomplish this transaction, which will be carried out whenever money market conditions seem favorable. One item of news which received less attention than it deserved was the announcement by the Iron trade authority that the United States Steel Corporation had opened its books for rails for 1908 delivery, no change in prices having been made, and that inquiries already footed up to some 250,000 tons. Sales of iron for the last half of the current year have been heavy, and inquiries are numerous for the first quarter of 1908. Another matter of interest was the further advance in the price of copper in the London market, where substantial recovery has now been made from the depressed level of the past fortnight.

For money markets, the most important development of the day was undoubtedly the announcement of issues of $50,000,000 each by the Prussian and German Governments. This financing took the form of bills bearing 4 per cent. interest, redeemable in five years, and while its details were not received here up to the close of business, it is, of course, apparent that the combined demands will fall heavily upon the German money market, which has been struggling with a 6 per cent. discount rate for several months. The announcement of this borrowing, together with the prospect of further shipments of gold to Paris, was perhaps not wholly unconnected with the hardening of discounts in London. In this market, while time money rates were unchanged, call monsy rose to 8 per cent. for the first time in a fortnight. Exchange on New York at interior cities continued to decline, indicating the growth of the inland demand.

BALTIMORE TRADING.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 17.—Financial circles were interested to-day in reported negotiations of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, and the Maryland Telephone Company, with a view to the two first-named companies taking over the business of the latter. The Consolidated's preferred stock to-day advanced 1½ points. The continued demand for Mount Vernon Woodberry Cotton Duck 5s by investors sent them up another ½. Northern Central Railway shares were firmer. United Railways 4s and incomes were slightly weaker. The close was firm, but dull. Shares, 440; bonds, $48,500.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 17.—North Butte was an early feature, advancing about 2 points, but later losing the gain on profit taking. Amalgamated was in demand, selling as high as 94¾. Calumet and Hecla gained 5 points, to 825. Commission house have been doing comparatively little in to-day's market, trading being chiefly confined to traders' operations, and these generally but for little more than a small turn. Complete list of transactions follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"My feeling toward the market is not very friendly," said a broker who is usually active on the floor of the Exchange, "mainly because the crowd over there does not present the appearance of money. I know that is a queer way to express myself, but ths trading to my mind reflects clearly that the big interests or the wealthy individual operators are not doing anything just at present. No matter how strong the market may appear, it has no real stamina when its activities are developed on the floor or from traders. I doubt if any panic in recent years hurt so many good traders. By that I mean men who are in and out of the market and traded in big lots of stocks. This buying power is not present, and the particular kind of buying that I notice does not inspire me with a desire to get into the game myself."

***

Three stocks furnished more than one-half of the total transactions in yesterday's market. This was an evidence, in itself, of the general apathy. Industrials, with the exception of the Steel issues, Amalgamated Copper, and Smelters were neglected. It is curious to note that many traders are disposed to take a bearish position on industrials while assuming a friendly attitude towrd railroad stocks. Their argument is that a general reaction in business is imminent apparently, and that the industrial stocks have not reacted in proportion to the severity with which they will feel a period of depression, while the railroad stocks have discounted, in a greater degree, hard times. This argument does not appear to be very logical, but it is held tenaciously by good traders.

***

Rumore concerning Union Pacific are a daily part of the gossip, and the only variation yesterday was a shifting from individuals to note issues. The idea was conveyed that banking interests identified with the Union Pacific are trying to arrange a note issue which will be floated nbroad, but that they had had no success up to the present. So many details were given that little credence attached to the story, the purpose of its manufacture being apparent. It is safe to assume that Union Pacific would be glad to take a substantial amount of money, but its needs are scarcely as urgent as the rumors have pictured them.

***

According to those who make a profession of speculation, the one element absolutely essential to success is courage. "That may be a necessary element," remarked a trader in a discussion of this point, "but you will find that it is the courageous chap who comes to grief inevitably. Perhnps if we could distinguish mere closely between courage and recklessness we might appreciate more thoroughly the ultimate effectiveness of courage. The trader who is timid is never likely to be caught in a bad place. His profits may not be so great nor his reputation so spectacular, but he will not cause his broker much trouble, nor will he be a factor in contributing to panic conditions. There are too many men who are possessed of a competence who feel that it is incumbent upon them to become absolutely wealthy in the modern meaning of that term, and they play this game under the assumption that with a sufficient amount of cash to margin safely 5,000 shares, there is no possible dangor in trading in 20,000 shares. If courage means overtrading, tben I prefer to be cowardly."

***

Copper men point out that when there is no surplus stock of the metal, care is exercised in accepting orders for delivery, and that one of the results is a burdening of the price for short-time delivery. Ordinarily the copper mined in January is figured for delivery in April, and the delivery runs from about April 15 to the end of the month. The sales are made in January on the reports from the mines, and the sales are gauged according to the indications of production. For instance, if 10,000,000 pounds are figured on, about half is sold by the middle of January and about 9,000,000 pounds is disposed of in the next ten days. The balance is reserved until it is known that it has been actually produced. In accepting contracts for short time or quick delivery, it is very often the case that this copper is "pinched out," as they say, of other long-time delivery contracts.

***

Close attention is paid to the sales of securities at public auction, and it is not only brokers and bargain hunters who make it a point to note cheerfully the names of the securities offered. Corporations sometimes watch closely that odd lots of their stocks or bonds do not fall into unfriendly hande. An instance of what might develop in such a case happened not very long ago. A broker chanced to pick up at public auction five bonds of a second mortgage issue of a big downtown skyscraper. He paid 50 for the bonds. A day or so after hie purchase the company defaulted the interest. He found that the mortgage provided tbat on second default the bonds could be foreclosed. In the meantime he found out that be possessed the only five bonds of tbat issue not in the hands of the building's owners. When a second default was made he offered the bonds to the men most interested, and after some ehrewd work on his part they were compelled to buy them at 120. This profit was eminently satisfactory to bim.

***

Banks, as a rule, fight shy of high-priced stocks in their collateral loans. They will take n little of them, but they will not entertain a suggestion of an entire loan on such high-class collateral. One of the big banks hae a woman client who makes it a point to accept just such securities, and she will also take guaranteed stocks and first-class bonds. She hae no objection to such stocks as Lackawanna, Chicago Northwestern, Northern Pacific, or the securities of the big gas companies. There are some banks that will not accept bonds exclusively as collateral for loan, one in particular being the agent of a foreign institution. A broker a day or so ago made a first-class loan with 30 per cent. margin, and he was surprised to find it returned with the statement that the amount of his Union Pacific was too large. Naturally, this surprised him, and he found on investigation that the bank had made a rule that the loans of the institution must not contain much of any stock quoted above par. Another institution took the loan in a hurry.

***

There is no more confirmed optimist than the railroad traffic man. His weekly reports, as presented in the gossip of the Street, are always a perfect paean of prosperity. Of course, he is in intimate personal touch with the traffic situation, and he can see developments more quickly than the other officers of the system. That his reports are not always shown to be accurate by the earnings does not mean anything particularly, or does it mean that he was necessarily mistaken. His statements generally do not contain an analysis of the cost of transportation, and the item of operating expenses is complicated by many conditions, and where increases are shown, naturally the net result is not a verification of the traffic man's statement. These statements are very interesting, without doubt, but sometimes they are a little too general to have speculative influence.

***

Brokers are not particularly fond of inactive accounts, and there are some traders who will hang on to a few hundred shares of stock for months at a time. Commission Houses depend on activity for their profits, but they are very careful, as a rule, to avoid the appearance of urging their customers to trade actively. There is a substantial profit to the broker in a well managed interest account, but that is a part of the secret history of every office. The theory, however, is that the interest account should pay expenses and the commissions should be clear profit. Old-time brokers recall the days when an account that lay dormant for thirty days was charged up at the end of each month of inactivity with an additional eighth. This cannot be done now, under the rules, but many houses wish that old-time rule could be revived.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 17.—Rates for money were extremely easy in the merket today. Discounts were steady on the gold shipments to Paris.

Trading on the Stock Exchange developed a steady tone with the recovery of Americans, but business was meagre, operatore waiting for to-morrow's budget announcements. Consols eased on the selling of those securities in order to exchange them for scrip of the London County Council loan, while the announcement of the German loans in the afternoon caused a sagging of gilt-edged securities. Home rails were affected by rumors of fresh issues.

Foreigns, after early weaknese, closed firm on Continental support.

Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101¾. Kaffirs ruled firm.

Americans opened steady at over parity and became quite strong in the forenoon on good buying of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé and Union Pacific, which favorably affected the whole list. The receipt of the New York opening prices caused a reaction, but the market picked up and prices closed steady.

Copper shares were active and firm.

The Indian Secretary to-day obtained an option on £150,000 in gold, due bere shortly.

Bullion amounting to £158,000 wae taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 10.00; Lisbon, 8.

Bar silver steady, 30¼d per ounce.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¾@3½ per cent.; for three months' bills it is 3½@3⅝ per cent.

PARIS, April 17.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened firm on the monetary situation, but trading became dull owing to rumors of failures in Germany and the market closed heavy. Russian imperial 4s closed nt 74.25 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 493.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f. 52½c. for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f. 22c. for checks.

BERLIN, April 17.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was extremely quiet. Americans were firmer.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Nominal Volume, With Prices Fractionally Off at the Close

SOME COPPERS HIGHER

The curb market again yesterday attracted very little interest, the active trading being confined chiefly to a few issues in which manipulative orders made the bulk of the business. Stocks were weak in the desultory market and a number of fractional declines were recorded at the close. Transactions in the copper stocks, which though extremely dull in comparison with past markets were the only issues in which sales of any volume were made yesterday, fell away sharply before offerings. Losses at the close, however, were limited to fractions. Greene-Cananea, United Copper, and Nevada Utah were exceptions to the general market and made small gains. Butte Coalition and Boston Copper were among the shares which were lower at the close. In the industrial list, which was extremely sluggish, sales of Manhattan Transit were reported at only 100 shares.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

CHICAGO TERMINAL LEASE.

Minority Pleased at Court Order Enjoining Sale on May 3.

The committee recently appointed to represent the minority stockholdere of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Company expressed satisfaction yesterday, through one of its members, at the outcome of the hearing on Tuesday before the United States Court at Chicago of argument on the petition of the Baltimore & Ohio to be subrogated in the foreclosure proceedings.

The court decided to permit the Baltimore & Ohio to pay off the bonds of the Terminal Company, principal and interest, but enjoined the foreclosure sale, which had been set for May 8, until a chance had been given to the stockholders to litigate the validity of the Baltimore & Ohio's lease of a large percentage of the Terminal Company's facilities.

The Baltimore & Ohio holds this lease on terms which the minority stockholders regard as altogether unfair to the Terminal Company, and the committee representing these stockholdere was much pleased yesterday at the fact that a chance would be given them to test the validity of the lease.

HARRIMAN & CO. WON'T QUIT.

Will Only Rerent Suites of Offices Customers Decided to Give Up.

Reports current in Wall Street for several days that Harriman & Co. were to dissolve on May 1, and that the offices of the firm in the Trinity Building, at 111 Broadway, were for rent, were declared yesterday by members of the firm to be baseless. It appears that the firm arranged some time ago to lease, in behalf of customers, a suite of offices in the extension to the Trinity Building which is now under construction.

Since these arrangements were made the customere have decided not to take these offices, and Harriman & Co. therefore have offered to rerent this suite, which consists of six rooms, the rent of which was to amount to $12,000 a year.

The giving up of these offices has no bearing on the business of the firm itself, which has in its present offices, which occupy most of the second floor of the building, all the rooms it needs. The firm has a ten-year lease of these offices, for which, it is understood, $35,000 a year rental is being paid.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Lower, Closes Steady at a Net Decline of 6 to 12 Points.

WEATHER IN COTTON STATES.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Federal Weather Bureau issuee the following forecast for the Cnton States for Thursday and Friday:

North Caroline and South Carolina—Fair Thureday, preceded by rain in the early morning; Friday increasing cloudiness, probably rain; fresh northerly winds.

Georgia—Partly cloudy Thursday, colder in eastern and southern portions; Friday unsettled weather, probably rain; light variable winds.

Eastern Florida—Fair Thursday, colder in northern portion; Friday increasing cloudiness; light variable winds, mostly southwesterly.

Western Florida, Alabama, Missippi, and Louisiene—Rain and warmer Thursday; Friday rain; light to fresh easterly winds.

Eastern Texas—Fair in southern, rain in northern portion Thursday; Friday rain, colder in northwest portion; increasing southeasterly winds.

Western Texas—Foir Thursday and Friday, colder in northern portion.

Oklahoma, Indian Territory, and Arkansas—Rain and warmer Thursday; Friday fair.

The cotton market was lower yesterday owing to rains in the Southwest. The close was steady but at a net decline of 6@12 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 150,000 bales.

The market opened barely steady at an advance of 1 point on April, but generally 3@4 points lower in response to lower European cables. Rain was more or less general over the belt. The English futures market was lower than due, but the English spot sales were heavy at 14,000 bales. Receipts ran a little heevier, but exports alsn continued liberal.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—The only response made by wheat bullish weather condition in the South yesterday was an advence nf ½ to ⅝c around the opening when shorts were good buyers. Outside of this the market was generally weak all day. From all parts of the West and Southwest crop news showed little improvement. No help was received from cnbles for aside from a slight rise at Liverpool due to rains in India, the foreign markets were generally lower and dull. Seeboard clearances were moderate. Export business consisted of ten loads. Cash wheat in New York closed as follow: No. 2 red, 83¾c elevator and 84½c free on board, efloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 91½c, and No. 2 hard Winter, 87¾c free on board, afloat.

CORN—There was a fair speculative trade and an easier range of prices due to the fact that holdere were influenced by lower wheat prices. Cables were about ½d higher, clearances aggregated 522,000 bushels and receipts at Chicago were under the estimate. Export business was seven loads. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted al 57½c elevator and 54c free on board, afloat; No. 2 whita, 57c, and No. 2 yellow, 54c free on board, efloat.

THE NEW GERMAN LOAN.

An Attempt Is Being Made to Interest London and Paris.

Special Cablegram.

Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES CO.

LONDON, April 17.—The loan requirements of Germany and Prussia are to be met by an issue of Treasury bonds to the amount of 400,000,000 marks at 4 per cent., redeemable in 1912. A quarter of this sum has already been bespoken, and the remainder will be issued soon. The market price is 99.

The avowed object of thees highly favorable conditions is to attract foreign capital, and it is understood that efforts have already been made to interest both London and Paris in the new issue.

German and Prussian 3s and 3½s made a good recovery on the Berlin Boerse to-day on the strength of the favorable reception of the announcement of the new loan.

BERLIN, April 17.—The issue of $30,000,000 in Imperial and $50,000,000 in Prussian Treasury bills was announced to-day. The bills bear 4 per cent. interest and are redeemable in five years.

The two Governments would have preferred to have issued convertible loans, to run five or six years, but the bankers prevailed on the Governments to issue bills instead, arguing that they would find a readier market abroad.

PARIS, April 17.—Reports on the Bourse here to-day that German consols were about to be officially quoted in France caused the greatest concern among holders of French rentes, who feared their rapid decline, owing to the fact that the German securities are quoted far lower, though bearing a similar rate of interest.

The Minister of Finance, who was interviewed on the subject, reassured the holders of rentes, denying that he was even considering such a proposition.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

INVITATION TO CONTRACTORS. LEXINGTON AVENUE ROUTE.

The City of New York (hereinafter called the City,) acting by its Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners (hereinafter called the Board,) contemplates building a Rapid Transit Railroad along the routes described below. By this advertisement the City invites proposals to construct such railroad upon the routes and in accordance with the detailed plans and specifications adopted therefor. Such proposals may be submitted for any one or more of the eleven separate parts of which such railroad consists, as hereinafter stated.

The points within the City between which the said several parts of the said road are to run and the route or routes to be followed, are briefly as follows:

Section 5-O-3: This part of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan, begins at Lexington Avenue and 129th Street and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 103rd Street.

Section 5-O-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-3, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 71st Street.

Section 5-O-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-2, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point between 42nd and 43rd Streets, the Southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan.

Section 5-A: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan and runs thence under private property, 42nd Street and Park property to a point in Park Avenue between 38th and 41st Streets, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the existing subway.*

*This Section will not be contracted for at present if a contract for Section 5-D-3 is let.

Section 5-B: Begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described and runs thence northerly under the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, where it continues under Third Avenue and Morris Avenue and then curves under private property to a point in 149th Street between Morris Avenue and Cortlandt Avenue, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the present subway.

Section 5-C-1: This part of Section 5-C as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described, and runs thence northerly under Lexington Avenue and the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, and then continues under Park Avenue to 130th Street.

Section 5-C-2: This part of Section 5-C consists of a spur beginning in the Borough of the Bronx at a point in Park Avenue between 131st and 132nd Streets, and runs thence northwesterly and westerly under private property and connects with the spur Section 5-C-2 above described near the point where the centre line of said spur would intersect 131st Street if produced.

Section 5-D-3: This part of Section 5-D as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O above described in Lexington Avenue between 42nd and 43rd Streets and runs thence southerly under Lexington Avenue for about half way between 36th and 37th Streets, at which point the tracks will diverge into two branches. One of these branches will curve southwesterly under private property to 36th Street, and then run westerly under 36th Street, curving southerly into Fifth Avenue, and then under Fifth Avenue to a point where it will be rejoined by the second branch diverging as above stated. The second branch will run from the said point of divergence southerly and westerly under Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to Fifth Avenue, where it will rejoin the branch first above described at a point between 34th and 35th Streets. From the last mentioned point, the route of this Section will run southerly under Fifth Avenue along Madison Square and into Broadway; thence southerly under Broadway to a point about half way between 17th and 18th Streets.

Section 5-D-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-3 and runs southerly under Broadway, passing under Union Square) to a point about 50 feet south of Reade Street.

Section 5-D-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-2, and runs thence southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Church Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street to a suitable terminus under Battery Park.

The general plan of construction calls for a railroad placed in subways or tunnels. The road is intended to be operated by electricity or some other power not requiring combustion within the tunnels and the motors are intended to be capable of running trains at a speed of not less than forty miles per hour for long distances, exclusive of stops.

For all of Sections 5-O-1, 5-O-2, 5-O-3 and 5-A there will be four tracks. For Section 5-B there will be two tracks. For Section 5-C-1 and Section 5-C-2, there will be two tracks. In the loop above described as Section 5-C-2, there will be one track. For Section 5-D-3 there will be four tracks as far south as the point between 36th and 37th Streets, where the line diverges as above described; there will be two tracks from the point of divergence through 36th Street and Fifth Avenue to the point where the lines reunite and two tracks from the point of divergence through Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to the point in Fifth Avenue where the lines reunite, and for the remainder of the distance southerly under Fifth Avenue and Broadway there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-2, there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-1, there will be four tracks to the Chambers Street Station, South of the Chambers Street station southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street there will be two tracks. Additional tracks for terminal purposes are to be constructed under Battery Place and Battery Park. Suitable stations, as shown on the plans, together with crossovers, turnouts and sidings as may be necessary, are to be provided.

The tracks are to be of standard gauge. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than 13 feet in the clear; and a maximum width of 15 feet for each track, except at stations, curves, &c., where such width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of streets as street conditions and grades will permit, but will be depressed whenever necessary to avoid grade crossings as well as where approaching the Harlem River. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry.

Entrances to stations will in general be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose.

Construction is to be generally carried on by means of tunnelling or excavation under cover, except as may be otherwise specially provided in the contract; in such places where the

AUTOISTS SUCCEED IN BLOCKING BILLS

Objectionable Act Permitting Any One to Offer Car as Bail Virtually Dead.

AN INJURY TO THE OWNER

Automobilists in this city who have been watching the progress of the McManus bill at Albany have received information this week that there is little likelihood that the bill will be reported out of the committee and come before the Senate. The bill provides that any one who is arrested while driving a motor car may give the car as bail, if he so wishes. The law at the present time seems to cover the provisions that this bill seeks to attain, namely, the minimum of annoyance if the offender has not the proper amount of cash to deposit as bail or has difficulty in securing a bondsman. The present law permits the owner of the car to leave it at the station house as bail. This new bill of Senator McManus's, it has been pointed out, would grant no more benefits to the owner than he already possesses under the existing law. It would also, it has been pointed out, entail actual hardship upon the owner, as it would give the chauffeur, or any one else who might take the car out without permission, the opportunity of offering it as bail in case of arrest.

Charles Thaddeus Terry, Chairman of the A. A. A. Legislative Committee, who has been co-operating with the New York State Association in opposing objectionable legislation at Albany, stated yesterday that he had filed a brief with Senator Tully, Chairman of the committee in charge of the bill, outlining its unsatisfactory features. One hearing was held on the bill last week, and Senator McManus promised to alter the bill so that it would be more acceptable to autoists, but no changes thus far have been reported.

From the unusually large number of fifteen or more bills on automobile matters introduced into the New York Legislature this season, only three have met with any appreciable degree of success. One has already become law, having been signed by Governor Hughes a few days ago. This is the Whitney bill, and regulates the toll charges for motor cars on bridges and tunnels in the State where the toll system is still in vogue. It prohibits the charging of excessive rates for automobiles, as has been the custom in a few places up the State, requiring that the toll rate to be charged shall not be greater than the maximum rate allowed by law to be charged for the passage of vehicles drawn by two animals.

The other two bills that appear likely to pass are the Young automobile insurance bill and the Brought bill, making a slight change in the bail section of the present law.

"No serious legislation against automobilists will be enacted in this State," said Mr. Terry yesterday. "On the whole, motorists are securing very liberal treatment this season from the majority of State Legislators. Even Pennsylvania has perhaps one of the most generous speed regulations in its new bills that has appeared for some time. It permits a speed of thirty miles an hour in the country districts. Surprising as it may seem, the bill has met with general favor, and stands a very good chance of becoming a law. If it does, Pennsylvania will, I believe, be the only State in the country authorizing a speed of thirty miles an hour wherever it is consistent with complete safety."

AUTO TOUR OBJECTIONS.

Mr. Church Criticises A. A. A. Rules for Glidden Cup Contest.

Serious objections have been made to the rules as formulated this year for the Glidden Cup contest in the annual American Automobile Association tour by A. W. Church, a member of the Automobile Club of America and Secretary of the automobile concern of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge. Mr. Church has participated in most of the big touring events in this country, and was in the Glidden Cup event last year.

"There should be no reason why tourists, owning and using cars cannot combine in the Glidden tour," said Mr. Church. "The deed of gift originally was intended for owners and gentlemen. It is true, but the first run to the White Mountains demonstrated clearly that this was practically impossible, and also detrimental to the automobile industry.

"My belief is that every possible mishap to be met by trivial should have a sliding scale of penalties previously arranged and agreed upon that would be of such a broad character as to include the equation of driving, and would include every condition of motor and road and the open the contest to the world.

American Tennis Player Wins.

LONDON, April 17.—D. F. Rhodes, the Boston tennis player, whose play has improved steadily of late, caused a surprise at the Queen's Club to-day, in the covered court lawn tennis championship contests, by beating A. W. Gore, the ex-champion, in the third round of the singles. It was generally expected that Mr. Gore would win. Mr. Rhodes will play against A. F. Wilding of New Zealand in the semi-finals.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

New Twenty Story Building on Maiden Lane and John Street—Buyers for West Side Houses—Dealings by Brokers and at Auction.

A twenty-story building is to be erected on the plot at 15, 17, and 19 Maiden Lane, running through to 18 and 22 John Street, owned by Edward Holbrook, President of the Gorham Manufacturing Company. The old five-story buildings now on the site are to be torn down within the next few weeks, and the new building is to be ready for occupancy in May, 1908. Ground and building, the operation will represent an outlay of $2,000,000. The project will probably be handled by a corporation in which Mr. Holbrook will have a large interest.

The properties included in the site were bought by Mr. Holbrook through Herbert A. Sherman about three years ago, with a view to their improvement, but the undertaking was deferred on account of unexpired leases and also because it was hoped that the parcel at 20 John Street might also be secured. Apparently it has now been decided to go ahead without this lot, which will be completely inclosed by the proposed building.

Mr. Holbrook's holdings have a frontage of 72.7 feet on Maiden Lane, the distance through the block to John Street being about 145 feet. No. 18 John Street has a frontage of 25 feet and No. 22 a frontage of 24.8 feet. A feature of the new structure will be an arcade extending through the block.

Demand for Fifth Avenne Offices.

That Fifth Avenue, from Thirty-fourth to Forty-second Street, has not been wholly dependent upon store trade for its growth, but is also attracting attention as an office building district for certain classes of business, is shown in the demand for office space in some of its newer structures.

The Knabe Building, at Thirty-ninth Street, opposite the Union League Club, is one of the buildings of recent construction in which a large number of single offices and even entire floors are being taken by concerns which five years ago would probably have located a mile further downtown, but which, with the office facilities now available, have decided to move to the heart of the uptown business district. Besides embodying the most approved features of design and equipment, special attention has also been paid to the matter of light in the new Fifth Avenue structures. To a greater extent than in other sections corners have been selected for the tall buildings, and, as is the case with the Knabe Building, low adjoining houses have insured unobstructed light from all directions.

JOSEPH P. DAY, Auct'r.
TO SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITORS

The first question to consider in buying lots at auction is the confidence in the location of the property.

Second—The present and future demands.

Third—The accessibility of the location.

When this is firmly established in your mind, then do not let any one throw you off your opinion. Come to the auction to buy. The person paying the highest price gets the property, and the price it is sold at establishes the value—not what any one tells you

SURROGATE NOTICES.

SELIGMAN, JACOB.—The people of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to William Ottenooser, Herman Ottenooser, the heirs and next of kin of Jacob Seligman, deceased, send greeting:
Whereas, Lewis M. Hornthal and Simon R. Riem of the City of New York have lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of the County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the 31st day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Jacob Seligman, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 14th day of May, one thousand nine hundred and seven, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.
And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or, if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.
In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto [L. S.] affixed. Witness, Hon. Frank T. Fitzgerald, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 19th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seven.
DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

CARLO COLLIANI—Carlo Colliani of 575 Broome Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $7,100 and nominal assets of $500. The debts were contracted principally in 1906 for money deposited with him by fifty Italians in amounts ranging from $50 to $1,000. To twenty-two of these he gave notes.

W. F. HOGL MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the W. F. Hogl Manufacturing Company, dealer in watches and diamonds at 175 Broadway, show liabilities of $14,431 and nominal assets of $74,441. Among the secured creditors are Hoguawn brokers, R. Simpson & Co., $2,000; William Simpson & Co., $1,000; McAleenan, $1,900, and the Provident Loan Society, $2,750. Among the other creditors are David Mayer, $2,835, and Byron L. Stracbarger & Co., $2,659.

MORRIS MANHEIMER—Schedules in bankruptcy of Morris Manheimer, who did business as the Morris Hardware Company at 20 Fulton Street, show liabilities of $1,627 and assets of $575.

C. & S. CORSET COMPANY.—Judge Hough has appointed Row M. Robinson receiver in bankruptcy of the C. & S. Corset Company of 478 Broome Street. Liabilities, $6,000; assets, $4,000.

BROADWAY HOTEL COMPANY.—B. Gerson Oppenheim, assignee of the Broadway Hotel Company, formerly the Gilsey House, obtained leave from Judge Bischoff yesterday to file a provisional bond of $25,000 until schedules are filed. Assets are estimated at $20,000. This is a separate matter from the bankruptcy proceedings. Yomkauer & Davidson, representing James M. Shaw & Co., creditors, are contesting the petition in bankruptcy filed by other creditors on the ground that, under the bankruptcy law as the business was solely that of a hotel keeper, it should not be adjudicated a bankrupt.

Out-of-Town.

UTICA, April 17.—W. H. Nichols, banker and general merchant at Hancock, Delaware County, has filed a bankruptcy petition here. His liabilities are about $162,000 and the assets about $145,000, a considerable part of them being notes.

BOSTON, April 17.—Dwight W. Vaughn of Salem, who was petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy in February last, filed his schedule of liabilities and assets this morning. The liabilities are $44,049 and the assets $22,829.

Judgments.

Abbott, W. G.—Helena Jenny, $70.
Allmaras, H.—J. Glass, $43.

CANADA PUTS UP POSTAGE.

Most of Our Magazines Will Have to Add to Subscription Price There.

The new postal laws, which go into effect in Canada on May 8, advancing the postage on second class matter which comes from the United States from 1 to 4 cents a pound, have stirred up several of the American magazine publishers. The publishers say that the English magazines do not coms under this rate, and that the American magazines have been unfairly discriminated against. The Post Office Department in New York sent out statements to the publishers yesterday.

Some of the magazines, notably, The Delinsator, will gain by the new order, as they have been paying 8 cents a pound for some time. The Delineator has been charging $1 extra for postage, but it is said that this custom will be dropped when the new law goes into effect.

Most of the magazines will probably add the amount of postage to the price of the periodicals when taking subscriptions. This has been practically decided by the Periodical Publishers' Association, although no official statement has yet been issued.

Trumbull White, editor of Appleton's Magazine, said yesterday: "We do a very small business in Canada, anyway, and the new law can have comparatively little effect upon us. However, we shall simply charge the extra postage to our subscribers. This is what is done in England and other foreign countries. We shall be forced to put the same practice into effect across the border."

S. A. Everett of Donbleday, Page & Co., Secretary of the American Publishers' Association, said: "Undonbtedly, the only effect the new law can have is to add the amount of postage to the price of the magazine."

Mr. Shorter of the Butterick Publishing Company said: "The Delineator gains instead of losing. We have been paying 8 cents a pound since last Summer; so this will come as a cheaper rate for us. We have been charging our subscribers extra for postage for some time."

A member of the Periodical Publishers' Association said: "It will make very little difference to most of the magazines. There are few which have a large Canadian circulation."

THAW'S CHANCE OF BAIL SMALL

Jerome's Opposition Makes His Lawyers Hesitate to Ask for His Release.

PRISONER IS FEELING ILL

Arises Later Than Usual in the Tombs —Retains Hartridge and Peabody as His Lawyers.

The chance of Harry K. Thaw, faoing a second trial, being released on bail from the Tomba Prison, where he has been confined since ths night of June 25 of last year, when he shot and killed Stanford White, is very remote. This much was learned yesterday after Daniel O'Reilly, Thaw's counsel, had a talk with Distriot Attorney Jerome. As he left the Criminal Court Building Mr. O'Reilly said:

"No steps will be taken in the case for a time. We have not yet selected a successor for Mr. Delmas, and in the meantime we shall simply rest."

As to his present array of counsel, Thaw issued this statement from the Tombs yesterday:

Messrs. Hartridge and Peabody, 149 Broadway, New York:
Dear Sirs: Please continue as my attorneys of record. Very sincerely,
HARRY K. THAW.

It is accepted that Daniel O'Reilly is acting with Messrs. Hartridge and Peabody.

Mr. O'Reilly was waiting at the Criminal Court Building when Mr. Jerome arrived from Lakeville, Conn., where he had been spending the days since ths disagreement of the jury. The two immediately went into Mr. Jerome's private room, where they were in closs conversation for some time. At ths conclusion of this talk Mr. O'Reilly said that he had discussed many matters with the District Attorney, among them ths poolroom cases and the question of admitting Thaw to bail.

"No arrangement has yet been made, however, to bail Thaw," added Mr. O'Reilly.

Thaw's counsel, it was learned, had wished to know if Mr. Jerome's attitude toward admitting Thaw to bail had changed since he left this city last week, and was promptly assured that it had not. Mr. Jerome went over with Mr. O'Reilly his reasons, which have already been made public, for opposing the release of Thaw.

With the jury standing seven for conviction for murder in the first degree and the five others in favor of acquitting Thaw only on the ground that he was insane, Mr. Jerome declared that he truly believed that Thaw at liberty would prove a menace to public safety, and added that he strongly doubted whether any Justice of the Supreme Court would accept bail.

"No application for bail has as yet been made to me," added Mr. Jerome, "but I shall surely oppose such a motion if it is made. However, that bridge can be crossed when we come to it."

Mr. Jerome said that, while he stood ready to move the trial of Thaw again at any time, it was improbable that his case would be reached until Fall. There are now in the Tombs fifteen or sixteen men charged with murder in the first degree, whose trials must take precedence over the retrial of Thaw. Unless these shall be taken care of by a Summer session of the court, the Thaw case cannot be reached before October. In the meantime Mr. Jerome can see no good reason for releasing Thaw simply because the financial position of his family permits them to furnish any security demanded.

It is possible for Thaw's counsel to move before any Justice of the Supreme Court for the bailing of Thaw, and it was rumored yesterday afternoon that Mr. O'Reilly would shortly swear out a writ of hnbeas corpus, holding that confinement is seriously menacing Thaw's health.

For the first time since his confinement Thaw failed to srise at his customary early hour yesterday, and in consequence was not prepared for the visit of A. Russell Peabody, who called upon him at the Tombs. Thaw complained of feeling ill. He was compelled to ariae and dress, however, in order to see his counsel, and, instend of the usual ten or fifteen minute intervlew, the pair were engaged in earnest conversation for over two hours. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was kept waiting downstairs during part of this time, and hurried to her huaband when Mr. Peabody left the building, saying that no statement would be given out.

Young Mrs. Thaw left tho Tombs shortly before noon, on her way from the building again repeating her statement of Tuesday night that she would maks no reply to the statement of Mra. Holman. In connection with thia statement Mr. Jerome admitted yesterday that that part of it in which Mrs. Holman denies ever having supplied information to the District Attorney's office was true.

Thaw's other visitors yesterday were his mother and his sister, the Countess of Yarmouth. They remained with him for three-quarters of an hour. Later Thaw said that in the statement which he intends giving out to-day he will tell when his mother and the Countess are to leave this city, besides making an announcement as to his counsel.

ECHO OF THE THAW TRIAL.

Senator Agnew Proposes New Legislation on Insanity Inquiry.

ALBANY, April 17.—One of the aspects of the case of Harry K. Thaw sppears to be responaible for the introduction in the Senate to-day by Senator Agnew of New York, himself a lawyer, of a bill designed to amend the Criminal Code in relation to inquiry before trial into the aanity of a defendant indicted for a felony. It is provided that either the defendant's attorneys or the District Attorney may apply to any Justice of the court in which the indictment is pending for an order committing the defendant to a State hospital for the insane for observation. The motion must be based upon affidavits, executed by two duly qualified examiners in lunacy, which must ahow that a personal examination within ten days before the notice of motion satisfied tho examiners that the defendant was insane.

If tho Judge be satisfied that the interests of justice so require, he shall make an order committing the defendant to a State hospital for the insane for observation for a period of not less than three, nor more than six, weeks. The Superintendent of the hospital or the phyaician in charge of the defendant ahall report to the court at the end of three weeks ths results of the observation, and ahould the defendant be detained in the hospital for more than three weeks a second report shall be made when he is returned from the hoapital.

ACCUSED OF MANY FRAUDS.

Charles Ackron Arrested as Ringleader in a Worthless Stock Scheme.

In the arrest of Charles Ackron at his home, 416 Jamaica Avenue, Brooklyn, last night, Detective Sergeant McConville says that the police bave at last caught the ringleader of a gang of swindlers who have been cheating business houses out of thousands of dollars. Ackron was arrested on a warrant issued by Magistrate Wahle on April 12 charging "conspiracy to cheat and defraud." Three other men are already in the Tombs in connection with the case.

According to McConville the men have defrauded more than a dozen business houses. The chief complainant is the Plymouth Interior Construction Company of 12 West Twenty-seventh Street, which is said to have been defrauded of $6,000.

According to McConville, Ackron, witb Frederick Robinson of 403 West Twenty-second Street, who is now in the Tombs, posed as the owner of a café at 424 Columbus Avenue.

Robinson, McConville says, was a dummy put forward by Ackron, and Ackron guaranteed the cost of redecorating it. A certificate for 100 shares of Norfolk & Western Railroad stock was deposited as security for payment in a vault in the Phoenix National Bank, according to McConville. When the work was finished this was found to be an old and cancelled issue of the Norfolk & Western.

Two other men were arrested after Robinson, and are in the Tombs awaiting trial. They are George Horn, Jr., of 196 Catharine Street and William H. Houghton, a real estate dealer of 37 South Eighth Street, Mount Vernon.

Among other firms alleged to have been defrauded, Detective McConville says, are William H. Zerbe, brass fixtures, 291 Monroe Street, who lost $1,000; Sibley & Pitman, 48 Warren Street, lamps, $800; Pittsburg Glass Company, 60 Vandam Street, $1,000; Union Carpet Company, 221 Canal Street, $1,500; A. D. Matthews, 398 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, $500; Patterson Brotbers, coal, Brooklyn, 20 tons of coal.

The men, McConville says, were about to open other restaurants on the same plan.

THEY HADN'T REHEARSED.

So the Prisoner's and Interceding Uncle's Stories Didn't Hitch.

Despite an ingenious attempt of his uncle to save him, which would probably have succeded had the two had an opportunity to rehearse their parts, John Kean, a negro, living at 18 West 133d Street, was sentenced to three years in Sing Sing by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday. Kean was charged with carrying concealed weapons. A pair of brnss knuckles was found in his possession when he was arrested for disorderly conduct on March 4.

Judge Rosalsky had already passed sentence, when William Lewis, Kean's uncle, with whom he lives, hurried to the Judge's side and protested that the sentence had been unduly severe.

"Ah found them ere knuckles mahse'f, Judge, yoh Honor," he explained. "Ah'm a street cleaner, and ah found dem brass t'ings eighteen months ago, an' took 'em home foh a curiosity. Dat boy, George, yoh Honor, he's a fool niggah, an' he done took 'em an' liked to carry 'em. Dere ain't no harm in dat boy."

Judge Rosalsky was impressed by Lewis's plea, and he immediately ordered that Kean be again brought before him. But Kean's first statement, however, undid the good effect produced by Lewis's story and nearly brought about the indictment of his uncle for perjury.

"Ah found dem knuckles at 118th Street and Third Avenue," he told Judge Rosalsky and stuck to his story. The Judge said that Lewis really ought to be indicted for perjury.

A GRAB, SAYS WINTHROP.

School Board to Fight Teachers' Salary Increase Bill.

A determined stand ngainst the women teachers' Salary bill will be made by the Board of Education at a hearing at 2 o'clock to-day before the Assembly Cities Committee. At this hearing, which will be held at the request of President Egerton L. Winthrop, Robert L. Harrison, Chairman of the By-Laws Committee, and Abraham Stern will appear for the board.

President Winthrop says the bill will give political and other influences a stronghold in the public schools, and that it gives practically no increase to 6,000 women in the lower primary grades and devotes over $4,000,000 to those in the higher positions, whose salaries would be increased by all the way from $500 to $1,000 a year.

"This bill," said President Winthrop, "will put the schools of New York back fully fifteen years. I should characterize it as a discriminating piece of special class legislation. It's provisions raise the salaries of women in the upper grades by anywhere up to $1,000 per year, while for the women in the primary department it does practically nothing. If any teachers are promoted in salary the primary women should be.

"It is unfortunate that such a piece of legislation should be called an 'Equal Pay bill.'"

HUNT FOR MISSING $10,000.

Loss of Package Sent Here Will Fall on a Wilmington, N. C., Bank.

Regarding the disappearance of a registered package containing $10,000 while in trnasit from the Atlantic National Bank of Wilmington, N. C., to the Chemical National Bank here, Postmaster Willcox said yesterday that he had no official knowledge of the matter.

"From what I have learned from Post Office Inspectors, I know that there was such a package, and that it was lost," said Mr. Willcox. "The matter is in charge of the Inspectors in Washington."

At the Chemical National Bank it was said that the Wilmington Bank regularly sent funds to the Chemical National. The package should have arrived, and it was understood that it had been sent. However, the responsibility for the loss and efforts for the recovery of the money belonged to the Wilmington Bank, it was said.

THE WEATHER.

POLICE SHAKE-UP NOT YET, BUT SOON

Commissioner Bingham Wants to Look Over the New Law First.

NO POLITICS, SAYS MAYOR

And Commissioner Bingham Says the Same—Some Probable Changes.

Police Commissioner Bingham did not use the newly acquired power the Police act gives him to shake up anybody yesterday. The shake-up is coming, but he said that though he had been notified that the bill had been duly signed, before doing anything in the reorganization line he must see an actual certified copy of it.

"And even after that," he went on, "I must see my chief, the Mayor, and have a talk with him about some matters that I propose to do. We shall go over the whole matter together. Of course, there will be some changes, but I cannot say what they will be. I can't say what Inspectors, if any, will be reduced; nor can I say whether McLaughlin will be allowed to remain at the head of the Detective Bureau."

Asked about the possibility of political considerations being allowed to operate through him and his bill, Commissioner Bingham said that the Mayor had never tried to influence him in political matters. He added:

"The Mayor will act on the square, I know." He added, "He has always done so with me."

Mayor McClellan said that he had told the Commissioner that he might proceed exactly as he should wish without recommendations from him "other than those which the charter requires me to make."

"The statement in some of the afternoon papers that I shall 'direct the reorganization,'" continued the Mayor, "is true only to the extent that I shall obey the provisions of the charter which requires me to see to it that every department head does his duty. Other than this I have made no recommendations whatever in regard to any proposed changes in the department. The only request I have made of Commissioner Bingham is that he continue tho detail at the Mayor's office of Lieuts. Kennell and Kelly."

Capt. Lantry of the East Fifty-first Street Station, a brother of Fire Commissioner Lantry, one of the scarce Tammany leaders on the McClellan side in the fight against Murphy, is expected to become an Acting Inspector. He has been a Captain a long time. Schmittberger, a reputed victim of Sullivan hostility, the Sullivans being now the reputed enemies of the Mayor, is expected to hold his place at the head of the traffic squad. It is said that Inspectors McLaughlin and McCluskey are slated to go, because the Commissioner just thinks they are not worth having around the shop.

But making out slates of what the Commissioner and the Mayor will do is not very positive labor. While the Sullivans are the reputed enemies of McClellan, there are those who say that if they were the Commissioner's men they 'would be more active in lower New York. "They are on the fence," it is argucd on some sides, "and they will probably work both sides," it is added.

This uncertainty makes waiting for action at 300 Mulberry Street all the more grinding upon the uneasy of the force. The rank and file are getting some enjoyment out of life now. It is good to many of them who have been subject to petty tyrannies to see their "uppers" really worrying, and with cause.

Meanwhile, under the new law, Roundsmen are Sergeants, former Sergeants and Detective Sergeants are Lieutenants, and Inspectors are only Captains.

I. K. TAYLOR'S HOME BURNED.

Bonfire Started Blaze That Destroyed $80,000 Residence in Orange.

The $80,000 residence in Orange of Irving K. Taylor of the firm of A. W. Taylor & Co., of 39 Broadway, Manhatlan, was wrecked by fire yesterday afternoon. The fire burned, fiercely for two hours.

The entire Orange Fire Department waa called out. The firemen were handicapped by lack of water.

The fire is supposed to have started from n bonfire nt the rear of the house. A brisk wind was blowing, and it is thought that sparks were carried to and lodged on the dry roof. The house, which was built several years ago, was recently purchased hy Mr. Taylor. Much of the valuable contents of the house, including pictures, bric-a-brac, and costly furniture, was saved. Several firemen were cut by glass, but none dangerously.

FIRE BURNS ONTARIO TOWN.

Fifty Buildings in Latchford, Near Cobalt, Destroyed—100 Homeless.

TORONTO, April 17.—The new Ontario town of Latchford, on the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, nine miles south of the famous Cobalt silver mining camp, was practically destroyed by fire to-night. The fire swept the main street from end to end. The loss is estimated between $100,000 and $150,000. The fire spread so rapidly that within two hours fifty large buildings were destroyed.

The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway brought a special train from Cobalt with a fire engine and over two hundred citizens of Cobalt. Several explosions of dynamite occurred, but there were no fatalities.

One hundred people rendered homeless by the fire were taken to Cobalt.

GETS BACK HIS $1 BILL.

R. C. Dewey at Last Convinces the Man Who Picked It Up.

Ralph C. Dewey, a wealthy Manhattan wine merchant, who lives at 631 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, spent two days away from his large business interests to recover $1.

Mr. Dewey dropped a bill while on a Putnam Avenue car. A young man named Hanson picked it up. Mr. Dewey claimed, but Hanson demanded proof of ownership. Mr. Dewey then had Hanson arrested. After the wine merchant had made several visits to the Bates Avenue Court the matter was settled yesterday. Hanson said he was convinced that Mr. Dewey had dropped the bill and agreed to return it. The case was then dropped. Mr. Dewey will now have to spend some more time going to Police Headquarters to get the money from the property clerk.

Costly Fires Laid to Incendiaries.

Two fires, both believed to have been of incendiary origin, occurred on Staten Island early yesterday morning. The first fire did an estimated damage of $25,000 to the dyeing house of Barrett, Nephews & Co. The second fire destroyed the house and barn of a family named Driscoll. The Driscoll family cow was burned.

CALLS PRESIDENT FAKIR AND HUMBUG

J. W. Wadsworth Thanks God He "Can't Fool All the People All the Time."

ROW OVER FEDERAL JOBS

The ex-Congressman Denounces Roosevelt for Dismissal of Good Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Ex-Representative James W. Wadsworth to-day made open and irreconcilable his break with the President, which began a year ago over the fight in the House Committee on Agriculture for the Meat Inspection bill.

Mr. Wadsworth came out in a careful interview, declaring his opinion that the President "is a humburg and a fakir," and that "the country is fast awakening to the real character of this bloody hero of Kettle Hill."

Ever since the controversy over the Meat Inspection bill Mr. Wadsworth has been having hard sledding in his political travels. He was defeated for re-election in a memorable canvass, in which his successful opponent, Peter A. Porter, who was nominated as an Independent Republican and indorsed by the Democrats, used as his chief argument the stand taken by Wadsworth on the meat bill.

Wadsworth's friends in the House undertook to make things interesting for Porter by putting him down among the Democrats in the temporary roll of the next House. Porter raised a howl at them, and the President came to his assistance as a Republican by turning over to him all the Federal patronage of the district. Man after man who held his place by virtue of the friendship of Wadsworth has gone by the board to make room for an adherent of Porter. The climax came to-day when the "resignation" of Archie Sanders, Collector of Internal Revenue at Rochester, was announced. It was a resignation all right, but one that had been demanded by telegraph by Secretary Cortelyou on the order of the President.

Sanders had made a good record for efficiency, and at a recent examination of his office had been passed with high marks. In the usual routine he had been directed by the Secretary of the Treasury to renew his bond for another four-year term. He had hardly got that done when the demand for his resignation fell on him. He was surprised and grieved, and he tried to secure a hearing to find out what was the matter. But his request was refused. The fact was that Peter Porter headed the place, and the President determined to give it to him.

When Wadsworth heard of this he boiled over. "President Roosevelt's removal of Federal office holders in Western New York is such a flagrant violation of the precepts he has always laid down about his intention to retain efficient men in the public service that I am led to believe he was merely faking when he voiced those lofty principles," declared Wadsworth.

"This Sanders case is merely another instance of the purpose of the President to punish all my friends simply because I differed, and wisely differed, as time has proved, from him on certain recent issues. It is in line with the unprecedented action of the President in refusing to reappoint the Postmasters at Dansville, Attica and Lockport. The incumbents of those offices discharged their duties to the complete satisfaction of the Post Office Department and I was practically asked by the department to recommend them for reappointment. I did so, but the President held up the papers. As soon as I was defeated for Congress the President selected new men for these offices—men recommended by my successor. This was in absolute violation of the expressed intention of the President to retain in office good officials.

"The President practically turned down the recommendations of his advisers in the Post Office Department, who wanted the Postmasters reappointed because they had proved to be good officials, and at the same time he violated his own promises to the people. The whole thing stamps the President as unreliable, a fakir, and a humbug. For years he has indulged in lofty sentiments, and violates them all for the sake of gratifying petty spite. It is apparent that he intends to persecute in a like manner every Federal officeholder who is so unfortunate as to be my friend. Thank God, he 'can't fool all the people all the time,' and the country is fast awakening to the real character of this bloody hero of Kettle Hill."

It is expected that to-morrow, when the President reads this, Mr. Wadsworth will be officially elected a member of the Conspirators' Chorus.

TAFT LEAVES PORTO RICO.

President Eagerly Waits to Send Him Into the Ohio Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—It was announced from the White House to-day that Secretary Taft and Congressman Burton would be back in Washington next Tuesday. The President, it seems, had cabled to the War Secretary to ascertain the exact date set for his return.

While Taft and Burton have fully carried out their programme for the trip of inspection through Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Canal Zone, they have not added a day or a half hour to the original schedule. From the day when Foraker issued his challenge and the cablea told the news to the traveling statesmen, they have hustled through their itinerary with all speed.

At that the President has shown impatience ever since the return of Foraker to Ohio and his opening gun at Canton. The President wants Taft back in the United States to fight this battle for him, for the President regards the Taft-Foraker contest as his own battle. Hence the cablegram of inquiry to the War Secretary and the reply, eagerly announced from the White House to-day, that Taft is coming home.

One reason for the impatience shown by the President is his distaste for the fashion in which Charles P. Taft has managed his brother's boom up to this point.

A Democratic Presidential boom for Judson Harmon of Ohio is apparently about to be started. A feeler was published in one of the Washington papers to-day, and it is said that others appeared in Ohio papers this afternoon. More will appear there to-morrow morning.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 18.—Secretary Taft and his party sailed for home on the dispatch boat Mayflower at noon to-day, accompanied by Beekman Winthrop, the retiring Governor of Porto Rico, and Mrs. Winthrop, Mrs. Taft, and Miss Marjorie Ide. An immense crowd bade the Secretary farewell.

BIG TIMES SQUARE SALE.

The Forty-sixth Street Corner Is Sold for $1,000,000.

The property at the southwest corner of Broadway and Forty-sixth Street, Times Square, which was owned for many years by the Ross estate, hse been sold to a syndicate in which sre interested Walter J. Salomon, a real estate operator, and Kerbs, Wertheim & Schiffer, cigar manufacturers.

The deal covers the six five-story buildings, 1,539 to 1,549 Broadway, and the adjoining house, 202 West Forty-sixth Street. The combined properties have a frontage of 127.3 feet in Times Square and 99.3 feet in Forty-sixth Street, and form a plot of about 12,850 squsre feet. All of the properties on the west side of Timee Square, beginning just north of the Astor Theatre and extending to Forty-sixth Street, are included in the transaction, which was negotiated by the McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company.

The Ross estate holdings have been in the market at $1,000,000, and the consideration in the present deal is said to be a little, if any, below that figure.

None of the interested parties would disclose anything last evening as to what plans the buyers have for the future of the property. Mr. Salomon hae achieved several successes in the remodeling of antiquated buildings at prominent points throughout the city—such as the old Hotel Bristol at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street. It is assumed that the new owners of the Times Square corner will eventually undertake some complete renovation of the property. One report yesterday was that a combination office and theatre building will be erected on the site.

On the south side of Forty-sixth Street, adjoining the Ross property, are five old houses, Nos. 204 to 212, controlled by ex-Police Sergeant James Churchill, which may be taken in later by the owners of the corner, if they find that they need more room for their project, but so far as could be learned last evening the Churchill properties have not yet changed hands.

The sale of the Forty-sixth Street corner means that another of the commanding locations facing Times Square has passed into active hands and will be developed just as rapidly as the demands of the neighborhood warrant. By reason of the large holdings of the Astors, this corner has been one of the few large parcels facing the square that has been on the market at anything short of a prohibitive price.

This transaction marks the second large undertaking on Times Squsre with which Mr. Salomon has become identified. He also controls, under a long lease, the block front at the northerly end of the Square, with large frontage on Broadway and Seventh Avenue.

CHINESE STUDENT WINS.

Koo Gets First Prize in Debating Contest at Columbia.

V. K. Wellington Koo, a Chinese student, won the first prize in the annual debating competition of the Philolexian Literary Society at Columbia last night. This society is the oldest of its kind at the institution, and its annual competition attracts much attention.

Koo has made a remarkable record at the university, for, unlike the rest of his countrymen there, he takes part in every form of student activity. He has msde himself so popular that his victory last night was applauded by all the undergraduates.

Koo is the son of Zing Chuen Koo, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Affairs. Koo is now taking the couree which leads to an A. B. degree. He is fitting himself for the diplomatic service of China, and intends to take up courses in public and international law at Columbia after obtaining his Bachelor's degree.

Koo is a leader among the Chinese etudents in this country, having entire editorial charge of The Monthly Chinese Bulletin, which circulates among the 500 Chinese students in this country.

SIDES WITH MRS. MACKAY.

Court Dismisses ex-Vestryman's Suit to Set Aside Roslyn Church Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 18.—Supreme Court Justice Carr dismissed to-day the injunction against Mrs. Clarence Mackay and others in the matter of the removal of the old Trinity Church at Roslyn, which haa been replaced by a $100,000 edifice in memory of Mrs. Mackay's mother, Mrs. Katherine Duer.

The injunction was obtained by Lawyer Henry W. M. Eastman, who has been a vestryman of the church for thirty years. He asked the court that the sale of the old church, which is an old landmark, made by McKim, Mead & White, agents for Mrs. Mackay, to William Sherrard, a coachman of Roslyn, for $25 a week ago, be declared void, on the ground that Mrs. Mackay had no authority from the Board of Trustees to sell the old edifice.

Judge Carr dismissed the case on the ground that the plaintiff had no property rights as an individual, and that the church must either bring the suit or be a party to it.

SPEED IN MURDER CASE.

Case That Follows Thaw's Long Trial Takes Only Two Days.

In marked contrast to the long-drawn-out proceedings of the Thaw trial was the next murder case brought before the Supreme Court. Joseph Figlia, a garment worker, was arraigned on Wednesday before Justice Blanchard on the charge of murdering Antoinette Macioce, a girl working with him at the shop of Heller & Co., at 67 Spring Street.

The impaneling of the jury began at noon and it was completed before the court adjourned at 5 o'clock. Assistant District Attorney Nott opened the case for the prosecution yesterday and called Vincenzo Tonaro, who was engaged to marry the murdered girl. He told how he had jumped in to save his sweetheart and had been badly wounded himself.

The case for the People was closed, and Figlia pleaded guilty of murder in the second degree. The plea was accepted, and he will be sentenced on Monday morning.

The defense which Figlia could have made was of much the same character as that which Thaw put forward. At the time of the shooting he declared that the scoffs of the girl had driven him to frenzy and that he did not know what he was doing. Practically he declared that he had a "brainstorm."

TRINITY'S INCOME IS ONLY $775,000

RETURNS ARE A SURPRISE

Corporation's Income Had Been Supposed to Reach Up Into the Millions—Realty Holdings Here.

For years speculation has been abundant as to the amount and value of the property held by the Corporation of Trinity Church. It has been commonly reported that this corporation is the largest single real estate owner in New York City and that its annual income reaches far up into the millions. The Astor estate, as a whole, is said to be larger, but it is divided among a number of heirs. The same is believed to be true of the Goelet estate, which is about the same size, supposedly, as that of Trinity.

All this, however, has been until now mere speculation, for the reason that the officers of Trinity Corporation have always refused to make public any statement showing the actual amount of Trinity's income or the sum that is paid by the latter to the city in taxes. This secresy has given rise to a good deal of criticism that has appeared from time to time in the newspapers, and it is on account of the misconceptions which have thus become current that the rector of Trinity, the Rev. Morgan Dix, has made the following statement, which appears in this year's annual report of Trinity Parish:

Many articles having from time to time appeared in the public prints regarding the fabulous wealth of Trinity Parish, we will state that the annual income of the corporation last year from all sources was less than $775,000, not including collections and contributions in the churches. (These latter are all used for church work within and without the parish.)

Out of this annual income the corporation paid all the expenses of Trinity Church and its eight chapels, including the care and maintenance of buildings and grounds, salaries of the clergy, music, schools, and many of the parish charities, also the expenses and care of Trinity Hospital and Trinity Cemetery.

About $40,000 was contributed to other churches and institutions outside of the parish; $127,000 was paid to the city for taxes and water rates, and $135,000 for repairs and insurance premiums on the buildings other than church properties.

The corporation has outstanding loans made to churches outside of its own parish amounting to over $365,000 on which no interest is charged, besides which it has given large amounts of property to other churches as endowments.

There are no liquor saloons on any of the corporation property, excepting in two instances where the lots are on long lease and not under control of the corporation, and in one other case in connection with a first-class restaurant; nor does any gambling or other objectionable house exist on any of its property.

MORGAN DIX, Rector.

This statement, of course, does not give the actual present holdings of Trinity from which the income of $775,000 is derived. As yet no report has been published covering this question. The following statement, however, in regard to this question was made to a TIMES reporter by Hermann H. Cammann, Controller of Trinity Corporatinn:

"It would be difficult to give the actual amount of Trinity's real estate holdings as they are to-day. The property from which Trinity derives its income came to the church by a grant from Queen Anne in 1705. This grant comprised what was known as the 'Queen's Farm,' a piece of property vested in the crown by Gov. Lovelace in 1671. Its original boundaries were from Fulton Street to Christopher Street, and a line running partly east and partly west of Broadway, and extending, not invariably, to the Hudson River. Another piece of property, mentioned in the same grant as the 'Queen's Garden,' began on Broadway with the present Trinity churchyard and extended to the Hudson. Since the grant was made a large amount of this property has been given away, mostly to other churches, while some portions of it have been sold. The present property of Trinity consists of what is left of this old 'farm,' but just what this actually amounts to has not been estimated. As a rule, tenants have put up their own houses on this land, paying Trinity a ground rent. Frequently, when these leases have expired, Trinity has bought the buildings of the former tenants.

"Until now, Trinity Corporation has never made public the amount of the annual income derived from this property."

Besides the eight chapels mentioned in Dr. Dix's statement, Trinity supports twelve parish schools and a hospital, and maintains wholly or in part twenty-six other churches, hospitals, and missions. There are twenty-four clergy employed in the parish. The number of communicants is 7,271. The expenses of the parish last year are given as $71,842.33, which was more than covered by the total voluntary contributions for the year, $80,296.08. The expenses outside of the parish amounted to $31,599.25.

BANK PRESIDENT QUITS.

W. T. Fields of New Haven Says He Made Injudicious Investments.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, April 18.—The resignation of William T. Fields, President of the National Tradesman's Bank, caused a stir in financial circles in Connecticut to-day. He has had charge of the Lucy H. Boardman and the Joseph Earl Sheffield trust funds, and he said to-night that in handling them he had made injudicious investments.

"I purchased high-class securities which have shrunk since the present slump in Wall Street," said Mr. Fields to-night in explaining the deficiency. "I shall make every effort to raise and replace the amount which the funds have shrunk."

Mr. Fields said that the amount of the shortage was about $75,000. The fund from which the securities have shrunk in value is the Sheffield trust, established by the founder of the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale. His son, George St. John Sheffield, of North Attleborough, Mass., is said to be the chief beneficiary of this.

These funds have no connection with the Tradesman's Bank, and to-night the bank examinere and Directors announced that the bank's funds were not affected in the slightest degree.

Mr. Fields has been President of the bank about fifteen years. The Boardman estate amounts to more than $1,000,000. The Sheffield fund is understood to be about half that amount.

BALKED IN LOVE, THEY DIE.

Young Couple in Virginia Leap from a High Bridge.

Special to The New York Times.

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., April 18.—Humiliated by the failure of their plan for a runaway marriage, a boy and a girl leaped from a high suspension bridge here to-day, and sank in the river clasped in each other's arms. The young sweethearts were Mabel Pendleton, 17 years old, and Stewart C. Gay, only two years her senior. It is said that possibly the young man jumped in an effort to save his fiancée.

For some time young Gay and Miss Pendelton had been infatuated with each other, but the girl's parents objected to their marrying on account of their youth. The young couple finally determined to get married anyhow. They planned to run away to Washington, and return from there only after a wedding.

Last night they ran away. The parents of the girl learned the direction they had taken, and jumping to the conclusion that Washington was their objective point, telegraphed the police at intervening stations.

When the train bearing the young couple reached Staunton, a policeman boarded it and took both the girl and the boy into custody. They were made to leave the train, and under the policeman's escort were brought back to their home city.

At 6 o'clock this morning they met, and after a short talk the girl jumped into Jackson River from the suspension bridge. The lad followed an instant later.

SOUND STEAMER DISABLED.

Passengers Taken Off the Orient Near Plum Island.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 18.—While the Montauk Steamboat Company's large side-wheel passenger steamer Orient was en route from Greenport, L. I., to this city on her regular trip this afternoon her shaft broke and she was completely disabled. The accident happened about 3 o'clock, just as the steamer wae entering Plum Gut, south of Plum Island, the short channel followed by the big Sound steamers when they make a detour from the "outside route" and enter Long Island Sound.

The Orient's distress signals were noticed by the wireless telegraph operator at Fort Terry, Plum Island, and aid was summoned from New London. The Scott Wrecking Company's towboat Harriet started immediately for the crippled craft, a dozen miles distant. The United States Government transport steamer General Nathaniel Greene was also pressed into service, and succeeded in getting alongside the Orient and transferring her paseengers—about twenty-five in all—and landing them here about 5:30 o'clock.

The Orient will be towed to New London to-night by the tugs Harriet and Cassie if weather permits.

GIGANTIC BONES UNEARTHED.

Remains of Prehistoric Animals Found in Pennsylvania.

Special to The New York Times.

ALTOONA, Penn., April 18.—Perfectly preserved bones of gigantic prehistoric animals which roamed the Allegheny Mountains were discovered by a blast in the quarries of the American Lime and Stone Company along the Pennsylvania Railroad, just east of Hollidaysburg, to-day. The Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg has been notified and is sending an agent here.

The fossils, which are evidently of different animals or a family of one species, were found thirty-five feet under the surface of a limestone formation, and Superintendent J. King Henry of the quarries has preserved the fossils unearthed to-day and will do no further work in the quarries until scientists have had an opportunity to make a further search.

A thigh bone of one of the animals is 10½ inches in diameter, while many teeth 5 and 6 inches long have been found. The teeth are ribbed, each rib having a chisel edge, ivory coated, and somewhat worn from mastication. One vertebra is 8 inches in diameter, while another is 4 inches.

J. A. C. MASON ARRESTED.

Baltimore Man and His Wife Accused of Swindling.

LONDON, April 18.—John Archibald Campbell Mason of Baltimore and his wife were arraigned in the Bow Street Police Court to-day, for extradition on the charge of obtaining money and goods under false pretenses in Florence. Of the amount involved, about $2,000 was obtained on checks, payment of which was refused. Counsel for the defendants said it was a case of misunderstanding, Mr. Mason's family in America having failed to pay in money to his account.

The case was remanded.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 18.—"Jack" Mason and his wife have lived away from Baltimore for several years. Mr. Mason is related to some of the leading families in the city. He spent most of his time here until the nineties, and was identified with fashionable club life and the hunting set. He inherited some money, but was never wealthy. His tastes were mostly in the direction of clothes and horses, and he was never considered a business man.

He was married seven or eight years ago, and brought his bride here from Chicago.

WILL WED IN HOSPITAL.

Bride-to-Be Awaits W. G. Morgan's Return to Consciousness.

William G. Morgan, an employe of the circus, lies in Bellevue Hospital suffering with Bright's disease, and beside his cot is Miss Elizabeth Garvey of 29 Lake Park Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., who will become his bride whenever he regains consciousness for a period long enough to summon a minister and have the ceremony performed.

The Rev. E. P. Newton of Calvary Church went to Bellevue yesterday to perform the ceremony, but Morgan had a relapse as a result of the excitement, and the nurse in charge refused to allow the ceremony to proceed.

Morgan was brought to the hospital five days ago. He had traveled with the circus for some time as a holder of a candy privilege. Three years ago he met Miss Garvey in Terre Haute, Ind., and their wedding was to have occurred this year. When he was taken ill Morgan telegraphed to Miss Garvey, and she came on from Chicago.

CHICAGO CANNOT BUY CAR LINES

State Supreme Court Knocks Out the Municipal Ownership Plan.

CITY NOT ABLE TO PAY

Might Own the Lines, but Has No Power to Reimburse the Present Owners.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The Supreme Court of Illinois administered what is generally considered a deathblow to municipal ownership of the street car lines of Chicago to-day.

The decision was in the case in which the legality of $75,000,000 worth of Mueller law certificates, which ex-Mayor Dunne wanted issued, was challenged, and the court decided against the certificates. In doing so it practically made the law itself inoperative. The Mueller law still stands intact, but the power of putting it into effect so far as Chicago is concerned has been taken away from it.

The city can own and operate street car lines if it wants to, but the method of getting money to buy or build them has been taken away from it. The proposed certificates were declared invalid by the court for the reason that they would be an addition to the bonded indebtedness of Chicago, and this city is already fully up to its constitutional limit.

The decision also finds fault with the certificates because they are a mortgage, not only on what street car properties the city might acquire under them, but also on the streets o fthe city as well. The Mueller law provides that in case there is a default in the payment of the principal or interest of these certificates the owners of the properties in foreclosure not only would acquire them, but also a twenty-year franchise to operate them.

As the case now stands, the only way in which municipal ownership of street car lines is possible in Chicago reduces itself to these alternatives. The city can buy up all its outstanding bonds so as to leave a clear field for the issuance of bonds with which to buy street car lines.

At this time it could not issue more than $30,000,000 of bonds, and a traction system covering the whole city could not be built or bought for this. It can save up the 55 per cent. net receipts of the companies it will receive under the recently adopted ordinances until the total amounts to enough to buy a system.

It can take what little money it can raise now, and take over some small line, saving the profits of operation and whatever extra money it may have to spare for the extensions.

The decision makes short work of Mayor Dunne's plan to acquire immediate possession of the street car properties by condemnation proceedings. Neither a municipality or any other corporation can condemn property without the cash in hand to pay for it, and the invalidation of the Mueller law certificates takes it out of the power of the city to raise the money.

While the decision does not affect the legality of the traction ordinances recently passed by the Council and approved by the people, it makes them practically twenty-year permits to run, unless somebody is willing to pay a bonus of 20 per cent. on the investment and the city will sanction the purchase.

BETWEEN FERRYBOATS.

Over Went a Little Sailboat and Her Crew—Commotion on the River.

Two young amateur sailors in a small rowboat made over into a sailboat, beating against a strong wind up the North River were upset off Gansevoort Street just before 10 o'clock last night.

Two ferryboats passed each other in mid stream and upset their craft, and before the excitement attendant on the rescue of the lads subsided three police boats, several tugs from the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company and the fireboat George B. McClellan had reached the scene, while police reserves all along the river front had been sent out on a report that the two ferryboats had been in collision.

The amateur sailors were Frank Fuchs and his brother, Anton, of 132 Franklin Street, Union Hill, N. J. They had their only sail set and were making good progress when the West Shore ferryboat West Point passed up stream and a Pennsylvania ferryboat came down close together. The little sailboat was buffetted about between the two for less than a minute. Then the West Point hit the boat, which capsized. The two young men clung to the gunwale and shouted for help.

Their cries were heard by the crew of the McClellan, and Capt. McCarthy had his men throw the searchlight across the river. Then the McClellan put out to the scene, and the youths were taken from the water and stowed away in the engine room to dry out.

LENIENT TO CAPT. LOW.

Navy Department Modifies Sentence of Court-Martial.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Capt. Theodore H. Low of the Marine Corps was recently tried by court-martial at New York on the charge of culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty in connection with the care of post funds intrusted to his keeping. Although exonerated from all criminal intent, he was convicted of the charge and sentenced to be suspended from rank and duty for three months and to be publicly reprimanded by the Secretary of the Navy.

Consideration of the cases at the Navy Department has resulted in the remission of that portion of the sentence calling for suspension and the severe reprimand of the officer by the Secretary of the Navy.

UNIVERSITY OUT $400,000?

Discrepancy to This Amount Said to Exist in Wisconsin's Accounts.

MADISON, Wis., April 18.—A report that a discrepancy of $400,000 exists in the accounts of the University of Wisconsin wae circulated at the Capitol to-day.

Several months ago the University Regents put a New York expert to work on the books. Recently the expert made his report. President Van Hise of the university said to-day that there was absolutely no suspicion of any mieappropriation of funds, but admitted that there had been failure properly to charge up certain investments to their proper accounts.

When the report was circulated at the Capitol President Van Hise immediately went to the State House and explained as best he could the details of the alleged $400,000 discrepancy.

SMITH WILL CONTEST RUMORS

Founded Apparently on the Fact That No One Knows What's in the Will.

Reports have been in circulation for several days as to the possibility of a contest over the estate of James Henry Smith, supposed to amount to more than $50,000,000.

Diligent inquiry has merely brought out the fact that as no one except his lawyers know what is in Mr. Smith's will, and they do not tell, no one knows whether there will be a contest or not or what there is to contest.

EARTHQUAKES AT MANILA.

Two Severe Shocks This Morning—No Damage Reported.

MANILA, Friday, April 19.—There were two severe earthquake shocks here this morning.

No damage is reported.

2-CENT RATE BILL PASSED.

Only One Dissenting Vote in the Assembly at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 18.—The Assembly to-day passed with but one dissenting vote, that of Mr. Prentice of New York, the bill of Mr. Baldwin of Onondaga, providing for a flat rate of two cents a mile on all railroads in the State.

LANSING, Mich., April 18.—Gov. Warner to-day signed the two-cent fare bill, which becomes effective in September. It applies to all lower peninsula roads earning more than $1,200 per mile per year on passenger traffic. Upper peninsula roads are reduced from four cents to three cents, and lower peninsula roads under the $1,200 limit can charge three cents.

The measure provides that all railroads in the State with a mileage of 150 miles or more shall not charge more than 2 cents a mile. It does not affect the Ulster & Delaware Railroad, and it is also understood it does not affect the Long Island Railroad.

SHOT BY DEER POACHERS.

Boy Badly Wounded in the Woods Near Sayville, L. I.

Special to The New York Times.

SAYVILLE, L. I., April 18.—A boy was shot to-day in the woods near W. K. Vanderbilt's country place, "Idle Hour," by poachers who were hunting deer out of season. The boy is badly wounded, but he will recover. The man who shot him has not been found, but the case has been put in the hands of Game Protector Overton, and every effort will be made to capture him.

For some days illegal deer shooting has been going on near Oakdale. It is feared that unless the poaching is stopped it will lead to the extermination of the deer in this neighborhood.

Two men who were seen in a wagon with at least one deer that they had killed have been identified. It is thought that one of them may have fired the shot that injured the boy.

PURCHASE BY PRESS CLUB.

The New York Press Club has bought, through the Ruland & Whting Company, the property at the northwest corner of William and Spruce Street, 36.10 by 72. The club will probably erect a new building on the site in the near future.

The purchase was made from the Ward estate, represented by Otis & Otis, as attorneys. The property had been held in the Ward family for nearly a century.

The Press Club now occupies leased quarters at 120 Nassau Street. It is understood that a six-story building has been planned for the William Street corner.

RECORD IN SHIPBUILDING.

Fast Time Being Made in Constructing the Collier Vestal.

Naval Constructor Baxter said yesterday that he believed a new record in shipbuilding in this country had been established in the construction of the naval collier Vestal in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Congressmen Calder and Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, who are strong advocates of building Government ships in Government yards, visited the yard a day or two ago and were enthusiastic over the work on the Vestal. It is believed that the ship will be completed well within the specified time.

CAUGHT BETWEEN CARS.

Mrs. D. B. Turner Pinned in the Wreck of Her Carriage in Broadway.

Mrs. David B. Turner, of 1,045 Fifth Avenue, narrowly escaped injury late last night when the brougham in which she was seated was crushed between a north and a south bound Broadway car which demolished the carriage. The woman, the driver and the horses all escaped. The carriage was smashed beyond repair.

The driver, Peter O'Hara, was driving slowly south on Broadway. Near Twenty-ninth Street Mrs. Turner ordered him to take her home. O'Hara turned from the west side of Broadway to go back on the east side. The brougham was just in the middle of the street on both tracks when a north and a south bound car approached. Both cars struck the carriage at the same time, crushing the body of the carriage between them. It held firm, and Mrs. Turner escaped injury.

Mrs. Turner was held a prisoner until the arrival of the wrecking crew. She remained calm throughout, and when released Mrs. Turner called a cab and was taken home.

DAVIS STATUE IN PLACE.

3,000 Children Haul Bronze Memorial to Its Site.

RICHMOND, April 18.—The bronze statue of Jefferson Davis, which is to be unveiled here on June 3, was hauled through the streets to the site to-day by 3,000 children, clinging to a double rope three blocks long.

The rope was cut into thousands of pieces for souvenirs.

Mrs. Donald McLean Re-elected.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—While the vote of the Continental Congress for National officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution probably will not be announced until to-morrow, it is admitted by both factions that Mrs. Donald McLean has been re-elected as President General of the society.

Bare Cigarettes from Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 18.—The House to-day passed the Young anti-cigarette bill making unlawful the selling of cigarettes or cigarette papers in Illinois. The bill now goes to the Senate.

HUGHES TELLS OF REPUBLIC'S FOES

Those Who, by Abuse of State Privileges, Bring the Law Into Contempt.

PEOPLE TIRED OF TRICKS

Financial Juggiery Must Cease, He Says at Buffalo Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

BUFFALO, April 18.—Nearly one thousand of Buffalo's foremost business men gathered at the banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce to-night and cheered to the echo the speakers' predictions of a greater Buffalo.

The magnificent new home of the Chamber of Commerce was formally dedicated to-day. Robert R. Hefford, chairman of the building committee, turned the new structure over to President William H. Gratwick, who received it on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. The building is thirteen stories in height and faces on both Main and Seneca Streets.

In his introductory remarks at the banquet to-night at the Ellicott Club President Gratwick declared that it was not visionary to forecast an industrial Buffalo that would cover the Niagara frontier from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario.

Gov. Hughes's Speech.

After recalling that in fifty years the population of Buffalo had increased from 84,000 to over 380,000, and its manufacturing capital from $4,000,000 to $157,000,000, the Governor continued:

"We sometimes hear voiced a feeling of resentment against the assertion of public rights upon the ground that it is an attack upon the business interests of the country. A sullen and defiant attitude toward public opinion ill becomes an American citizen. Both unprincipled attempts to corrupt it and despotic efforts to defy it must, in this land of sound common sense, inevitably fail.

"One of the dangers of the rapidity of our development is overstrain. Brain and nerve have never been subjected to such tests as are now imposed upon those who are charged with the responsibilities of success, either in commercial, industrial or professional life. A railroad man told me the other day that for the purpose of securing necessary assistants in the enlargement of his railroad facilities he had sent to one of the largest railroad corporations in the country for a list of available men. He had received the names of a considerable number between 35 and 45 years of age, among whom he recognized many who had won distinction for their abilities, and against all was the note "broken down." That I suppose was the reason why they were "available."

Danger of Undue Tenseness.

"Now, in a situation like this, where executive ability is crowded to the utmost, and the demands of the day are multiplied, while the hours of the day remain inexorably fixed, there is danger of an undue tenseness and of a tendency to disorganization. If I were to put in a phrase the special demand of the hour upon all those engaged in the discussion of public and economic questions affecting the business interests of the country, I should say: Let these questions be upon your conscience and upon your heart, but not upon your "nerves."

"The prevailing sentiment in this country is wholesome and just; it is idealistic; it rejoices in the extension of commerce and the development of industry; it takes pride in the ability that invents, in the talent that can organize effort and make coöperation productive; it honors honest toil of hand or brain; it prizes sagacity and thrift; it extols prudence; it reverences achievement. But it also demands honesty. It also exacts fidelity, both to private and public obligation. It believes in freedom of opportunity, not that a few may exploit the many, but that each, working according to his talent, may receive a just return and that the rights of all in their community relations shall be paramount to the selfish interest of any one.

"The people draw a clear distinction between the builders and the destroyers of our Commonwealth. Work is honorable and no true American begrudges the workman his well-earned reward. For the rank and file who are toiling to develop the resources of our country and to facilitate the exchanges of commerce; for the great army of workers in their varied fields of effort who are giving their lives to industry and making possible our commercial development, people have naught but praise. They are not against business, but against abuses; and to preserve the interests of the former the latter must be stopped.

Enemies of the Republic.

"Who are the enemies of the Republic? They are not those who are doing an honest day's work and who seek to do their work under fair and decent conditions.

"They are not those who manage industry and commerce with just regard for those who are under their direction and with proper recognition of public rights.

"They are not those, who, husbanding the resources they have lawfully acquired, seek to enlarge the field of enterprise and to afford opportunity for new and useful employments.

"They are not those, who, taking account of the evils that afflict society, attempt to provide adequate remedies.

"There are two classes of enemies to the prosperity of this country.

"The first consists of the unscrupulous, who have no sympathy with democratic ideals, and who, by their abuse of the privileges obtained from the State and their cynical indifference to public obligations, bring law and government into contempt.

"The second class consists of those who seek profit in unprincipled agitation.

"The second thrives upon the evils created by the first.

"Now the great progress of the country so strikingly exemplified in this favored city must give us pause. Business and commerce must have stability, but they cannot find it unless the public confidence is maintained. This means efficient government and adequate public regulation of public service. There is no measure more truly conservative than that which commands the public respect, as conserving the public interest. Favoritism in public service is an iniquity that the people will not and should not tolerate; it is an evil which the business men of the country are determined to end.

Tired of Financial Jugglery.

"The public is entitled to be assured that the business which is conducted by virtue of the franchisee they grant is conducted as the public interest requires. They desire extensions of facilities; they wish to encourage betterments; they have no inclination to hamper industry, but they are tired of financial jugglery, and they demand proper service. There is no reason why those who are endeavoring to meet fairly public obligations should suffer by the improper practices of others engaged in the same business.

"The remedy is to provide such regulation of public service as will assure the people that provision has been made for the investigation of every question, and that each matter will be decided according to its merits in the light of day. But equally important is it to insist upon the maintenance of the highest standards of administration in government and not to tolerate any prostitution of public office to selfish purposes.

"Now, I have confidence in the people. And I have no confidence in those makeshifts which result from distrust of the people. But whether you have confidence or not in popular judgment, let me assure you that in this country it is idle to inveigh against it. You must abide by it. And the security of business is in the provision of adequate means for responsible government, in holding officials strictly to account for their performance of duty, and in a compliance on the part of those in charge of our great business enterprises with the obvious demands of justice."

W. C. Brown's Appeal.

W. C. Brown, Senior Vice President of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, spoke of the rapid development of the railroads of this country, and the increasing demands upon them for greater facilities of transportation. He said in part:

"Money for the great improvement and extension of our transportation facilities, if these necessary improvements are made at all, must be provided as the money for the original construction of these facilities was provided, i. e., by private capital; and, in order to secure the vast amount of money required, the investment must be made reasonably attractive and secure

"If the development and the extension of the Nation is to go on, if the progress made during the last ten years may be accepted as in any respect a measure of progress to be made during the coming decade, almost as much money will have to be expended in increasing the facilities of existing railroads, and in building additional railroads, as has been expended during the eighty years since the beginning.

"But unless assurance can be had, not of condoning wrong-doing, or winking of abuses, but of friendly co-operation, of protection, and aid, in every fair and legitimate manner against oppression and injustice; of such guarantee as the Government can give of protection from legislation which will prevent earning a reasonable return of money invested, and a fair participation in increased values and general prosperity which investments of this character aid in promoting, it is going to be impossible for the railroads to obtain the money necessary for such improvements and extensions alone.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of necessary improvements have been stopped, and will not be undertaken until a restoration of confidence can be had, which will make it possible to float large issues of railroad securities, both at home and abroad.

Opinion Molded by the President.

"It is doubtful if, in the history of the United States, and upon any great national question or issue, public opinion has been so molded and directed by the President as it has in the consideration of and attitude toward great transportation interests of the country. This powerful influence has been exerted fearlessly and forcefully in correcting abuses by the railroads, and I believe it will be exerted just as fearlessly and effectually in protecting the railroads from injustice.

"I am firmly and unalterably in favor of the regulation of railroads and all other corporations by the Nation and the States. The people created these corporations and have the undoubted right to regulate them. I would not, if I could, materially change the laws thus far enacted by Congress.

"The appalling blow to the credit of our railroads is not so much the result of what has been done as from the manner and temper with which it has been done and the fear of what may follow. The business of the railroads should be as open and public as that of the national banks; rates should be reasonable, stable, and absolutely equal to all. This and this alone will fully and finally restore confidence and promote that industrial and commercial tranquility so necessary to permanent national prosperity."

Railroads Not Overcapitalized.

John P. Thayer, Jr., Vice President of the Pennsylvania lines, speaking on the general subject of railroads, said he believed that any one who studied the question of overcapitalization, watering of stocks, and dishonest financing would reach the conclusion that the railroads of this country were not overcapitalized, but that on the contrary their capitalization did not represent their real value. The so-called water which was originally in the securities of some railroads had long since been squeezed out, either by bankruptcy and reorganization, or by increase in the value of the property. The "watered" securities merely represented the speculative chances which the investor took in putting his money into a speculative railroad, and in innumerable instances he not only never realized on the water, but lost the actual cash besides.

He did not deny that there had been dishonest methods in financing some railroad transactions, but would venture to assert that the proportion of dishonesty among railroad financiers, or among the rank and file of the men directly charged with the management of railroads, was less than in any other line of business in this country.

Mr. Thayer denied that the Wall Street financiers dictated the policy of railroads as to rates and details of management. The railroad situation, he declared, was misunderstood, and he believed that if the full facts could only be presented intelligently to the people there would be an entire change of sentiment, and there would not be such pressure of legislation as that which now confronted the railroads.

Proposes Second Legislature.

Henry J. Pierce, President of the International Railway Company and Chairman of the Municipal Railroad Terminal Commission of Buffalo, suggested that in each State the Governor call a second Legislature, to be composed of the heads of Chambers of Commerce, and to meet at the Capitol after the regular Legislature had adjourned.

"It should not meet for a day, but for weeks, if necessary," he said. "It should discuss every question of interest or at issue in any way affecting the public service of the people. Its members should aid to bring about a thorough understanding of corporation business from the business standpoint. It would result in a better understanding, and during that time, if later the laws needed to be amended, the State's Chief Executive and other officials would ascertain the practical business side, apart from the technical legal side, for subsequent use in such amendment as might be found necessary.

"The convening of such an assemblage would mark a new era in our country's development. Certainly no harm could come from hearing all sides of every question. Then we could ascertain just what charges of corruption, if any, in public service corporations were true, and just what accusers and accusations were untrue.

"Here in our own State the people surely would uphold the Governor if he should call in conference representatives of all of the Chambers of Commerce of the State and discuss with them questions pertaining to the regulation of public utilities, and invite the criticisms and suggestions of these practical men.

"I believe the Governor would find that they, knowing the wants and necessities of the corporations which they represent, would be able to give him advice and suggestions that he would be glad to accept, and that, as a result, a measure, if any were deemed necessary, would be drafted whose requirements could be observed without hardship by the corporations, and that would, while safeguarding the interests of the people, meet the approval of business interests, and that the State of New York would have a public utility law that would be so workable, sane, and practicable that it would be a model likely to be adopted by the other States."

KELSEY CASE AGAIN PUT OFF.

Hope That a Final Decision Will Be Reached Next Week Abandoned.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—The Senate Judiciary Committee to-day decided to let the Kelsey case, which was to have been considered, go over until such time as all the members of the committee are able to attend. Senator Hinman is still kept away by illness, and Senator Davis, Chairman of the committee, was on his way to Buffalo with Gov. Hughes.

The plan now is to take up consideration of testimony at the meeting of the committee next Wednesday afternoon. Should a conclusion be reached at that session the report to the full Senate will probably be made the following day. The Senate will then fix a day for action on the matter the following week, probably Tuesday or Wednesday. All hope of having a final decision by next week, as the Governor's friends had expected, has therefore passed.

KELSEY'S APPEAL HEARD.

Mott Terms Receivership of the Loan Association as Scandalous.

The appeal of Otto Kelsey and Edmund G. Riggs as receivers of the Republic Loan and Savings Association, from the order of Supreme Court Justice Kelly appointing Alexander McKinny a referee to investigate their management of the affairs of the defunct organization, was argued yesterday in the Appellate Division in Brooklyn.

The attorney for the receivers opposed the continuation of the order on the ground that Justice Kelly had conferred on the referee the power to investigate the actions of Kelsey and Riggs outside the State. In many of these States ancillary receivers were appointed by the United States Circuit Court, and Supreme Court Justice Kelly, it was contended, had no authority to appoint a referee to review their actions. The proper appeal, the lawyer said, would be to the Federal Courts.

The order of Justice Kelly was defended by Deputy Attorney General Mott. Mr. Mott said the receivership had been conducted in a scandalous manner. Decision was reserved.

BILLS AT ALBANY.

That Against the So-Called Fire Insurance Pool Reported Out.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—Following a hard fight in the Insurance Committee, the Smith bill, aimed against the so-called "fire insurance pool," was reported out to-day. The measure forbids fire insurance companies to fix rates for certain districts, and compels every company issuing a policy in that district to charge the same rate.

The Glynn bill, obliging railroads to pay their employes in cash, occupied the attention of the Assembly for an hour today. Glynn of Monroe moved to discharge the Committee on Labor and Industries from further consideration of the measure. His motion was defeated.

The Assembly passed the Wagner fireman's salary increase bill. This measure gives the second-grade firemen $1,300 instead of $1,200, the third-grade firemen $1,200 instead of $1,000, and the fourth-grade firemen $1,100 instead of $800.

The Senate advanced to the order of final passage the Public Health Committee's bill substituting a single medical examining board for the three boards now governing the allopathic, homeopathic, and eclectic schools of medicine.

Pilots to Stick to Their Demands.

Pending a settlement of the question of the advance in wages asked for first, second, and third officers on all coastwise steamships, Harbor No. 1 of New York of the American Association of Masters, Mates, and Pilots decided yesterday that no new places will be taken by its members except at the advances demanded.

Union Seeks Reinstatement.

The Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union, whose members have been working on the open shop basis for over a year, announced yesterday that it will make a strong effort to be reinstated under the arbitration plan. President Ryan of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, against which the open shop was declared, was in this city yesterday, and had a conference with the officers of the local union.

ORCHESTRELLE

"Period" and Art Case Designs

So great is the demand for this superb and distinctive musical instrument that a special Art Department has been created to furnish case designs in harmony with all the more elaborate schemes of interior decoration.

The impressive character of the Orchestrelle's tone, together with the facility it offers anyone to interpret orchestral and cathedral music with individual expression, is the foundation on which its enormous success is based.

Orchestrelles in Colonial, Louis XV., Empire and other "Period" cases, and Grecian, Renaissance and Gothic effects may now be obtained ready for delivery, or special designs will be executed to order.

THAWS TO RAISE $1,000,000 FOR BAIL

Prisoner's Mother in Pittsburg, Conferring with Managers of the Estate.

TRIED TO INFLUENCE JURY?

Jerome Investigating the Story That a Policeman Apealed to Thaw's Judges.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 18.—Mrs. William Thaw and her daughter, the Countess of Yarmouth, reached home here this evening. They came to raise $1,000,000 in cash, which may be needed in case it is decided that Harry K. Thaw can be admitted to bail.

There was much bustle in the offices of Frank Semple, Sr., the business manager of the estate, in the Arrott Building, today. In just whet way the business managers of the estate will go about disposing of such parts of the estate so ae to raise the necessary funds is not made public. It is known that Lyndhurst, the home of Mrs. Thaw, is on the market, and a quick cash sale is wanted. To raise $1,000,000, the sum given out as the amount required, will mean the disposal, either temporarily or permanently, of stocks and bonds or real estate.

It has been known for some time that Mrs. Thaw has spent the mejor part of her fortune on Harry within the past ten years.

Assistant District Attorney Smyth began yesterday an investigation into a curious incident which is said to have occurred while the Thaw jury was still in consultation as to its verdict. It is alleged that one night as the jurors were returning from dinner at the Broadway Central Hotel one of the policemen assigned to the Criminal Courts Building caught sight of a Mystic Shriner's pin worn by one of them and called out:

"Don't forget Thaw's father was a Mystic Shriner!"

Mr. Jerome believes that if this was said it was a very serious attempt to influence the jury, and he is determined to discover which of the policemen so far forgot his duty. Supposnas have been issued for George Pfaff, Charles D. Newton, and John S. Dennee, three of the jurymen, to come to the District Attorney's office this morning and say if they know anything about the matter. Harry C. Brearley visited Mr. Jerome yesterday for a few minutes, but refused to state the object of his call.

The only step taken yesterday in the elucidation of the mystery as to who will be the lawyers of Harry K. Thaw next time he faces a jury was the announcement by Mr. Hartridge that he did not consider himself the senior counsel. Referring to the brief statement by Thaw published in yesterday's TIMES to the effect that the firm of Hartridge & Peabody would continue as his attorneys of record, Mr. Hartridge gave out the following statement:

"I regret that there le a misunderstanding regarding Mr. Thaw's letter of April 16. There is an impression that I am senior counsel in this case, which is absolutely unwarranted. My connection with the case is simply that my firm is counsel of record."

For the present, at any rate, Mr. Hartridge is not busying himself much in the matter, and leaves everything to Daniel O'Reilly and Mr. Peabody. Both of these lawyers were at the Tombs yesterday morning early and had a prolonged interview with the defendant in the counsel room. Thaw gesticulated wildly and there were rumors that there had been a serious disagreement between the lawyers. Both of them denied it afterward, but would not say what was the subject of the conference.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had arrived at the prison before the conference began, and for a time allowed her husband to talk alone with his lawyers. But after forty minutes she became impatient and joined them. Another visitor was Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective. He had been sent for by the prisoner, but would not say what was the object of his call.

Both Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. Peabody went to the Tombs again in the afternoon, but persisted that there was no significance in their close attention to their client. They said that no decision as to the senior counsel to be engaged was likely for some time. A long list of possible lawyers has been prepared, and Thaw is slowly sifting them out. In Boston it was reported that ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker was under consideration. But he replied when he was asked about it:

"This is the first intimation I have had of anything of the kind."

A visit paid to Thaw by Dr. Jelliffe, one of the alienists retained in his behalf, late on Wednesday night, aroused stories that at last the strain of the trial and confinement had begun to affect the prisoner mentally. They were absolutely denied. It was explained by his lawyers that Thaw had only wished to ask Dr. Jelliffe about some matters connected with the trial, and that he was in the best of health.

At the Tombs it was explained that Thaw had not felt very well and that as Dr. McGuire, the prison physician, was ill, Dr. Jelliffe had been summoned. As Warden Flynn has told the prisoner that in case he falls ill he will be immediately transferred under guard to one of the public warde at Bellevue, it is believed that Thaw will not permit himself to demand medical care more than is necessary.

Mrs. William Thaw left New York yesterday for Pittsburg, accompanied by the Countess of Yarmouth. After a stay there of some days, the Countess will pay another visit to Thaw before she returns to England. It will therefore he some time before she sails. Edward Thaw and his wife sailed yesterday for Europe in the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. Among their fellow passengers was James Clinch Smith, brother-in-law of Stanford White, whose evidence had so important an effect in strengthening the case of the prosecution.

A men who said he was C. M. Howell of 5 Montague Terrace, Brooklyn, obtained a pass from Commissioner Coggey to visit the Tombs, and according to the Commissioner, stated that he was a friend of Thaw's. He found his way up to Murderers' Row, and was there stopped by one of the deputy keepers. The visitor admitted that he did not really know Thaw, and was asked to withdraw immediately.

TRIES TO PROVE HER SANITY.

Young Woman Says She Is Victim of Brothers' Cupidity.

Special to The New York Times.

STAUNTON, Va., April 18.—Mies Ethel Davis is seeking to have herself declared sane by a lunacy commission now in session here. She has been in several asylums, one of them in New York State.

She alleges that she has been detained at the instance of her brothers, who, she says, wish to keep possession of her fortune. Dr. Trice of Mooresbrook Hospital, said that the young woman had been an inmate of his institution, but that she had been taken away at his request.

Her brothers are opposing her in her fight. Witnesses have testified that she has acted in a sane manner since her release from the asylum here.

FOR THE CALVIN MEMORIAL.

College Presidents Speak at Conference in Aid of the Fund.

President Eliot of Harvard, ex-President Patton of Princeton, Prof. J. H. Foster of Dartmouth, and Edwin D. Mead of Boston were among the speakers yesterday afternoon at a conference held in Union Theological Seminary in the interest of the proposed memorial to John Calvin to be erected in Geneva in 1909, the four hundredth anniversary of his birth. Dr. Patton declared that Calvin stood for the intellectual enfranchisement of the race, and that, whatever one's religious faith, tribute must be paid to the rugged and militant insistence of the reformer upon the rights of conscience, to which he attributed, not only the political awakening in Europe brought by the period of the reformation, but the sturdy standards of the founders of this country. President Eliot spoke briefly along similer lines.

Mr. Mead told about meeting Dr. Felix Adler in Europe some time ago and of remarking that he was engaged in making a Calvin pilgrimage. Dr. Adler replied:

"I rejoice that there is one radical in America whose reading of Calvin is as enthusiastic as mine. Calvin had a message for the American people, which you and I ought to go back and preach to them."

SHOT BABE WHO GREETED HIM

Father Returned After Year's Absence to Commit Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 18.—When O. P. Dudson of Gadsden, Ala., approached his home after a year's absence, his four-year-old baby spied him from the window and called out, "Daddy! Daddy's come!"

In reply to the joyful greeting of his little one, the father shoved his pistol through the pane and shot the child dead. Then, as his wife ran screaming toward the body, Dodson fired twice, but missed her, and then fled.

He was captured later and lodged in jail. There will be no lynching as he is evidently insane. Dodson is a telegraph operator.

NO TRACE OF LAWYER ROEHR.

Fears Now That the ex-Assemblyman May Have Killed Himself.

Fears that he may have taken his life while in a fit of despondency were expressed yesterday by friends of ex-Assemblyman Edward H. M. Roehr of Brooklyn, the lawyer, who has been absent from his office and home for nearly two weeks. He is said to have talked despondently to his brother-in-law, John T. McGovern, a short time before he went away, saying he felt like killing himself.

No word was received from Roehr yesterday. District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn took temporary possession of the papers in the safe in the lawyer's office here, and is now looking carefully over them. He said yesterday that he had found nothing on which a charge against Roehr could be based.

Mrs. Roehr is seriously ill.

ACKRON AGAIN IN A CELL

Former Proprietor of the Tivoli Is Accused of Fraud.

Charles Ackron, once proprietor of the Tivoli Café in the Tenderloin district, is again commanding the attention of the police. He was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday and held in $1,000 bail for examination on Monday. Being unable to obtain bail he was locked up.

Ackron is charged with having deposited 100 shares of canceled Norfolk & Western stock in the vault of the Phoenix National Bank for security for work done by the Plymouth Interior Construction Company of 12 West Twenty-seventh Street in the café in West Twenty-second Street, of which he posed as owner. Ackron was arrested at his home, 416 Jamaica Avenue, Brooklyn.

FOUND A HUMAN HIVE.

Five Persons Slept in a Bed in This Brooklyn Tenement.

What is believed to be the most crowded dwelling house in New York City was discovered in Brooklyn yesterday by a policeman. It is a two-story and basement structure in Second Avenue, near Twelfth Street, and the conditions which were found there astonished the authorities.

Patrolman Carroll, who stumbled across the human hive, was looking for a man named Senda, charged with assault. He reached the house early in the morning when the inmates were asleep. Most of the tenants were Poles. Carroll says he found an average of four beds in a room, and that from four to five people were accustomed to sleeping in each bed. He says he counted about 200 persons in the house, and believes that there were others tucked into out-of-the-way corners who escaped his notice.

WORKED THE "LEMON GAME."

John McCormick Convicted of Fleecing Westerner Out of $1,500.

The "lemon game" was successfully played a few days ago on Edwin F. Myers, a Nebraska rancher, who is studying law at the Harvard Law School. One of the men who fleeced him, John McCormick, was found guilty yesterday before Judge Rosalsky, in Special Sessions, of larceny in the second degree.

Myers came to town knowing no one, and was glad to enter into conversation with a stranger in the Subway. They got off at Twenty-third Street and had a drink. Then they went across to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and McCormick entertained Myers at dinner.

After dinner McCormick introduced Myers to two of his friends and they all went around to a Sixth Avenue room to play pool. Myers knew nothing of the game and was surprised when told that by pocketing a certain ball he had won $1,500. He was willing enough to accept the money, but one of the men objected.

"Well, if you didn't know there was that much on the game could you have paid if you'd lost?"

"Certainly," answered Myers, "I've got a draft for $1,500."

"I'd like to see it cashed," said the other with a sneer.

So next day Myers met his friends by appointment and produced three $500 bills.

"There they are," he said.

"I reckon I'll keep these," said the largest of the men. He snatched the money and ran.

Then Myers bethought him of his old college friend Elihu Root, Jr. He went to him and told his sad story. Young Mr. Root took him to the District Attorney's office. The description Myers gave resulted in the arrest of McCormick, and he was found guilty yesterday.

DR. HAUGH EXECUTED.

Ohio Physician Murdered His Parents and Brother.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 18.—Dr. Oliver C. Haugh of Dayton was executed by electricity at midnight for the murder of his parents and brother.

He killed them on Nov. 1, 1905. The Haughs' home at Dayton was burned, and when the ruins were searched the bodies were found. Dr. Hnugh's defense was insanity, but he was declared sane. It was brought out, however, that he wes addicted to the use of drugs.

Attempts were made to connect him with the murder of several women in Cincinnati who were strangled. Haugh's widow, who got a divorce, and their two children live in Dayton.

Benefits for Policemen's Families.

At the suggestion of Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher the benefits at the Astor Theatre arranged for the families of Policemen Sellick and Seckler, who were shot and killed by an Italian last Sunday, have been postponed. The benefits will consist of three performances on next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, when "Before and After" will be revived.

GRADY CHAMPIONS TEACHERS' BILL

Attacks Superintendent Maxwell in Defending Jasper's Administration.

BUTTS AND STERN HEARD

Board of Education and Corporation Counsel Fight Proposed Salary Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—At the hearing on the New York Teachers' Salary bill before the Assembly Cities Committee to-day, Senator Grady appeared as the champion of the teachers. His argument included an attack on City Superintendent Maxwell. The Board of Education's opposition to the bill was summed up by Abrahem Stern. The city administration, through Assistant Corporation Counsel Butts, also fought the measure. It is not believed here that the bill will be reported out. Reierences had been indirectly made to ex-Superintendent John Jasper by some of the advocates of the bill and to these Senator Grady addressed himself.

"I wish to denounce as unworthy," he said, "any observations that have been made here about ex-Supt. Jasper, under whoss administration New York public schools made such great progress. He had no books to sell. He had no locked and barred doors. He had no lackeys standing about when teachers wished to see him.

"Let me tell you that this bill here is the most conservative bill you will have put before you. If you deny these women teachers justice let me warn you that the next will be drastic. We propose to do away with thess injustices somehow."

Mr. Butte argued that the bill took from New York the right to regulate the salaries of it's teachers, a right that is not denied to any village or city in the State. He contended that to carry out the provisions of the bill would entail an increase of from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 in the budget, and announced that the city administration was flatly opposed to the measure. The Board of Education's representative, Commissioner Stern, tore the bill to tatters in the opinion of some of the members of the committee. Some of his arguments went unanswered.

"This 'equal pay for equel work' proposition," he said, "cannot be carried out under the present conditions.

"In grades from the fourth B down, there being no men teachers, the women teachers would receive absolutely no increase, except the initial increase of $120, that is, from $600 to $720. Otherwise they get absolutely no benefit from this bill."

WORK ON UTILITIES BILL.

Measure Not Likely to Come Before the Legislature This Month.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—It does not seem likely that the Public Utilities bill can come before the two houses of the Legislature from the committees having the measure in charge until after May 1.

The Assembly Railroads Committee took up the bill to-day. It will consider the bill section for section and make any amendments that may be suggested by the briefs both of friends and opponents of that measure. Its work will probably not be completed before the middle of next week. Then, according to the plan which has been adopted, the Assembly Railroads Committee will go over the bill again in joint session with the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, to which body it was referred to in the upper house.

National Guard Bill Finally Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—The Wainwright bill providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the National Guard and revise the Military Code was passed to-day in the Assembly as amended by the Senate which cut down the appropriation of $15,000 for the investigation purposes in the original bill to $10,000. The bill, which is favored by the Governor, now goes to him for his signature.

REMOVAL ORDER FOR FITZGERALD

Justice of Special Sessions in Brooklyn May Be Deposed.

HASN'T PAID HIS DEBTS

Brooklyn Bar Association Advises His Removal and a Show Cause Order Is Served on Him.

Supreme Court Justice Jenks of the Appellate Division has granted an order returnable next Monday for Justice Thomas W. Fitzgerald of the Brooklyn Court of Special Sessions to show cause why he should not be removed from office and debarred from practicing law. The order is the outcome of the investigation by the Grievance Committee of the Brooklyn Bar Association of charges made the first part of the year against Justice Fitzgerald.

The Grievance Committee considered cherges, including fifteen points, drawn up and sworn to by Albert G. McDonald, President of the Brooklyn Bar Association. Its report was submitted to Justice Jenks Wednesday afternoon. As soon as he had signed the order it was put in the hands of a clerk from the office of Charles J. McDermott, a member of the Grievance Committee, at 149 Broadway, Manhatten. Late that night McDermott found Justice Fitzgerald at his home, 54 Lefayette Avenue, Port Richmond.

In his petition for the removal of the Special Session Justice, Mr. McDonald says:

Your petitioner alleges upon information and belief that said Thomas W. Fitzgerald is not a proper person to hold the office of Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, and is morally delinquent and unfit to administer justice, and to sit in judgment in this community, or to practice before our courts as an attorney and counselor at law by reason of the following acts and circumstances:

Mr. McDonald then charges Justice Fitzgerald with having violated the city charter by failing to devote his whole time and capacity to the duties of his office. Instead, he says, the Justice spent much of his time in Oceanport, N. J., in idleness, carousing and drinking, and that he ran up bills for clothing which he failed to pay.

Justice Fitzgerald is also charged with having failed to pay John G. Milburn the sum of $1,100 due Mr. Milburn, who defended the Justice when the Attorney General of the State attempted in 1904 to oust him from office. James Burke, Jr., another lawyer, who acted as counsel for Justice Fitzgerald, told the Grievance Committee that he had received only $1,000 of the $2,000 due him.

The Justice is accused of having appropriated to his own use money advanced to him by one Margaret Slevin to invest in bonds and mortgages, and that he also failed to account for $1,000 paid to him by Julia O'Connor. The money should have gone to Margaret Slevin. The charges further recite that several creditors of Justice Fitzgerald were compelled to bring suit for their money, and that to avoid payment of one judgment he left the State for several months and was declared in contempt by the Supreme Court. Another creditor received an order last week directing the Controller to pay 10 per cent. of the Justice's salary until a judgment of $1,335 is satisfied.

In summing up Mr. McDonald says:

"By reason of the acts of the said Thomas W. Fitzgerald and the publicity attendent thereon, his usefulness to the community has been impaired, his judicial administration has been interfered with, his reputation and character have been brought into dispute, a feeling of distrust and lack of confidence have been created in the minds of the public, the members of the bar and the community, and in the minds of the judicial and administrative officers in the county and State, and his usefulness as a Justice of the said court has been destroyed and the intercsts of the public placed in jeopardy."

DIES ON ELEVATED STATION.

B. M. Mitchill Meets Sudden End When About to Take a Train.

Bleecker N. Mitchell fell to the platform of the elevated station at Fifty-ninth Street and Third Avenue yesterday morning just as he was about to board a downtown train. Dr. Corscaden of the Presbyterian Hospital, who was summoned, said that Mr. Mitchill had died almost instantly and that the probable cause was heart disease.

Mr. Mitchill lived at 142 East Thirty-eighth Street, and leaves a widow, who is now in Europe.

Besides acting as executor of his father's estate, with an office at 45 William Street, Mr. Mitchill was a Director in the Alabama Mineral Land Company. He was not otherwise engaged in business. Mr. Mitchill was a member of a number of clubs, including the Salmagundi, the Larchmont Yacht Club, the Mendelssohn Glee Club, and the New York Historical Society.

COLLEGE GIRL TO BE ADIRONDACKS GUIDE

She Is Miss E. M. Young, Formerly of Philadelphia, a Descendant of Ethan Allen.

LAUDS THE COUNTRY LASS

Points Out Many Ways for a Woman to Earn Her Living in the Open Air.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE-OF-THE-WOODS, N. Y., April 18.—"I do not see why it should follow because ons happens to he a girl college graduate that she should cling forever to the cities and hold only to the vocations and avocations which are considered as peculiarly belonging to her sex. Therefore I cannot see why so much ado is made about me—a very ordinary girl—simply because I love nature so passionately that I wish to be always in touch with her, and because I am going to act, for the coming season at least, as a guide through the magnificent wilds of Northern New York."

The foregoing is a statement "made today for publication" by Miss Elia Marion Young, formerly of Philadelphia, and a direct descendant of Ethan Allen of Revolutionary fame, who for the past three years has been a nomadic resident of half a dozen villages in the Adirondacks and along the shores of the St. Lawrence. Miss Young is at present occupying a little rustic cottage belonging to her brother-in-law, Dr. John A. Miller, of Atlanta, and situated upon Green Island, in the Lake-of-the-Woods.

An announcement appearing recently in a local paper stated that Miss Young would act in the capacity of guide during the coming season, and the girls of a score of villages whispered and wondered. They were sure it must be a "joke," for many of them knew Miss Young and were aware of her accomplishments. However, that there might be a grain of truth in the report was suspected by a number of them, for she had already won a name as a champion of out-of-doors living and as the foremost hunter of her sex in this part of the Empire State. Many large-sized "don'ts" came in her mail.

"Of course, I take none of the letters too seriously," she said to the correspondent who went over to Green Island today. "No doubt many of my girl friends are very much in earnest, but I must own that the more dolefully advisory the missives are the greater is my enjoyment of them. But I wonder if the girls think I am thus easily dissuaded from carrying out an idea I have had in mind for years? I was always fond of the 'great outside-of-houses,' and at Bryn Mawr took delight in all athletics, but only now have I reached the deal.

"No," said Miss Young pleasantly, answering the newspaperman's request for more about herself and her family; "I don't think it is necessary to make a biography of this 'story,' do you? You see it is a long hark back to Ethan Allen and Fort Ticonderoga, and while we are all proud of the old hero, there is no good reason why he should be exploited in my behalf. Perhaps, though, the love for the lakes and woods and mountains with which my blood is filled was generated in the veins of the Revolutionary patriot whose authority for most things was 'the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress.'

"The whole world of honest endeavor is open to women, and there is no good reason why they should not take advantage of it. Do not understand me as being in favor of my sex going into coal mines, machine shops, or nerve-racking factories. But they may become more generally small farmers, dairy proprietors, fruit raisers, and poultry keepers, to say nothing of becoming carriers of mail in the rural free delivery system, railroad and telegraph agents, guides, and so forth.

"I really pity those of my sex who think that they must be employed in stores or offices to maintain a certain standard of respectability. They delude themselves into thinking that to be a 'country girl' is to be a little out of date and not quite refined. But do they ever stop to think that health, happiness, and beauty are more frequently found among the tall pines than among the 'skyscrapers'?

"It is said that I am the first girl guide; but you may be sure that there will be others, for I myself will gladly help any girl who wishes to take up the work.

"Many girls and women come to the Adirondacks and the St. Lawrence every season without male escort. They spend much of their time about the hotel verandas, and really see but little of woods life, though a majority of them are anxious to do so. Some of these—and I believe without good reason—do not care to have men guides, and it is these who, I believe, will address themselves to me."

Dr. William H. Young, Miss Young's father, was a prominent surgeon of Philadelphia, and at one time a professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. He died, a widower, in 1901, leaving a comfortable fortune to his daughter.

SCOUT ELLMORE'S DISCOVERY

Chemists Here Declare Ashes Cannot Be Burned—Company Formed.

Chemists were laughing yesterday at the formula sent to this city from Altoona, Penn., which was going to allow the householder to cut his fuel bill in half.

Tho formula was as follows:

Common salt, one pound.
Oxalic acid, two ounces.
Water, one gallon.

This compound was to be sprinkled over old ashes, the ashes to be mixed with coal in the proportion of 3 to 1. Result—a better fuel than straight coal makes.

Prof. Bellew of the Columbia University's department of chemistry said:

"There is absolutely no potential heat stored up in ashes. To a large extent ashes represent only the clay and silt that got mixed some millions of years ago with the decaying, coal-producing vegetation of the carboniferous age. In ashes the combustible vegetation has all been burned out, and only the clay and silt left. So it would be just as logical to pour some of this wonderful formula on ordinary dirt and expect it to burn as to put it on ashes and expect them to burn.

"As for the formula itself, I can only say that so far as my chemical knowledge goes, there is nothing about it that would increase the combustion of anything."

Special to The New York Times.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 18.—John Ellmore, the cobbler who invented the original ash-burning compound, refuses to reveal the formula, but a company has been formed to be known as the Ellmore United States Fuel Company, and chartered under the laws of Arizona, with a capital of $20,000,000. The formula is only known to two persons—Ellmore and Dr. H. K. Hoy of this city.

Since Ellmore made his discovery known there have been a dozen or more persons in Altoona who say they have learned how to cut down coal bills by the use of a compound for burning ashes mixed with one-fourth coal.

Bishop Wilson Chosen.

OCEAN GROVE, May 18.—Bishop Luther B. Wilson, the youngest Bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, has consented to serve as Acting President of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association until the annual meeting of that organization in November next. He will succeed Bishop James N. Fitzgerald, who died recently in Hong Kong, China. The meetings will begin on Sunday, June 16, and continue until October 1.

WRITING PAPER CO. UPHELD.

Payment of Dividend on Preferred Stock Declared Legal.

Vice Chancellor Bergen filed an opinion in the suit of William Nelson Goodnow of Boston in Newark yesterday against the American Writing Paper Co., to enjoin the payment of a dividend of 1 per cent. on $12,500,000 of preferred stock. It sustains the demurrer to the bill of complaint entered by Lindaburg, Depue & Faulks, counsel for the company.

The question involved was the right of a corporation to pay dividends when the amount of stock issued exceeded the assets, including the physical property and good will. It was the first time that this point had been raised in any court in the United States, and the opinion is a victory for the corporation.

Vice Chancellor Bergen in his decision holds that as between the stockholders, no fraud being charged, the agreement to issue the stock as full paid for property purchased was binding upon the company and its stockholders, and that the stock so issued is not subject to further call, either directly or indirectly, by suppression of dividends declarable from annual net profits, and that if all of the assets for which the stock was issued still remain in the possession of the company, or if exhausted, replaced in kind with money, a dividend ascertained by reserving for capital, the actual cost of the assets for which the stock was issued, they being still in possession, is not dividing the capital of the corporation.

ARRESTED IN A CAB.

B. Gimbel Charged with Attempting to Bribe an Officer to be Released.

Benedict Gimbel of 914 North Broad Street, Philadelphia, was arrested while driving up Fifth Avenue to Central Park yesterday afternoon with the sixteen-year-old son of W. Hudson Clarke, a broker living at the Calumet Hotel in West Fifty-seventh Street, on a complaint made by the boy's mother to the District Attorney.

He was arraigned later before Magistrate House in the Tombs Court and then a second charge of attempting to bribe a public officer was made against him. Magistrate House remanded him for examination until Saturday, bail being fixed at $5,000 on the first charge and $1,000 on the bribery charge.

Gimbel had started up Fifth Avenue in his carriage from the Hoffman House. When it reached Fifty-second Street the detectives, who were following in another carriage, ordered their driver to get up alongside the cab in front and to stop it. Detective Reardon jumped down and arrested Gimbel. According to Reardon, he said:

"This will kill me! What can I do?"

Reardon made him get into his cab. He says that when he did so Gimbel cried, "Money is no object. Can I fix it?" and pulled out a roll of $105. He thrust this, Reardon said, into his hand and asked:

"Will this do?"

"You are under arrest for attempting to bribe a public officer," answered the detective.

Reardon said that at Gimbel's request he handed $5 back to Gimbel, so that he should not be entirely without funds. Then, according to Reardon, he again offered money to him. This time he promised to give $2,000 for his release. The detective took him into a real estate office on Fifth Avenue, where it was possible to get a blank check. Gimbel wrote out a check for $2,000 on Wolf Brothers of 100 Broadway, and then himself called up Benjamin Wolf, to satisfy the doubts that Reardon expressed as to there being funds to meet it.

"That's all right, Mr. Gimbel's good for any amount," said Mr. Wolf, and the detective pretended to be satisfied. He then took his prisoner to the banking house and there cashed the check, after having had Gimbel identified by the cashier. He received four five-hundred-dollar bills.

Then he told Gimbel that their next stopping place would be the District Attorney's office. The prisoner was taken aback and declared that he thought that he had arranged things. Then Reardon says that when the prisoner found that he meant all he said he began to ask questions about Assistant District Attorney Krotel.

"How much will he want? Do you think $2,000 is enough for him?" the detective says Gimbel asked. "I'll leave it to you. Just you settle it quietly. If this gets out, I'll never be able to face people."

In Mr. Krotel's office he was confronted with Mrs. Clarke and the boy. He begged to be allowed to go, but his petitions were cut short and he was hurried down to the Tombs Court, where Magistrate House was sitting. There Mr. Gimbel asked for Daniel O'Reilly, who was one of Thaw's counsel.

Mr. O'Reilly appeared, and when asked what the defense would be, talked vaguely of blackmail. On behalf of Mr. Gimbel he gave out this statement:

"I was excited. I feared the notoriety for my wife and family. I did not want my name in the papers, though entirely innocent. I would have given all I possessed to spare my family. The charge was a terrible one. The publication of it would be awful for my family.

"To save my family, I would do or give anything, and when I explained this to Detective Reardon he said that $2,000 would about fix it. I was still excited when I was brought before the District Attorney. I would have done almost anything within my means to avoid notoriety. Any proposition I made to the District Attorney was to spare my family.

At 10:30 o'clock last night half a dozen men went with Mr. O'Reilly to the Tombs with bail papers, and Mr. Gimbel was discharged by Warden Holmes. When the Warden was asked by reporters who furnished the bail, he would not tell the name of the bondsman.

Mr. Gimbel and his counsel hurried away at once. It was said that he was going back to Philadelphia.

Mr. O'Reilly said:

"The man is out of jail. That's my contract for the day. We'll have him on hand on Saturday."

ROUGH RIDER GETS JOB AS GOVERNOR

President Names Capt. Curry of His Old Troop for Executive in New Mexico.

A CONSPIRACY—HAGERMAN

Retiring Governor Declares He Was Not Concerned in Bull Andrews's Land Deals.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—President Roosevelt has settled the controversy over Gov. Hagerman of New Mexico by having him resign and appointing in his place Capt. George Curry, former Rough Rider, now Governor of the Island of Samar, in the Philippines. Gov. Hagerman goes out protesting that he is the victim of a conspiracy.

The enforced resignation recalls the collapse of the Enterprise National Bank of Allegheny, Penn., and the subsequent suicide of its cashier. That bank had largely financed the Pennsylvania Development Company in building the Santa Fé Central Railroad in New Mexico. W. H. Andrews, familiarly known as "Bull" Andrews, ex-Chairman of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania, was interested in that company. He is now a Delegate in Congress from New Mexico. The Legislature of the Territory, which has been fighting Gov. Hagerman, charges that he was mixed up in a deal whereby the Santa Fé Central secured irregularly a considerable parcel of territorial lands.

A similar charge was made against ex-Gov. Otero of the Territory, who failed to obtain reappointment at the expiration of his term, when Hagerman got the place. Now Hagerman declares that his only connection with the deal was to sign the papers which Otero had prepared.

Capt. Curry is thoroughly familiar with the Southwest, having spent the greater part of his life there. He had served as Sheriff for a time and as member of the Legislature. He was Captain of Troop H of the Rough Riders, but had the bad luck not to get to Cuba. When the volunteer regiments were raised for service in the Philippines in 1899 Curry took a commission as Second Lieutenant in the Eleventh Cavalry.

Because of his expert knowledge of the business he was detailed in charge of the pack train of a squadron that was engaged in the big hike of Schwan's column through Cavite, Laguna, and Balangas Provinces in January, 1900. On one occasion, when the volunteers came into competition with a squadron of the Fourth Cavalry regulars, under Col. "Jack" Hayes, Curry managed to keep his pack train ahead of the regular troops, and beat the regular's pack train so badly that it did not catch up for several days. He was in the famous run across Cavite Province from Bingan to Indan, and kept his pack mules so close to the fighting men that there never was a breathing halt that was not enlivened by the tinkle of the lead mare's bell. Old Indian fighters who had hiked all over the plains with pack trains declared they had never seen a performance like it.

When the Eleventh Calvary was mustered out Curry took a commission in the Philippine Scouts, and afterward was in the customs service for a while. Then he was appointed Governor. It was while trying to straighten out some trouble with natives about a year ago that Curry was jumped upon suddenly by bolo men and came very near losing his life. He disappeared and it was reported that he had been killed, but after two or three days he turned up and it proved that he had been out in the bush among the natives getting a personal line on their doings. Then troops were sent to Samar from Manila, and under his direction a good drubbing was administered to the insurrectos.

FOR A U. S. HEALTH BOARD.

First steps in a movement looking to the creation of a new Government Department of Health were taken yesterday afternoon at a meeting of a Committee of One Hundred, named in June last by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to promulgate the project. Twenty members of the committee were present at the meeting, which was held in the rooms of the Bar Association, in West Forty-fourth Street.

They devoted themselves to a general discussion of the subject, and to creating a committee of seven to carry on the work.

These Vice Presidents were elected after Prof. Fisher had been elected President of the larger committee:

President Eliot of Harvard, Felix Adler, Dr. William H. Welch, professor in Johns Hopkins; Dr. Lyman Abbott, President Angell of the University of Michigan, Jane Addams, Andrew Carnegie, Archbishop Ireland, Judge Lindsay of the Juvenile Court of Denver, and John D. Long, ex-Secretary of the Navy.

FOR OUR DREADNOUGHTS.

Plans for Two 20,000-Ton Battleships Go Out To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Secretary Metcalf to-day signed the plans and specifications for the two 20,000-ton battleships to be built for the United States Navy. They are to be of the general type of the Dreadnought of the British Navy.

The plans will go to two navy yards and such private shipbuilding firms as signify their intention to make bids. They will be sent out on Saturday and bids will be opened on June 20.

GUNDERSON OWNS UP.

Express Company Thief Admits Hold-Up—$24,000 Recovered.

ST. PAUL, April 18.—The police got a confession to-day from John Gunderson, who held up a clerk in the Northern Express Co.'s offices on Tuesday night and compelled him to open the safe and hand out a package containing $25,000.

Gunderson told the officers where to find the money and they have $24,000 of it. The remaining $1,000 was hidden in another place.

KILLED BY BAD OYSTERS.

60-Year-Old Clergyman Victim of Ptomaine Poisoning.

BALTIMORE, April 18.—The Rev. W. G. Herbert, one of the most widely known ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore, died tonight of acute indigestion after a brief illness. He is believed to have been a victim of ptomaine poisoning, resulting from eating bad oysters. He was 60 years old. Other members of the family were also affected.

Takes Over Swamp at Long Beach.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., April 18.—The Hempstead Town Board, in accordance with the verdict of the voters delivered at the town election on April 2, transferred to-day to a corporation headed by ex-Senator Reynolds of Brooklyn 1,084 acres of swamp and land under water on the north side of Long Beach. The corporation paid the town $108,400. It proposes to erect a second Atlantic City on Long Beach.

SAYS PFOUTS PAID FOR AUTO.

Miss Mahon a Reluctant Witness in Case Against Chauffeur.

Miss Theresa A. Mahon of 51 East 129th Street, also known, according to her sworn admission, as Mrs. Russell, complainant against a chauffeur for the alleged theft of an automobile, when asked in the West Side Court yesterday where she had obtained the $500 and other sums which she said she had paid the chauffeur, replied, but only when directed to by the court, that seh had received the money from I. A. Pfouts of Philadelphia, said to be an officer of the Philadelphia Life Insurance Company.

When Miss Mahon was asked further questions on the same lines by Terrence McManus, counsel for William E. Hotchkiss, the prisoner, Sol Hyman, Miss Mahon's counsel, ordered her not to answer.

When arraigned Hotchkiss said that he bought the auto in September last, paying $2,000 for it. A month later, he testified, he was approached by Miss Mahon and Mr. Pfouts in Times Square, and took the pair to the Vanderbilt Cup races that night.

In November he met with an accident, and had his auto repaired. He did not have the necessary $500 to pay for the repairs, and got the money from Miss Mahon, he said, agreeing to pay off the debt by taking Miss Mahon and Mr. Pfouts about in the auto at $5 per hour. The bill of sale Miss Mahon offered was nothing more than a mortgage, he asserted.

Counselor Hyman asked for an adjournment, saying that Mr. Pfouts was coming here from Philadelphia this morning. He said he would produce Mr. Pfouts in court. An adjournment was granted until next Tuesday afternoon, Hotchkiss being paroled by consent.

LEGISLATION IN DOUBT.

Mix-Up in New Jersey House May Nullify Important Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 18.—At the meeting of lawyers in attendance on court here to-day it was generally held that the railroad commission act and the act creating a water commission would not stand the judicial test because they were all passed at 1:30 o'clock on Saturday morning, after Speaker Lethbridge had declared the House of Assembly adjourned until June 18. Afterward the Speaker came back to the desk and declared that he had misunderstood the record. He called Mr. Perkins of Union to the chair, and many important acts, besides those named, were passed.

The records of the House have been changed, showing the mistake of the Speaker, and they are expected to be approved on June 18, when the Legislature comes back to consider vetoes by the Governor.

SAY HE SWINDLED SELIGMAN.

Police Arrest Man Who Got $4,000 from the Banker.

A middle-aged man who said in court that he was Vinton Murphy, but who gave his name to the police, when arrested, as Frank Russell, and his address as 118 West Twenty-third Street, was arraigned in Yorkville Court yesterday charged with having obtained $4,000 fraudulently from Alfred Seligman, the banker, by pretending that he could buy for Mr. Seligman an automobile at a big discount. The man was arrested at Mr Seligman's apartments, 16 East Sixtieth Street, about noon yesterday, and taken immediately to court. Magistrate Baker held him in $2,000 bail for examination to-day.

The police say Murphy went to Mr Seligman several weeks ago and told him he knew where an imported automobile could be bought very much below its real value. He impressed Mr. Seligman so favorably that the latter put $2,000 to Murphy's credit in the Mechanics and Traders' Bank on March 4. A few days after that Mr. Seligman received a telegram from Murphy which caused the banker to put an additional $2,000 in the same bank to be drawn on by Murphy.

Then Mr. Seligman became suspicious and sought the aid of the police. Detectives Collins and Valley were detailed on the case and arranged a decoy telephone message, which resulted in Murphy visiting Mr. Seligman's apartments. The detectives were hidden in the apartments and say they overheard Murphy make a full confession to Mr. Seligman, telling the banker that he had lost the money in speculating.

Hearing To-night on Free Eye Glasses.

The taxpayers and friends of school children are invited by Abraham Stern, Chairman of the Committee on Elementary Schools, to attend to-night's hearing at the hall of the Board of Education, and to express their opinions on the proposal to give eyeglasses free to all school children needing them, just as text books are lent without cost.

RUSSIAN LOYALISTS SPEAK FOR THE CZAR

Count Spiridovitch and Leon Navakoff Address D. K. E. Meeting.

SAY WE'RE MISINFORMED

News of the Doings in Their Country Has Been Distorted, They Declare—Duma Improving.

Wishing to hear "the other side" of the Russian situation, the Delta Kappa Epsilon Association of New York had as guests at its annual meeting last evening Gen. Count Tcherep Spiridovitch and Leon Navakoff, the representatives of the Slavic Society in this country. The gathering of the "Dekes" was at the Yale Club in West Forty-fourth Street, and the picture that they got of the political conditions in Russia was a very different one from that which other observers have given to the people on this side of the water.

It was to the newspapers of this country that the two Russians charged the pro-revolutionary feeling which has been developed here. Count Spiridovitch said that the Russians generally were astonished at reading in the American newspapers the versions of Russian doings that are current here. They are disposed to say, in Bible terms, he said:

"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Col. John J. McCook, the retiring President of the "Dekes" in this city, who was an aide-de-camp on the staff of his brother, Gen. Anson G. McCook, at the coronation of the present Czar, presided last night. Col. McCook said that at the presentation ceremony that followed the coronation Gen. McCook had asked the Czar how it happened that two nations with such radically variant forms of government should be good friends. The Czar replied, according to Col. McCook.

"Russia and the United States have each enfranchised a race. My illustrious grandfather by a single act changed twenty millions of serfs into subjects; President Lincoln by one stroke of his pen changed every black man into a free man. No other nation has ever done that, and none other ever will.

"The second reason is that when your hereditary foe, England, and your traditional ally, France, joined to interfere in your internal affairs, my illustrious grandfather sent his Pacific fleet into your Harbor of San Francisco, and his Atlantic fleet into the Harbor of New York, and neither your hereditary foe nor your traditional ally has ever interfered since that time. That is the reason why there is friendship between Russia and the United States."

Count Spiridovitch suggested at the opening of his brief address that Americans should suspend judgment upon Russian affairs until Russia marched a little further on the way to civilization.

"At the time of the war with Japan," he said, "the efforts of the Anglo-Japanese agents to set the American press against Russia were successful. And in the end Russia was beaten, not so much by the Japanese as by the help and encouragement given to the revolutionists. The peace came at a time when Russia was stronger in Manchuria than ever before and when the Japanese were at the end of their resources. It was because of the prospect of another railroad strike." The Count turned to the present situation in the Empire.

"The Duma," said he, "does not correspond to the real mind of the Russian people. The Monarchists are not strong in the Duma, but they are strong among the people at large. Don't forget that nine-tenths of the Monarchists did not present themselves for election to this Duma because they were afraid to do so and because they thought that the Duma when elected would strive to harass the Emperor. Yet this Duma is better than the one that preceded it. We will have to wait until the Duma is perfected, and that may not be possible until it has been dissolved several times."

Count Spiridovitch said that he would answer three charges made against the Russian Government, and he named as the first of these that the Government was responsible for the Jewish massacres. He said in this connection:

"Why should the Government kill a few hundred Hebrew workmen when the chiefs of the conspiracy were in safety abroad?"

The Count charged the Kishineff massacre to Roumanians who had been delegated by their Government to seek a national revenge under that guise. On the count that the Russian Government is unable to protect life generally throughout the empire, the Count declared that the killings in Russia in the first three months of 1907 were no greater than those on the American railroads in a corresponding time in spite of the fact that one country has a population of 150,000,000 and the other a population of 80,000,000. The Count, as his third reply, defended the Czar against charges of incompetence and lack of courage.

Col. McCook read a letter from Baron Rosen, in which the Russian Ambassador here excused himself from speaking on the ground that it might be taken as a reply to the revolutionaries who have been speaking in this country. Col. McCook then introduced Mr. Navakoff. Somebody asked Mr. Navakoff to explain the make-up of the present Duma.

"That first Duma didn't work, it just talked," he said. "The second Duma is much better."

Mr. Navakoff was asked what part the Duma had in framing legislation.

"Very little part," he answered. "Very few of the members of the Duma are capable of taking any part in legislation. They are now criticising the budget—think of it, men who can't add, criticising the Imperial budget."

TO DISCUSS TERRORISM.

Some of the Members of the Duma Will Defend Assassinations.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 18.—To-morrow will witness a stormy debate in the Lower House of Parliament that has been in preparation for a fortnight past.

The Conservatives will introduce a motion that the House disapproves of Terrorism. A resolution of the Constitutional Democrats, the Poles, and the Mohammedans, expresses horror at the great wave of Terrorism, but says that it is an outgrowth of the absence of a constitutional régime. A resolution to be introduced by the members of the Group of Toil and the Social Democrats will set forth that Terrorism is necessary to break the grip of Despotism.

BIG STRIKE AT ODESSA.

Harbor Closed—Trouble Due to Murders by Reactionaries.

ODESSA, April 18.—Serious disturbances have again broken out in this city.

Yesterday several members of the Union of Russian People attacked workmen along the harbor front who refused to join the union, killing two and wounding five of them. No arrests were made.

The workmen at once retaliated by going on strike, demanding that the members of the union be disarmed. The authorities declined to grant this demand.

To-day the railroad laborers joined the strike, with the result that the harbor is entirely closed, and all exporting is at a standstill.

The situation is causing immense losses to trade.

RULERS OF ITALY AND BRITAIN MEET

Embrace Several Times and Confer Privately at Length.

NO POLITICAL MOTIVE?

Official Statement Regarding the Meeting at Gaeta Says It Is Without Significance.

GAETA, Italy, April 18.—The British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board, arrived here at 9:30 o'clock this morning from Valetta, Malta, escorted by the British armored cruisers Suffolk and Lancaster.

King Edward was received by King Victor Emmanuel on board the Italian royal yacht Trinacria, which was surrounded by twelve Italian warships and twelve torpedo boats. The two Kings embraced each other repeatedly, and King Victor Emmanuel kissed Queen Alexandra's hand. The Mayor of Gaeta sent her Majestry a bouquet of orchids and roses with a card bearing the words, "Devotion and admiration to the most powerful Queen in the world."

Luncheon on board the Trinacria followed. It was mainly attended by military and naval officers, the only local official invited being Gen. Del Rosso, commander of the fort of Gaeta. The presence of Marine Minister Mirabello, a strong advocate of increasing the strength of the Italian Navy, and the commanders of so many men-of-war before one of the chief strongholds in the Mediterranean accentuated the martial character of the affair. The toasts exchanged were simply expressions of the friendship between Italy and Great Britain.

A crowd of Englishwomen who were permitted to witness King Edward's arrival from the high bastions of the fort, gave vent to their patriotism by singing "God Save the King," which was acknowledged by the British royal yacht dipping her ensign.

The two sovereigns conferred privately at some length, after which, amid the cheers of the people, the English ruler departed on the royal yacht for Naples, and King Victor Emmanuel returned to Rome.

An official communication issued this evening declares this meeting to have been without political significance.

NAPLES, April 18.—The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with the King and Queen of England on board, arrived here this evening.

Their Majesties, who are preserving the strictest incognito, were received by the Duke and Duchess of Aosta.

BRITISH INCOME TAX IS REFORMED

Earned Incomes Are to Pay Less—Death Duties on Big Fortunes Raised.

FOR OLD-AGE PENSIONS

Sum Set Aside for This Purpose in Chancellor Asquith's Budget—Intense Interest in His Speech.

LONDON, Friday, April 19.—In a House crowded in every part, and with the Prince of Wales in the Peers' Gallery, Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith, in an able two hours' speech, yesterday delivered a budget statement which, if not rivaling the great financial achievements of his famous predecessors, Gladstone and Harcourt, has the merit of extreme simplicity in its main features. Judging by the debate which followed, this statement will meet with a greater degree of general approval and less sectional antagonism than usually falls to the lot of budget statements.

The most persistent complaints emanate from the extreme section of the Labor Party, which is disappointed at the postponement of the old-age pension scheme and the absence of any direct relief in the taxation of the working classes. James Keir Hardie calls it a "brutal budget," and declares his belief that the Government has no intention of dealing with the pension question during its lifetime, but purposes to reserve it as an effective election plank when it becomes necessary to appeal to the country.

That there is some justification for the complaints of the workers may be gathered from the fact that in the lobbies of the House the statement was generally characterized as a "middle-class budget."

Mr. Asquith had the rare good fortune of dealing with a year of unusual prosperity in national finances. The national debt is being reduced rapidly, and in this connection the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that the Government held it as an obligation to reinstate and improve the national credit.

Briefly, instead of the estimated deficit of $230,000 for 1906-7, Mr. Asquith has realized a surplus of $26,995,000, while for 1907-8 he estimated the surplus at $17,165,000. His proposals are not for a reduction in indirect taxation, but provide relief from the burden of the income tax by preferential treatment of earned incomes below $10,000 a year to the extent of 6 cents for every pound sterling. To compensate for the loss from this measure he proposes that the death duties on large fortunes be increased.

The Chancellor promises an old-age pension scheme for next year and sets aside $7,500,000 for this purpose.

Mr. Asquith's Speech.

Mr. Asquith opened his speech with a brief review of the past year, pointing out that with the exception of the stock markets, which suffered from the money stringency, trade at home and abroad had been remarkably flourishing. The Treasury receipts were over $10,000,000 in excess of the estimates, unanticipated death duties accounting for $6,000,000 of this sum, while the balance was made up of increased receipts from the coal duty and the mint. The last-named item was due to the increased demand for coinage on account of the prosperous state of trade and the large amount of silver, aggregating $2,500,000, required for various purposes in connection with the general election.

This statement reminded the House of numerous petitions to annul elections on account of alleged bribery and called forth much laughter.

As a whole, the Chancellor said, the revenue returns had not shown great elasticity, and in view of the undoubted prosperous state of trade they were distinctly disappointing.

The reduction in the tea duty in the last budget, said Mr. Asquith, had been followed by increased consumption, amounting to 4,500,000 pounds. The revenue from tobacco had not realized expectations. There had been a progressive formidable decline in the revenue from the alcohol group since 1899. Until last year. Mr. Asquith said that, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, he was glad to say that there were signs of definite reaction, and the present year had furnished an increase of $2,470,000 in these receipts.

Continuing, the Chancellor said there had been a falling off in the revenue from stamps in consequence of the slackness of operations on the Stock Exchange and the fact that the telephoned was superseding letters.

Turning to the financial year 1907-8, the Chancellor estimated the expenditura at $703,785,000, showing a reduction of $8,320,000 compared with 1906-7. He hoped the reduction would be continuous and progressive.

On the existing basis of taxation the revenue for the forthcoming year was estimated at $720,950,000, showing an estimated surplus of $17,165,000.

Discussing the liabilities of the State, the Chancellor announced amid cheers that the permanent reduction of the national debt in the course of 1906-07 amounted to $88,570,000.

Dealing with the lines on which the Liberal administration proposed to direct the finances of the country, the Chancellor said the Government was under the immediate obligation of reinstating and improving the national credit.

Referring to the recent fall in gilt-edged securities, the Chancellor declared that Consols were still the premier security. The existing conditions were largely the result of unliquidated commitments and constituted a serious embarrassment, not only to the Government, but to the community at large. The further reduction of the national debt was the paramount duty of the Government, but behind all that was the unconquered territory of social reform.

"I am not a Socialist," the Chancellor remarked, "but there is nothing which appeals to us so loudly and imperiously as the possibilities of social reform."

Old-Age Pensions.

In regard to old-age pensions, the Chancellor said he would not commit himself to any scheme for the purpose. Everything must be done by steps. But, on behalf of the Government, he declared that in the sphere of finance the Ministers regarded old-age pensions as being the most serious and most urgent of all the demands for social reform. It was their hope and intention before the close of the next session of Parliament, if they were allowed to have their way, to lay a firm foundation for this reform.

Continuing, the Chancellor said that if these objects of the Government, the strengthening of the national credit and the creation of a fund for social reform, were to be carried out, he could not do anything involving a permanent diminution of the revenue. He was satisfied that a further reduction in the duty on tea by 2 cents would not benefit the consumer, and he did not propose to make any change this year in indirect taxation. He intended, however, to deal with the income tax, which in its present shape worked unjustly. The scheme must be one which, without destroying the productive character of the tax, would differentiate between earned and unearned incomes. Earned incomes under $10,000 a year would hereafter only pay 18 cents, while the existing tax of 24 cents in the pound sterling on unearned incomes would remain. It would be compulsory on every one receiving an income tax form to make a return, and the penalties for evasion would be increased.

The Chancellor estimated the loss from the differentiation of the income tax at $6,250,000. This would be made up by a revision of the death duties as follows: Five per cent. as at present, on $750,000 and under; above $750,000, 7 per cent.; above $1,250,000, 8 per cent.; above $2,500,000, 9 per cent.; above $3,750,000 and up to $5,000,000, 10 per cent. On estates of $10,000,000 14 per cent. would be levied on the second $5,000,000. On estates of $15,000,000 or over 10 per cent. would be levied on the first $5,000,000 and 15 per cent. on every other $5,000,000.

The scale of duties, the Chancellor explained, could thus be altered without injury to property or checking the accumulation of capital. He hoped the revised scale would bring in $6,000,000 yearly, but he only calculated on $3,000,000 for the present year.

In conclusion the Chancellor said that, after making all reductions, he had a disposable surplus of $9,165,000, and he proposed to keep $1,665,000 for emergencies. The remaining $7,500,000 would be invested in the sinking fund and set aside for old age pensions next year. Mr. Asquith estimated that in the course of the year the national debt would be reduced by $85,000,000, and that the nucleus of a fund for the honorable relief of necessitous old age would be commenced. In addition to the $7,500,000 set aside there would be $3,750,000 of uncollected arrears of this year's income tax, making a total of $11,250,000. The Chancellor said he relied confidently on further economy in expenditure and counted on the support of the House and the Government in this direction.

MAY HURT OUR INDUSTRIES.

British Patents Bill Aimed at American Manufacturers.

LONDON, April 18.—The Patents and Designs bill, introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Lloyd-George, and which subsequently unanimously passed its second reading, is of particular interest to American manufacturers of machinery, largely used in British factories, who, having obtained patent rights in Great Britain, continue to supply British factories with machines made in America. The measure is designed to compel these manufacturers to make in Great Britain the machines which they sell or lease here.

Clause 10 of the bill enacts that at any time not less than three years after the grant of a patent, any person interested may apply for the revocation of the patent, on the ground that the patented article is manufactured exclusively or mainly outside the United Kingdom. The Controller may revoke the patent unless the patentee proves that the patented article is manufactured to an adequate extent in the United Kingdom, or "gives satisfactory reasons why the article is not so manufactured."

The Shoe and Leather Record believes this clause is aimed at shoe machinery invented and manufactured in America, and patented, but not made, in Great Britain. The same paper criticises Clause 16, which, it says, was avowedly inserted for the protection of the British shoe manufacturer against the so-called American Shoe Machinery Trust.

The American manufacturers have many machines on lease in England, which would be affected by this clause should it become law.

FOR BRITISH RECIPROCITY.

Demonstration at Dinner to Premiers —Laurier on Canada's Loyalty.

LONDON, April 18.—The Conservative Party gave vent to a tremendous display of enthusiasm in welcoming the Colonial Premiers at a banquet in Albert Hall tonight. There were 1,600 guests, including ex-Premier Balfour, and all the other leaders of the party.

The decorations of the hall were unique. The floor was carpeted with a huge Union Jack, covering 20,000 square feet, and a large imperial crown made of flowers, thirty-three feet in circumference, was suspended from the dome.

The banquet became the occasion for a demonstration in favor of preferential treatment for the Colonies. A long letter was read from Joseph Chamberlain dilating upon the importance of this imperial movement.

Mr. Balfour devoted a long speech to setting forth the views of the Conservative Party on the colonial question.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada took occasion to deny with some warmth the reports that Canada would turn to the United States if Great Britain rejected her proffer of preferential treatment. He declared that Canada was on better terms with the United States than ever before, but that in time of distress she would stand by the mother country. The Canadians had built their harbors, the Premier said, to keep their trade floating, not north and south, but east and west.

According to the brief official précis, the Colonial Conference to-day discussed questions concerning its constitution and considered the draft of a resolution drawn up by the Earl of Elgin, the Colonial Secretary, on the subject, which was accepted in principle, though the settlement of the precise terms was held over until April 20.

It is learned from another source that Lord Elgin's resolution indicates one distinct advance, namely, the creation of a new, permanent department, presumably at the Colonial Office, whose special duty it will be to look after questions of general imperial interest, carrying on the work between the Colonial conferences, which will be held every four years. This is understood to be the result of a compromise, there being no desire on the part of the Premiers to emphasize a divergence of opinion or occasion anything looking like a split.

NO CUNARD CHANGES.

Steamship Company Has Not Decided Yet to Move from Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, April 18.—Presiding today at the annual meeting of the Cunard Steamship Company, Chairman Watson said he had no positive announcement to make as to whether or not the company proposed to move from Liverpool to a Channel port. Regarding the relations with competitors, the Chairman said they were much the same as last year.

The statement that the Cunard Company had sold its interests in the Hungarian-America trade was incorrect, he added, and the Hungarian Government had not asked the company to cancel its contract.

PLAGUE KILLS 75,000 IN WEEK

1,500,000 Victims in India in the Last Ten Years.

SIMLA, India, April 18.—There were 75,000 deaths from the plague in India during the week ended April 13. Seventy thousand of these occurred in Bengal, the United Provinces, and the Punjab.

The epidemic began in the Punjab in October, 1897, since when nearly 1,500,000 deaths have occurred.

Crew of the Ennerdale Rescued.

QUEENSTOWN, April 18.—The British steamer Asuncion de Larrinaga, from Galveston March 28 for Manchester, passed Browhead to-day and signaled that an accident had happened to her, as a result of which her first officer had been drowned. She also signaled that she had on board the crew of the Norwegian bark Ennerdale.

The Ennerdale, which left Gulfport on March 12 for Buenos Ayres, was passed waterlogged and abandoned April 4 in latitude 29.25 longitude 79.46 by the British steamer Lord Iveagh, which arrived at Norfolk April 9.

MEXICO'S FAMOUS CATHEDRAL CRACKED

Earthquake Made a Wide Rent in the Rear Wall from Floor to Roof.

MANY KILLED AT CHILAPA

341 Buildings Destroyed There—Another Earth Shock at Chilpancingo Wednesday Evening.

MEXICO CITY, April 18.—As the examination of this city proceeds it is found that the damaga from the earthquake is much more extensive than was at first supposed.

It has been discovered that the Cathedral has been cracked from top to bottom. There is universal regret over the damage to the great building, which is one of the largest and most famous churches in the world. The crack, which is in the rear wall, extends in a zigzag line from the roof to the floor, and is from five to six inches wide. The cathedral is over three centuries old and took 100 years in the building. It is situated on the site of the old Aztec Temple and has been visited by thousands of tourists.

The first press dispatch received here from Chilapa, one of tha destroyed towns in the State of Guerrero, saye that thirty-three bodies have already been removed from the ruins and that 770 injured persons ara being cared for in a temporary hospital.

A special commission named to inspect the buildings of Chilapa reports 341 totally destroyed, and hundreds of others rendered uninhabitable. A heavy fall of rain is adding greatly to the distress of the refugees, who are encamped in tha open. It is thought that the total death list at Chilapa will run into three figures and that the total of persone injured will be above 1,000. The Government is organizing relief as rapidly as possible. Chilapa had a population of about 9,000.

A dispatch from Chilpancingo saye another earth shock was felt there at 9:25 P. M. yesterday. It caused great alarm among the refugeee, none of whom has yet returned to the city limits.

Another telegram from Chilpancingo, describing the first shocks, says:

"In tho beginning the earth movement was oscillating, and then it changed to trepidatory. Nobody could tell how long it lasted on account of the intensity of the phenomenon, but must have lasted more than four minutes. At the same time there was a very pronounced odor in the air. On the following day almost everybody complained of headache. In some parts of the city the odor could be detected when excavations for water were made. On the night of April 14 the same odor was detected on the road to Acapulco and in the streams as far as Agua del Perru, eixty-one miles from here.

"There are ten dead. Up to the present it is impossible to calculate the amount of the property loss, because, with the exception of the City Hall and about twenty other houses, the whole city is in ruins."

News of the death of Señora Inez Bonilla of Chilpancingo, the first American reported killed in the earthquake, was received last night. Señora Bonilla was the wife of the ex-Secretary to the Governor of the State of Guerrero.

Relief committees are being formed in Mexico City to give much needed aid. The nearest railroad station to Chilpancingo is Iguala, on the Balsas River, and to get supplies into the stricken district it is necessary to convey them on horseback, a journey of three or four days.

SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATES.

Public Demonstrations on Anniversary of Earthquake and Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—One year ago to-day San Francisco was all but wiped out of existence by fire succeeding a terrific earthquake shock. Nearly 250,000 people were made homeless, and the financial loss amounted to about $500,000,000. To-day the sun rose in a cloudless sky over a busy city, in which the volume of business more than equals that of twelve months ago, and whose population is fast approaching its former figures.

In the year $75,000,000 has been expended in the work of reconstruction, over $50,000,000 has been paid for labor, and 50,000 men are engaged in the building industry. About 200 miles of street railways, rendered useless, are now in running order.

In recognition of what has been accomplished in the year, services were held to-day in the various churches, and in many places work was suspended. The Merchants' Association, a prominent factor in the labor of reconstruction, held a banquet to-night in the new Fairmount Hotel.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BRUSSELS, April 18.—King Leopold conferred to-day with Premier De Smet de Nayer, who announced the resignation of himself and his whole Cabinet on April 12. The King later conferred with M. de Trooz, the Minister of the Interior, who has since been endeavoring to form a Cabinet. His success is considered probable, as some of the present Ministers are inclined to join him.

CETTINJE, Montenegro, April 18.—A new Cabinet has been formed under the Premiership of M. Tomanovics, President of the High Court of Justice, who also takes the portfolios of Foreign Affairs and Justice. The other posts are allotted to Government officials.

HAMBURG, April 18.—The locked-out stevedores and longshoremen have agreed not to celebrate May Day, hence it is expected that the Harbor Traffic Union, representing the companies, will reopen negotiations with the men and that the lockout will be declared off in a few days.

PEKING, April 18.—G. O. Wallenberg, the Swedish Minister to Japan, has arrived here with the object of establishing diplomatic relations between Sweden and China. Minister Wallenberg will be accredited to both Japan and China.

BERLIN, April 18.—Count Von Schwerin, ex-Councillor of the German Embassy at Vienna, has been appointed Minister to the Republics of Central America.

NEW DISPUTE OVER MOROCCO.

French Envoy Regards Concessions to German Firms as Improper.

TANGIER, April 18.—The French Minister, M. Regnault, and the Minister of Germany, Dr. Rosen, conferred to-day relative to the Sultan's concessions to German firms.

Dr. Rosen took the ground that they did not infringe on the terms of the Algeciras Convention, as they emanated directly from the Sultan. M. Regnault held the opposite view. He declared that it was understood that after the signature of the convention all efforts to obtain concessions would cease until the Moroccan State Bank was in operation.

The French Minister decided to refer the question to Paris.

Further evidence of the excellent effect on the Foreign Board of the occupation by France of Oudja and the presence of French cruisers on the Moroccan coast was seen in the arrival here to-day of nine prisoners from Morocco City, laden down with chains. It is understood that these men are the murderers of Dr. Mauchamp, and that they will be tried and executed if found guilty.

PARIS, April 18.—It is asserted in official circles here that nothing in the nature of a French naval demonstration is intended off Mogadar, Morocco. The French cruisers Lalande, Forbin, and Gloire, it is added, are merely cruising off the Moroccan coast, putting into various ports, and prepared at all times to cope with eventualities until the present intervention of France in Morocco is no longer necessary.

The reports received by the French Government say that the situation is quieter than for some time past.

AMAPALA CONFERENCE BEGUN

Envoys of Salvador and Nicaragua Trying to End the Dispute.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Chargé Brown telegraphs to the State Department from Amapala, Honduras, that the representatives of Salvador and Nicaragua, appointed for the purpose to-day, began a conference with the object of composing the differences between those countries that threaten a renewal of hostilities in Central America. His dispatch does not indicate the result of the meeting.

The Minister from Guatemala, Señor Toledo Herrarte, and Señor Mejia, the Salvadoran Minister, had another talk with Secretary of State Root today in regard to the projected congress to be held in Washington or Mexico City for the purpose of effecting a lasting peace in Central America. They stated that the proposed congress seemed to have the unanimous approval of the Central American States, but that before the details of the meeting could be arranged it would be necessary to await the conclusion of the conference now in progress at Amapala.

Señor Corea, the Nicaraguan Minister, to-night received a telegram from President Zelaya stating that the Nicaraguan forces were being withdrawn from Honduran territory. The administration of affairs has been entrusted by the visitors to the Provisional Government of Honduras and President Zelaya expresses the belief that permanent peace will result.

WAITERS' STRIKE EXTENDS.

Big Paris Cafes Serve Their Customers with Great Difficulty.

PARIS, April 18.—The strike of the waiters here extended in the course of the day to many of the principal cafés and caused the greatest inconvenience at luncheon time, when some of the staffs deserted entirely. The older men, however, generally remained at their posts and contrived to carry on the service, with the assistance of new hands, under the protection of the police.

In the evening the strike further extended, various important establishments being affected.

Detachments of cavalry patrolled the boulevards during the evening. Many slight disturbances occurred owing to strikers intimidating workers. A number of arrests were made on the charge of intimidation.

The Confederation of Labor is placarding the public buildings with a most violent manifesto, condemning the "criminal Government's" attempts to defeat the efforts of the workingmen to ameliorate their condition, and vilifying especially Premier Clemenceau, Education Minister Briand, and Labor Minister Viviani in connection with the arrest of the strike lesders, Marck and Yvetot, "under charges concocted by means of barbarous and antiquated laws."

Hundreds of excavators employed on the new Metropolitan underground railroad lines joined the strike movement this afternoon.

CARDINALS GET RED HATS.

Impressive Ceremonies at the Public Consistory.

ROME, April 18.—A Public Consistory was held at the Vatican this morning. This being the season in which Rome is crowded with tourists, especially Americans, the demand for tickets was phenomenal.

The procession accompanying the Pope was long and interesting. The Swiss Guard headed the procession, and the Noble Guard surrounded the person of the Pontiff, who was dressed in white. He was preceded by the Cardinals in full red robes and followed by the Bishops and Archbishops.

When the Pontiff was seated on the throne the six new Cardinals advanced one by one to receive the red hat. Each prelate knelt at the feet of the Pope while the Master of Ceremonies held a magnificent red hat over the Cardinal's head, and the Pope, saying, "Accipe galerum rubrum," rose and gave the Papal embrace. The only Cardinal created at the Secret Consistory of April 15, who was not present was Mgr. Rinaldini, the Papal Nuncio at Madrid, who will receive his red hat at the next Public Consistory.

The United States was represented by Mgr. Robert Seton of New Jersey, Titular Archbishop of Heliopolis; Mgr. Thomas O'Gorman, Bishop of Sioux Falls, and Mgr. John Farrelly, Spiritual Director of the American College.

CORTELYOU TO ALTER THE CUSTOMS RULES

Plans to Relieve Inconvenience to Which Travelers Are Put at This Port.

DECLARATIONS AT SEA

Present System of Having Them Made at Quarantine May Be Done Away With.

Home coming Americans hereafter may find the ordeal of entering port less of an inconvenience than it has been for the last few years, if Secretary Cortelyou decides to modify the baggage inspection rules which have been in force since the first administration of President McKinley.

The Treasury officials in Washington have had under discussion ever since Secretary Cortelyou succeeded Mr. Shaw, ways and means of lightening the burden, inconvenience, and delay which must be borne under the existing conditions. Since the Secretary of the Treasury has been in New York he has been in conference with the port officers to determine what measure of relief will do most to remedy the situation and at the same time safeguard the Government from smugglers.

Secretary Cortelyou has not visited the Custom House in his two days in town, but he has been in touch with the Customs staff. He refused yesterday to discuss the plans that he has been considering for the remedy of present conditions, but it is known that he is convinced that some change in the system of meeting and examining the baggage of home-coming citizens is necessary. His own experiences in returning from abroad have given him ample knowledge of the sufferings of returning travelers.

At present incoming steamers are met down the bay by customs officials, to whom American passengers make written declaration of their dutiable belongings. Then, when the steamer reaches her pier travelers must wait, sometimes for two hours, and often for five, while the Customs Inspectors delve among their baggage in search of dutiable articles that have not been declared. This search frequently involves the ruin, especially in the case of women, of delicate fabrics, which, for lack of proper accommodation, must be dumped in the search on the muddy pavement of the pier. At best, when the ship is one of the big liners, the search takes an hour and forty minutes, and it often takes five hours.

The system of baggage examination at present in force is a growth of many years, and is, in the opinion of the Secretary, subject to important changes. The public object to the rule by which they are required to make declarations and subsequently submit to a search on the pier. It is the plan of the Secretary to lessen these complaints if possible by arranging for the taking of declarations while the ships are en route across the ocean, such declarations being mere statements made on blanks supplied by the ship's officers, giving the names of passengers and the number of pieces of baggage carried.

It is contemplated that the actual declarations of dutiable articles shall be made to the Inspector on the pier when he opens the trunks.

DRYDEN BACK AT WORK.

Fully Recovered from His Illness, He Returns to the Prudential.

Former United States Senator John F. Dryden has fully recovered from the illness which prompted him to withdraw from the Senatorial contest. He assumed his duties as president of the Prudential Insurance Company in Newark yesterday.

One of Mr. Dryden's first acts was to promulgate the resolutions passed by the Board of Directors of the Prudential granting concessions to policy holders. By an edict which went forth yesterday every industrial policy holder in the Prudential who has attained the age of seventy-five years will receive a paid up policy for the full amount of the insurance.

MORE DISCLOSURES OF CAPITOL GRAFT

Pennsylvania's Ex-Treasurer Tells of Profits in Metallic Furniture.

PUTS BLAME ON ARCHITECT

Declares That If Contracts Had Been Carried Out Scandal Would Have Been Avoided.

HARRISBURG, April 18.—Startling testimony was given by Frank G. Harris of Clearfield, an ex-State Treasurer, before the Capitol Investigating Commission to-day. He was a member of the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings, of which the Governor and Auditor General are also members.

From May, 1902, to May, 1904, contract for Capitol furnishings amounted to m millions of dollars. Two millions were paid to the Pennsylvania Construction Company for metallic furniture; $6,500,000 was expended for interior furnishings, and $3,000,000 was to have been expended for beautifying Capitol Park. The contracts for the expenditure of the $3,000,000 were cancelled in January, 1900, or a few months before William H. Berry became State Treasurer.

Harris contradicted himself repeatedly, but was allowed to correct his testimony. Lawyer Scarlett brought out the fact that the contract for the metallic furniture was awarded long before the sample of granite was selected for the Capitol, and nearly three months before the contract for the construction of the building was awarded to George F. Payne & Co.

During the examination of Harris it developed that Architect Joseph M. Huston collected 4 per cent. commission on $2,000,000 for designing the metallic furniture, which had been designed long before by the architect of the construction company. Harris admitted that "the board spent money blindly in furnishing the Capitol," and that when the contract for the metallic furniture was made, there was no definite idea of the cost. He thought it would cost between $100,000 and $200,000, and had not the slightest idea that it would amount to $2,000,000. He explained that if he had had any conception that this furniture would have cost $2,000,000 he would not have put his name to the contract.

"If the architect had been faithful in his duty," he went on, "and had the contracts been lived up to as he could have forced them to, I believe there would have been no trouble and that there would have been no scandal."

It was brought out to-day that Sanderson collected $72 a pair for fifty pairs of "specially designed Colonial andirons" and that these andirons were really stock patterns which can be bought for $23 a pair.

The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

ACCUSED OF SHOPLIFTING.

Mrs. Nellie Zebley, Who Lives at Empire Hotel, Held for Trial.

Mrs. Nellie Zebley, who lives at the Empire Hotel, was held in $500 bail in Jefferson Market Court yesterday on a charge of shoplifting in a Sixth Avenue department store, and was remanded for examination to-day. She is 54 years old.

Miss Rose McCormack and D. D. Kash, the store detectives, said they saw the woman pick up two corset covers and a silk night dress valued at $18.88, and that the articles were in her muff when she was arrested.

Mrs. Zebley said her husband failed in Wall Street ten years ago for $1,000,000. At the Hotel Empire it was said last night that Mrs. Zebley had lived there for about five years, and that her reputation was of the best. She was visited every two or three weeks by her husband, who came from Boston, and who registered as J. S. Zebley.

FROM $20 A WEEK TO $150,000 A YEAR

Boston Piano Salesman Made the Jump and Kept It Up Two Years.

THEN INTO BANKRUPTCY

But While He Had Money He Cut a Big Figure with Automobiles and Fast Horses.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 18.—From a salesman in a piano factory at $20 a week to a daring speculator with a fortune of $300,000, and now declared a bankrupt—all within two years—is the record made by Ray S. Cogswell of 1,453 Beacon Street, Brookline. His creditors filed a petition to-day. His debts are given as $91,231.64 and his assets as $11,050.

On borrowed capital he made several turns in the stock market, his ventures netting him about $300,000. He leased a fine house in Brookline, the property of William H. Canterbury of the Standard Oil Company, and lived there with his wife and mother-in-law. For some time he cut a big dash with automobiles and fast horses, but was caught in a bad turn of the market and lost his money.

He borrowed $63,415 from his mother-in-law, who is the chief creditor, but could not regain his financial standing. A short time before he was forced into bankruptcy he left for Europe, leaving his wife and mother-in-law in Boston, and his creditors have not seen him since.

Cogswell owes $275 in wages, and the unsecured claims amount to $80,981. The assets consist of $5,000 household goods, $2,300 cash, a carriage valued at $1,100, and an automobile, electric piano player, music rolls, and a pool table, all valued at $2,300. The secured creditors all hold jewelry as collateral. Diamond rings, pendants, chains, and other articles were deposited by Cogswell to raise money. One New York pawnbroker holds a claim for $6,500, while another holds a thirty-three-hundred-dollar claim.

There are about fifty-five unsecured creditors, Mrs. Smith, Cogswell's mother-in-law, holding the largest claim. Automobile repairs, veterinary work on his fast horses, flowers, borrowed money, and hotel bills appear among the claims.

Several New York jewelry firms are named as creditors.

Kindergarten Teacher Asphyxiated.

Miss May Zaugham, 21 years old, was found dead from gas asphyxiation in her room, at her home, 390 Clifton Place, Brooklyn, yesterday. It was supposed by the police that she had committed suicide. The girl's parents, however, were of the opinion that the gas had escaped accidentally. Miss Zaugham had been in ill health for some time. She was in charge of the kindergarten department of the Pacific Branch of the Brooklyn Public Library.

32-YEAR LITIGATION ENDED BY THE CITY

LITTLE FOR RICH HEIRS

Notable Array of Counsel to Get Shares of Land Bought for Williamsburg Bridge.

When the City of New York has finally paid the awards for property taken in the Williamsburg Bridge improvement, and when the Court of Appeals has passed upon certain technical questions awaiting its decision; when the already discovered heirs have been rounded up and all the lawyers have been paid, then the fifty descendants of Daniel Riker, who died in 1850—provided no more are discovered in the meantime—will receive the patrimony that has been coming to them since before most of them were born. Of course this happy settlement is contingent upon the absence of further legal complications growing out of conditions that it is now impossible to anticipate.

Yet the Riker heirs and their staff of lawyers, a mere catalogue of whom would take up a great deal of space, are feeling that they have at last got out of the woods because within the last few days Justice Fitzgerald of the Supreme Court has had judgment entered in the partition cass that was brought in 1876, when the first attempt was made to settle Daniel Riker's estate. All told, as much as $25,000 is to be distributed—if none of the things happen that are catalogued above—including the fees to the lawyers. What will remain for the heirs could not be learned yesterday with even an approximate degree of accuracy.

To some notable households will the distribution of the Riker riches bring happiness. Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, the wife of the President of the Sugar Trust, is entitled to one-one hundred and twentieth of the estate, which might bring in as much as $100, if the lawyers do not take more than half the entire amount. Mrs. McCoskry Butt, who was a Miss Havemeyer, comes in for one-thirtieth share, and George Elder, long a partner of the Havemeyers in the sugar business, is scheduled to receive a thirtieth. Mrs. Butt is represented, with respect to the $400 or $500 that she may get, by John E. Parsons, the wealthy counsel for the Sugar Trust. Charles E. Noyes of 198 Broadway appears for a majority of the heirs, and Col. Alexander S. Bacon comes in somewhere. There are many other lawyers.

If Daniel Riker, dying in 1850 possessed of the property at 81 Suffolk Street, had taken the trouble to make a will all these complications would have been avoided. As it was, the old house, which had a frontage also on Delancey Street, was left in a general estate that belonged, or was expected to belong, to his five children. By some of them it was either occupied or rented down to 1870, when, the character of the neighborhood having changed and the property run down, a partition suit was brought. The five children had by that time increased Riker's heirs to twenty-five.

Troubles set in. The first partition suit was dismissed for a technicality, and another was brought. There were various substitutions of parties in the action, and eventually a receiver was appointed for the property, to which post Charles F. Moadinger, husband of one of Daniel Riker's daughters, was appointed. Along in 1880 there was a sale, but this was upset by the court, and another twelve years passed without more definite happenings than the disappearance of Norman A. Lawlor, a lawyer, from whom some of the Riker heirs still seek an accounting.

It appeared that nobody in the action was particularly anxious to have the matter wound up, until finally, about a year and a half ago, some of the heirs brought an action against the receiver for an accounting of the rents. The matter went before a referee, who reported that the heirs had $10,500 coming to them. An appeal was taken, as a matter of course, and so there was prospect of hanging things up indefinitely again.

The city was the real peacemaker, bringing about the final solution. It decided that it wanted the property for the Williamsburg Bridge, started condemnation proceedings, became obliged under the decision of the court to pay $15,000 for it, and is now delaying the payment for some reason unknown to the heirs. This left little to fight over except the receivership accounting, and it may be supposed, if none of the complications already noted set in, that the thirty-second year of the litigation, closing in 1908, may see its wind-up.

TRIES SUICIDE IN BELLEVUE.

Prisoner Makes Second Attempt There to Cut His Throat.

Duncan Blume, a prisoner in Bellevue Hospital, convalescing from a self-inflicted gash in his throat, tried again yesterday to end his life. He got a carving knife at luncheon time, and attempted to cut his throat again.

Miss Treon, the nurse, grappled with Blue, and succeeded in keeping the knife away from his throat, although all of the fingers of her right hand were cut.

It required the combined efforts of the nurses, Policeman George Hathmaker, and some of the convalescent prisoners to disarm Blue.

Blue is a Scotchman, and a laboring man. He was taken to Bellevue last Monday night from 521 West Twenty-third Street, where he had attempted to end his life.

ATTACKED BY A NEGRO.

Woman Left Senseless In a Lonely Spot in the Bronx.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Schleiter, a widow, of 13 St. Mark's Place, was seized by the throat from behind by a negro last night, choked so that she could make no outcry, and dragged into a dark corner of a lumber yard at 153th Street and Rider Avenue, the Bronx. Her assailant escaped, leaving her unconscious. The entire police force of the Alexander Avenue Police Station began a search for him.

Mrs. Schleiter described her assailant as 5 feet 10 inches in height, wearing a peaked cap and gray sack coat. Later in the evening Capt. Shevlin's men arrested a young negro near the lumber yards who somewhat resembled the man she described.

The prisoner said he was William Gans, a porter of 377 Rider Avenue, and denied knowledge of the assault.

ROOSTER THEIR PARTING GIFT.

Peacock Family Furnish Excitement for German Liner's Passengers.

When Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Peacock and their daughter, Miss Irene, sailed for Europe yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria they were hardly prepared for the demonstration of parting affection which awaited them. The family intend to spend the next three months at the resorts in Southern Europe.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck," came from a basket which Mr. Peacock found on a table in his stateroom. Before fleeing in alarm he took a glance at the tag, which read: "Bon voyage. From your friends."

The wise old steward, who was called to take charge of the basket, sprung back the catch. There was a whirring sound, a bundle of red and brown feathers bounced up into the air, and a fine-looking rooster of the common garden variety almost landed on Mr. Peacock's head. Straight out over their heads went the rooster, and landed in a group of some fifty persons who were crowding that particular part of the vessel.

Then followed a free-for-all rooster chase about the liner's decks. It was not until the "all ashore" had been sounded for the last time and the vessel was about to back out into the river to begin her trip to Hamburg that the runaway rooster was caught by an adventurous steward and returned to the Peacock family.

CITY TO APPEAL TO ENGLAND.

Request to Be Made for Records Removed in Revolutionary Period.

At the instigation of President McGowan there will be introduced at the meeting of the Aldermen on next Tuesday a resolution asking Mayor McClellan to see what can be done through the United States Department of State toward recovering from the British Government part of the records of the City Fathers of proceedings in the Revolutionary period, and which the British took with them when they evacuated New York.

Mr. McGowan has learned that the Aldermanic records for that period are all that are required to make complete the city's record of the legislative work done by the municipal authorities. There is a record showing that the missing papers were taken away by the English, and Mr. McGowan believes that if the British authorities were asked to return them they would either do so or would at least permit a copy of them to be made.

PROBING THE COTTON BOARD.

Inquiry by Department of Commerce and Labor to End Next Week.

Representatives of the Department of Commerce and Labor are engaged in an investigation of the methods of the New York Cotton Exchange, and it is expected that they will have completed their examination at the end of another week, when Herbert Knox Smith, the Commissioner of Commerce and Labor, is expected to visit the Exchange.

The investigation now under way takes in the markets of all the cotton centres of the country and includes the operations of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association, which has been the chief enemy of the New York Cotton Exchange.

The officials of the Cotton Exchange have been co-operating with Mr. Conant of the Department of the Commerce and Labor. Nothing further has been heard by the New York cotton men of the fraud order application, which was made by President Harvie Jordan of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association.

CHANGES FOR STEAMSHIPS.

Jacob W. Miller Suggests Decks Arranged as Life Rafts.

Capt. Jacob W. Miller, representing the American Steamship Association, at the second day's session of the navigation conference at the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation, made some suggestions yesterday to bring about a reform of conditions on the harbor craft. He wanted a change made in the present steering gear to simplify it.

Another suggestion made by Capt. Miller was that the upper decks of passenger steamships should be made so that they could be used as sectional rafts in time of need. He also advocated the building of no boats on the coast passenger-carrying trade with less than five water and two fire bulkheads, and that those on foggy routes carry search lights.

A resolution was adopted petitioning the Government for a commission to draft amendments and revisions of the navigation laws, particularly in respect to the rules of the road as introduced in the petition of Charles Sprague Smith at yesterday's session.

CALLS WIFE COMMON SCOLD.

R. C. Clute's Defense to a Suit for a Separation.

Application was made to Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday for alimony and counsel fees pending settlement of the suit for a separation by Mrs. Ina E. Clute against Richard C. Clute. The defendant has candy stores in various cities and is the author of "Foy's Book of Formulas and Guide to Soda Water Dispensers."

In his answer he declares that his wife is a common scold, and that she has no control over her temper, and that he has lost four good jobs because of her temper. Decision was reserved.

NEW CHARGE AGAINST HARRIMAN SYSTEM

Truck Owners Allege Discrimination at the Morgan Line Pier.

COMPANY MEN FAVORED

Trucks Controlled by Southern Pacific Are Admitted to Pier First, Commerce Commission Hears.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission, in the person of Martin S. Decker, its Assistant Secretary, sitting as special examiner, turned its attention from the finances to the trucking of the Harriman railroads yesterday, when a hearing was held in Room 70 of the Federal Building, upon the complaint of the New York Team Owners' Association. It was in Room 70 that Mr. Harriman and Otto H. Kahn told the commission how the Alton deal was put through. Yesterday the witnesses included Antonio Pagano, Thomas F. McCarthy, Charles F. Coppins, and other truck owners.

The gravamen of the charges against the Harriman system this time—and it is the Southern Pacific, as owner of the Morgan Line of steamers, that is most immediately concerned—is that preference is given at Pier 25 North River, where the Morgan Line docks, to the teams belonging to the firm of Kelly & Buck, which were said by Attorney Maxwell Evarts to belong practically to the Southern Pacific Company. William L. Schneider represented the truck owners. Mr. Evarts's contention was that, as the teams belonged to the company, there could be no discrimination in favor of any shippers.

There was some preliminary argument, and then Examiner Decker decided that he would take testimony on the allegations of the complaint. Accordingly, Antonio Pagano was called. Pagano said that all trucks marked "Sunset Route" were allowed on the pier and that other trucks were held up for hours. He produced two pictures showing the congestion at the pier, which were put in evidence. Then Thomas F. McCarthy was called, and testified that the preference shown to the Kelly & Buck trucks was so great that the trucks of the members of the association had frequently to stay in the street all night to unload. McCarthy said that he had frequently counted from 75 to 122 trucks lined up outside of Pier 25, waiting to be admitted, while the favored trucks of Kelly & Buck passed in and out at will.

The witness also declared that in 1905 the attention of Inspector Brooks of the Police Department had been called to the matter and that steps had been taken to have Mayor McClellan conduct a public hearing, but without material result. He added that the Southern Pacific pier is the only one in the city on which special favor is shown to certain trucks over others. Charles F. Coppins, another member of the Truck Owners' Association, added his testimony to that of McCarthy.

"How long has preference been given to the trucking firm of Kelly & Buck?" asked Attorney Schneider.

"For fifteen years to my knowledge. It was worse fifteen years ago than it is to-day," the witness replied.

Ezra Buck of the trucking firm was also put on the stand by the truck owners and admitted that his trucks had the right of way on the dock and that the police see to it that his trucks are not obstructed in getting to the dock.

"Do you pay the police for getting your trucks out of the way of other trucks?" asked Mr. Schneider.

"I do not," said the witness.

"Does the Southern Pacific Company?"

"I don't know," said Buck.

Under examination by Mr. Evarts, Buck said that the growth of the business of the Southern Pacific Company at Pier 25 had overtaxed the facilities of the pier and that crowding could not be avoided. He denied that his firm paid anything to the Southern Pacific Company for the privileges that it enjoys.

The hearing was not finished yesterday.

CITY BREVITIES.

The naval tug Pontiac, returning to the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday from a wrecking expedition down the coast, reported that she had destroyed a coal barge, which was a dangerous derelict, off Barnegat Light in the path of coastwise craft.

There has been organized here a Society for the Care of German Seamen in New York, the object of which is to look after the welfare of the sailors who come here on the German steamships. Leading men in the Lutheran churches are responsible for the organization. George Gravenhorst of 96 Wall Street is Treasurer.

Norman Hapgood, editor of Collier's Weekly, spoke to Club A of the People's Institute, 318 East Fifteenth Street, last night on "The Function of the Stage," and advocated an endowed theatre.

CHARGED WITH MAIL THEFTS.

Decoy Letters Containing Marked Bills Found in Deutsch's Pockets.

Charged with stealing letters containing money from the mails, David Deutsch, 24 years old, of 103 East 106th Street, was arrested last night and locked up at Police Headquarters. Deutsch, was employed at the Central Post Office as a "separator."

It is charged that he stole letters which were addressed to publication houses and mail order stores. The arrest was made by Postal Inspectors Jacobs and Meyers. For several months the postal authorities have been receiving complaints from publication and mail order houses, among them being The Christian Herald, The Review of Reviews, and The Catholic News. The Inspectors caught Deutsch by using decoy letters containing marked bills. The letters, the Inspectors say, all disappeared, and in less than an hour after the letters had gone to Deutsch's table he was arrested. The seven letters containing the marked bills, the Inspectors allege, were all found in the clerk's pockets.

Miss Bailey Applies for a Larger Allowance from Grandmother's Estate.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday appointed Louis H. Phelps to be guardian of Alleta Nathalie Bailey, who is nineteen years old. He will represent her in an application for an increased allowance out of the estate of her grandparents.

Miss Bailey declares that when she was thirteen years old the court granted her an allowance of $13,500 a year. Now that she is expected to entertain friends and to live in the manner that her means call for, she says this income is not sufficient and should be greatly increased.

In 1879 Alleta Remsden Bailey was married to James Muhlenberg Bailey. The husband died in 1897. Miss Bailey's grandmother died in 1900 and left her an income of $28,000 a year, and from other sources she is entitled to $8,700 a year.

COUNTY COMMITTEE DROPS LEADER HAHN

Republican Contest Decided in Favor of Farrel of 13th District.

"PLOT," DECLARES STEWART

Negro Committeeman Says President Roosevelt Wants to Drive Him Out of Party.

Alderman John J. Hahn is no longer the Republican leader in the Thirteenth Assembly District. He and his followers were read out of the County Committee at that body's regular monthly meeting in the Murray Hill Lyceum last night as the result of the contest brought by John J. Farrell some time ago and referred to a special committee, the Chairmen of which was Ghererdi Davis. The report of the committee ousting Hahn went through with a large majority in its favor.

In the report the committee stated that evidence had been put before it that there had been browbeating, bribery, and all sorts of crimes against the election law in a number of the election districts at the primery last Fall, and that in one district fifteen more ballots were found in the box than there were enrolled Republicans in the district. In one case, the committee found, money had been "openly paid" by adherents of Hahn for votes. The committee added thet the returns were falsified and unworthy of belief.

Originally the vote in the district had been: Hehn, 683; Farrell, 593. The committee threw out four districts in which Hahn had a majority and four in which Farrell led. The election districts left out of the recount were the First, Second, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, end Twentieth. With these out the vote stood: Hahn, 297; Ferrell, 308, and when the report had been read Mr. Davis offered a resolution that the Hahn men be unseated and the Ferrell delegates take their places.

In the discussion that followed President Roosevelt's neme was dragged in by Gilchrist Stewart, a negro committeeman who had been unscated by the decree. Mr. Stewart said that the big stick had hit him beceuse he had been interested in the Brownsville affair, and that the powers at Washington were elso after him because he was going to Ohio to help down Taft. Mr. Stewart is quite an orator, and he made the most of his opportunity. He said he once thought that County Chairman Persons was a reformer and not practicel enough for his job.

"But," he added, "he has given all the old leaders I ever knew cards and spades and beaten them at the game of real old-fashioned, rough-house machine politics."

Mr. Stewart retorted that "the big stick at Washington hasn't been able to shut me up and I ain't a-going to to entertain no little sticks." The burden of his remerks was that the negro vote was with him; that the Republicans were adopting a "lilly-white" policy, and that he would come back next yeer stronger than ever.

M. Parsons replied to Mr. Stewart to the extent of saying that when the contest was first brought Mr. Stewart hed written him a letter suggesting that it would look like persecution of him for interesting himself in the Brownsville affair if he was unseated. To which Mr. Parsons said, he had replied that the suggestion was insulting. Stewart, he said, had tried to inject the Brownsville matter into the contest without rhyme or reason.

There was considerable disorder during Mr. Stewart's speech and following Mr. Parson's remarks, though most of the Hahn men kept very quiet. Stewart, however, was not going to let the matter drop.

"I know perfectly well," he shouted, "that President Roosevelt gave orders that my political power should be curtelled."

Hisses, groans, and shouts drowned him out at this point, and when he got in a motion to refer the report back to the committee it was lost nearly unanimously, and a subsequent motion to adopt the report was passed.

ADDICKS IN SECLUSION.

Former Gas King Living in Hoboken —Process Servers Vainly Seek Him.

An army of reporters besieged the house at 1,042 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken, yesterday, in a vain effort to see J. Edward Addicks of Delaware, who is said to be living quietly in that city. Mr. Addicks refused to show himself, but this was probably because at the same time the reporters were looking several process servers were also trying to get within reach of the former gas king and unsuccessful candidate for the United States Senate.

Mr. Addicks is staying with D. W. Roome, and is evidently determined to enjoy his seclusion, for ringing et the bell of the epartment in which he is living brought no response. The subpoena servers are said to represent service in a number of suits against the Bay State gas man. One is said to have been brought by Thomas W. Lawson of Boston.

The landlady, who came out to repair the bell after repeeted rings had broken it, would volunteer no information about her new boerder.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 18.—The news that J. Edward Addicks is living practically in seclusion in an apartment house in Hoboken was received throughout Delaware with interest. It signifies what is regarded as the downfall, financially, of the man who is said to have expended $1,000,000 in this Stete in a futile effort to obtain his election to the Senate.

United States Marshel Flynn, who has figured prominently in the litigation against Addicks and the Bay State, said to-night that Addicks wes not dodging a Delaware subpoena.

"We have no subpoena for him from the Federal Court in this district," replied the Marshel. "If he is dodging such a document, it was issued from another jurisdicton, of which I know nothing."

HEARST FOLLOWERS DINE.

Gov. Hughes, McCarren, and Woodruff Among Those Denounced.

Seven hundred of those who believe in William Randolph Hearst gethered last night in the Labor Lyceum, Myrtle and Willoughby Avenues, Brooklyn, hut Mr. Heerst himself wes not there. It was the first annuel dinner of the King'a County Independence League, and Henry A. Powell, Chairman of the Brooklyn City Committee of the Leegue, presided. Clarence J. Shearn, Mr. Heerst's personal attorney, waa the first speaker, and denounced Senator McCarren and Timothy Woodruff. He asked if it wes strange that with such men as the leaders of its opponents the Independence League swept the county. Then he turned his attention to Gov. Hughes.

"Compare his promises with his performances," he said. "While he was seeking your votes he declared that he would spere no pains to reform the transit problem of Brooklyn. He has been three months in office, and what has he done?

"If Mr. Hearst had been elected instead, I tell you that he would have never ceased his efforts till something had been accomplished. He would have estabilished his heedquarters here in your Borough Hall until a remedy hed been provided."

Mr. Shearn elso criticised the Governor sharply for employing Mr. Woodruff in his election end dropping him as soon as he was seated et Albany. He did not blame him for refusing to listen to him now, but he did blame him for making use of him for his personal advantage.

Attorney General Jackson denounced the provision in the Corrupt Practices ect that no candidate should spend more then $10,000 of his own money, es a "contemptible bit of legislation, directed at your leader, who spent his own money, honestly and honorebly mado, end not coined in the mint of suffering and oppreesion."

ADVERTISERS DINE.

The April dinner of the New York Advertisers' League wes held last night et 111 Fifth Avenue. Robert Frothingham, advertising manager of Everybody's Magazine, discussed "The Personal Elcment in the Placing of Advertisements." He spoke at length of the man who allows prejudice to interfere with his business success.

"When prejudice steiks in at the doroway logicel thought flies out of the window," he said. "The prejudiced advertiser is like a mummy, all swathed in bandages—he is e dead one."

He drew attention to the effect of the policy of e magazine or newspaper in refusing to take advertisements of which it did not approve.

"By so doing that magazine or newspaper becomes a criterion," he said. "Such a policy is equal to an editorial guerantee of the advertisements which appear in the periodical. We are our brother's keeper in a sense. It is the youngster of to-day the magazine publisher is thinking of when he refusos to take a cigarette advertisement. There has been a wonderful upliffing of the edvertisment business in the last two yeare. The 'rooter' baa been crowded out, the fakir has been shoved to the wall. There is no room for him."

W. S. Crowe spoke on "What Is Service?" and seid that the up to date edvertisin gman should be salesman, lawyer, and General all in one.

"Just Advertising" was the theme upon which Thomes Balmer, edvertising director of the Street Railweys Advertising Company, talked.

"QUAKE" DINNER AT LAMBS.

Actors Commemorate the San Francisco Disaster.

A dinner at which about fifty persons were present was held at the Lambs' Club yesterday in commemoration of the anniversary of the San Francisco disaster, in which several theatricel companies suffered severe losses on account of the earthqueke and fire. William Collier, who was in San Francisco et the time of the earthquake, waiting to embark for Australle, wes present with most of the male members of his company. George Nesh, Joseph R. Grismer, and Myron M. Rice, who was in charge of the "Babes in Toyland" company at the time of the disaster, were also emong the guests.

Delphine M. Delmas was the guest of honor and mede a speech. William Collier told how his Japanese valet was the only man who slept through the earthquake. The Jap was "under the influence."

LUNCHEON FOR SENOR CREEL.

L. H. Stevens geve a luncheon yesterday in the Lawyers' Club, in honor of Ambassador Enrique C. Creel, ex-Governor of Chihuahua, Mexico. Among those present were: Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, John Pierce, R. A. C. Smith, John Annan, Jefferson M. Levy, Thomson Alkman, William M. Kerr, H. B. Parsons, R. L. MacDuffie, John B. McDoneld.

Ambassndor Creel made a specch in which he dwelt on the cordiality of relations between the sister republics, the stability of the Mexican Government, and the unassailable sefety of American investments in Mexico.

FAREWELL TO PEACEMAKERS.

Carnegie Entertains Notable Delegates at His Home.

A dinner was given by Andrew Carnegie lest night at his Fifth Avenue home as a sort of informel farewell to the men, or some of them, who took pert in the Peace Conference which hed been going on since last Sunday.

About fifty men attended the reception end dinner. There was not a woman present. They went early, and it wes lete when they got away. It was planned to be an informal dinner. No speeches had been arranged for, as it was essumed that the peace delegates bad heard more than enough talk.

Sitting near the host were Earl Grey, Governor General of Cnnada; Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, W. T. Stead, the London editor; Sir Robert Cranston, Joseph H. Choate, Morris Carnegie, and the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott. The guests included many other well-known men.

SALE OF NAST'S BELONGINGS.

Presents from Gen. Grant to the Cartoonist Sold at Auction.

"Christ on the Cross," the figure modeled in brown varnished leather, the cross of stained black wood, 3 feet 5 inches long, was one of the interesting things sold yesterday by the Merwin-Clayton Company in East Twentieth Street in the third and final day's sale of the art collection of the late Thomas Nast.

It is said to have hung in Nast's bedroom. It was sold for $27.50 to Cyril Nast, a son of the cartoonist.

A pair of Japenese cloisonné vases bought by Gen. U. S. Grant in Japan, and presented by him to Thomas Nast in 1881, was sold to J. W. Crawford for $50. A large Limoges vase, 17 inches in height and decorated, was bought on order for $40. A fine pair of Canton Falence vases, decorated with flowers, went to H. Mischke for $39.

A hanging plaque, "The Burgomaster," Germen Falence, was bought on order for $23. "Pate Sur Pete," by L. Solon, oblong Greek design in gold, white, and brown, was sold for $100.

A very fine set of candelabra was bought on order for $55. A beautifully cerved Chinese corner stand was sold to "M. N." for $40. A Dutch marketing table, inlaid in a floriated design, was bought on order for $148. A mantel set, clock and two vases, brought $47.50. A fine walnut table, from the Egyptian exhbit at the Centenuial Exposition, sold for $35. An antique carved black oak settle, bought by Nnst in Chester, brought $30. An eight-day grandfather's clock went to Mr. Bigelow for $22. A silver-plate reproduction set of the famous treasure of Hildesheim was bought on order for $60. This is one of twelve sets copied from the original which was exhumed in Hildesheim, Prussia, and is now in the Royal Museum, Berlin. It is supposed to have belonged to Taurus, a Field Marshel of the Emperor Augustus.

A fine old silver and gold watch brought $80; an Elkington shield, "The Race of Life," $25, and a colored plaster Shakespeare mask, fac simile of the effigy in Stratford-on-Avon church, $15, bought by James Carhart, the actor. A tete-a-tete set of Coilridge Falence, used for after-dinner coffee by Gen. and Mrs. Grant while on a visit to Thomas Nast, May 3, 1877, shortly before Grant's trip around the world, sold for $18, to "C. N."

Dispersal of the Late Mrs. Lewis-Hill's Collection Continues.

LONDON, April 18.—Interest in the sale at Christie's of the artistic effects of the lete Mrs. Lewis-Hill, widow of "Sam" Lewis, the well-known money lender, increased to-day.

Some old English porcelain was eagerly bought up at prices ranging from $210 to $1,000, while old Sèvres brought from $475 to $2,600. Old Dresden ware also sold well, but the keenest bidding wes for old French decorative objects and furniture, the prices ranging from $975 to $19,000.

BRYAN FINDS MUGWUMP.

Discovers Picture of Indian Chief in Connecticut Archives.

HARTFORD, April 18.—In his speceb before the Legislature here to-day, William Jennings Bryan said:

"While waiting for the time to speak I visited the State Library, end hed found a copy of the 'Blue Laws.' Having read them, I wish to say that I much prefer them to some yellow laws recently adopted in other States. I found a picture of an Indian chief called Mugwump. It was news to me that the name originated in Connecticut. I did not understand it until I saw the chief's signature. This was a crooked mark which zigzagged and wriggled around, first on one side and then on the other."

MILITARY GAMES OF SIGNAL CORPS

NOVEL ATHLETIC EVENTS

Mounted Melee and Wrestling Provided Exciting Sport in Ring of Central Park Academy.

It was a military show in all of its interesting features that the officers and privetes of the First Company, Signal Corps, N. G. S. N. Y., with Mejor Gen. Charles F. Roe as reviewing officer, held last night in the ring of the Central Park Riding Academy, Fifty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue. Old Glory waved to the martiel strains of National airs by the Twelfth United States Infantry Band, and all branches of the military end naval service were represented by elaborately gold-laced officers.

Following the review of the corps, decorations end medals were presented by Gen. Roe. These included the John S. Scully Prize for the champion signalman of 1906, which was won by First-Class Private Harry T. Graf. A long list also qualified for experts' medals. State Decorations were pinned to the breasts of Second Lieut. James P. Holmes, First Sergt. Joseph C. Ceswell, and First Sergt. Charles P. Barker for ten years' service.

The ethletic part of the programme provided exciting sport, as the men contested on foot end mounted. The melee and the rough riding presented dangerous work. In the melee the sabres cut and parried at the plumes in the padded helmets of the soldiers with such vigor that the men came from the ring rubbing sore and bruised spots. The squed led by Corp. Jacob Thoma won with shreds of their red plumes still standing when all of the green plumes of Sergt. John K. Koll's had been laid low.

The novelty rece and the mounted tug-of-war proved furciical, for in the novelty manoeuvre the soldiers forced the horses to don trousers and sunbonnets before riding at racing speed around the ring. Cept. Erlandsen put his men through some exciting head-cutting stunts and Cossack riding that displayed excellent drilling. The summary:

Broadsword Contest.—Won by Corporal Jacob Thoma; Private Otto J. A. Grassl, second.

Double Pursuit Race.—Won by Private Robert W. Maloney; Sergt. William R. Wallace, second.

Egg and Spoon Race.—Won by Private Jerome B. Sullivan; Private William H. Stephens, second.

Novelty Race.—Won by Privats Georgs Weeden; Private Charles R. Woods, Hospital Corps, second.

Potato Race.—Won by First Class Sergt. Allen F. Myers; Private Samuel T. Stewart, second.

Tug-of-War, Mounted.—Won by Team B, composed of Privates Van Riper, Endress, McKenna, Callan, and Lee; Team A, composed of First Class Sergt. Barker and Privates Livingston, Weeden, Stephens, and Waterhouse, second.

Mounted Melee.—Won by Team A, composed of Corporal Thoma and Privates Vail, Everitt, Martin, and Taft; Team B, composed of Sergt. Roll and Privetes Schmid, Woods, Anderson, and King, second.

Wrestling, Mounted—Won by Team B, composed of Privntes Schmid, Wilcox, Brokaw, Dressner, and Overton; Team A, composed of Sergt. Spencer, Corporal Tack, and Privates Bruckner, Stewart, and Shaughnessy, second.

Company D Wins 71st Regt. Shoot.

In the closest and most exciting contest that has ever taken place on the rifle ranges of the Seventy-first Regiment, Company D, in the annual contest for the Homer Trophy, last night wrested it from Company E, the winner last year. The contest was not decided until the last shot had been fired, the second team of Company D finishing first with a total score of 220. Second on the list at the finish, with a total score of 222, was the first team of the same company, while the second teem of Company B was a very close third, with a total score of 221.

Northern Route for Auto Parkway.

PORT JEFFERSON, L. I., April 18.—That it is the intention of the Directors of the Long Island Motor Parkway to use a northern circuit for a portion of the private automobile speedway was clearly indicated to-day when it became known in this vicinity that men who are said to be agents of the Parkway Company were in town endeavoring to secure consents to rigbts of way through private properties. Rumore were tbick that in the event of the consents being obtained, the Automobile Parkway, over which the race for the Vanderbilt Cup will be run, will be built through this place and along the North Shore, instead of through the middle of the island, as had been expected.

Will Try to Break Painters' Strike.

It was said yesterday at the Building Trades' Club that the Executive Committee hed taken up a complaint by the Brotherhood of Painters thet non-union painters were employed at the Plaza Hotel, where the George A. Fuller Company is general contractor. The firm denied this. Up to yesterday few members of the Master Painters' Association and the Interior Decorators and Cabinetmakers' Association had begun to fill the places of the striking painters. Beginning to-day, a general attempt will be made to fill their places on the open-shop plan.

THE CAVE MAN
By JOHN CORBIN
A man's a man - - in college or in factory, in evening clothes or overalls, in love or in business, Honor is honor, - - whether it hurts or not.
"THE CAVE MAN" is a college man, a manufacturer, a man of honor in evening clothes and overalls, in love and in a great business war.
He has a mighty hard time proving it.
But he proves it—and wins out.
Read the romance of this modern and learn why they call him "the CAVE MAN"
Incidentally, do not forget that Robert W. Chambers's new serial begins in the May number of Appleton's Magazine.

FRANCE AND PORTO RICO.

The unexpected, and we had almost said undeserved, complaisance of Germany has deferred rather than averted the tariff dispute which threatened from that quarter. But tha skies no sooner clear in that direction than another similar question is raised precisely because the United States and Germany seem to be approaching an understanding which France chooses to construe unfavorably to itself. The incident serves to show that the question of tariff reform may be brought to a head sooner by foreign pressure than by all the protests of domestic interests. Our standpatters at home have resources to quiet thosa suffering from our customs policy which cannot be used against buyers and sellers across the ocean, opening the prospect that the tariff question is entering upon a novel phase. According to our Washington dispatches "tha State Department officials fear that this French action is but the precursor of similar attacks upon American trade by other nations of Continental Europa."

It is a coincidence worth noting that France's penalization of Porto Rico's coffee is published upon the same day with Secretary TAFT'a assurance to the Porto Ricans that they possess United States citizenship in all but its sentimental aspects. The Porto Ricans are likely to test these words by noting whether the response to France's discrimination against Porto Rican coffee is in all respects the same as that which would be made to a like discrimination against the trade of those Americans whose citizenship is a substantial as well as a sentimental asset in their business. When the Secretary assures them that the same flag protects them that protects all Americans, the Porto Ricans are likely to ask if the same tariff protects them also. The answer must be that when the United States "gathered Porto Rico to its bosom" and gave it the benefit of the United States market the privilege included free competition with Brazil's coffee, upon perfect equality of opportunity. We fear that the Porto Ricans will regard the bosom to which they are gathered as somewhat cold. It is aure, at any rata, that no other beneficiary of the boldest and bravest and highest tariff would regard similar equality of competition as accordant with the sacred principle of protection, and esteem their claim of citizenship fully discharged thereby.

Yet sympathy with the Porto Ricans must be qualified by regard for other Americans. Eighty-four millions of Continental Americans cannot penalize themselves because of affection for a few island wards, nor even for a few millions of them, if tha little brown brothers in tha Philippines ba included. In other words, we cannot be expected to tax all the coffee we drink, even if we are mostly protectionists, because a small portion of it is produced by distant outlying posaessions. We do ao, it is true, regarding products of what the British call the mother country, but we do not see the application of tho same logic to what is called the free breakfast table. To tax a billion pounds of importa in ordar to protect a Porto Rican production of, say, one-twentieth, and a capacity of perhaps one-tenth, has not seemed good economic logic even to protectionists who have applied the eame theory to their own goods.

Happily it does not follow that we must either abandon the Filipinos and Porto Ricans or enter upon a policy of retaliation involving our general relations with France. There is a middle ground which recommends itself independently of the immediate question now before us. Our general trade relations with Brazil leave something to be desired, and in this specific trade Brazil is promoting a policy of unfair competition with American coffee. It is true that the corner in coffea which is being run under Governmental auspices in Brazil is beneficial to the Porto Rican product so far as it raisas the price of all coffea. But the corner must collapse sooner or later, and even if it should be permanent it is subordinate to the question of unfair competition. Our compass is set upon a course of inconsistencies and embarrassments which sooner or later must cause a revision of our commercial relations with all the world, as well as with France, Germany, and Porto Rico.

PEACE AND "ALL BIG GUNS."

The President has announced to the Peace Congress, as his one practical contribution to the progress of disarmamant, a proposal for a limitation in the size of battleships. On that very day, almost, was announced the launching of a Japanese battleship, built in Japan, and completed for launching almost if not quite in "record time," which was bigger than the British Dreadnought. Our Secretary of the Navy yesterday passed upon the plans of two 20,000-ton battleships.

As the authorization for these sea monstera was largely due to the President's urgency, his remarks about limiting the size of battleships look rather "platonic." Of course, as things are now, every nation builds the biggest battleships it can. Every naval Power is building "to the limit." The limit is fixed not by international legislation, but by tha practical conditions of shipbuilding. "It is provided that tha trees shall not grow into the sky." It is provided that a battleship must not be too big to enter a harbor or even a drydock. But the limit is nevertheless enlarging. No naval nation will consent to bave less than the most powerful battleship afloat. And no naval nation will at prasent consent to have the size of the battleships it may project limited by a conference of peacemakers. The President's suggestion is not likely to ba taken seriously, even by himsif. We might say, least of all by himself.

THE MAYOR'S PROBE.

To the Mayor's suggestion that the Legislature undertake an investigation of various departments of the City Government Gov. HUGHES makes the sound and salutary reply that the Mayor already has the power to make a full inquiry, and that he may "remove any officer who refuses to give him all the information necessary to disclose the condition of his department." This refers, of course, to offices filled by the Mayor's appointmant. President AHEARN, for instance, could not be removed by the Mayor, only by the Governor.

We hope Mayor MCCLELLAN will act, and act vigorously, upon the Governor's advice that he do his own investigating. That is a good home-rule principle. There is need of inquiry, not only in the publio interest but in the interest of the Mayor himself and of his Administration. The people of the city are very likely to blame him for evils for which he is neither personally nor officially responsible, and which he can cure only by making some other municipal officer do his duty. Thorough investigation will disclose abuses, fix responsibility, and put the Mayor in a position to cause the ordinances of the city and the laws of the State to be executed and enforced as the charter requires.

The powers of the Mayor'a Commissioners of Accounts are very broad. They may not only make special examinations of accounts and methods of tha departments, but they are empowered to make "such other examinations as the said Commissioners may deem for the best interests of the city and report to the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen the results thereof." They have the power to compel attendance of witnasses, to administer oaths, and without restriction to examine "such persons as they may deem necessary." The Mayor has power enough, and ha has the assurance of the Governor's support should a case demanding removal be made out.

Borough President AHEARN'S office is in particular a good subject for inquiry. The streets of Manhattan Borough are in notoriously bad condition. Mr. AHEARN is prima facie responsibla. He has asked to be investigated, yet somehow his office shows no great eagerness to assist in the inquiry, as was shown by tha obstacles put in its way yesterday. The Commissioners of Accounts have carried on an investigation not yet completed, and have from time to time made reports to the Mayor. Meanwhile tha Bureau of City Betterment of the Citizens' Union has been looking into the management of the Borough President'a office. It has got a great deal of information of publio interest and wants more. President AHEARN resists the effort to get more information. His bureau chiefs decline to answer questions and set up all manner of technical objections. Mr. AHEARN says the inquiry is political persecution. He is mistaken. Tha purpose is to gat at the facts, to ascertain the truth. Enough has been aacertained already to ahow that muoh more must be made known. Mr. AHEARN will be ill-advised if he continues his policy of resistance.

Almost cartainly the Mayor must now pursua the investigation with ranewed vigor through his Commissioners of Accounts. He owes it to himself and to tha public. The cry of "politics" will be raiaed, but that is quite another matter. It is true that some of the important offices in the City gently and faithfully performed the duties of his office, whether he has held his subordinates to strict accountability, whether in letting of contracts and purchase of supplies his methods have been lawful and regular—whether, in short, he has been a good public officer. If he has been faithful to his trust investigation will not harm him. If he has been unfaithful the question whether he is to be harmed or not by investigation is the very least of the considerations to be weighed. It is time to turn the light into all the corners of his office.

BAGGAGE EXAMINATION.

Thousands of Americans will give attantion to Mr. CORTELYOU'S inquiry into the present barbarous method of conducting the customs examination of passengers' baggage, and if he should order sensible reforms their gratitude will be his reward.

The present method is senseless, outrageous, and indecent. It makes the Government seem to assume that every citizen of this Republic returning from abroad is a cheat and a liar. Lest some might forbear to lie intentionally arrangements are made to betray them into lying by inadvertence. The exacting of a declaration aboard the ship and the enforcing of a further examination on the dock constitute a method that would ba almost offensive against criminals or the public anemy. The resulting benefit to the revenues is insignificant, the annoyance to everybody is serious enough to constitute a publio abuse.

We are glad that the Secretary of the Treasury is thinking about the matter.

BANKS AND RAILWAYS.

The report that the President had told ex-Gov. LARRABEE that it was more prudent to invest in bank stocks than in railway stocks was unworthy of denial, bearing its falsity upon its face. Tha only ground for drawing distinctions between the two classes of securities is that bank stocks are in some way exempt from the policy attributed to the President of causing railway property to be valued for the purpose either of regulating rates, or the profits to ba allowed to that class of capital.

But it is obvious that the two classes stand upon an equality of reason in that respect. Railway rates are moderate compared with the interest which National banks exact under their charters, and it may be added that ratea and interest are alike independent of the capitalization theory. Neither railways nor banks regulate their charges with reference to their capital. And while it is true that the capitalization of banks is revised with the greatest exactness known to the business world, yet it is also true in another sense that their stocks show market valuations to make railway Presidents blush for their incompetency. To the Newport chickens was only promisad 200 for Union Pacific, but there are plenty of banks quoted at 500, and some at 1000 and more, eclipsing even Standard Oil, the moat shameless trust of all.

It is much to be desired that those who are perplexed by the President's capitalization theories should read Prof. FISHER'S Chapter V., upon "Capital Accounts." They would learn, what every business man knows, that capital in this relation is a mere bookkeeping term. A railway's eharea cannot be reprinted every time that a balance aheet is struck, or that the market shifts. Their value must alter, like a bank's stocks, as earnings alter, and the market appraises thesa altering relations faithfully every day. If a perfect physical appraisal were to be made, and were to be kept oonstant, market valua neverthaleas would remain unstable, corresponding to brisk or dull trade, or to the vicissitudes of competition. And in this respect also the parallel with bank stocks holds good. If the principle of valuation and control by Government is good for railwaya it is good in unexpected other directions.

STRIPPING THE PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

A very serious argument against the Equal Pay bill now before the Legislature is made by Mr. ABRAHAM STERN in a communication to The Evening Post. He says:

If the so-called Equal Pay bill for teachers, now before the Legislature, had been deliberataly concocted to deceiva the 6,000 primary women of this city and to restora the old régima of political and other influence into the schools of New York, it could not have been drawn more effectively to work havoo. If it had been designed specifically to rob the little children in the earliest grades of experienced teachers and to place the first education of our citizens—the most crucial point—entirely in tbe hands of novices, again it could not have been more accurately drawn.

The division contemplated by the bill is that the teachers in the upper grades ara to receive increasea in salary ten times greater than those for the primary women. The equalization principle will apply only to thosa teachers above the 4 A grade. This means that women teachers in the 4 B grade and upward are to receiva $920 a year more than women teachers in the 4 A grade and downward. This sudden demarkation in salary between tha 4 A grade and the 4 B grada can mean but one thing—that the experienced teachers below tha 4 B will turn heaven and earth to get out of the lower grades into the grades abova the 4 A, where their salariea will be $920 greater.

These statements are made by a responsible official with every opportunity of citizens. No legislation in regard to this class, directly or indirectly, is tolerable that does not tend to cure the gross evils that already exist. If these evils, instead of being removed or reduced, are to be aggravated, the gravest responsibility will rest on those who bring about that result. This is a matter compared with which the question whether the men are overpaid or the women underpaid is insignificant. It is a matter that concerns the entire city and involves the essential rights and interests of the whole community. If a bill operating as Mr. STERN says this bill will operate comes before the Mayor, it will be his duty to examine it with the greatest care and not only to interpose his veto, but to use all the influence he can command to secure its defeat.

By the method and principle of promotion in practice the teachers of the youngest pupils are necessarily the least skillful, the least experienced, the most poorly paid, and much the hardest worked. As the children grow older their teachers have smaller classes, easier tasks, higher rank, and better pay. By the time the "highest" grade is reached the average pupil receives tuition and training that costs the city saveral times as much as the tuition and training given to the children in the "lowest" grades. In other words, thosa who need the most, whose instruction is the most difficult and of the greatest value, are relatively neglected. This is true of the majority of pupils, who are compelled to quit at an early age; the parents of these are least able to pay the school tax, and actually pay much more in proportion to their means than the parents of the minority. The Legislature ought in all conscience to refrain from aggravating this unfairness.

THE BAILING OF THAW.

That THAW should be released on bail pending a second trial is a suggestion opposed by every consideration of justice and of the publio safety. It may be, as his humane counsel points out, that confinement in the Tombs will be prejudicial to his bealth. THAW had no like solicitude for the health of the man he shot down.

He killed WHITE, he intended to kill him, and aeven men of his jury believed and voted that the killing was murder in the first dagree. The other five voted for his acquittal only because they believed him insane at the time of tha shooting, and therefore legally irresponsibla. To let such a man go free under bail would be monstrous. More than that—it would be dangerous. A depraved being of his stamp, declared by his own witnesses to be subject to "brain storms," and by nearly a score of medical experts to be of unsound mind, is no more fit to be at large than a mad dog. A great many persona believe that THAW should never see the sky again save through the grated windows of a prison or of an asylum for the criminal insane.

Why so much consideration and tenderness for the slayer of STANFORD WHITE? The medical witnesses employed by the State were not permitted to examine him. At every possible point he was sheltered, protected, and hedged about with safeguards as though he were entitled to unusual treatment. If he were a common Italian murderer he never would have escaped examination by the experts of the State, and thare would be no talk of bailing him. The ability to give bail is no measure of the merit of the application for it.

FRIEDRICH NIETZSCHE and HENRIK IBSEN were much greater men than SCHMIDT of Bayreuth, who called himself Max Stirner. Yet both of these restless men of genius owed much to the influence of Max Stirner, whose exposition of his idea of individualism, in his remarkable book called "Der Einzige und sein Eigenthum" was the first noteworthy pronouncement of that creed of selfishness, the first formulation of the doctrines of the Anarchist. Mr. JAMES HUNEKER'a articla on the English translation of Stirner's book, "Tha Ego and His Own," to be published in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS this week, is a clear exposition of Stirner's ideas, and involves an interesting study of the man and his work.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Italians and Their Crimes.

No records have been kept, so far as we are aware, that will show what basis there is for the present vehement assertions that all the crimes called "Italian" are committed by immigrants of Sicilian birth. We have our doubts, howevar, that the records, if they had been kept, would have shown any such segregation of Italy's criminals.

Everybody knows, of course, either from travel or reading, that social conditions in Sicily are still decidedly primitive, that the people there are much inclined both to bear knives and to wield them in the exercisa of a wild justica upon anybody who has excited passionate hate by carrying cash on his person, and that tha law, as a means of righting either real or imaginary wrongs, is held in something less than light esteem by a considerable fraction of the island's population. Still, there ara other parts of Italy, or, if the mainlanders insist, there are parts of Italy, whare much the sama conditions and notions prevail in only slightly mitigated form. There have been brigands, not a few in the Calabrian mountains, assassinations ara not unknown in Rome or Venice, and one has only to interview

Newspapers Are Not So Bad.

We cannot quite follow—it could hardly be expected that we would quite follow—the British Ambassador in his attempt to convinca tha Peace delegates that newspapers have much to do with creating between nations the ill-feeling whioh leads to war. The papers, according to him, report back and forth across the border or across tbe sea every spiteful utterance that tends to stir up passion and they omit the utterances that maka for good-will.

It is a fact, of course, that the newspapers do much, perhaps too much, in tha way of giving publicity to statements which wise men would not utter, but, unless they invent the unkind things they print, we do not see that they can be severely—and fairly—blamed for what they reveal of this nature, since it is their business to keep their readers informed about wbat is going on everywhere, and the state of public feeling in foreign lands is surely a legitimate matter of news.

As to tbe charge that the newspapers do not give equal spaca to the kind things said by the orators of one country about the people in others, tbere may be something in it, but it is by no means true that the newspapers never print matter of that kind. As a matter of fact, they print lots and lots of it—more, we are certain, than many of their readers care to perusc, for it is usually dull and punky stuff, interesting chiefly for its unconscious humor and its wild inaccuracies.

And Mr. BRYCE should remember that, in the years since newspaper reading became the daily custom of all civilized peoples, wars bave not increased in number; on the contrary, they have become extremely rare as compared with their frequency in the days when the fates of nations rested wholly in the hands of Kings and diplomats, and the newspapers, where there were any, humbly printed without criticism what came to them from official sources. Heaven knows—and the other place, too, probably—that the newspapers are not perfect yet, but it could be successfully maintained, we think, that they prevent far mora quarrels of every sort than they cause, and, taking them by and large, they compare well enough with any other buman institution the name of which we recall at this moment as the guardian of both national and international peace.

Mr. Stead Wins Applause.

After several rather successful experiments, Mr. STEAD seems to have found at the reception of the Collegiata Equal Suffrage League an audience which not only heard him out, but did it with frequent manifestations of approval. This recalls the old saw that refers, among other things, to walnut trees, for Mr. STEAD drew freely upon his larga stock of harsh epithets for use upon his gentle hearers and treated them to a long enumeration of their faults and follies.

By so doing he illustrated what he said was the right way of treating women, and justified—perhaps—his elaborately formulated criticism of the opposite policy followed by American men. We have, it seems, a false idea of chivalry and are so reprehensibly smiling and polite toward tha other sex that if a woman announced in a drawing room that after profound study of mathematics she had discovered a way of adding 2 and 2 so as to make 5, the men present would suavely congratulate her on her achievement to her faca and later call her a fool among themselves. Mr. STEAD'S notion, apparently, is that true chivalry, in such a case, would give a man the happy inspiration to tell the lady, openly and boldly, that she was certainly mendacious and probably meretricious, and, with a few more well-chosen adjectives, reduce her to proper humility.

Such is our distinguished visitor's own practice, and, as the Collegiate Suffragists suffered him gladly, there may be something in his theory. Indeed, it is almost certainly a fact that feminine errors and inaccuracies are too often passed over as if they were not worth correcting, and that is not nearly as complimentary to women as it would be to treat them as a courteous man treats the errors and inaccuracies of another man. Too much "consideration" is rather more disdainful than too little, and if Mr. STEAD had contented himself with saying that true masculine respect for women is best shown by addressing them as on an intellectual level—when, as often happens, it can be done with soma show of sincerity—he would have talked at least the semblance of good sense.

Roosevelt and Bryan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"He [Roosevelt] is so far superior to Mr. Bryan in ability, in intellectual reach and resource, in picturesqueness, in zeal, force, and ardor, and in his command of all the arts by which crowds are roused and led that Mr. Bryan is as completely 'blanketed' and beaten as if he had never been in the race."—TIMES editorial.

With due respect for THE TIMES, this quotation will seem to many an instance of "sinning against light."

Whatever Mr. Bryan's political handicaps or misfortunes, he is undoubtedly a man of real genius—the most remarkable in our public life to-day. It will not be denied that on several occasions he has achieved real oratory—the message, the measure, the sacred fire. From the other Fortunate Person we have had, and continue to have, just talk, with the steady and uninspiring operation of a sawmill.

In the judgment of many besides the undersigned, Mr. Bryan's intellectual distinction is quite as patent and pronounced a fact as Mr. Roosevelt's political success.

REAL ISSUE OF THAW CASE.

Need for Radical Change in the Law to Protect the Defenseless.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Though not less weary of this protracted and heart-sickening Thaw case than the writer of the abla editorial of a day or two ago, I feel that attention should be called to one of tha fundamental issues brought to our notice during the trial, but recently forced into tbe background. I have no defense for the prisoner at the bar, but the trial's long offense against public taste and public morals can only be justified by lasting reforms.

Much has been said concerning the need of reform in our methods of judicial procedure, but since our first shock of horror at the underlying cause of the crime there has been a tendency on the part of the District Attorney and now of the editor of THE TIMES to minimize the crime of whicb Stanford White was accused, and on the evidence apparently convicted. He was guilty, according to that evidence, not of unchastity, but of seduction, which, if you read your Dante, you will find is a very different thing. Seduction is not a "deplorable weakness"—it is a dastardly crime, and one which our law does not punish in any adequate way, even upon undisputed evidence.

Men in the position and with the talents and habits of life of Stanford White are infinitely more dangerous to the community than those of tbe Thaw type. What protection haa the individual or the community against them? Young girls of 16 are permitted under the law to sell tbemselves, even to be robbed unwittingly of their honor, years before they could part with a foot of land. We want no private vengeance or "Dementia Americana," but New York is worsa than a mining camp so long as the individual cannot protect tha defenseless and the law will not.

While the sickening story is still fresh in our minds, will the District Attorney or THE TIMES make any effort to do away with that abomination, "the age of consent," or will honorable men continue to condone it and justice reach the offender only by the hand of the assassin?

AUTOS ON ST. NICHOLAS AVENUE.

Speed of Forty Miles an Hour Frequently Attained in One Stretch.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the sad death of Inspector Grant's son by an automobile at St. Nicholas Avenue and 144th Street yesterday, I desire to call attention to the custom which has prevailed among autoists passing down this thoroughfare of running at high speeds St. Nicholas Avenue from 160th to 120th Street has a considerabla grade, the pavement is laid with wooden blocks, and is smooth, with few breaks. I bave many times held my watch on speeding autos passing between 148th and 145th Streets, and have calculated the speed frequently the cars thus observed have been traveling at the rate of forty to fifty miles. One evening last Autumn I timed a large touring car containing a party of five, whicb attained a speed between these points of 56.2 miles per hour!

Few people realize the rapidity with which even a horse-drawn vehicle is going to cover eight miles in an hour. I own a road horse capable of traveling twelve miles an hour. I have frequently driven over the route above referred to at the rate of eight miles an hour, and I am constantly observing passing autos going the same direction as I am which will cover three to four blocks to my one! Many serious accidents have occurred on this stretch of roadway, and numerous minor mishaps are witnessed. It seems to me that the time has arrived when the authorities should take cognizance of the situation in this section.

LIBERTY NOT LICENSE.

New York, April 8, 1907.

Mr. Bryan's Popularity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial and news columns appear sadly at variance as regards the feeling of the people toward Mr. Bryan. I read in your editorial of this morning on Bryan that "no very large number of persons any longer seriously attends to him. Demonstrations organized in his honor seem cold and perfunctory." In your news columns of the same date, however, I read an entirely different story. Mr. Bryan addressed three sections of tho Peace Congress yesterday, whicb was certainly not a "demonstration organized in his honor," at all, of which he was received enthusiastically, and at two almost tumultuously. Notwithstanding he was the last speaker at a three days' session of the Peace Congress and at a time when the audience was about surfeited with "peace talk," I read, according to your news report: "When Mr. Bryan concluded there was tremendous applause. He had been greeted with an ovation and frequently interrupted with applause, and the enthusiasm with which his peroration was greeted was remarkable."

Is it then true that "no very large number of persons any longer seriously attends to him," or, rather, is it that "the wish is father to the thought"? QUERY.

Good Work of Educational Alliance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The committee to investigate the work of the entertainment department of the Educational Alliance has filed its report with tbe Directors. The benefits to be derived may be classified as educational and moral. Judged from the former standpoint, there is no question of the benefit derived from the performances, especially in the matter of perfecting the pronunciation of the alien children. The exercise of the memory, always coincident witb theatrical productions, may also be noted.

Morally it was evident that the chtldren receive most beneficial influence. There is no tendency to draw the children to a stage career, as had been conjectured. The children enter into the work with full zeal, and while a healthy spirit of fun is engendered there is no question that a refining influence is ever at work. The performances, moreover, form a wholesome diversion for those who make up the audience. Perhaps the greatest good derived is tbe happiness it gives the children who participate. They enter into the spirit of the play with evident enthusiasm. EDUCATION.

Slow Response to Ambulance Call.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning at ahout 9:28 o'clock a manhole at the corner of Forty-second Street and Park Avenue exploded, apparently seriously injuring a workman who was engaged in removing the lid of the same. He was laid on the curb of the sidewalk in front of the Hotel Belmont, and I understand two police officers sent in calls for an ambulance. The man was hleeding seriously from cuts in the head where the lid struck him, and was to all appearances suffering great pain, hut did not lose consciousness. Notwithstanding tbe fact that this accident occurred at the time above given, and calls for an ambulance were immediately made, it was 9:45 o'clock before one arrived. With three prominent hospitals—Bellevue, Flower, and Roosevelt—within seven to ten minutes' run of this prominent corner should it take twenty-two minutes for at least one of them to get an ambulance to the point in question?

GALLANTRY AT WEST POINT.

Why Not Court-Martial Col. Howze for Previous Lapses?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding the article in to-day's issne under "Gallantry at West Point," it might ba well for tha general public to be made aware of some of the facts, regardless of any regulations to the contrary. The custom of loaning overcoats and raincoats at West Point is almost as old as the institution itself; it is only practiced when the weather is such that additional wraps are necessary, and it is very questionable if one of the so-called "guilty" cadets even knows of its prohibition as stated in Section 133 of the regulations. At any rate, if Col. Howze had done his entira duty he would have stopped the custom long ago. If any one should be tried at court, certainly he should be tha one, for it is his duty to enforce the order. If he had even in this instance issued an order on the day, why, of course it would have been promptly obeyed. However, he did not do so, but preferred to insult the ladies wearing the coats as well as unnecessarily to humiliate the cadets.

To further show the spirit, a cadet is being severely punished for apologizing for Col. Howze's ill manners. As an old West Pointer, I say in behalf of the service, if a serious breach of discipline has taken place, "try" the officer that permitted it. J. V. L.

Wesleyan Won After All.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in your paper of to-day a communication from a Syracuse alumnus, in which be asserts tbat THE TIMES'S statement of Saturday that Wesleyan had won the Wesleyan-Syracuse debate by a unanimous decision was falacious. The truth of the matter, however, is as THE TIMES stated in the news item of Satnrday, namely, that Wesleyan was the winner. Mr. Hoyler, the Syracuse alumnus, based his error upon the error of The Syracuse Daily Orange of Saturday morning. Friday night after the debate, this paper was informed that the debate had taken place, and that the decision was unanimous, the message not stating which side had won. The paper, deciding that this meant that Syracuse had been successful, so stated in the Saturday edition of The Orange. If our Syracuse alumnus had only looked into the Monday's edition of that paper, he would have seen that statement corrected, and Wesleyan given due credit for the winning of the debate.

HARRY W. LAIDLER.

Middletown, Conn., April 17, 1907.

Too Much Verdi.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many music lovers must regret that a more interesting programme was not arranged for the closing nights of the season at Mr. Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera House. Three performances of "Rigoletto" (April 13, 15, and 19) in seven days are certainly too many, especially as Verdi's opera was also given as recently as April 6, and on many previous occasions. And why repeat the hackneyed and rather tiresome "Martha," which attracted but a small audience a few nights ago?

Operagoers had hoped to hear Caiva in "Faust," at least once. Rossini's delightful "Barbiere" might well have been repeated, and why was Bellini's "I Puritani," originally announced for the 19th, withdrawn? It has not been given since the opening week of the season, and, though far from a great work, it is decidedly more interesting than some which have been heard here of late, besides affording Signor Bonci an opportunity to appear in his last role. Alexander Berkman's "Retirement."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent announcement in Mother Earth, the Anarchist magazine, by Alexander Berkman, that he had quit his business, referred, not to the publication of Mother Earth, which existed as a monthly even before his release from prison, but to the printing shop he had opened with the hope that by doing all of the work himself he might he able to escape from the necessity of being "either exploiter or exploited." The "friends" to whom he addressed that announcement in Mother Earth are those whom he had for a number of months heen asking through that same journal to let him do what printing they may need.

I trust that you will show your fairness hy publishing the above for the benefit of all parties concerned. A. C. BRANDSCHAIN.

Economy and Justice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Replying to a letter published in your paper this morning, and leaving out all questions that have been thrashed over, except the economic aspect and justice; if the "economic foundation" would "totter," (for a while,) would not the "foundation of justice" be strengthened? Is economy and not justice always to rule? Is it not a fact that in all arguments advanced by the men, teachers and otherwise, the word "justice" is conspicuous by its absence? AN AMERICAN WOMAN.

Are Stock Tickers So Degrading?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having read an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES entitled "Likes Bronze Nightmare," I would ask "McMann" what he finds so degrading in the stock ticker and in the quotation board? I infer from his sentence, "Is it not incentive to raise their minds and hearts to something more elevated than the stock ticker and the quotation board," that he must he laboring under a misapprehension as to stock tickers and quotation boards.

A SUMMER CAMPER.

Englewood Cliffs, N. J., April 15, 1907.

The Second Line.

From The Montreal Gazette.

President Roosevelt has been driven in connection with the Harriman charges from bis first line of defense and calling all his traducers liars to a second line where he holds that contributions made by corporations to the Republican Committee which secured his election in 1904 were not made for improper purposes or through improper motives. Some of these contributions also, but only some of them, were returned. Mr. Roosevelt's enemies seem to have him where they want him and doing what they can rejoice in.

IN LOWER BROADWAY.

Here where the canyon narrowest runs
And the stream of life flows fierce—
Here where nor morn nor twilight suns
Nor evening planets pierce—
Here where nor seas nor prairies lure,
Nor brook nor wood nor bird—
Here find I full in power and pure
A song by Keats unheard.

It is the song of the heart of man,
His strong creative heart,
It is the song that rose and ran
When Earth became a chart,
Our Frémont followed it to the West,
Our Hill was borne on its pulse,
All great men love that music best
With which New York exults.

Through it men wrought their brotherguilds,
By it the Earth is hurled—
It makes man as a god, who builds
His world within the world!
It is that music of the eyes,
That undertow of speech,
That strength that in great faces lies,
That grace, that love, that reach

Of one soul into another soul
Through which men work as one,
Through which a million track one Goal,
One Vision 'neath the sun.
It builds the Earth, it bridges seas,
It bids man give his blood

MISS ROCKEFELLER WEDDED TO MR. DODGE

Ceremony at William Rockefeller's Home, with Only Near Relatives Present.

THE REV. DR. CARY MARRIED

Marcellus Hartley Dodge, son of the late Norman Dodge, and grandson of Marcellus Hartley, was married to Miss Ethel Geraldine Rockefeller at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rockefeller, 689 Fifth Avenue. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, officiated.

The house was decorated with bridesmaids' roses and palms. The bride wore a princess robe of white satin, with tulle and lace, and a tulle veil, and carried white roses. She wore no jewels. She was given in marriage by her father. Her only attendant, Miss Anna Bush of Tarrytown, wore white chiffon and carried lilies of the valley. Barent Lefferts was Mr. Dodge's best man.

There were no ushers and there was no music. The guests were near relatives only, as Mr. Dodge is in mourning for his father, who died only a short time ago. Among them were:

Mrs. Marcellus Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. George Walker Jenkins, the Misses Jenkins, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. George E. Dodge, Mrs. William E. Dodge, Miss Grace Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Dodge, the Misses Dodge and Messrs. Dodge, Mrs. O. B. Jennings, Miss Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. West Roosevelt, Miss Lorraine Roosevelt, Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Nicoll, the Misses Nicoll, Arthur G. Sedgwick, Miss Anita Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, the Misses Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Cotton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. William Sloane, Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rogers Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. F. Edgerton Webb, Mrs. Robert Sturgis, Miss May L. Sturgis, Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, Mrs. Richard Irvin, Miss Edith Deacon, and Miss Electra Havemeyer.

GIBB—DWIGHT.

H. Elmer Gibb, a son of the late John Gibb, was married to Miss Grace Dwight, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Dwight, yesterday afternoon in the Congregational Church of the Pilgrims, Remsen and Henry Streets, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. H. P. Dewey officiating. Yellow and white daffodils and white roses figured largely in the decorations in the church, as they did also at the home of the bride's parents, at 51 Remsen Street, at the reception which followed the ceremony.

The bride wore a robe of point lace applique on white satin, and carried a bouquet of white lilacs, with trailing ferns. She was attended as maid of honor by her sister, Miss Antoinette Dwight, who wore yellow chiffon over yellow satin.

The best man was Arthur Gibb, and the ushers were Walter Gibb, Lewis Mills Gibb, Henry Rutherford Dwight, Frederick Dwight, Frank Lawrence, and Albert Fish.

WHEELER—PEARCE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—Holy Trinity Church was thronged to-day at noon for the wedding of Miss Jennie Pearce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winfield Pearce, and Andrew Wheeler, Jr. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mildred Pearce, as maid of honor. Arthur L. Wheeler acted as best man for his brother.

MUSIC SETTLEMENT CONCERT.

Fashionable Audience Hears Pupils at Mendelssohn Hall.

The pupils of the Music School Settlement gave their annual Spring concert yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall before a fashionable audience. An interesting programme was presented with the assistance of Charles Gilbert of the Manhattan Opera House Company, who sang several songs.

Other selections on the programme were Beethoven's adagio from the sonata in F minor, by Miss Clara Rabinowitz; Schroeder's romance in B minor for violoncello, by Lief Rosenmann; fantasie in C minor for piano by Miss Beatrice Baker; Haydn's allegro for quartet in D major, by Simon Cohn, Otto Born, Samuel Dushkin, and Lief Rosenmann; Mozart's Serenade, a gavotte by Gillet, and Tschaikowsky's Elegie by the orchestra class.

Mrs. Howard Mansfield is President of the Board of Managers of the Music School Settlement, and her associates include: Vice Presidents, Mrs. Frederick Trevor Hill, Miss Florence H. Matthews; Treasurer, Mrs. George L. Nichols; Secretary, Miss Laura J. Post; and Mrs. Robert Abbe, Mrs. H. A. Alexander, Mrs. A. A. Anderson, Miss C. V. R. Thomas, Mrs. William J. Schieffelin, Mrs. Henry Villard, Mrs. John Hobart Warren, Mrs. Henry C. Potter, and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane.

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE BENEFIT.

"Monsieur le Directeur" Presented at Carnegie Lyceum.

Members of the Cercle Dramatique of the Alliance Française presented Bisson and Carre's comedy, "Monsieur le Directeur" in Carnegie Lyceum last night for the benefit of the Home Garden and East Side Settlement.

The comedy was staged under the direction of Ernest Perrin of Paris, who was the only professional actor in the company.

Among those in the audience were Mrs. Seth Low, Mrs. Robert Sturgis, Mrs. Lyon Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. R. Burnside Potter, Frederick Sturges, Jr., Alexander T. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Tileston Wells, and M. Velten of the French Embassy. The Alliance Française has presented a series of French plays this season. Plans are already under way for the continuance of the performances next season.

Among the managers are Mesdames Van Rensselaer Schuyler, Charles Babcock, Charles Burroughs, Francis W. Murray, Frederick B. Hibbard, H. H. Cammann, J. B. Mabon, Frederick Parmly, Charles Pinkerton, William Choate, T. Tileston Wells, Frederick Lewis, Arthur H. Masten, William S. Dodd, and the Misses Babcock, Elizabeth Knevels, Susan Warren, Grace de Luze, Susan Bliss, Harriet Wells, Louise Watson, Mary Weyman, and Margaret A. Jackson.

MISS BARCLAY ENGAGED.

Will Wed Henry W. Shoemaker, ex-Secretary of Legation at Berlin.

The engagement is announced of Henry Wharton Shoemaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Shoemaker, to Miss Beatrice Barclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Barclay of Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Shoemaker is a Columbia graduate, Class of 1901, and has served as Secretary of the American Embassy at Berlin. He is a Second Lieutenant in the Twelfth Regiment. He has for two years been in the banking business in New York. His younger brother, the late William Brock Shoemaker, who died some months ago, married Miss Ella de Peyster, a daughter of Mrs. Frederic J. de Peyster. His sister, Miss Blanche Le Roy Shoemaker, who made her début two Winters ago, published a volume of poems recently.

Mr. Shoemaker's mother was Miss Blanche Quiggle of Philadelphia. His father is a well-known railway official. He has been associated in business with Eugeno Zimmerman and Vice President Fairbanks. No date has been set for the wedding.

Social Notes.

Miss E. Lucy Washburn, whose marriage to Sidney Beardsley Wood is set for June 8, will have her cousin, Mrs. Joseph S. Ulman, as her matron of honor, and not Mrs. Joseph F. Simms as previously announced. Mrs. Ulman was Miss Pauline Cory.

Miss Mary Cozine Lefferts, whose wedding plans were published in this column on Friday last, will have Miss Aleid Schenck and Miss Amory Hare, the latter of Philadelphia, among her attendants.

About fifty friends of Miss Laura Fisher of 9 West Fifty-eighth Street, gave her a surprise farewell luncheon at the Hotel St. Regis yesterday noon, which was followed by bridge. There were five tables arranged for the luncheon, with ten guests at each table. Miss Fisher sails Saturday to spend the Summer abroad.

Miss Hall's Wedding Plans.

Miss Jane Ruthven Hall, whose engagement to Reginald W. Robbins of Boston was announced a few days ago, has decided to wed on May 17 in Grace Church Chantry at noon. She will have only one attendant, her sister, Miss Margaret Hall, as maid of honor. Mr. Robbins has not decided on his best man and ushers. Miss Hall is a daughter of Mrs. Henry B. Hall of 107 East Sixty-fifth Street.

T. J. Hallowell to Wed in June.

The wedding of Thomas Jewett Hallowell of New York and Miss Marion Slocum Ricketson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ricketson, will take place on June 15 in Grace Church, New Bedford, Mass. The engagement was announced last Winter in THE TIMES. Mr. Hallowell is a member of the Players' Club, the Sons of the Revolution, and other clubs.

WHITE HOUSE GIRLS' PARTY.

Ethel Roosevelt's School Companions Dine and Dance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Mrs. Roosevelt gave a dinner at the White House this evening for the junior class of the National Cathedral School for Girls, of which Ethel Roosevelt is a member, in compliment to the senior class. The dinner was followed by a dance in the East Room. About forty girls from the school were guests of Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel at dinner, and an equal number of young men were invited for the dancing afterward, for which the Engineers' Band furnished the music.

This is the first time in the recollection of the oldest inhabitants that there has been any such festivity for young people in the White House.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt went for a horseback ride this afternoon, leaving the White House about 4 o'clock in their open surrey and mounting their horses at the edge of the city, according to their custom. They rode in the suburbs until almost dark. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain at dinner next Wednesday evening.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Bonaparte were hosts this evening at dinner in their town house in Baltimore. Among the guests who went over from Washington were Justice and Mrs. Day, the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Secretary of Interior and Mrs. Garfield, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Converse, wife of Admiral Converse, Mr. and Mrs. Walcott, and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock.

Mrs. Edson Bradley entertained at luncheon to-day.

The Minister from Bolivia, Mr. Calderon, who has been ill in his home on Sixteenth Street for the past two weeks, is now convalescent, but is not able to leave the house yet.

The American Minister to Norway and Mrs. Herbert H. D. Pierce, who are in this country on leave of absence from Mr. Pierce's post of duty, and have been spending the past few days in Washington, went to Boston to-day. They will remain there until the first of June, when they will sail for Norway.

GERMANS CRITICISE TREE.

Find He Lacks Depth in Conception of Shakespeare's Characters.

BERLIN, April 18.—Beerbohm Tree, with his stock company from His Majesty's Theatre, London, brought his cycle of Shakespearean plays to a close tonight with the production of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," which was received with unusual enthusiasm.

These performances have drawn large houses and have been well received, but most of the German critics deal harshly with Mr. Tree's interpretation of Shakespeare. They object especially to the interpolations and the addition of pantomimes not belonging to the text, and find the English actor lacking in philosophical depth in his conception of the characters of Shakespeare. Furthermore, the rhythmical style of declamation is not in accord with the realistic German method of playing Shakespeare.

Mr. Tree's company will leave here for London to-morrow on a special train.

To Plan for New German Theatre.

A meeting will be held at the Hotel Astor on next Wednesday afternoon under the patronage of Ambassador Charlemagne Tower, to hear the plans of the new manager of the Irving Place Theatre for a reorganized German theatre. Dr. Baumfeld, the new manager, has interested a number of prominent American and German-American women in the movement, and they have formed a committee of which Mrs. Emil L. Boas is the Chairman. Karl Ruenz, the German Consul General, and Prof. William H. Carpenter of Columbia are among the speakers who will make brief addresses.

"Cleo" Produced at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 18.—After many disputes, "Cleo" received its first American presentation at the Savoy Theatre here to-night. Edwin Milton Royle, the author, and Nance O'Neil, the star, were heartily congratulated after the performance. This is the play in which Mrs. Leslie Carter was to appear, but gave it up after a quarrel with the author.

Arnold Daly in a New Play.

Arnold Daly will offer a series of special matinées at the Lyceum Theatre during his engagement in "The Boys of Company B." The first series of four will be presented on successive Tuesdays, beginning on April 30. Each matinée performance will consist of three short plays, "The Lemonade Boy," by Gladys Unger; "The Flag Station," by Charles Arthur Kenyon, and "The Monkey's Paw," a dramatization by Louis N. Parker of W. W. Jacobs's story of the same name.

Message from Nat Goodwin.

Herman L. Roth, counsel for Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, sent this telegram to the newspapers last night, as having been received from Mr. Goodwin:

San Francisco, Cal., April 17, 1907.
Herman L. Roth, Knickerbocker Theatre Building.

Kindly deny, as my counsel, report that I have been sued for rent in conjunction with Miss Goodrich. I simply became responsible on a lease made to her mother and herself; nothing more. NAT C. GOODWIN.

Art Gift from Mrs. Gardner.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 18.—Mrs. John L. Gardner has presented to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts a fine set of reproductions of Botticelli's drawings for the illustrations to Dante's "Divine Comedy." The gift includes reproductions of both the Vatican Library series and the Berlin series.

FOOD.

THE KNOW HOW

To Feed Children and Get Good Results.

There are more nervous persons made so by undigested food lying in the stomach than the average individual would suppose.

If food remains undigested in the stomach, it begins to ferment, set up gas and a large portion is thus converted into poison.

That's why imperfectly digested food may and often does cause irritation of the nerves and stupor of the mind—brain and nerves are really poisoned.

"My daughter had complained for some time of a distressed feeling in the stomach, after eating, which set me thinking her diet was not right," writes an anxious and intelligent mother.

never tried Grape-Nuts. From reading the account of this predigested food, it seemed reasonable to try Grape-Nuts for

"She had been fond of cereals, but had her case.

"The results were really wonderful. The little brain that seemed at times unable to do its work, took up new life and vigor. Every morning, now, before going to school, she eats the crisp little morsels and is now completely and entirely well, she seems to have a new lease on life—no more distresses in the stomach, nor headache, but sound and well every way." ELSIE JANIS WINS IN LEGAL CONTEST

Actress Allowed to Take $3,000 a Week Vaudeville Engagement.

OLD CONTRACT NOT BINDING

Liebler Company's Request for a Permanent Injunction Is Denied.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday denied the application of Sargent Aborn, Theodore A. Liebler, and George C. Tyler for a permanent injunction restraining Elsie Janis from leaving their management to appear in vaudeville under the management of Percy Williams. This is the latest development in one of the most interesting theatrical lawsuits of the season, regarded among theatrical people as a test of the respective responsibilities of manager and actress.

Miss Janis, who closed her season in "The Vanderbilt Cup" on Saturday, had been receiving $750 a week from the plaintiffs, which was to have been increased to $900. In her affidavit she says that she has received an offer of $3,000 a week to do a twenty-minute act in vaudeville.

Miss Janis was to have made her vaudeville début under the Williams management last Monday in Brooklyn, but was prevented by a temporary injunction in favor of the plaintiffs. It is now announced that she will appear at the Colonial Theatre, Manhattan, next Monday.

Miss Janis, who is a minor, signed the contract with the Liebler firm herself. In spite of this and the fact that the contract was also signed by the defendant's mother, Jane Bierhower, the court held that the contract was not of such a nature that it could be signed by a minor, and that the agreement of the mother could not bind a minor child.

Herman Frommc, counsel for the Liebers and the Aborns in the suit, announced yesterday that he would take the matter immediately before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

"The opinion of the Justice was long," said Mr. Fromme. "He held that the contract was unfair and not beneficial to the defendant, and decided the matter strictly on a question of law. We contend that the mother was appointed Miss Janis's guardian by the Surrogate Court for the express purpose of signing the contract, and that the young woman had herself a perfectly clear idea of its significance. Her consent is proved by her signature.

"We will not urge that any injunction be continued, for we should then have to give a bond and would be obliged to forfeit if the present decision were sustained and Miss Janis had been prevented from appearing. If we get the ultimate decision she will have to pay back to us all over $900 a week she may earn. The season of 'The Vanderbilt Cup' would have continued at least a month longer if Miss Janis had not refused to remain in the production. The appeal can be heard on May 10."

VERDICT FOR HAMMERSTEIN.

Horn Player's Suit Against Him Dismissed.

Oscar Hammerstein, Signor Campanini, and Nathan Vidaver were in Judge Waldam's chambers in the City Court yesterday, in the suit of John Waring, a horn player. Mr. Waring declared that he had been discharged without reason at the beginning of the season from the orchestra at the Manhattan Opera House and wanted $700 for his services.

Mr. Hammerstein and Mr. Campanini contended that he could not play the horn satisfactorily. Mr. Waring contended that he had played the horn in every Opera House in the world. The Judge listened, and the jury was out three minutes. Returning, they delivered a verdict for the defendant, Oscar Hammerstein.

DOUBLE OPERA BILL.

Changes in Cast at the Manhattan Not Improvements.

The double bill of "I Pagliacci" and "La Navarraise" was given again at the Manhattan Opera House last night, and there were several changes in cast in each opera. Alice Zeppilli sang Nedda for the first time on any stage, even without a rehearsal, it was stated. She was an ideal Nedda in appearance, and when she first jumped from the donkey cart there was hope that she might carry out the promise of her face and figure. Unfortunately, she did not. In action she was disappointing and her voice was not at its best.

Mr. Ancona sang Tonio for the first time this season and failed to replace Mr. Sammarco in any sense of the word, and Mr. Reschigilan was a poor substitute for Mr. Sevéilhac in the part of Silvio. The bright spot in the cast was Mr. Bassi, who sounded the heights and the depths in the pathetic figure of Canio. No other tenor has made such a success in this rôle.

The second performance of "La Navarraise" at this theatre followed, and there were changes of cast in that opera, too. Mr. Gilibert took the part of Remigio, originally sung here by Mr. Séveilhac, and Mr. Gilibert's rôle of Bustimente was taken by Mr. Gianoli-Galletti, who has scarcely enough voice to give effect to the one song of the part. Mme. Calvé again impressed the audience with her wonderful performance of Anita. It is by far the best work she has done this season. Mr. Dalmorès sang Araquil again, and made much of the rather small part. Mr. Campanini conducted both operas. The audience was a large one.

Olive Mead Quartet Concert.

The last concert of the season by the Olive Mead Quartet was given last evening in Mendelssohn Hall and the room was well filled. The programme opened with Novacek's Quartet in E flat, written in the modern Hungarian manner, and included Mozart's duet in G major for violin and viola, and Mendelssonn's Quartet in D major. The numbers were well played by the four young women who comprise this quartet. The Novacek number was of especial interest.

Recital at Columbia.

The Music Department of Columbia University gave a recital in Earl Hall yesterday. The performers were Herwegh von Eude, violin; Modest Altschuler, conductor of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, 'cello, and Prof. Cornelius Rübner, head of the Department of Music at Columbia, pianoforte, assisted by Mr. Kenneth Bingham, baritone. Mr. Bingham pleased the audience by his rendering of an aria from the "Queen of Sheba," "The Friend," by Hugo Wolff, and "The Old Black Mare," by Squires.

Withdraws Hyde-Behman Complaint.

In the Manhattan Avenue Police Court, Williamsburg, yesterday, the Rev. Canon William Sheafe Chase, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church, withdrew the complaint he had made against the Hyde-Behman company in Brooklyn for conducting Sunday performances. He said that the Hyde-Behman company had decided to discontinue its Sunday theatricals.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Ernest Shipman has re-engaged Alfred Jamee for the role of the Jester in the forthcoming revival of "Dorothy Vernon," which is to open on April 22 at the Academy of Music in Jersey City.

Willi Thaller, Herr Conried's leading comedian at the Irving Place Theatre, will have a benefit to-night at that playhouse. Mr. Thaller, who is to sail next Thursday, will appear in "Gebildete Menschen," by Victor Leon. The same comedy will be repeated to-morrow night at the last time on Monday. Hedwig von Osterman will have a benefit on Tuesday, when Sudermann's "Blumenboot" will be presented for the first time in New York.

Charles Dickson, R. C. Herz, and Kenyon Bishop have been engaged to appear with Leo Ditrichstein in the revival of "Before and After," which is to open at the Astor Theatre next Thursday night.

Four hundred members of the Alpha Delta Chi fraternity attended the performance of Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady" at the Hackett Theatre last night. They sang songs between the acts, and after the third act the officers went behind the scenes and were introduced to Miss Stahl. Appropriate lines were interpolated and applauded.

The William Morris Stock Company at the Lincoln Square will continue the production of "The Lost Paradise" for a second week, beginning on Monday.

REV. DR. T. S. HAMLIN DEAD.

He Was Pastor of a Washington Church for 21 Years.

The Rev. Dr. Teunis Slingerland Hamlin, who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, in Washington, D. C., and one of the best known preachers of the East, died shortly before midnight, on Wednesday night at the Hahnemann Hospital, in this city.

He had been stricken with apoplexy in the afternoon at the office of his son, Elbert B. Hamlin, a lawyer, of 59 Wall Street, associated with Lewis R. Conkling. Funeral services will be held at the church, where he had been pastor for almost twenty-one years, on Sunday afternoon. He leaves a widow, and another son, Francis D., who is a student at Yale University.

Dr. Hamlin came here from Washington on Wednesday night to attend the sessions of the Peace Congress, to which he had been delegated, in company with John W. Foster, ex-Secretary of State. Attending the morning session of the congress, he joined his son at the latter's office. He had previously breakfasted with him at the Yale Club. Shortly before 2 o'clock the clergyman suggested luncheon and in company with his son started to leave the office.

He complained of illness in the hall and was removed to his son's private office. Several physicians were at once called in and succeeded for a time in relieving the stricken man. Later he was taken to Hahnemann Hospital.

The body was taken to Washington last night. The funeral services will be in charge of Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of this city, one of Dr. Hamlin's old friends, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Smith of Washington.

Dr. Hamlin, who had been heard as a summer preacher in New York pulpits in almost every season in recent years, was not heard here last year. He had often preached at the Brick and Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Churches. He spent last summer in Europe, preaching throughout the warm months to Dr. Campbell Morgan's congregation in Westminster Chapel, London.

Dr. Hamlin's church was visited annually by hundreds of sightseers, and it was the church of Washington officials of the Presbyterian faith.

He was born in Glenville, N. Y., on May 31, 1847, and was graduated from Union College in 1867, receiving the degree of D. D. in 1886. He held a pastorate for thirteen years in Troy, was two years in Cincinnati, and since 1885 had been in Washington. Dr. Hamlin was married to Frances E. Bacon, at Ypsilanti, Mich., on Feb. 4, 1873. He was connected in official capacities with many institutions and societies.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—News of the death of the Rev. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin was a great shock to his friends and parishoners here. His congregation numbered many persons of wealth and social prominence, President Benjamin Harrison having been a regular attendant.

VISCOUNT MIDLETON DEAD.

Ex-War Secretary Brodrick Will Now Enter the House of Lords.

LONDON, April 18.—The death is announced of William Brodrick, Viscount Midleton.

By the death of Lord Midleton, the Right Hon. William St. John Brodrick, the ex-Secretary for War and for India, will enter the House of Lords as the holder of the Midleton Viscountcy.

Lord Midleton, who was the eighth Viscount of the line, was born in 1830, and succeeded his father in 1870.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Gardner.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Huntington Gardner, Principal of the Gardner School, at 907 Fifth Avenue, and for many years prominently identified with missionary work among the Indians and with educational work in this and other cities, died yesterday at the Gardner School.

He was born at Worthington, Mass. In 1847 he was graduated from Williams College, and soon took up missionary work among the Choctaw Indians. Assisted by the Rev. Allen Wright, who afterward became Governor of the Choctaws, he established a new mission in the Choctaw Agency, and remained at the head of this work until the health of his family forced him to return to the East.

After serving as President of several schools in New England and in this State he became in 1857 the Principal of the Rutgers Female Institute, then the largest school for girls in this city. He founded the Gardner School in 1858, and was continuously associated in the direction of that school until his death. It was established first in Thirty-second Street, and later was removed to Fifth Avenue. Many well-known New York women were graduated from the Gardner School, among them being Helen Gould, Mrs. W. M. K. Olcott, and Mrs. Charles S. Mellen.

The funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at the Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street.

Ferdinand Greenebaum.

Ferdinand Greenebaum, one of the Directors of the American News Company, died early yesterday morning at Lakewood, N. J., after a short illness. Mr. Greenebaum was born in Germany in 1853, coming to this country when he was ten years old, shortly after which he obtained employment in the composing room of The New York Staats Zeitung. After a few years he entered the wholesale newspaper business, and in 1892 he organized the Nassau Newspaper and Delivery Company, of which he was elected President and Manager. He was a member of the Ben Franklin Lodge, F. and A. M., Ayrch Lodge, and United Brethren. He leaves a widow and one son.

Mary Sheddan Fithian.

Mrs. Mary Sheddan Fithian, wife of Richard B. Fithian, died at the International Sunshine Sanitarium, Bensonhurst, on last Saturday of pneumonia. She was one of the leaders in the Women's Club of Brooklyn, an organizer of the Edgewood Reformed Church, and she organized the New Utrecht Sunshine branch. She was President for thirteen years of the Ladies' Aid Society of Borough Park; was one of the organizers of the Brooklyn Diet Dispensary, and President of the New Utrecht Study Club.

She was a daughter of the Rev. Samuel Sheddan, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rahway, N. J., for twenty-three years.

Anson F. Harrold.

BARRINGTON, R. I., April 18.—Anson F. Harrold, 38 years old, President of the American Electrical Transformation Company, and formerly a well-known football player, died of tuberculosis of the throat at his home here to-day. He was a tackle on the Princeton team fifteen years ago. He leaves a widow and daughter.

Obituary Notes.

CHARLES F. MALONE, a prominent merchant and a member of the wholesale firm of Ragan, Malone & Co., died in Augusta, Ga., yesterday, of meningitis, after an illness of a few hours.

JOHN H. TIER, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known business men, died at his home yesterday after a long illness, at the age of 76. He came to Plainfield from New York in 1850. He served six terms as Freeholder in Union County and was a City Councilman for six years. He leaves a widow and two sons.

DROPS IN HIS EYE PUT BOY'S LIFE IN PERIL

[redacted] the nine-year-old son of [redacted] of [redacted] Spruce street, is rapidly recovering from one of the strangest attacks of atropine poisoning in the medical records. Four drops of atropine placed in the boy's eyes in the course of an ordinary ophthalmic examination were communicated to the brain and heart through the fine blood vessels and nerves of the eyes, and muscles of the heart and brains were overstimulated to such an extent that for several hours the boy's life was in danger.

The lad had been under the treatment of an oculist only two days and a half, and the ordinary atropine solution used by all oculists had been administered only twice in each eye when the patient's condition became alarming. Dr. Albert E. Roussel, professor at the Medico-Chirurgical College, was then called in. He found the boy delirious and hysterical. Strong antidotes were administered hypodermically, and after ten hours of heroic treatment the boy was finally declared out of danger.

TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER
Nov. 25

Our experience of twenty years in this work has demonstrated beyond a doubt that where the best methods and skill are employed greater accuracy and better results are obtained without the use of "drops."

Our work combines that of both Oculist and Optician. We prescribe for the correction of all defects of vision, however complicated and we grind and fit our own lenses and assume entire responsibility for the accuracy of the work. Our pamphlet "Eyestrain" is both interesting and instructive. Send for one.

Yankees Win Final Game from Athletics by Score of 8 to 4.

In a game that was marked by heavy hitting, and in which there were two accidents and considerable squabbling between the players and the umpires, the Yankees defeated the Athletics by a score of 8 to 4 yesterday at American League Park.

The accidents both, unfortunately, happened to members of the local team, and as a result Kleinow and Clarkson may be laid up for several days. The accident to Kleinow happened during the third inning, when a foul tip split one of the fingers on his right hand and he was forced to retire. Clarkson received his injury in the seventh inning, when he tried to stop a ground hit made by Hartsel, the ball tearing one of his fingers badly.

The Athletics began the game by scoring two runs and then retiring the Yankees in one, two, three order. Hartsel led off with a single, and moved to second when Clarkson failed to locate the plate for Cross. Seybold doubled to right field, scoring Hartsel and putting Cross on third.

There was a dispute and a long wrangle over Seybold's hit. The entire New York infield surrounded Evans, but he ended the argument by sending Manager Griffith to the bench, refusing to change his decision. After order had been restored Cross scored on Davis's long fly to centre.

Successive triples by Coombs and Hartsel gave the visitors a run in the third. Their fourth run came in the fifth inning, on singles by Cross and Seybold and Murphy's long fly to centre. In the fifth inning Vickers succeeded Coombs.

For the Yankees, Laporte and Williams scored in the second inning, after Coombs had hit Laporte and Williams and Kleinow had made doubles. Two more were added in the third, on a single by Hoffman, followed by Conroy's double and Laporte's single. A base on balls to Thomas, Clarkson's single, and Conroy's second double increased the Yankees' total to six in the fourth, while a base on balls, a passed ball, and Clarkson's second single added one in the sixth. In the eighth Hoffman hit along the right-field foul line for a home run. Score:

Brooklyn yesterday shut out the Giants at Washington Park, Brooklyn, by the score of 3 to 0. It was a pitcher's battle between Pastorius and Taylor, in which the former had somewhat the better of the argument. Two hits were made off Pastorius, while Brooklyn made three singles off Taylor's delivery, one of these, by Ritter, in the seventh inning, scored two of the three runs made in the game.

For six innings neither team was able to score. Two hits had been recorded at this stage of the game, with the fielding of the players brilliant. After New York had been retired in the seventh, Brooklyn scored the first runs of the game when Jordan went to first on called balls and reached second on Batch's fly to Shannon. Alperman was hit by a pitched ball and Jordan reached third when Lewis forced Alperman. Ritter drove a long single to left, sending home Jordan and Lewis. Brooklyn tallied another in the following inning on a base on balls, Corcoran's error, and Jordan's single.

Scanlon, the Brooklyn pitcher, who has been studying medicine all the year at the Long Island Medical College, announced yesterday that he had played his last game on the diamond. Hereafter he will devote his time to medical studies. Score:

Harvard Again Downs Middies.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 18.—Harvard defeated the midshipmen here to-day in the third and decisive game of the series. All of the runs were made in the first inning after Jones, the navy catcher, had missed a chance to retire the side by dropping McCall's third strike when two hands were already out. The score by innings follows:

BLUE HERON WON THE OZONE STAKES

Victory Was the Second in Two Starts for Horses of Samuel Emery's Stable.

ACE HIGH FIRST BY A NOSE

The record of the afternoon's results at the Aqueduct track yesterday made a singular tribute to the judgment of the racegoing public generally. In four of the six races the actual post favorites finished first. In spite of the fact that the older horses now racing at Aqueduct within a few days have been gathered from the four corners of the racing world, and that horses from the Winter tracks met the fresh horses trained on the Long Island tracks, in the fourth day of the New York season, backers picked the winners with precision. The one event on which public opinion went wrong was in the single atake of the programme, the Ozone, for two-year-olds, at a half mile, on the straight. Twelve horses ran, and then it took an absolutely newcomer in racing to upset the public judgment, for the post favorite was second, fighting out at the finish with the newcomer, Blue Heron, which, at 7 to 1, was the longest-chance winner of the day. Blue Heron is the property of Samuel Emery, and the colt's victory gives to the Emery stable the record of the Aqueduct meeting, the stable having started only two horses at the meeting, and both of these having been returned winners.

Simply because he is the stable mate of Master Robert, the Emery winner of a fast race the day before, Blue Heron received some attention, but the betting crowd generally refused to consider any horse other than J. R. Keene's Masks and Faces, a winner on the second day of the meeting, which went to the post a warm favorite, Miller riding her. Blue Heron was ridden by Notter, and from end to end of the contest the race was between the two, Masks and Faces having slightly the better of it at the start, but giving way to Blue Heron in the run around the bend in the chute. When straightened out through the long stretch Blue Heron showed the more courage, and coming away under hard riding at the very end, won a hotly contested race by barely three parts of a length, Masks and Faces second, being a length and a half away from Tartar Maid third.

In the Selling Spring, for three-year-olds, fifth on the programme, there were so many tips on private trials and omens that public form lost something of its usual convincing power, but at that the public insisted on backing the horses that had run best in public, and Barbary Belle, Ace High, and Sir Toddington were the ruling choices in that order. Sir Toddington ran a vastly better race than in his earlier effort at Aqueduct, and only just failed to achieve a betting coup for his stable, Ace High, however, running just a shade better than Sir Toddington, and in a fierce struggle to the winning post getting the decision by a scant nose. Ace High is the colt that won several sensational races for Timothy D. Sullivan last year, later racing in the name of the Five Points Stable, and yesterday coming out in the name and colors of Larry Mulligan, "Big Tim's" half brother. Consequently, the apparent changes in ownership of the horse deceived none of the Suwery patrons of racing.

The opening race went to James R. Keene's Frizette, which romped in an easy winner from a fair field of two-year-olds. W. H. Carey, a newcomer from the Pacific Coast, took up top weight in the mile handicap and won in easy atyle, after waiting on his field into the last quarter of a mile. Mary Morris and Tim O'Toole, both at odds on, were easy winners of their respective races, Tim O'Toole taking the closing event on the card. The weather was bright but cool, and the attendance was the best since the opening day of the season. Summaries:

AUTO CLUB OPENED WITH BIG RECEPTION

NOVEL GARAGE EQUIPMENT

An automobile reception amid surroundings such as have never before been seen in this country was held yesterday afternoon in the new home of the Automobile Club of America, West Fifty-fourth Street, near Broadway. The occasion marked the formal opening of the new building, which was started over a year ago and in its palatial equipment both for owners of cars as well as for the machines themselves represents a financial outlay approximating $1,000,000.

The present membership of the club is 1,000 active members with 300 additional associate and honorary members. At the annual meeting last night which marked the actual possession of the new building the members authorized an increase of 200 members, as the waiting list includes practically that number. Only two or three European clubs exceed America's largest and pioneer motor club in membership and none of them possesses a home so complete in every detail.

President Colgate Hoyt with his Board of Governors and ex-Presidents, including Dave Hennen Morris, Winthrop E. Scarritt, and George F. Chamberlin, acted as the reception committee in greeting the hundreds of members and their guests, who filled up the broad staircase to inspect the new building. Women were as numerous as the men and they were particularly pleased with the special room that has been set apart for their use on the ground floor.

At the head of the grand staircase on the second floor are the two most imposing rooms of the new house, the large assembly hall, two stories in height, occupying the entire front of the building, while adjoining it is the capacious grill room, offering restaurant facilities for 300 members. The great assembly hall, with its lofty beam ceiling and lavish decorations, is an exact copy from a famous French chateau, an attractive gallery being erected at one end from which a band of musicians contributed their share to the enjoyable features of the day.

On the third floor are the billiard room, private committee rooms, and the clerical offices of the club, including the well-equipped quarters of the Touring Bureau, which is furnishing touring information this year to over 500 members for long motor trips in Europe as well as in this country.
